POISON DEATHS MAY TOTAL 12; BABES VICTIMS?

Exhume More Bodies in Klimek Case.

Poison mystery trails late yesterday led detectives investigating murder charges against two women held at the West Chicago avenue police station to the graves of three babies. Two of the infants were the children of Mrs. Nellie Stermer Koulik, who, with her cousin, Mrs. Tillie Klimek, must face a trial that may involve the deaths of as many as twelve persons. The third was a grandchild of Mrs. Koulik. The bodies will be exhumed.

The latest sensational development follows the finding of arsenic several days ago in the exhumed body of Mrs. Klimek's third husband. Her fourth husband, suffering from arsenical poisoning, is in the West Side hospital. It was investigation of his illness that resulted in the Klimek woman's arrest on Oct. 27.

Involves Mrs. Koulik.

At that time she is said to have made a confession involving Mrs. Koulik as the one who supplied the "white powder" believed to have been sprinkled on Klimek's food.

Albert Koulik, husband of one of the suspects, was taken into custody last night, but no charge was laid against him.

Mrs. Koulik's part in what the police suspect may have been a wholesale murder plot rivaling the record of Mrs. Belle Gunness, whose Indiana "murder farm" startled the country a decade ago, and Louise Vermillya, a south side rooming house keeper, alleged to have poisoned her husband and boarders, took on new significance yesterday.

Six of Her Children Dead.

Lieut. Willard L. Malone of the West Chicago avenue police station, in charge of the case, found that in thirty years Mrs. Koulik, who is 45 years old, has given birth to fifteen children. Of these six are dead.

Twins were born to Mrs. Koulik in 1917, a boy, Benjamin, and a girl, Sophia. She was then the wife of Wojcik Stermer. The latter, according to the police, refused to acknowledge the twins, charging his wife with faithlessness. One of the babies died at 3 months, and the other a month later.

The following year Stermer, who is said to have quarreled frequently with his wife over Koulik, her present husband, died. When his body was disinterred last week, Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, found "enough arsenic in the organs to kill several persons."

Mother Angers Daughter.

One of the babies whose graves are to be opened was Dorothy Spera, daughter of Mrs. Clement Spera. Mrs. Spera, who lives at 1217 Wade street, is a daughter of Mrs. Koulik. The dead child's parents, according to Lieut. Malone, not only were willing that the body be exhumed, but they insisted this be done. All three graves are in St. Adelbert's cemetery.

The father is said to have told the police he is convinced the baby was poisoned. There had been friction between Mrs. Koulik and her daughter, the latter frequently chiding her mother for her manner of living.

Child Grows Worse.

Mr. Spera told detectives that Dorothy's illness, at the outset, seemed nothing more serious than a cold. The grandmother, he said, insisted the child be brought to her house for care. Her condition gradually became dangerous. The father recalls that she developed what he now believes to have been symptoms of poisoning. Her body swelled, and her face puffed. She died in Mrs. Koulik's home, 1219 Wade street.

Jilts Her and Dies.

Not only all of Mrs. Klimek's husbands, three of them dead, were, according to detectives, possible victims of the "white powder" the woman is alleged to have described, but also a man who, the police say, jilted her. He was John Guszkewski, living at 2031 [illegible] street.

Guszkewski came into Mrs. Klimek's life following the death of her second husband, John Ruszkakski, who is said to have left $2,000 in insurance. The woman, indulging a somewhat quaint sense of humor, is reported to have told the man she sought as a third husband that she had poisoned the man he would succeed.

Guszkewski, Lieut. Malone said, and Mrs. Klimek made a trip to Milwaukee after the death of her second husband. When he refused to marry her, the investigators assert, she threatened him with prosecution under the Mann act. Guszkewski, in his turn, recalled her alleged boast as to the poisoning of

PIG WOMAN PICKS HALL SLAYER OUT OF DEPOT CROWD

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Identification by Mrs. Jane Gibson, self-styled eyewitness of the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, of a man as the companion of the woman in gray on the night of the shooting was made today, officials in charge of the investigation announced tonight. This man, they say, is the actual slayer.

The identification, officials said, was made at a railway station, where Mrs. Gibson was taken to watch commuters going to New York, and was made, they insisted, without any prompting.

Another high spot in the mystery case came today when the Somerset county grand jury indicted Raymond Schneider on a charge of perjury. Schneider is the youth who made charges that Clifford Hayes, his chum, had committed the crime under the misapprehension that the singer was a girl with whom he was in love. Schneider afterward admitted his story was false.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the rector, today stated through her attorney that she was willing to be finger printed if this would assist the investigation in any way.

Real esttae news will be found on pages 14 and 15, part 2.

FEAR RED TAPE MAY TIE BONUS

Payments May Not Be Made by Christmas.

BY MORROW KRUM.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Semi-official assurance of the passage of the soldiers' bonus bill was given this morning when Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson announced that an official count of the ballots from twenty-one counties scattered over the state had shown that of 135,000 legislative votes cast, 85,000 were in favor of the $55,00,000 bond issue.

The counties on which the certainty is based are a firm indication of the remaining districts, all of them being representative.

It is planned by state officials to have the official canvassing body make a complete report at the earliest possible moment, thereby eliminating the delay that would be caused if the legislature made the canvass.

Action Will Speed Payment.

This action will be a great aid in speeding up payment of the bonus, the legislature not meeting until January.

But along with the good news comes that which is bad. Various officials, questioned today regarding the time of payment, were not optimistic. It is a prevailing opinion that the work will not have sufficiently progressed to pay the soldiers before the first of the year, and the men who have planned for a $300 Christmas present from the state probably are due to disappointment.

Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black asserted that it would be impossible to get the machinery for the payment of the $55,000,000 working for several weeks.

Will Take Time.

"It is a big job and it has swooped down upon us all at once," Gen. Black said. "We will do everything we can to speed up the payment, but it will take some time."

Another possibility of considerable delay is that the banks and other financial agencies which naturally must act somewhat as underwriters of the bonds will seek a friendly action in court to make it absolutely certain that the bonds will meet all legal requirements before they are offered to the public. Such a test case would require time.

The bonus bill, as indorsed by the legislature and the voters, is somewhat elastic. It was based on the fact that Illinois sent 163,143 men to the colors, and is quite definite that only men who enlisted after the declaration of war, April 6, 1917, shall be paid. There is some question whether or not the 163,143 are all that are tntitled to the bonus.

This will also necessitate a decision as to whether field clerks, nurses, and other quasi-military persons in service are entitled to a bonus.

FOOTBALL SURPRISES

Surprises cropped up on the football fields yesterday, the victory of Illinois over Wisconsin, 3 to 0, being the most notable. Wisconsin had been picked to whip Zuppke's men, but lacked the punch when the punch was needed. Iowa was believed by many to be much superior to Minnesota, but the best Jones' boys could do was to pile up 28 while the Gophers were scoring 14. Results of other important games follow:

WOMAN KNOCKS DOWN IMPUDENT EVANSTON MAN

A lusty blow on the nose, administered by Mrs. A. P. Graham, 215 Nansig avenue, Wilmette, wife of a wealthy contractor, which knocked him down, last night landed J. A. Angeleao, an employé of the Library Plaza hotel, Evanston, in jail.

Angeleao, after following Mrs. Graham and Mrs. R. T. Richards of Wilmette, her companion, for a short distance, accosted them directly in front of an automobile in which Mr. Graham was sitting and waiting for them.

Seeing the strange man stop his wife, Mr. Graham jumped from his car to make inquiries. But before he reached the man Mrs. Graham struck out with her fist and felled Angeleao. He had cast longing eyes at the expensive fur coat Mrs. Richards was wearing, she explained.

WILSON DEFIES 'PUNY FOES WHO SLEW LEAGUE'

Talks About Election for Admirers.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—Woodrow Wilson told a host of friends and admirers who made an Armistice day visit to his home here today that world peace could be brought about only by "active coöperation for justice" and "not by amiable phrases."

America always has stood for justice, he declared, adding that the "puny persons" now standing in the way would find presently that "their weakness is no match for the strength of a moving Providence."

The former President spoke standing on the portico of his S street residence and without manuscript or notes. His remarks consumed about five minutes. They were the first he had made on public questions since he was stricken on his league of natios tour of the west three years ago. This was his third public apparance since he left the White House on March 4, 1921.

Crowd Cheers Invalid.

The appearance of Mr. Wilson, who was assisted to the portico by a colored servant, was the signal for prolonged cheers from the crowd that packed the street and overflowed on nearby lawns and a vacant field.

The former President responded with a smile and raising of his silk hat. Mrs. Wilson did not accompany him, but as she appeared to assist him back indoors at the conclusion of his address she, too, received a cheer.

Mr. Wilson's address was in response to one delivered to him by Henry Morganthau, former ambassador to Turkey, who declared that the principles enunciated by Mr. Wilson during the war would prevail and that on last Tuesday it had been demonstrated that "the people of America are escaping from matrialism and selfishness and are preparing again to recognize their solemn and inexorable duty towards their fellow nations in Europe."

Applauds with "Hear! Hear!"

This reference to the elections brought a smile and a low cry of "hear, hear," from the former chief executive.

In his remarks Mr. Wilson spoke clearly and distinctly and with much of his old time rapidity.

Necessarily, however, there was lacking the once characteristic vigor of delivery, and his voice carried only slightly beyond the inner edges of the crowd. The text of his remarks follows:

"I am very much moved by this wonderful exhibition of your friendship and approval, and I have been reflecting today that Armistice day has a particular significance for the United States, because the United States has remained contented with the armistice and has not moved forward to peace.

"U. S. Is Standing Still."

"It is a very serious reflection that the United States, the great originative nation, should remain contented with a negation. Armistice is a negation; it is a standstill of arms; it is a cessation of fighting, and we are so bent on a cessation of fighting that we are even throwing our arms away.

"It is a singular circumstance to which Mr. Morgenthau has, in part, adverted—that while we prescribed the cconditions of the armistice, we did not concur in the establishment of permanent peace.

"That, of course, was brought about by a group in the United States senate, who preferred personal partisan motives to the honor of their country and the peace of the world.

"They do not represent the United States, because the United States is moving forward and they are slipping backward.

"Where their slipping will end, God only will determine.

"Justice Greater Than Expediency."

"And I have been reflecting on the radical difference between armistice and peace. Armistice, as I have said, is a mere negation; it is the refraining from force.

"But peace is a very positive and constructive thing as the world stands, because it must be brought about by the systematic maintenance of common understanding and by cultivation—not by amiable phrases but the active coöperation for justice; and justice is a greater thing than any kind of expediency.

"America has always stood for justice and always will stand for it. Puny persons who are now standing in the way will presently find that their weakness is no match for the strength of a moving providence.

"If you will pardon an invalid for

Attacks Two Women; Shot by Policeman

Apprehended in his second attempt within an hour to attack a woman, Andrew Simon, 41 years old, 520 West Garfield boulevard, believed by the police to be the moron who has terrorized unescorted women in the Kensington and Englewood districts for the last month, was shot and probably fatally wounded last night by Policeman Charles Overhue of the Englewood station.

The policeman was at Stewart avenue and West 57th street when a woman on the verge of hysterics ran up and told him that a man had tried to drag her into a lot two blocks north and attack her.

Finds Second Woman Periled.

Hurrying to the scene, the policeman found a second woman, with an infant clasped in her arms, struggling in the clutch of Simon. Before he reached the pair the woman was violently jerked from the sidewalk into the lot and the baby fell from her arms.

Forcing the man to release the woman, the policeman dragged the struggling man to the patrol box, where he handed the keys to the woman and asked her to pull the signal for the patrol. Refusing, the woman, who did not give her name, rushed back to the lot, where she recovered her child and speeded away.

Simon, a carpenter, then drew a clumsy dagger, made from a three cornered file, and attempted to stab the policeman. Overhue drew his revolver, but Simon knocked it from his hand. Recovering it, the policeman again attempted to subdue his captive without shooting. The man continued to resist, and a second time struck the policeman's revolver from his grasp.

Warns, Then Shoots.

Recovering the weapon again, Overhue warned Simon that he would kill him if he did not surrender. This brought another attack with the dagger. Thrusting his revolver into the pit of the man's stomach, Overhue fired and Simon crumpled up.

Taken to St. Bernard's hospital, the man gave his name, and his wife, Mrs. Helen Simon, was notified. She soon arrived, but refused to speak to him.

"He is a brute," Mrs. Simon declared, and asserted he was intoxicated when he left the house earlier in the evening.

Neither of the two women whom Simon attempted to attack reported at the police station, and the flivver squad was sent out immediately in an effort to locate them and learn their identity.

Other intended victims of similar attacks recently describe their assailant as a man about 21 years old, who wore a cap pulled down on his face.

FRANK BACON TO TAKE VACATION FROM LONG PLAY

Frank Bacon last night left the cast of "Lightnin'," in which he has been the star nearly five years, to take a six weeks' vacation, necessitated by poor health.

Mr. Bacon had worn himself out, according to his manager, George Kingsbury, by adding to the strain of his work in "Lightnin'," in which he played three years in New York before it opened at the Blackstone here, the burden of many appearances at benefit entertainments.

Of late the actor has suffered from nervousness, rheumatism and trouble with his teeth. A physician attended him through the performance last night.

He plans to pass his vacation at his home in Bayside, Long Island. The play will continue in Chicago for four weeks to the conclusion of its local run.

WORKERS LOOT SHOPS; SEND UP CRY FOR COAL

Wirth Strives to Save Cabinet.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—Tottering Germany is being undermined from many sides tonight.

Riots and looting of stores occurred today in Cologne and in other towns in the Rhineland district not occupied by the allies, as well as in various other districts, when the workers protested against the constantly mounting cost of living and the lack of coal to heat their homes.

Monarchists, Socialists, and "Gray Shirts," the new Fascisti of Bavaria, are openly plotting to seize that state and wrench it from control of the Berlin government, which is accused of bringing disaster upon Germany by attempting to uphold the treaty of Versailles.

Wirth Government May Fall.

Chancellor Wirth's government may collapse before the end of next week because of the reparations crisis and the continued downward crash of German money. The chancellor is striving heroically to save at least part of his cabinet tonight by making a new coalition with the party of Hugo Stinnes and other big industrial leaders and throwing overboard his policy of fulfillment of reparations pledges.

The cost of living in the last month has increased more than 175 per cent, against a 65 per cent increase in salaries.

During H. C. L. demonstrations in Cologne miners and steel workers broke into numerous shops and stole food, shoes, and clothing. In various towns of the unoccupied zone of the Rhineland many stores were plundered. The police restored order, but outside of recovering as much of the stolen property as possible they took no severe measures to put a stop to the disorders.

Germany's Highest Paid Workers.

The miners are the highest paid workers in Germany, receiving 1,000 marks daily. A loaf of bread now costs 112 marks, a pound of meat 600 marks, a pair of the cheapest shoes 6,000 marks, and a ton of coal 25,000 marks.

Babies are suffering from malnutrition and many Germans are suffering hardships from lack of coal.

Newspapers report that the reparations pledges call for nearly 2,000,000 tons of coal. Germany already is without coal. Owing to the necessity of importing coal from England, even for railroads, the price is beyond the reach of the average purse, even were the commodity obtainable.

Asks Big Industrials to Aid.

Chancellor Wirth took steps today toward the reorganization of his cabinet when he invited participation of the Peoples' party, which includes the big industrial leaders. This is interpreted as an acknowledgment that his policy of fulfillment of reparations is a failure.

Owing, however, to interparty strife, both in the Center party, which Chancellor Wirth represents, and the Socialists, who control 186 out of 420 votes in the reichstag, and who have supported the government in its efforts to meet the reparations demands, it is generally believed that the cabinet will be forced to resign during the next week.

It is generally conceded that Germany can only make maximum efforts to meet its reparations obligations, as well as economic reconstruction, when the large industrial leaders, chiefly Hugo Stinnes' group, coöperate. So far they have refused to support Chancellor Wirth, owing to what they regard as his sympathies for the Socialists.

Offers Post to Cuno.

Chancellor Wirth already has invited Herr Cuno, general manager of the Hamburg-American line, to take over the foreign ministry. Herr Cuno refused to accept the post before, but now it is said he will be willing to accept. It is possible that Herr Cuno, who is a member of Herr Stinnes' party, will be opposed by the Socialists, who still are urging the fulfillment policy.

The declaration made by Herr Stinnes two days ago that what Germany needs is a ten hour day is arousing bitter antagonism among the Socialists against a coalition with the industrialists. The Socialists have demanded that Herr Cuno guarantee to continue Chancellor Wirth's policies.

Herr Raumer, former treasurer, is supported by the popular party for secretary of state. Herr Hilferding, former editor of the Freiheit Socialist, has been proposed to act as expert on reparations and reconstruction questions.

BAVARIA NEAR REVOLT

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MUNICH, Nov. 11.—The leaders of both the Monarchist and Socialist parties in Bavaria today told THE TRIBUNE that a coup d'état in Bavaria is possible.

"Although a putsch or violent overthrow of the government is not contemplated," said Herr Roth, former minister of justice and now leader of the German Nationalist party, which is monarchistic, "the political situation is tense, owing to increased prices, for which the majority of the population regard the government as responsible. The people blame the Germans who signed the Versailles treaty and those who are trying to fulfill it for the breakdown of Germany. The work of the reparations commission in its efforts to stabilize the mark is regarded as destructive.

Criticizes U. S. Aloofness.

"America, who alone can help us, again proves it will not and considers the German catastrophe with the utmost indifference."

The monarchists, Herr Roth said, intended to attain their aims legally and not through violence. Prince Ruprecht, who is leading a retired life in Berchtesgaden, is the candidate for Herr Roth's party.

The efforts of the monarchists are greatly hampered owing to differences in the party. The monarchists are divided into three groups, one desiring a central European kingdom under a Hapsburg prince, another under a Hohenzollern Protestant prince, while the third and larger group desires the returns of the Wittlesbach dynasty, the oldest in Europe.

Herr Auer, leader of the Social Democrats, asserts a putsch is possible. He says the Socialists outnumber the monarchists, who are weakened by interparty strife.

Allege France Plots.

Various leaders charge France is trying to create disturbances in Bavaria. They insist France has an agreement with the Czechs whereby the latter would occupy Bavaria in case of serious disturbance in Germany.

The press makes much of the presence of M. Dard, French chargé d'affaires, in the diplomatic box during the inauguration speech of Herr von Knilling, a reactionary, who was elected minister president, owing to the fact that the Socialists abstained from voting. The press frequently charges M. Dard with spending immense sums of money for propaganda for the separation of Bavaria from Germany, and even the monarchists are distrusting Herr von Knilling's leanings in this direction as possibly inspired by the French.

"Grayshirts" Are Active.

The Bavarian "Grayshirts," corresponding to the Italian Fascisti, and also somewhat similar to the American Ku Klux Klan, are a third element in Bavaria's unrest. They are out to "clean Germany of unclean elements, principally Jews and foreigners," Herr Hittler, one of the leaders, told THE TRIBUNE today.

He has an office in four small rooms behind an out of the way Munich restaurant. Armed guards are posted before the office and visitors are forced to show their credentials before they are permitted to enter. The entire atmosphere was militaristic from the pictures on the wall to the armed guards and two dispatch riders outside.

"We are not thinking of organizing a revolt, but if the Socialists attack us we will organize a terror campaign such as the world has never seen," said Herr Hittler. "If Germany is to recover its economic health she must get rid of the Jews.

Would Expell All Foreigners.

"We must rid the country of usury, speculation, and other manifestations of Jewish spirit which have been fighting against the workers. All foreigners who came here after 1915 must be expelled."

Herr Hittler's organization is opposed to the former kaiser, asserting that he as well as King George of England, possesss a Jewish strain.

QUAKE AND TIDAL WAVE HIT CHILE; 170 KNOWN DEAD

Many Towns Wrecked in Andes Region.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—An earthquake of great magnitude and far spread effect reached Chile from end to end today. It was accompanied by a tidal wave, and the combined force of the earth tremors and the sweep of the water did vast damage, the extent of which it is impossible to estimate because telegraphic lines were carried down at various places, cutting off communication.

The provinces of Antofagasta, Atacama and Coquimbo suffered most, the central points of the quake lying in the latter two provinces and, so far as advices show, Copiapo, in Atacoma, has the largest casualty list with about 100 killed and many seriously wounded.

It was feared for a time that the city of Antofagasta had suffered a great disaster, but most of the damage done at that place was due to a tidal wave, which drove the people out of their homes over a considerable area. No report of loss of life has yet come from Antofagasta.

Forced to Flee Town.

Chanaral, in Atacama, has virtually been abandoned by the inhabitants, as many buildings were wrecked by the immense seas sweeping in when the earth shocks had ceased. The greater part of this town was destroyed.

Throughout the province of Coquimbo hundreds of houses were leveled, while the residents fled to the hills. At the port of Coquimbo a tidal wave beat over the entire sea front, flooding a large section and wrecking many buildings.

From the southern part of Chile come reports of severe shocks, but little damage.

Another earth shock was felt here at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon. It was of ten seconds' duration.

100 Die in One Town.

ANTOFAGASTA, Chile, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Upwards of 100 persons were killed and many seriously wounded by the earthquake, which overturned many buildings early this morning in Copiapo, capital of the province of Atacama.

The first shocks were felt in Antofagasta City a few minutes before midnight last night. These were prolonged and very severe. The citizens were greatly alarmed and almost immediately the telegraphic lines that connect the north with the south were broken down.

About 1:30 this morning a tidal wave inundated part of the city, flooding scores of buildings close to the beach. The radio station was completely flooded, and the waters cut away the radio machines, surging for more than a mile over the dunes. Then soon water ebbed several hundred yards.

Waves Sweep Over Chanaral.

Alarms were sounded by the maritime authorities, and firemen and workmen were called out to assist various craft from their dangerous position, save quantities of valuable goods stored in the customs house cellar and rescue the occupants of threatened dwellings.

Dispatches from the province of Atacama say that the center of the earthquake was an area roughly defined by Copiapo, Ovalle [in the province of Coquimbo], Vallenar, Chanaral and San Fernando. Of these places, so far as is known Copiapo suffered most. At Chanaral great tidal waves swept over the commercial section of the city, wrecking the postoffice among other buildings. It is reported that the city has been virtually abandoned by the residents.

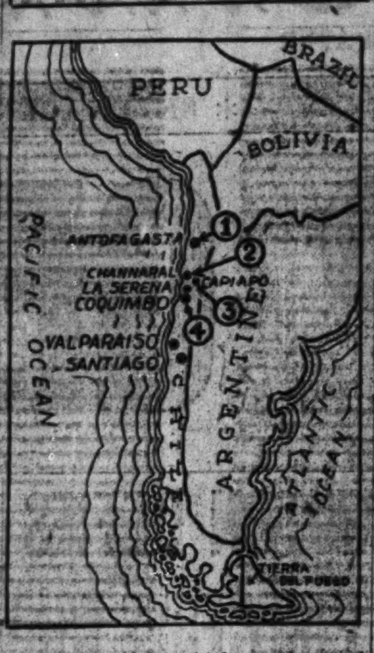
All the affected areas are badly in need of relief. Communication with Santiago, Valparaiso and Southern Chile is interrupted.

Seventy Dead at Coquimbo.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Seventy are dead and fifty injured at Coquimbo from the earthquake. The business district, including the Grace & Co. building, is reported to have been destroyed.

Five thousand are homeless at Ovalle, Illapel, and other towns in the same district.

ROCKED BY QUAKE



1—Antofagasta, which was damaged by quake and tidal wave.

2—Chanaral, which was almost completely destroyed.

3—Copiapo, capital of the province of Atacama, where at least 100 were killed.

4—Coquimbo, where the death list totals seventy.

Fear Many Villages Wrecked.

[Copyright: 1922: By United Press.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 11.—Along the western coast of Chile mountainous cliffs tumble down almost to the sea, with just a few miles of flat for the towns. The tidal wave that swept in following the earthquake early today probably wiped out many little communities.

Many of the reports came in from ships at sea. They told of destruction of small groups of adobe houses, where colored natives live in semi-poverty near the ocean's edge.

The steamer Flora, which was at sea off the little town of Caldera when the quake rent the coast, reported that the wharf at that place was smashed to bits by the rush of the tidal wave that followed. A radiogram from this vessel was one of the first eyewitness accounts received.

Felt in Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—An unusual earthshock was felt in Buenos Aires and in the Argentine provinces in the Andes region at 35 minutes after midnight this morning. No damage was reported. The All-American cable lines are interrupted.

Nine Tidal Waves in Hawaii.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

HONOLUL, Nov. 11.—Hawaii today felt what is believed to be the effect of the earthquake in Chile when nine tidal waves hit the water front at Hilo in rapid succession. No one was injured as far as can be learned and the damage was confined to wrecking a number of sampans in the harbor.

The first wave rushed in over the breakwater at 8:36 this morning, the others following at brief intervals until shortly before noon. Large crowds of residents of Hilo gathered on high positions and watched the mighty waves roll in.

Cocoanut island is under water and the Japanese residents are fear stricken and are preparing to flee.

RECORDED IN CHICAGO.

The seismograph at the University of Chicago Friday night recorded a severe earthquake 4,970 miles from Chicago. The first wave occurred at 10:45 p. m., greatest intensity was recorded at 11:07 p. m., and the final wave was at 3 a. m. Seismographs in other parts of the United States and all over Europe recorded the quakes.

WARSAW, Nov. 11.—Returns from last Sunday's elections indicate that the new Polish chamber will be composed of 168 members of the right, eight of the center, 183 of the left, twenty-one of the extreme left and Communists, and eighty-three of the national minorities.

PERSHING VOICES DEFENSE PLEA IN ARMISTICE TALK

Efficient Army, Adequate Navy Our Needs.

New York, Nov. 11.—Developments since the recent Turkish victory over the Greeks have indicated the danger which America runs of becoming involved in the "tangled meshes of the racial, religious, and political situation" in the near east, Gen. John J. Pershing said today in an Armistice day address before the National Civic federation.

"The world war," he added, "taught us that we cannot regard with indifference the gathering of war clouds in those regions in which we do not appear to be directly interested. For even with the utmost desire to remain aloof from the contest which had been waged during the period extending from 1914 to 1917, we were drawn into it in defense of a great principle.

Can't Ignore Foreign Wars.

"So we cannot regard as irrelevant to our interests and as matters of no concern to our national life the crises which periodically arise over the storm centers of international strife. It is no time to abandon our purpose to take reasonable precaution for the future. Since the armistice the tension of conflicting interests has often almost reached the breaking point where indeed actual armed conflict has not been in progress.

"Already strong pressure has been exerted for our intervention in the Near East. Demands are daily made that an American military force be dispatched for participation in behalf of our former allies. Strangely enough those who appeal most loudly for headlong intervention are those who most vociferously condemn any and all preparation for sudden emergency."

Gen. Pershing declared that America could be assured against involvement in the strifes abroad only "through a clear consciousness on our own part of our own national aims and through strong and courageous leadership."

Must Keep Identity.

"As in the world war we declined to allow our army to lose its identity or to be submerged in the commands of other nations," the general continued, "so we should now resist all efforts to have our strength and influence used for ulterior purposes foreign to our own ideals.

"If we are to keep the faith of our fathers we cannot rest secure alone in the certainty that the heart of the nation is sound, for security depends upon a rational policy of national defense as the only means whereby we can preserve the things for which we stand.

"We cannot return to pre-war conditions, although from the unthinking we constantly hear demands that we shall return to pre-war appropriations.

"It cannot be forgotten that with these meager expenditures for military purposes we found ourselves in a world conflict entirely unprepared. Nor should we blind ourselves to the fact that the billions expended on the cost of war would have provided adequate readiness in the time of peace for a hundred years, and might leave our participation in the world war unnecessary."

Outlining America's actual needs from a defensive standpoint, he said it would include a reasonable nucleus for the development of an army, a completely equipped and well balanced and fully manned navy and adequate means for transporting an army and supplying both an army and navy abroad.

Must Be Self Reliant.

"A defensive attitude," he said, "often requires offensive operations and we cannot rely upon others to transport and supply under those conditions.

"It is folly not to profit by the lessons of experience, as it would be folly to permit the development of militarism in America. We only ask the merest skeleton of an army, but it should always be alert, wide awake and have sufficient officers.

"I am not militaristic, but a plain, practical citizen who would profit by the experience of the past and not indulge in day dreams. We have decried militarism the world over. We do not want war, but complete disarmament on our part alone will never prevent it. We are and have been in a practical state of disarmament, and now only advocate a moderate measure of reparation as a national insurance. Any other view of the question is fallacious, fatuous and foolish."

BENSON IS OPTIMISTIC.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 12.—"I believe our country to be unconquerable," declared Admiral W. S Benson in an address at the Minneapolis club here this afternoon. The former naval chief also said that he didn't fear that this country will be involved in a future war, "as long as other countries retain the memory of what America did in the great war."

Find Arsenic Was Used to Poison Scotland Yard Head

[Copyright: 1922: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The sensation caused by the official statement yesterday that the illness of Sir William Horwood, chief of Scotland Yard, was the result of malicious poisoning was renewed today by another official announcement.

It was stated that the poison was arsenic, contained in a box of chocolates, which had been sent to Sir William anonymously through the post and that the Daily Mail, by publishing this fact this morning, had seriously embarrassed the police and rendered the excellent clew they had to the perpetrators of the outrage of no avail.

Cake Sent to Assistants.

The story, as told now, goes back to Nov. 3, when a card board box posted in a London suburb was received at Scotland Yard addressed to the Hon. Trevor Bigham and Maj. Elliott, two of the assistant commissioners. This contained cake and a brief note, reading:

"A hearty lunch and a good appetite. MOLLY."

The assistant commissioners, not expecting any such free will offering, did not touch it. They were suspicious and turned the cake over to the proper department for investigation and analysis, but, as the matter did not seem urgent, not much had been done about it when the chocolate incident occurred.

Mailed in London Suburb.

This began last Thursday with the arrival of a box of large chocolates at Scotland Yard addressed to the commissioner. It, too, had been posted in a London suburb, and the handwriting and the printing of the label was similar to that on the cake package.

Miss Enid Drysdale, the commissioner's private secretary, opened the box and the commissioner offered her one of the chocolates. She took a bite, and, detecting a bitter taste, told the commissioner so. "Don't take one," she said. But the commissioner, thinking that the chocolates were from friends, laughed at her and ate a couple of them.

"They did burn my throat a little," he admitted, "but I seemed none the worse for it."

An hour later he was seized with violent pains and is only now, two days later, beginning to recover.

SIR WILLIAM HORWOOD.

WARSHIPS SUNK IN NAPLES FIRE, LONDON HEARS

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A fire which started at Naples at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when blazing naphtha spread over the harbor, caused 10,000,000 lire [roughly $400,000] damage, according to the Naples correspondent of the Central News.

The correspondent reported that the fire was still burning when he forwarded his dispatch, that two gunboats had been destroyed, four torpedo boats were on fire, two destroyers were in danger and that one cruiser and one destroyer had been sunk.

The Stefani semi-official bureau reports from Naples that accounts of the harbor fire have been greatly exaggerated and that no material damage was done. It adds that the conflagration was without any military significance.

LIQUOR ISSUE THE LIVELIEST CORPSE SMOOT EVER SAW

Wets May Merge with Farm Bloc, He Says.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Modification of the national prohibition law must be given serious consideration by both the leading political parties in framing their platforms in 1924, Senator Smoot (Utah), one of the Republican leaders of the senate, declared upon his return to Washington today.

Although he has always been a strong "dry," Mr. Smoot declared that Tuesday's election results clearly showed that the prohibition issue cannot be evaded and that it will be a controlling factor in future elections.

Extra Session Is Forecast.

The senator also expressed the opinion that an extra session of congress after March 4 is inevitable because the progressives and radicals will so shape events as to bring about this result.

"There is no question about a radical wave having swept the middle west," Senator Smoot said. "It may be called progressiveism, or by any other name. It was responsible for the election of senatorial candidates in Nebraska, North Dakota, and Minnesota.

"There was an uprising of farmers because of intolerable conditions. Their crops are rotting, even in Utah, and transportation to market could not be provided. They were ready to strike at anybody and did so at the party in power.

Will the Blocs Coalesce?

The same result was accomplished by a wet wave in the east, as evidenced by the defeat of Republican candidates in New York and New Jersey.

"In the Sixty-eighth congress both parties must consider two groups. These will be the farm bloc and the wet bloc. Together, they certainly will be dominating elements. If they amalgamate, or coöperate, they can put over anything in the shape of legislation."

Wins Dry Seat; Turns Wet.

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Convinced, as he said, that enforcement of the national prohibition law has been more or less a farce, and that light wines and beer are preferable to the present situation, State Senator William H. Parry [Rep.], reelected to represent Essex county, N. J., in the next legislature as a "dry" candidate, announced today that he had changed his attitude.

UICK AND DEAD OF WAR DIVIDE CITY'S HOMAGE

All Chicago Observes Armistice Day.

Last night was given over exclusively to the soldiers and sailors that were and to the crippled and invalid vets still in army hospitals. It was indeed a rare block that did not contain at least one happy gathering, for it was Armistice day.

Happy were those who fêted the heroes, happy were the "boys" themselves, for all were commemorating the day when parents, relatives, sweethearts, wives, and friends of America's 4,000,000 stalwart youths went mad with joy and the 4,000,000 themselves were just weary and happy.

Many Patriotic Speakers.

Patriotic speeches were made by the thousands. Americans were made to feel proud just because they are Americans, proud of the record made by "our boys." That Illinois had voted overwhelmingly to discharge in a small measure its great debt to those who "merely fought" by giving a bonus was a topic not overlooked.

It was only in the homes of Gold Star Mothers and Fathers that gladness did not reign. Grief, sacred and patriotic, prevailed there, and the pleasure of the rest of Chicago was not shared by the sorrowing parents of martyr sons.

Not that the rest of the city had forgotten its honored dead. Eleven o'clock, with its minute of silence, when tears and prayers intermingled gave evidence that Chicago never will forget. At each Armistice night celebration the dead came in for their share of glory and made solemn the festivities of tribute to the survivors.

The loop last night was unlike the loop of four years ago. Citizens did their celebrating within clubrooms, halls, and hotels. The camaraderie of Nov. 11, 1918, when every one made friends of every one else and joined in the common thankfulness, was gone. Strangers remained strangers last night.

The minute of silence with all facing east, at 11 a. m., four years to a minute since the last gun of the world war boomed, marked Chicago's respect for the living and its sorrow for the dead. As the clock at State and Madison streets struck the hour every male head was bared, every feminine face became sober; all became thoughtful. Traffic ceased. Not a sound was audible. A squad of marines fired a salute of three shots. The cares and sorrows of the war, laid aside during the rest of the year, came back for a brief remembrance. One minute of veneration, and business as usual.

The largest ceremony of the day was presented by the 122d F. A. of the 33d division. In the presence of numerous celebrities, Gov. Small turned the first spadeful of earth on the site of the regiment's new riding hall at Chicago avenue and the lake.

Legion Posts Observe Day.

Every post of the American Legion had programs embodying features fitting the occasion. Greater Chicago post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars held a dance at K. C. hall, 63d and Harvard avenues.

A memorial service at Sheridan road and Willow street was conducted during the afternoon and a tree planting ceremony was held in Chase park, where the Ravenswood Kiwanis club dedicated a tree in memory of the "unknown dead."

Hyde Park presented its usual big armistice anniversary program at the Chicago Beach hotel. The Canadian club gave a dinner and military ball in its clubrooms.

Portraits of Heroes Shown.

The Chicago Historical society gave a special exhibition of the portraits of 1,400 Chicago boys killed in action. Trophies of the war were also displayed. The Gold Star Fathers held services in the La Salle Avenue Baptist church.

At the annual armistice ball at the Elks' club the Rev. Arthur Frederick Ewert, chaplain of Theodore Roosevelt post, who was wounded in France, delivered an ode to the flag.

Crippled and invalid vets at the Speedway, Marine, and Drexel hospitals were the guests at every function. Every group was solicitous of their happiness for the day. Those unable to leave the hospitals were feted and entertained by the Red Cross, and hundreds of individuals "adopted" a soldier for a day, as they did for the many days of the war.

The American Red Cross' sixth annual "roll call" began as a feature of Armistice day and will be continued till Thanksgiving day. President Harding and his cabinet and governors of most of the states have indorsed the drive. More than 100,000 ex-soldiers have been receiving services from the Red Cross that the government cannot give, Walter Davidson, manager of the central division, declared, and aid is needed to continue the work.

One of Chicago's First White Natives Is Dead

Daytona, Fla., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ellen Harroun, widow of Alfred F. Harroun, who was one of the first white women born in Chicago, died here today. She had been in failing health for some time and passed away shortly after being brought to a sanitarium for treatment.

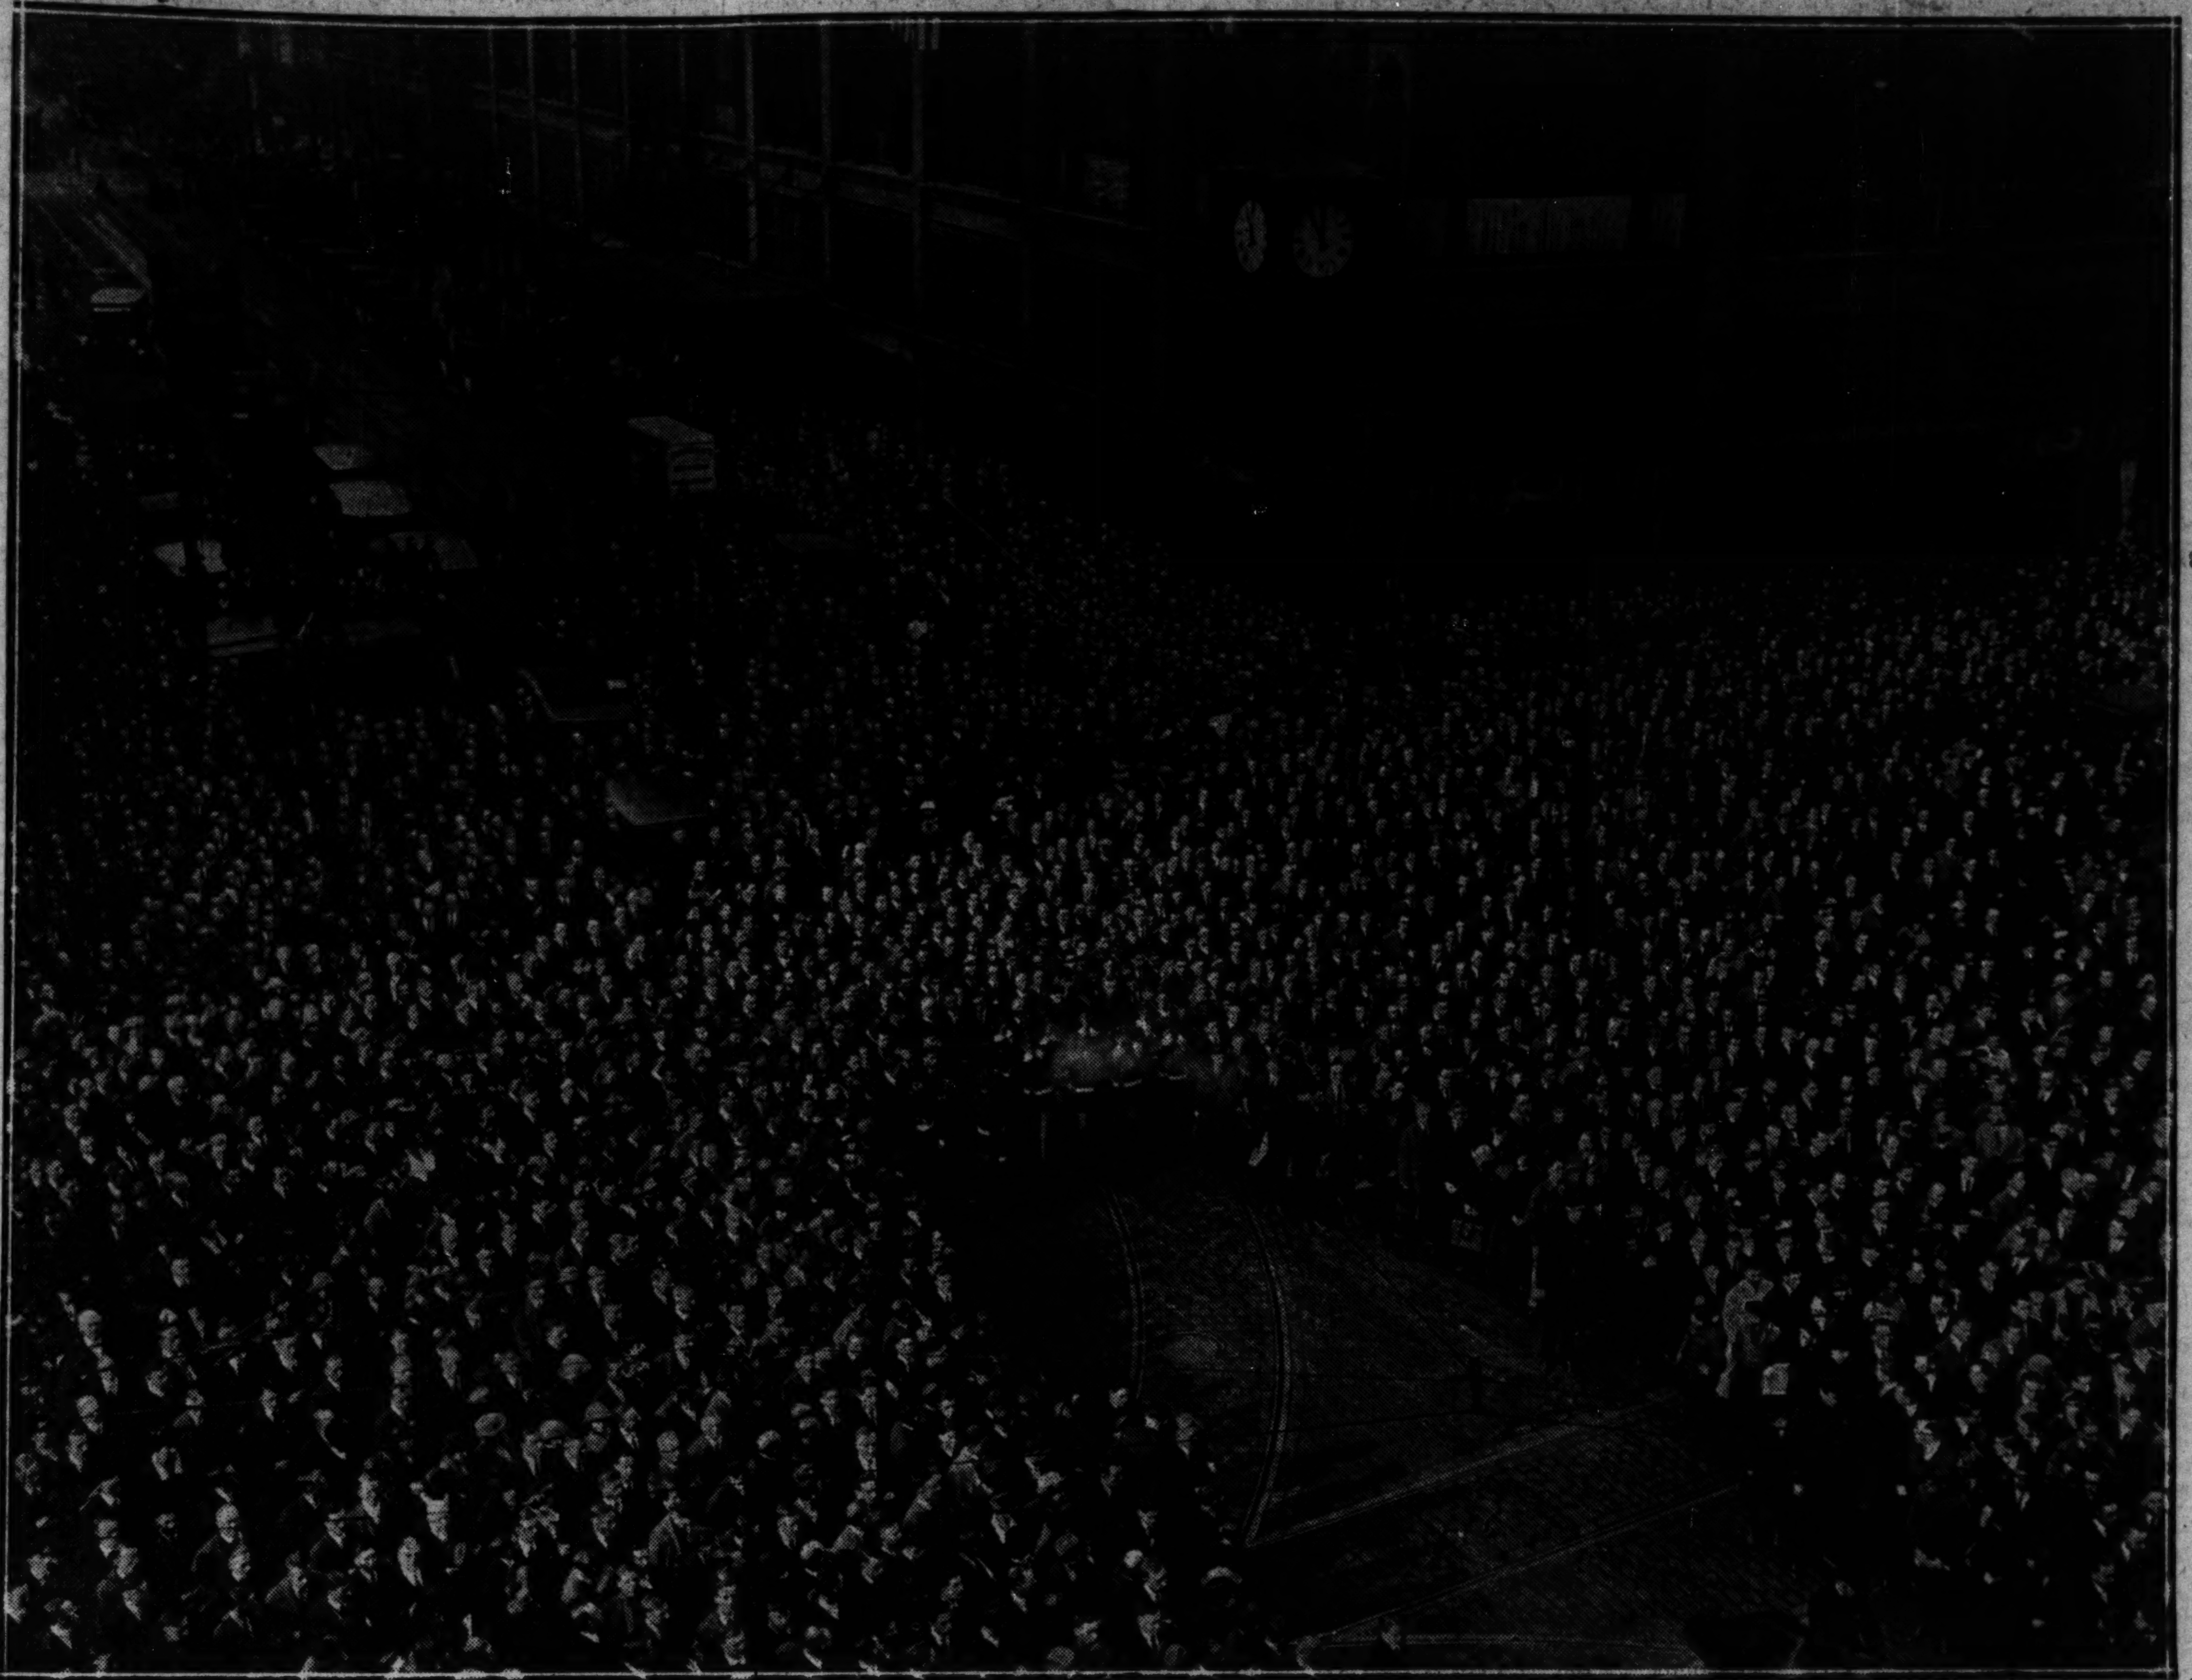
INVENTS NEW LAMP.

Said to Be Whiter and Cheaper Light than Electric or Gas.

Washington patents have been granted by the government to a lighting engineer by the name of Johnson, on a new lamp for burning ordinary kerosene oil. This lamp produces a vapor from the oil which makes a blue flame that incandesces a mantle and thus creates a very strong, soft, pure white light. As it consumes only 6% oil mixed with 94% air, it is exceedingly economical. Said to be very simple to operate, odor[illegible] noiseless, and dangerless.

One of these new lamps may be secured on 10 days' free trial by writing to Mr. L. R. Johnson, 609 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill. He also wants local distributors and has a very unique selling plan to offer agents. He is even offering to give one free to the first user in each locality who will help introduce this new light.—Adv.

LOOKING TO THE EAST IN REVERENT MEMORY OF HEROES



Armistice day throng at State and Madison streets at 11 o'clock yesterday. With bared heads the crowds faced toward the lands where four years ago at the same hour the world's war came to an end. A detachment of marines at the rear of the hollow square fired a salute, the haze shown in the picture being the smoke from the rifles. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

DEDICATE SPOT WHERE GERMANS BOWED IN DEFEAT

Tablet Marks Site of Armistice Order.

RETHONDES, France, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—The spot where Germany gave up the struggle in the great world war was marked for posterity today. In the little clearing in the forest of Compiegne, near the village of Rethondes, beside the River Aisne, where the armistice was signed in 1918, a commemorative monument was unveiled.

President Millerand, assisted by Marshal Foch and Premier Poincare, sealed the last stone in the great composite slab placed by the league of combatants midway between the two temporary war railroad lines on which stood, on the one side, the car of Marshal Foch, and on the other that of the German armistice emissaries, from Nov. 8 until Nov. 11, four years ago.

The slab was inscribed as follows: "Here on the 11th of November, 1918, succumbed the criminal pride of the German empire, vanquished by the free peoples it sought to enslave."

Poincare Describes Meetings.

The cold, gray, depressing weather emphasized the grimness of M. Poincare's graphic description of the two meetings of Marshal Foch with the Germans and the latter's acceptance of the allies' terms. The premier spoke of the claim of Germany that she had not been conquered militarily.

"The Germans came to us in the Rethondes clearing so as not to have to surrender in the Rhineland," he declared.

Germany, said M. Poincare, boasted that she had held the world at bay, but he continued, "should she not rather have realized that the very formation of this international league against her was a tremendous condemnation of her imperial policy? And why has she not learned the lesson given her simultaneously by such a great part of humanity?

"It was here, four years ago, that the lesson was finished. Let Germany, who received it, not forget it. May the peoples who inflicted it upon her ever remember it."

Bury Belgium's "Unknown."

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Belgium's unknown soldier was entombed today with impressive ceremony. The body was selected by a blind veteran from five unidentified war dead.

King Albert and Crown Prince Leopold were at the station when the funeral train arrived from Bruges, and stood at rigid salute as the flag covered coffin was brought out.

Queen Elizabeth, Princess Charlotte, Cardinal Mercier, and the foreign ambassadors occupied seats in the square where the tomb had been prepared.

"Silence" in Britain.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Two minutes of silence to honor the war dead was solemnly observed throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain at 11 o'clock this morning.

The chief ceremony was simple. It was held at the Cenotaph—a monument to the war dead in the center of Whitehall, near Westminster abbey. At 10:55 the king, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, arrived at the Cenotaph, around which was a hollow square of troops.

As 11 o'clock was sounded from the huge clock over the houses of parliament the king stepped forward and placed a wreath at the foot of the monument. Then, saluting and stepping back, the king, his sons, the guard of honor, and the thousands who were jammed for blocks on each side uncovered and bowed their heads for two minutes. Thousands then laid wreaths at the base of the monument.

Gen. Diaz Sends Greeting.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Nov. 11.—Minister of War Diaz, who a year ago today participated in the ceremonies at Arlington cemetery at the grave of America's unknown soldier, sent the following armistice greeting to the American people through THE TRIBUNE:

"I cannot help thinking today of the most noble part which America played in the great war.

"Please convey my warmest greetings to America's war veterans and to the people who stood behind them during the hostilities.

"As in America, Italians today celebrate our common victory and demonstrate that the sacrifices of humanity were not in vain.

HARDING PLACES WREATH ON TOMB OF NATION'S HERO

Unknown Soldier Is Given Honors.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—President Harding laid a wreath of remembrance today on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington national cemetery. It was set there as a wordless greeting from the heart of America to a valorous, honored son, and commemorated the first anniversary of his homecoming from France.

And the utter simplicity and sincerity of the tribute today was in a way as gripping to the few who saw it made as was the daylong tide of emotional fervor that marked that homecoming. It set a custom for the national observance of Armistice day in future that will make the unknown from France the keeper of America's annual expression of pride and glory in her sons who fought in France, be they living or dead.

Others Pay Tribute.

There were many other tributes brought to the tomb during the day. Sometimes little groups of men and women from distant cities made the journey to lay bright flowers on the molded stone work that holds the body of a nameless American for whom no honor has been too high; sometimes the blossoms were laid there by men moved to individual tribute to the dead. It was thus that Gen. Pershing's offering was placed.

A mere handful of spectators and a little detachment of soldiers, sailors and marines were at hand when the President appeared with Secretary Weeks and Secretary Denby. Cavalry had escorted the presidential party from the White House, but had turned aside before the tomb was reached. There was no word spoken on the terrace sweep where the tomb lies except the commands that moved the rifles of the guard of honor to salute.

Great Wreath for Tomb.

The President seemed to feel a deep significance in the moment, as though he sensed the solemn approval of the hundred million of his countrymen in what he did in their name. He placed the great wreath against the stone work of the tomb, then stepped back to pause a moment, looking down on the plain block of masonry.

The hush on the terrace was almost breathless and every eye was fixed on the still figure of the President standing, with bared head bent. Slowly, almost as though it were unconsciously, the President raised his hand in military salute to the dead, his shoulders straightening. Then he turned away and a moment later was speeding back to busy affairs in Washington, behind the trotting cavalry.

This Actually Removes Superflous Hair Roots

By the introduction in this country of what is known as the "phelactine process," any woman can now rid herself completely of annoying superfluous hair or fuzz. The process is entirely new, different from all others, and far better—because it actually removes the roots, as well as the surface hair! It is instantaneous, perfectly harmless, odorless and non-irritating.

Just get a stick of Phelactine from your druggist, follow the simple directions—and see the hair roots come out, with your own eyes! No depilatory or electrical treatment can produce this result. The skin is left soft, smooth and hairless as a child's. Phelactine can be used with absolute safety—one could even eat it with impunity.

BISHOP JONES URGES PEOPLE TO BLOCK NEXT WAR

Pacifists Hold Sway in Orchestra Hall.

That the "next" war should be stopped by wholesale refusal of citizens to buy bonds and to take up arms was the preachment of Bishop Paul Jones, whose alleged seditious utterances during the war were followed by his resignation as missionary bishop of Utah, at an Armistice day meeting in Orchestra hall yesterday.

The gathering was held under auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, of which Miss Jane Addams is international president. Miss Addams presided at yesterday's meeting. She announced the subject of the meeting as "For a New Peace."

Want Armaments Scrapped.

Bishop Jones, who was one of the organizers of the People's Council of Defense, made the principal address. Congresswoman Elect Winifred Mason Huck, Capt. Paxton Hibben, war correspondent, and Mme. Rosika Schwimmer were other speakers. The meeting adopted resolutions advocating scrapping of armaments by all nations. They were presented by Mrs. George Mathes.

So outspoken were Mme. Schwimmer and Bishop Jones in advocacy of methods of preventing another war that one woman came to the office of THE TRIBUNE complaining that she had gone to Orchestra hall "to attend a patriotic meeting and had found a gathering of pinks."

After Mrs. Huck had declared for a constitutional amendment making a declaration of war impossible without its approval by popular vote, Bishop Jones got the floor. He declared that the government makes its only educational appropriation in behalf of military training and declared that "it is significant that the churches had service flags for members who went into the service during the war, but none for those engaged in missionary work."

Says War Brings Deceit.

"War involves betrayal, hypocrisy, and deceit," he declared. "We know how we were taken in by stories of German atrocities in Belgium during the war. We know that the so called plots against the government were for the most part fabrications, propaganda.

"Lloyd George declared the world war peace treaty was predicated on the theory that Germany was responsible for the war. Premier Nitti has admitted that such a statement was made merely for purposes of propaganda.

"Thus you see, my friends, how the statements of public men were used simply as food for the gullible like you and me. We were simply taken in, fooled into believing the war had a high and holy purpose.

"What we need, especially the clergy, is an eleventh commandment, which should read, 'Thou shalt not make the next war a holy war.'

"Mrs. Huck has asked for a chance to vote on war. You have that chance now if you have stamina enough to take it. It takes men and money to make a war. You can refuse to permit another war by refusing to give money and men even though the penitentiary may be the penalty."

Bishop Jones warned his audience that to follow his advice would subject them to "the ridicule and opprobrium of those who do not see," but, he added, "he will at the same time serve to open the eyes of those who do not see."

Pigeon Carrier's Message.

After the bishop's speech, the gathering voted to send a resolution to President Harding pledging support for "a new peace" to be gained by "international support and good will." The resolution was tied to the foot of a carrier pigeon which was released in front of the building. In a bit of pageantry which accompanied the ceremony, a white robbed young woman released the pigeon. She was preceded by boy scouts carrying a banner which read, "Humanity Above Nationalism."

$117,043 DEFICIT AT N. U. BRINGS APPEAL FOR AID

With the announcement yesterday that its annual report shows a deficit of $117,043.84 for the school year of 1921-22, Northwestern university, "to keep from degenerating into a rich man's school," issues a call upon public spirited citizens to increase its endowments.

"A similar deficit will be incurred this year," said William A. Dyche, business manager of the university. "Most of the deficits in the past few years have been paid by generous friends. There is no provision for these two."

President Walter Dill Scott, scanning the report, said: "We must either charge a higher rate of tuition, limit some of our activities, or increase our endowments. To raise our tuition would cause us to degenerate into a rich man's school. Our only feasible alternative is to increase our endowments."

Perfect Trousseau

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—"This is the most perfect trousseau for a queen in exile," is the opinion of Baron Drecoll, who assisted Princess Hermine Von Schoenaich-Carolath in selecting the gowns she would take to Doorn. Baron Drecoll is Berlin's "arbiter elegantiarum."

The trousseau is simple, the gowns are costly but not in the least extravagant. The wedding dress is of mauve panne, with a small train, only 1.50 meter long. It is adorned with steel beads. No sleeves. The bride wore a black hat adorned with aigrettes, the brim of the hat is lined with antique point d'aiguille.

The most elegant evening dress is made of black jet embroidery with sleeves of real Chantilly lace. The future kaiserin will wear this dress on the eve of the wedding, which, according to German custom must be celebrated with special gayety.

The best looking tea gown is a concoction of yellow satin merveille adorned with silver lace.

The future kaiserin intends to call on all the neighbors in the estates surrounding Doorn. For this purpose she has chosen a black velour dress, topped with black Bruges lace, with which she wears a cape of the same material trimmed with astrakan. A hat of silver and steel lace goes with this outft.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR.

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and thirty-five leading universities and found to be superior to ten ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 609 West Lake street, Chicago, is offering to send a lamp on ten days' FREE trial, or even to give one to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

Gowans' Yacht Speejacks Safe at Cape Verde Island

The Speejacks, the ninety-eight foot motor yacht, with A. Y. Gowan of Chicago and party aboard, has arrived at St. Vincent, Cape Verde islands, according to a cablegram received at Mr. Gowan's office yesterday. The 871 mile trip from Las Palmas, Canary islands, to St. Vincent, was made in four days. The arrival at Las Palmas was six days overdue because of storms and had caused some fear here for the safety of the party which is on its last lap of a trip around the world.

COAL PRODUCTION FOR LAST WEEK SHOWS INCREASE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Preliminary returns on coal loaded at the mines in the week ended Nov. 11 indicate a total production of 12,600,000 net tons, of which about 10,700,000 tons was bituminous and 1,900,000 tons was anthracite, according to the weekly report of the geological survey. Revised estimates for the week ended Nov. 4 show 10,617,000 tons of bituminous and 1,839,000 tons of anthracite.

Loadings of soft coal on Monday, Nov. 6, as reported by the railroads, total 43,810 cars. On Tuesday, election day, loadings declined to 25,315 cars, but on Wednesday 33,875 cars and on Thursday 31,807 cars were loaded. This is a slight increase.

The rate of output of soft coal is now higher than in 1918 and 1921, and much higher than in 1919.

Heat more water, with less gas, the STORAGE WAY

The Royal Automatic heats water and stores it, ready for instant use when needed. Open a faucet and hot water is there — waiting for you. Open as many faucets as you please —and you still have steaming hot water running at full city pressure.

The ingenious application of the storage principle in the Royal eliminates the necessity of a wasteful fury of flames to heat water quickly after a faucet is opened.

Install a Royal now and use it this winter. It provides hot water far more cheaply than furnace coils can. Scientific investigation shows that furnace coils use up 1-4 of all the coal put into a furnace. This is a tremendous item which can be saved year after year by heating water the Royal way.

TURK READY TO TALK PEACE; NO ONE TO TALK TO Allies' Haggling Halts the Opening of Parley.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Ismet Pasha, chief Turkish Nationalist delegate, will arrive at Lausanne tomorrow evening ready for the near east peace conference he was invited to attend and which was scheduled to open on Monday. No other delegate will be there to meet him nor have any preparations been made for the parley.

The British have not sent even the usual advance guard of young foreign office attachés to engage the best rooms for their chiefs, as Lord Curzon, British foreign minister, has sent what is practically an ultimatum to Premier Poincare stating that Great Britain will not be represented at the conference it participated in summoning unless the French consent to a preliminary accord.

But neither have the Italian, Greek, Roumanian, and Bulgarian delegates arrived, and the French plenipotentiaries will not leave here until tomorrow night. Not a word has been received from Moscow as to when the Russian delegation will start.

Grave fear is expressed here that the truculent Angora leaders may construe the delay without notification as a slight and order Ismet to withdraw, and then the whole near east and Balkans will be thrown into the agony of suspicion and fear of war.

Haggling Over Bargain.

This dangerous situation is due to the fact that, while official French and British spokesmen and the inspired press of both countries harp on the "solidarity of the allies," France, Italy, and Great Britain are haggling over the terms of a bargain among themselves before confronting the Turks.

Premier Poincare asserts he is ready to converse with the British, but he refuses to agree to a long postponement of the conference.

Lord Curzon is trying to buy France's complete support of all the British demands at the cheapest price, and Premier Poincare is determined to exact from Great Britain a promise to support him in the coming reparations crisis at the Brussels conference in December.

The United States has not been asked to be represented at these secret meetings, either officially or by observers. The French premier has conferred twice with Marshal Foch in the last twenty-four hours.

Mussolini to Stay Away.

ROME, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Premier Mussolini has decided that, owing to the urgent need of settling Italy's internal affairs, he will be unable to participate in a meeting of the allied premiers or foreign ministers before the Lausanne peace conference, or go to Lausanne himself.

Meanwhile he has ordered the cruiser Premuda to near eastern waters and has directed that the Italian contingent in Constantinople be reinforced by 250 men and ten machine guns.

Urges Allies to Get Out.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—"Turkey for the Turks," is the slogan which the Turks gave as their watchword to Mark O. Prentiss, special representative of the American Near East relief, who was sent by headquarters to make a survey of the work in the orient.

"The allies," said Mr. Prentiss, "ought to get out of Constantinople immediately, to avert disaster, otherwise they will be forced out, for they face a careful Turkish plan."

There is certain to be an explosion in Constantinople shortly, which in his opinion, "would be another Smyrna, but several times worse." Three quarters of a million people must be evacuated from Constantinople pell mell if the impending disaster was not anticipated.

The Turks, Mr. Prentiss declared, have a list of 8,000 Greeks and Armenians in Constantinople, with their photographs, and "they are going to get them and kill them." Noureddin Pasha, second in command of the nationalist army, told him that Turkey was through with all missionaries.

If the Americans want to help Turkey, Noureddin advised, they can send technical men, but no more mission schools.

NEW METHOD OF TAMING A BOLL WEEVIL IS FOUND

Gainesville, Fla., Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Development of a satisfactory method of controlling the boll weevil on short staple, or upland cotton, was announced here tonight by Dr. Wilmon Newell, plant commissioner for the state plant board and director of the University of Florida experiment station.

The announcement was made as a result of research work by George D. Smith, associate entomologist, conducted under the auspices of the state plant board.

The method involves a principle in boll weevil control heretofore not recognized by other investigators, Dr. Newell stated, adding that the total cost of treatment, labor included, does not exceed $1.50 or $2 an acre.

While some poison is used the amount is comparatively small, Dr. Newell said. By means of the improved method a cotton field is cleared of practically all boll weevils early in June and remains in that condition for several weeks. During this period a good crop of bolls is set without weevil interference.

PICKETS DEMAND HARDING RELEASE 'WAR' PRISONERS

200 Pick Armistice Day to Patrol White House.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—Petitioners for general amnesty for imprisoned violators of war laws today utilized the spirit of armistice day in another endeavor to influence President Harding to pardon the sixty-four men still serving sentences under the espionage act.

With a band of five pieces playing "The Marseillaise" and two color bearers carrying American flags at the head, the amnesty seekers, more than 200 strong, and with banners, descended upon the white house soon after the President had returned from Arlington, where in the name of the American people he had placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

They had obtained a permit to parade on Pennsylvania avenue before the white house grounds, but after doing this they turned into West Executive avenue toward the white house offices and their troubles began.

Husky Cop Shoos 'Em Off.

The procession proceeded quietly until it reached the entrance to the grounds near the executive offices, when a husky park police lieutenant stepped out, choked off the band in the midst of "Onward Christian Soldiers" and informed the leaders that they then were on government reservation ground and the permit was invalid.

The band thereupon disappeared, but those participating in the procession remained with their banners about the grounds for an hour before adjourning to Lafayette square, where an open air meeting was held.

Kidding the Serious Group.

The meeting in Lafayette square, opposite the White House, had barely gotten under way when a young man accompanied by a half dozen colored boys appeared with a new kind of banner. These banners started a counter demonstration as the amnesty seekers showed unmistakably that they resented the inscriptions.

Some of these ran as follows:

"Treason ain't no crime.—Benedict Arnold Patriotic association, Inc."

"We extend our sympathy.—Pickpockets' association."

"We want out, too. — Chicken Thieves' society."

Police had to intervene between the two sets of demonstrators.

Some of the banners carried by the amnesty pickets said:

"Mr. President—Do you think men should serve 676 years in prison for expressions of opinion? Nine American workingmen are serving twenty years, forty American workingmen are serving ten years, fifteen American workingmen are serving five to ten years."

Complain of His "Delay."

"Mr. President—You said it would take sixty days to review the cases of the political prisoners. It is now more than 100 days since you said this."

"Mr. President—Is normalcy keeping men in prison for their opinions?"

The amnesty petitioners after the speechmaking went to the Chevy Chase Country club to picket when President Harding arrived there to play golf. While the parade was in progress the President was in his study and saw none of the demonstration.

New Kansas Governor to Fight the Industrial Court

Leavenworth, Kas., Nov. 11.—Governor Elect Jonathan M. Davis announced tonight his first official action would be to move for the repeal of the Kansas Industrial court law. The election of Davis was taken in some quarters as a repudiation of the Industrial court law, passed under guidance of Gov. Henry J. Allen.

BURNS 95% AIR TO HEAT HOMES.

Mr. B. M. Oliver, a St. Louis fuel expert, has found a way to make any stove, furnace, or heater burn 95% air without changing a single part. A simple device, easily installed in a few minutes, uses a small amount of coal oil [5%] to burn 95% air. Gives three times the heat of coal. Absolutely safe—lasts a lifetime. Already in use by over 100,000 housewives. Ends forever dread of coal shortages and outrageous prices, because it is the cheapest fuel in the world. Banishes women's slavery to dirty, mussy, unhealthy coal and wood fires. Special Low Price and 30-Day Free Trial Introductory Offers now being made. Write at once to Mr. Oliver, 2222-K Oliver Building, St. Louis, Mo., for full details and attractive Free Booklet. No obligation. MURDER VICTIM FOUND IN RIVER; SHOT, STABBED

Political feudists of the old Nineteenth ward were believed to have resumed their deadly warfare yesterday with the finding of the body of an unidentified victim of a murder in a slip in the river near Twenty-third and Sangamon streets.

$2.95 MAN KILLER

The man, apparently an Italian about 22 years old, had been stabbed and shot to death, according to Deputy Coroner Samuel L. Davis, before being thrown into the water. No water was found in the lungs, he said, which plainly indicated the victim had not been drowned.

The body was clothed only in underwear and black socks. It is that of a man about 5 feet 3 inches tall, weight about 130 pounds and black bushy hair.

POISON DEATHS MAY TOTAL 12; BABIES VICTIMS?

husbands and said he would expose her. He died soon after this.

Leaves $1,000 Insurance.

Mrs. Klimek's first husband was Joseph Mitkiewicz. Dying Jan. 13, 1914, he is said to have left $1,000 insurance, which Mrs. Klimek collected. She remarried in little more than a month and husband No. 2 died three months later.

In March, 1919, The Klimek woman married Frank Kupczyk, living with him at 924 Winchester avenue, where he died on April 25, 1921. It was his body which, under chemical analysis, yielded a quantity of arsenic.

Among the deaths being investigated as a result of the women's arrest are those of three cousins of Mrs. Klimek. children. Their mother, Mrs. Francis Zakrzewski, and Mrs. Klimek lived together two years ago at 2013 Carolina street. The women are said to have quarreled. During a comparatively short time thereafter, the children died.

Incurs Ill Will; Dies.

The death of Mrs. Rose Chudzinski, 24 years old, 2241 Lester avenue, also is being investigated. She is alleged to have told relatives that, following a quarrel, Mrs. Klimek, her cousin served her with food individually prepared.

Arsenic was found not only in the organs of Mrs. Klimek's third husband but in those of Mrs. Koulik's first mate, Adolph Stermer, who died in 1918, presumably of pneumonia. His death excited neighborhood gossip and there was talk of poisoning.

More Exhumations Due.

While Coroner Peter M. Hoffman was last night obtaining permission to exhume more bodies, William F. McLaughlin, assistant state's attorney who was yesterday assigned to give his entire time to the case, was picking the thread of evidence upon which the murder charges against the women are based.

In the face of this effort to forge a chain that may mean their death on the gallows Mrs. Klimek and Mrs. Koulik evinced not the slightest concern The former greeted all interviewers including reporters, defiantly. Her cousin, Mrs. Koulik, was in better mood. She chatted gayly with her jailers and when brought into a room to meet her husband she made him the target of good natured gibes. She was particular about her apperance when asked to pose for a photographer, insisting that the camera man wait until she "slicked her hair." Mrs. Klimek declined to pose.

TRYING TO UNRAVEL THE POISON MYSTERY

Baby Cab Firebug Burns Flat; 100 Tenants Flee

New York, Nov. 11.—[United Press.]—One hundred tenants fled to the street in their night clothes early today when the pyromaniac, whose outrages have claimed twenty-two lives here recently, fired another apartment house in the Bronx. The incendiary blaze was discovered in baby carriages in the hallway. Fires that have destroyed other tenements and apartments were started similarly.

WAR CONVINCED FORTESCUE U. S. IS O. K., HE SAYS

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—After he had learned that Secretary Weeks had barred him from making an Armistice day address before the West Point cadets, John William Fortescue, British historian and librarian of Windsor castle, asserted today that he had intended to take occasion on his appearance at the military academy to recant the remarks he had made in criticism of Americans in a lecture in England eleven years ago.

He said he had been convinced by the war, and American friends he had made during the conflict, that his earlier opinions were entirely erroneous, and that he had intended to confess to Americans that he had erred grievously. This is his first visit to America, the historian said, and the cordiality of all had more than ever convinced him that he owed America some amends for his critical words.

Two events were fresh in his mind when he made the statements that caused Secretary Weeks to forbid his apeparance at West Point, the historian said. He asserted that one was a disclosure by the British foreign office that the American state department had "garbled" or "altered" a copy of a section of some treaty in the Bering sea controversy.

The other event, he said, was the unsportsmanlike attitude displayed by an American athlete in some international competition. He said he remembered that the American had won by a foul, but that the names, dates, and details had slipped his memory.

Lieut. Col. Grayson and M. P. Murphy, a graduate of the military academy in 1903 and now a banker in this city, conveyed and withdrew the invitation to him to speak at West Point, Mr. Fortescue said, and there had been no direct communication between the war department and the historian. Col. Murphy also canceled his trip to West Point.

PIUS WILL MAKE PAPAL NUNCIO TO U. S. A CARDINAL

ROME, Nov. 11.—[United Press.]—Pope Pius XI. has decided to hold a private consistory Dec. 11, and a public one Dec. 15, to promote several nuncios, including Archbishop Bonzano, Washington, to the cardinalcy, it was announced today.

The decision of the pope to appoint as cardinals Archbishops Mundelein, Chicago, and Hayes, New York, at next year's consistory, will carry out the policy of the late Pope Benedict.

Benedict's plan was to select cardinals from various American cities in their turn. The vatican, after honoring New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Boston, decided that Chicago and then St. Louis should be honored.

$500 GIVEN FOR SCHOOL INQUIRY; $150,000 NEEDED

Scandal Quiz at Standstill Till Fund Is Raised.

On the newly started ledger in the office of Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, under the account entitled "Chicago Board of Education Investigation and Prosecution" yesterday appeared the following entries:

Received to date	$ 500
Needed to continue investigation and prosecute indictments	150,000
Balance due from public spirited citizens	$149,500

Mr. Brundage said yesterday he cannot begin to organize the necessary legal machinery to enable Chicago to purge its school board of the system of graft and corruption described by members of the special grand jury as the worst of any city in the world because of lack of funds. The grand jury investigation is temporarily at a halt, being on recess until Nov. 27.

Waiting for Finances.

The grand jurors are marking time, waiting for Chicagoans, by financially backing the inquiry, to convince them, Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley, and Attorney General Brundage that the community indorses the stand they have taken to get to the bottom of every shady transaction entered into by the school trustees.

The ordinary legal machinery of Cook county cannot be used. Mr. Brundage has no appropriation with which to pay assistants, lawyers, clerks, stenographers, investogators, and process servers. Cook county cannot legally furnish him with the necessary funds, it being the duty of the state legislature to finance the attorney general's work. Gov. Small lopped $700,000 from Mr. Brundage's last approriation and the legislature will not meet until January.

Request of Citizens.

Sixteen civic organizations and the Chicago Bar association requested Chief Justice McKinley to appoint some one to take up the work where State's Attorney Crowe left off, and the attorney general, as chief law officer of the state, was called in. If citizens fail to furnish the necessary money no further inquiry can be made and the forty-five indictments already voted will be nullified, according to those in charge of the inquiry.

"That's the crisis Chicago now faces," said Chief Justice McKinley. "We have arisen in the past when crimes of violence threatened our peace; we must again give whole heartedly of our private funds or suffer the consequences.

"Failing to respond will mean that the good citizens are willing to see a breakdown of law and order. By their inaction they will sanction the pillage of our school system and the looting of its treasury. Can the offenses narrated in the forty-five indictments be condoned and allowed to go unpunished? It is up to the rank and file of decency to answer."

Ten days ago when the grand jury inquiry was at a halt, due to the resignation of Special Prosecutor I. T. Greenacre, and it appeared that the three months' labor of the twenty-three men who have given up their time to their public duty was to go for naught, an organization known as the Joint Committee on School Affairs petitioned Justice McKinley to carry on. Signatories to the petition were:

- Chicago Woman's club,
- Woman's City club,
- Chicago Women's Aid,
- Chicago Church federation,
- Conference Jewish Women's clubs,
- Illinois League of Women Voters,
- Council of Jewish Women,
- City Club of Chicago,
- North End club,
- West End Woman's club,
- Ogden Woman's club,
- Chicago Urban league,
- Jochana lodge,
- Garfield Park Woman's club,
- Oakland Business Men's association.

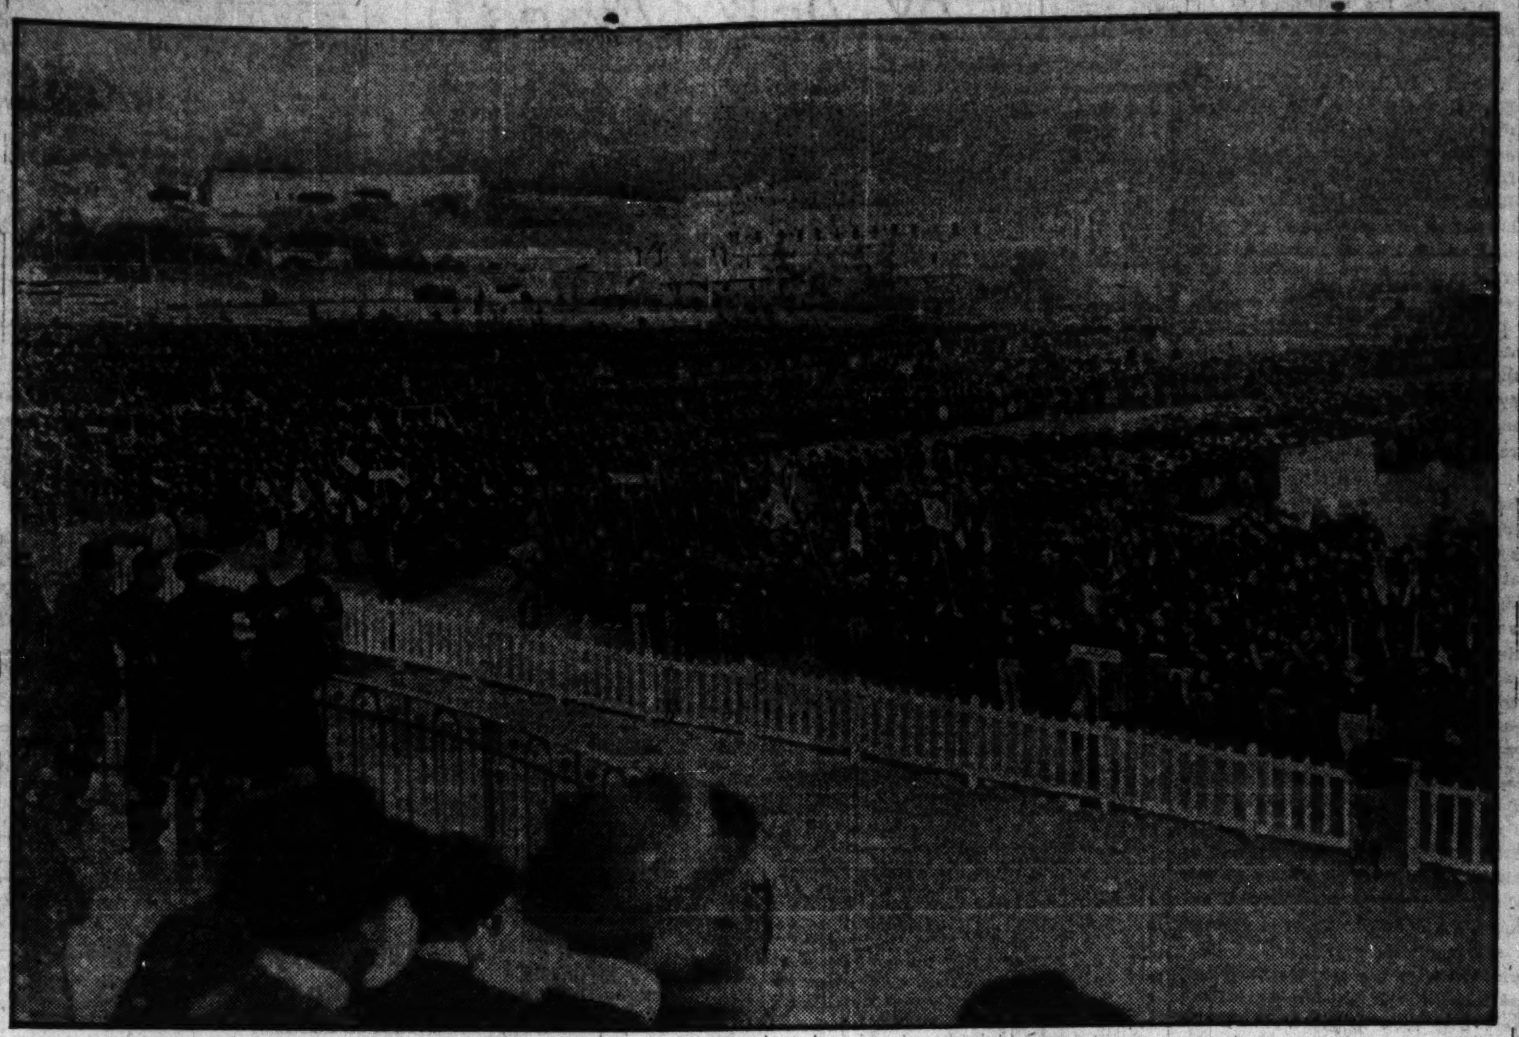
Brundage Takes Up Fight.

It was announced shortly after that Attorney General Brundage would assume responsibility for continuation of the inquiry. This met with the unanimous approval of the Chicago Bar Association, which pledged all the aid at its command to Brundage.

Several meetings of the bar committee on the administration of criminal justice, headed by Attorney William H. Sexton, have been held. Roger Sherman, president of the bar association, has been active in formulating plans. The joint committee on school affairs plans a meeting on Thursday.

"The $500 will barely pay one day's expenses," Mr. Brundage said. "At least $150,000 is needed, and perhaps more. Those who desire to block the investigation and have the prosecutions dropped have millions at their disposal. Unless Chicago is to be at the mercy of its exploiters, every one must do his share."

THE POWER OF THE FASCISTI THAT NOW RULES ITALY



The power of the Fascisti in Italy was shown by tremendous gatherings in the various Italian centers. The above picture shows 50,000 warriors of the "black shirt" demonstrating at Naples about the time they assumed power and Mussolini, their leader, was called to Rome to be premier and form a new government. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

ITALY WILL TRY TO PAY U.S. DEBT, SAYS MUSSOLINI

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Nov. 11.—"We wish and we hope to pay the Italian debt to America," Premier Mussolini told American correspondents at Rome in an audience last night. "If America later realizes more fully Europe's situation it will perhaps change its viewpoint. In the meantime, however, our debt to America is an honor debt which we intend to make every effort to pay."

Further outlining the Italian policy, Sig. Mussolini stated that the near eastern situation demanded the immediate summons of a peace conference before the question became hopeless.

He also emphasized his viewpoint that the Russians should be admitted to the conference table, as they were vitally interested in the straits and the Black sea, saying any settlement without them would not be a final solution of the problem.

Sig. Mussolini asserted that the Washington disarmament treaty would be ratified by Italy as soon as it was presented.

BOY HUNTER KILLS BROTHER.

Livingston, N. J., Nov. 11.—Woodrow Young, 13, was accidentally shot and killed by his brother, Herbert, 19, as they started on a hunting trip. The bullet pierced Woodrow's brain.

PICK COMMITTEE TO BOOST BETTER COUNCIL TIMBER

The better city council committee, appointed as a result of a conference of some 200 citizens recently at the City club, consists of Clifton R. Bechtel, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, E. O. Griffenhagen, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, Wiley W. Mills, Mrs. John F. Bass, Augustus S. Peabody, Mrs. Elbert E. Smith, J. G. Schaefer, and Dr. M. E. Loren.

"The purpose of this committee," Mr. Bechtel said, "is to encourage the formation in the various wards of groups of citizens who, without regard to party or factional affiliation, will come together to take practical action in regard to the aldermanic situation.

"The job of selecting aldermen is up to the people in the wards. The work of our committee is to get the people in various wards on the job."

THIS RECENT ELECTION.

Where the voter of 1920 had an issue the voter of 1922 had a grievance. This sometimes happens when the country having changed party control and policies votes on congress two years later.

Two years ago the country decided for Harding and for a Republican congress, going to them for protection against involvement in the league of nations and against helpless, misguided complicity in European affairs. That was a sound sense of self-protection.

Under Democratic administration, war, prohibition, inflation, and high taxes had come. The Republican administration tried to get off the stilts. It could keep out of Europe, but it could not keep out of trouble.

Prohibition had come under Democratic administration, but when the Republicans went in, a department administered by Republicans had to enforce it. The party which has to try to enforce this law is the party against which the grievance of the wets will lie. It is the enforcement of the principle and not the declaration of it which makes the grievance. Few citizens in southern states waste any time denouncing the constitutional amendments enfranchising the Negroes and giving them civil rights so long as in their states the enforcement is what they want it to be.

People are practical. If you pass a law to please half of them and fail to enforce it to please the other half there will be no complaint from the half which does not like the law. That is an American habit.

Enforcement is a federal function. Most of the states avoid it. No wet in Illinois would get mad at what the state or local government does to interfere with him. He blames the federal government, and yet Illinois has a more stringent enforcement law than the federal act.

In spite of William J. Bryan the Democrats are regarded as wetter than the Republicans. Large cities are wet. They also are mainly Democratic. Prohibitionists have the condition they want, or something approximating it. Anti-prohibitionists have something they decidedly do not want. An active discontent votes harder than a satisfied or semi-satisfied content.

This grievance was a powerful one, as results show. The personally dry but politically wet Edwards of New Jersey took away the senatorial seat of the personally wet but politically dry Frelinghuysen. A Democrat goes to the senate because he votes for liquor although he drinks water, to take the place of a Republican who may drink water, but votes against liquor.

Gov. Miller of New York had not made a great deal of trouble for the drinkers of New York City, but Smith, the former governor and the Democratic candidate, had a wine and beer platform. New York City will not tolerate dryness. It can stand that social rule just about as well as Paris can. It is a port, a cosmopolitan, a tavern, and a theater. The theaters, the hotels, and metropolitan amusements do not flourish bone dry.

Massachusetts voted not to make the state laws conform to the Volstead act. Illinois voted wet.

It may be inexplicable to the drys, but there is in a part of the American conscience a revolt against prohibition which does not sanction debauchery, alcoholism, wife beating, economic waste, or any of what were known as the evils of the saloon. This may be perfectly inexplicable to the person who believes in moral dominion by coercion, but it is explicable to people who know that a republic is founded upon individual selection.

Ohio voted against beer by about 190,000. Say 400,000 voted for beer and 590,000 voted that the 400,000 should not have it. Probably some day the issue will be simple. Shall a majority, even a majority, impose its habit of life upon a minority? The minority is willing to conform in all the major regulations of life. It does not desire to rob, to be immoral, to kill or to do any harm to other people, but it wishes to decide for itself questions of personal habit. Shall it be coerced to do otherwise than as it wants to do?

We do not know now and no one knows whether prohibition has a popular majority in the United States. Concede for argument that it has. Say that six-tenths of the people are opposed to alcoholic beverages and four-tenths want them in one form or another. Shall there be coercion in a democracy in the matter of such habit, custom, and individual choice? If there is to be coercion there will be a grievance and it will be politically expressed every time there is a chance to express it.

The agricultural districts are supposed to be dry. They do not ask for exhilaration after daylight but for rest and for the ability to get up at or before dawn to do a day's work.

They probably were not mad because of prohibition, but they are mad because deflation started on the ground. Farmers, with fair weather, are Republicans. It has not been fair weather. Wheat, hogs, corn, and cattle have not been getting the war prices. The farmer may think that politics can help him, but it cannot. It said, in Russia, that it intended to, and all the farmer got out of it was starvation. The reason the farmer is the first to feel natural causes is because he is closest to them. Politics for a time can do something for railroad workers or for any other secondary workers, but when it tries to say that a man sowing the soil shall obtain so much it has as much chance as a weather forecaster who was foolish enough to try to cause a needed rain.

With the city wet mad and the rural dry mad, the administration had a load to carry. Taxes have been reduced, but not enough to enable the average citizen to buy his wife a sealskin coat. That is his idea of getting out from under. The tariff may have made some citizens mad, but that is as yet a matter of theory and not of effect.

The service men and their friends failed to win the support of the administration. They had a grievance. Two years ago politics almost without exception indorsed their adjusted compensation. A Republican administration and congress failed to give it to them. That pleased a great many important industrialists, commercialists, and economists, but it did not please several million voters, and again discontent is a better voter than content.

Labor, we imagine, is politically defiant. Deflation simply imposed itself upon the farmer, but organized labor could fight. Agriculture does not know what to hit when it carries a load of wheat to the elevator or sends pigs to the stockyards and is disappointed in the price.

Organized labor has a direct employer and can hit at him when wages go down. The government, trying to get off stilts, had to sanction reductions. The process of getting completely off the stilts is hard, and there are injustices because everything does not come down at once.

The United States has been lucky beyond the imagination of its citizens. It fought a great war without excessive casualties. It came out of the war a creditor nation with a sound currency. It preserved its sound traditions and escaped entanglements. It has been able to do a great deal of general human good. It is pretty well fed and is organically sound. It has had some strikes, but it has not suffered deprivations. People do not feel the ground quivering under their feet or the shingles flying off their roofs. But these people have grievances, and they voted them.

They do not know that the world melted to hot lava in 1914 and that since then people have been lucky to escape extinction.

WHAT AILS EUROPE?

Four years have passed since the last gun was fired on the western front. On that day we thought rather of peace than of victory. The emotion was relief from a long agony and with it there was a great hope that somehow Europe would contrive to put its relations upon a new footing which should make a return of our suffering unlikely. For months before the surrender of the German sword, the conditions upon which the conflict should be ended and peace composed had been eagerly discussed and had even reached the stage of definition by the leading statesmen. Mr. Lloyd George had enumerated in outline the principles of an acceptable peace and Mr. Wilson was quick to follow with his famous fourteen points. Peace, we said, shall not be mere imposition of terms by conquerors upon the conquered. That sort of peace belongs to an age which died with this mad war, its child. We shall make a peace of principles, a peace of healing, a peace which shall perpetuate peace and not war.

How little of that large hope has survived the statecraft which followed the collapse of the German military system! How little of that peace has been realized through these four first years! Is it not true that on the contrary no like period in history has demonstrated more stubbornly with how little wisdom mankind is governed?

We expected to see the lessons of the war translated into sureties of peace. Europe, which had paid so frightful a price for the bloody arbitrament of its rivalries, we expected to find turning resolutely to the task of moral and material restoration.

Instead, we have new wars for old, new hostilities and the breaking of ties of friendship but lately cemented in blood; new fears and fears ancient as Europe, new ambitions and new hatreds, as well as those which brought forth the world war. The sword remains unsheathed. The chancelleries conspire behind the curtains of secrecy as from time immemorial. Bankruptcy impends in many of the governments where in fact it does not already exist. The people starve by millions or go half nourished down the dismal descent to obliteration. The question confronting the dismayed intelligence of mankind has become, not how shall Europe prosper as before, but how shall she be saved from self-annihilation.

We had hoped for a new politics, a new psychology, a sense of the necessity for a European polity, within which a pooling of resources, a demolition of political obstructions to essential coöperation and exchange, could be evolved. Instead, these four fateful years have been given to exactly the play of forces which brought about the catastrophe of 1914. Combinations have changed and changed again almost day by day, but the more they changed the more they were the same thing. This is the wonder: the statecraft which led the nations into the fury of the great war operated at any rate upon a platform of solvency and vast reserves; but the statesmanship that has followed the collapse of Central Europe has not even that sorry excuse, for it pursues its destroying strategies upon a platform that totters toward irrevocable ruin.

British and French adventures in the near east have not only involved heavy expenditures at a time when economy is imperative but have brought Europe to the brink of another war and energized forces which may destroy their important imperial commitments. As the diplomats gingerly manipulate the dynamite of the Dardanelles negotiation, an international commission at Berlin anxiously confers while the mark falls without a parachute and the bankruptcy of Germany seems but a matter of a few days. France with a revenue insufficient to meet its expenditures goes on borrowing, its debts internal and external rise mountain high, the franc falls, trade declines, taxes increase. Italy escapes barely from engulfment in the communist morass and struggles toward firm ground heroically but with a crushing burden of debt and inadequate resources to meet even the current needs of national life. In the region of the former Austro-Hungarian empire only the coolheaded Bohemians, wisely led, have gained a footing of solvency. The Jugo-Slavs are shut off from the seaports essential to their economic prosperity. Hungary, cut to the bone, surrounded by traditional enemies and deprived of economic resources, is reduced to the status of a farm without a highway to market. Austria is a tragic ghost. Poland and Roumania live under the shadow of the new barbarism at Moscow. Greece after her fatal gamble for an impossible empire dwindles to minor statehood.

The financial difficulties and economic depletion or partial paralysis of the still solvent and victorious nations threaten social and political consequences of fatal extremity. They threaten the dissolution of our social order and with it the descent of Europe to a state almost of primitive society, a setback as drastic as followed the break-up of classic civilization. In the face of such a peril, the nations continue to waste their strength in military and economic rivalries when their necessity calls for economy and mutual aid. They give play to their ancient appetites and rancors, when they can survive only by combining their remaining resources to build up their common strength. And their governments are too weak to apply the drastic remedies required for their financial and economic rehabilitation.

We must try to realize the resistance of the historic forces which have made Europe what she is, if we are to believe this astounding phenomenon of the nations wrestling on the rim of ruin. We must try to estimate the nature and power of forces which confound reason and defy necessity. If we do we shall see that what America is besought to do would be futile. We shall see that the existing confusion and warfare are digging a bottomless pit into which all our wealth and resources, were they poured without thought of self, would quickly disappear. America can do nothing until Europe is ready to make peace within itself, is ready to recognize that it must accept a Europe organized for a common restoration, organized to make use of its resources for the production of wealth and the revival of its dying peoples, organized, in short, for a comprehensive peace in the interest of the general structure of civilized society on the European continent.

But the notion that American admonition or American material assistance can avail to overcome the forces which during four years, in spite of the imminent destruction they threaten, have wrestled over the smoking ruin of the war, is worse than folly. It is no duty of the American people to involve themselves in the blind and angry conflict of Europe at this time. It is America's duty to herself and to civilization to wait until Europe can make America's aid effectual to her salvation.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

It is November, but there is a spike of blue larkspur in the garden. There are lonesome blossoms of the late phlox. The tobacco plant is green and a wistful white petunia seems to ask the night which hour shall be its last. A red geranium is sturdy, but overhead there is nothing but the winter russet of the oak.

The sky overclouds with the clouds which say snow. The wind drives in with all the intimations of intensive life. The lilac is green when the maple is stripped. The syringa is fresh and the aspen is bare.

A pale nasturtium peers out from fallen leaves of the maple and oak. Life is a face at the window. It is as the rose bush scratching at the pane. The things we love are left outside to die. All death is lonesome and we come alone to the end of the road.

PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL.

Professional football is gaining a hold on popular liking. Frank Smith of THE TRIBUNE sporting department, who saw the Chicago Bears defeat the Dayton Triangles, thinks it is a good thing. The value of sports is in the spread of them. The big contests have value in national well being, as they stimulate imitation in boys and young men. Thirty years ago not many small boys had Rugby footballs. Now a great many have, and when the leaves begin to color and fall the boys are out on the corner lot trying to drop kick and learning formations.

They are doing that because within the last fifty years football has spread into all the colleges of the country. Fifty years ago football was a game restricted to a few colleges. With the spread of the game a healthy sport has been handed down to the boys on the lot.

The appeal of the college game is limited. Colleges cannot seat the people who want to see the big games, and they do not care to make a great popular hippodrome of their contests, which is probably sound enough.

Professional football, as it grows in favor, will spread the popularity of the game and will interest boys who do not hope to go to college. Their physical well being is as important to the nation as the well being of the college class. College baseball is not hurt by the fact that professional baseball is better played. Professional football may never be better played than college football, or again it may be much better played. Just at present ex-college men furnish most of the professional football players. Probably if a great trainer and coach took some 18 year old boilermakers, dock workers, steel erectors, and newspaper circulators and trained them to play football for a living the score of that team against California, Iowa, Harvard, or Washington and Jefferson would be 120 to 0.

That might hurt college pride, but it is not necessary for the twain to meet. It would not do them any harm if they did. The chief triumph of a democracy is not its government. The political freedom of the freeman may be doubted. The triumph of a democracy is social freedom and the obliteration of social caste.

Editorial of the Day

CANADIAN-U. S. POSTAL PACT.

[East St. Louis Daily Journal.]

A postal convention that will enable the postal services of the United States and Canada to function as one in the transmission of mail between the dominion and the United States is in the making. The interests of Canada and the United States are so interwoven commercially and the ideals of both are so alike that it is strange an agreement of this kind was not entered into years ago.

Postmaster General Work has completed arrangements for a conference with the postmaster general of Canada with a view of concluding the proposed postal agreement. Plans looking to this end have been under consideration for more than a year and the importance of the move prompted Postmaster General Work to decide that he would go to Canada the first week in December to participate in the deliberation.

With the successful negotiation of this postal convention which will link the two nations, an instrument will have been created for the first time whereby an interchange of mail matter between Canada and the United States will be facilitated and result in a tremendous stride toward the perfection of the postal systems of both countries.

The convention will be held in Ottawa and the postmaster general will be accompanied by other high postal officials of the department. Reciprocal exchange of postal equipment, insurance of parcel post between the United States and Canada, transit of United States mails through Canada and Canadian mail through United States, direct correspondence between Canadian and American postmasters, uniform money order forms for both countries, United States railway mail clerks to extend their runs into Canadian territory, and others are among the proposals that will be discussed at sessions of the two postoffice departments.

Not only because it will facilitate commerce and business between the two lands of the North American continent, but for sentimental reasons as well, it is to be earnestly hoped the convention will be signed.

THE DRUNKEN DRIVER.

[Aurora Beacon-News.]

The drunken automobile driver is now the center of attention, turn where you will. Almost every paper in Illinois is suggesting ways and means of getting rid of him. In Springfield they talk about prison sentences, in East St. Louis they suggest volunteer police reserves, in Bloomington they adopt a slogan "get the number."

We still think the Aurora idea the best. Take his license.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

LENGTHENING HUMAN LIFE.

The American Public Health association, after careful consideration, has said that the average length of life of the people in America, should reach seventy-five years by 1972.

Just a year ago Dr. Stephen Smith, the founder of that society and the founder of the New York City health department, then within a few weeks of his ninety-ninth birthday, said the span of human life in America should be one hundred years. He called on his child, the public health association, to back up his position and to help him put it across.

Dr. Smith died a few weeks ago, some months before attaining 100 years, but more than 100 years old if age be reckoned from the date of conception rather than the date of birth.

The committee carefully reckoned the prospects and consulted with insurance actuaries and vital statisticians. They reported that seventy-five years was a probable accomplishment, and the association adopted their report.

It is not easy to determine what was the average span of life fifty years ago. It is generally accepted as having been around thirty. It is now thought to be about fifty-five. In New Zealand it is said to be sixty-five.

The method of determining this is to add up the ages as shown on the death certificates for one year and to divide this by the number of deaths.

Since deaths in babyhood add to the sum total of deaths, but do not add materially to the sum total of ages at death, they markedly affect the average longevity question.

Migrations and average age of the population is another disturbing factor. The committee took all this into consideration.

Because of the heavy death rate of growing children, an average age at death of 75 means that a great many people must live ninety and a fair number must live to be 100 and some must reach 125.

There are economists who are against all this. They say, "What's the use of living beyond the age of usefulness?" The answer is that when the average length of life is set forward twenty years, the average period of usefulness, of capacity for efficient, self-sustaining work will go forward twenty years.

B. J. Rosenthal is right. The average length of efficiency has moved forward about as many years as has the average length of life, but we need some sort of a movement to convince employers of the fact.

While Pound, in his "Iron Man of Industry," is right in saying that organized industry has put forward the age at which a mechanic earns his maximum, it is also true that it provides a place for profitable employment, at living wages, of men 60 years, 70 years, and even more than 70 years of age.

However, there is another field that needs B. J. Rosenthal. It is in the teaching of men and women how to care for their bodies and minds, so that they will be in good condition when they reach 60. That is, with good health habits, good vision, good hearing, not too stiff in their joints, not too short-winded, not quickly exhausted, and organically sound.

ADVANCED TUBERCULOSIS.

Mrs. M. H. F. writes: "1. I have had pulmonary tuberculosis for nearly three years. Have lost fifteen pounds in the last four months. Would you call mine an advanced case?

"2. My daughter brings her 2 year old son to see me every day. I am very careful about drinking glass, sputum, etc. Do you think it dangerous for the baby to come to my home?

"3. I am 41 years old. Do you think that change of life would affect my tubercular condition?"

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. The daughter should not bring her baby to your house. No doubt you are careful, but the danger is too great.
3. It may affect it favorably.

DANGER IN GAS GRATES.

Mrs. M. G. H. writes: "Is a gas log or open gas stove in a living room injurious to health? The log doesn't leak (it is new), but the house is filled with a peculiar odor when the log is lighted.

REPLY.

There is no reason why a gas fire cannot be as wholesome as any other, but, as a rule, they are thoroughly unwholesome.

This is because of wrong principles used in gas logs and gas stoves generally:

These wrong principles are:

1. There is no provision for carrying off the smoke. Of course you can't see the smoke, but it is there, and the fact that it is invisible adds to its danger.
2. As gas logs are built, some unburnt gas escapes from some camouflaged opening into the air of the room.
3. Some gas burns with insufficient oxygen, making carbon monoxide, which is very harmful.

HOOKWORM BRINGS LAZINESS.

H. A. D. writes: What are the symptoms of hookworm and what is a good remedy?

REPLY.

Anemia, pallor, laziness, shortwindedness, lack of endurance. Among the proved remedies are: wormseed, thymol and carbon tetrachloride.

SYMPTOMS OF GLAUCOMA.

A. F. K. writes:

"1. What is glaucoma?
"2. Is it serious?
"3. What are the symptoms?
"4. What is the cause?
"5. What is the cure?"

REPLY.

1. Excessive amount of water within the eyeball.
2. Yes.
3. Pain in the eyeballs, sense of fullness, tension of the eyeballs, disturbance of the vision, headache. The symptoms depend a good deal on whether the glaucoma is primary or secondary, acute or chronic.
4. Among the causes are tumor, certain constitutional diseases, inflammations, infections.
5. Removal of the cause. In some cases, operation.

ASTHMA NOT CONTAGIOUS.

Helen M. writes: "I am in quite a mess and don't know what to do.

"I am a girl of 18 and am keeping steady company with a man of 30.

"This man has asthma. He has asked me to marry him.

"1. Is asthma dangerous or catching?

"2. Would it have any effect on my children if I ever had any?"

REPLY.

1. Neither.
2. No.

Not such a bad mess, after all.

SOCIAL DISEASE INFORMATION.

I. E. G. writes: "Where can I get a booklet on venereal diseases, their periods of incubation, cure, prophylactic treatment, etc.?"

REPLY:

You can get such a booklet free from your state health department.

AGAR NOT HARMFUL.

W. A. McG. writes: "I eat agar every morning for constipation. Is it harmful?"

REPLY:

No.

REGULAR SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—For the past two weeks no garbage service has been rendered to the homes on the northeast corner of Spaulding and 19th. The accumulation causes a bad odor which isn't very appropriate to passersby.

We will gratefully appreciate anything that you may do to relieve the situation.

J. M. G.

Garbage in this district is removed on an average once a week. Alley was given a thorough cleaning on Oct. 30, having been previously cleaned on the 22d of October.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

ENLISTED BEFORE THE WAR.

La Salle, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—What interpretation of the proposed Illinois bonus measure do you reach in regard to the eligibility of the ex-marine in the following case?

A bonafide resident of Illinois enlisted in the U. S. Marines within the state in June, 1916, ten months before America's declaration of war. The following June he arrived in France with the first contingent of combat troops from the states, remained there twenty-five months before being ordered home; honorably discharged on the expiration of enlistment in June, 1920, and has resided in the state of Illinois since discharge.

G. D. A.

The bonus bill does not say that the man must have enlisted on or after April 6, 1917, but says that he must have seen active service between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, to be eligible for the bonus.

We incline to the opinion that the man in question stands a good chance of collecting the bonus.

THREE YEAR LEASE.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I leased a store building for business purposes for a term of three years at stipulated rental. Lease expired May 1, 1922. Lease provides for three years additional privilege at same rental. Thirty days prior to expiration of lease I requested new lease be written as per terms of privilege.

The landlord wrote a letter stating he had an opportunity of selling building and wished matter deferred for a few weeks until he could see me personally, and I waited developments. Landlord came to town, but made no attempt to see me. Sale of building did not develop. I continue to occupy building without new lease being written.

1. Am I a monthly tenant?
2. Am I a yearly tenant?
3. Am I a three year tenant?
4. Could I vacate building on thirty days' notice without obligation?

H. P.

It is the ordinary rule that a holdover results in a renewal by implication unless the landlord has indicated a contrary intent. We incline to the view that such an intent does not appear in your case.

1. Yes, if the foregoing analysis is correct.
2. Yes, if the landlord has not indicated a contrary intent.
3. No.
4. No.

MEMORY TESTS

1. What famous bell is known as "Big Tom"? The bell in Christchurch tower, Oxford, on which the curfew is rung. It weighs more than seven tons.

2. What is meant by the Hundred Days in French history? The three months in 1815 between Napoleon's return from Elba and the battle of Waterloo.

3. How many peace dollars were coined? 1,006,473.

4. How many states border on Lake Michigan? How many states border on Lake Erie? Four each.

5. What and when was the Hundred Years' War? It was a struggle between France and England which lasted, with intermissions, from 1338 to 1453. Edward III. of England claimed the crown of France because his mother was the sister of Charles IV. of France. This and minor differences brought on the war. In 1429, through Joan of Arc, the English were forced to relinquish their gains. At the close of the war Calais was the only French territory in English hands.

REACTION TO JUDGE EDWARDS' ACTION IN THE VOLIVA CASE.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—It appears the jury trying the overseer of Zion City for criminal libel found Voliva guilty, but Judge Edwards set the verdict aside, and in doing so said: "We do not need any evidence in this case to prove that Nelson (the plaintiff) is a liar, and I would testify under oath that I do not believe him under oath."

I wish to ask is it really true that a judge hearing a case has a legal right to set aside a verdict of a jury upon evidence not before the court? If so, why introduce testimony or have any trial. It appears to me the pamphlets containing the defamatory matter complained of by Nelson is the best evidence as to the truthfulness of the complaint and oath of Nelson. Nelson's testimony stood unimpeached before the court, it appears, and whether Nelson excels as a liar is not a question to be passed upon by the court. If Nelson is as great a liar as the court believes he is, it seems it would be quite easy to prove that fact in a legal, proper, and dignified way. Otherwise all of us when in court are at the mercy, caprice, or whim of the trial judge. If, in such case, one is not pretty or parts his whiskers to the northwest instead of south by east, or the judge keeps an eye out for the next election, we would have about as much chance of obtaining justice as a snowflake in Hades. Personally, I incline to the conclusion that each one of the litigants are all and even worse than the charges made by the other make him appear. Both of them evidently are religious fanatics, and as such are dangerous—liable at any moment to murder any one "for the glory of God." They belong to that element known as "world savers," bound to save the world whether it wants to be saved or not. Any one who objects to being saved they immediately send to perdition cross lots.

However, that is not the question before the court. Did the pamphlets characterizing Nelson as "an old ram," "a blatherskite," and "a monumental liar" defame him? Even if true, did Voliva violate the law in publishing that fact? According to the precedents of our courts, he undoubtedly did, and was liable to suffer the penalty prescribed for such offenses.

COL. CHARLES W. MOSHER.

THE TWELVE HOUR DAY.

South Chicago, Ill., Nov. 4.—Reading your editorial in Wednesday's paper on "Gary's Golden Rule," in answer to George K. Leet's rather fulsome letter in support of Mr. Gary in the "Voice of the People," would like to have you and Mr. Gary (if possible) look at the twelve hour day more from the humane angle and not so much whether the men work every minute of the twelve hours. Twelve hours we know means fourteen hours, taking into consideration getting to and from work and the men working under these conditions leave home when their children are in bed and return again to find them in bed once more. Is this Mr. Gary's idea of humanity or a necessity in order to make a living wage? Mr. Gary's 14 per cent men on twelve hour figures indicates he still has from 40,000 to 50,000 men doing this; and bear in mind, if coal and cars were available, there would be far more than 14 per cent of the men put on twelve hours.

The steel industry, once the best paid concern in the country, is now the worst. It is gradually but surely coming to a point where only the foreigner will work in it, and when Mr. Gary accomplishes this result he will find there will be one strike after another.

G. R. W.

THE TWELVE HOUR DAY.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—I have no desire to express an opinion of my own on the subject of abolishing the twelve hour day, but in view of the fact that you have devoted considerable space to the subject I feel warranted in urging that you or your representative read pages 7 and 8 of the monthly bulletin of the National City bank of New York on economical conditions, etc. This bulletin, I think, although I am not sure, is compiled by George E. Roberts, formerly of Chicago, whose intention I am sure is always to present facts exactly as they are.

I think it must be admitted that one of the most serious phases of our present situation is the grossly inequitable relation between the farmer on the one hand and the factory, railroad, and mine worker, etc., on the other. Desirable as it is that hours of labor be reduced, it must be admitted that a reduction in the hours of labor of one big class while hours remain unchanged in another big class will not tend to correct the bad relation now existing.

FOR RACIAL EQUALITY.

Chicago, Nov. 4. You seem to be greatly interested in the race problem, here of late, if you hypocrites had as much race pride as you pretend, why did you draft Negroes in the late war to kill Germans who are white, further more why do you advocate the marines to stay in Haiti where they are not wanted. The late war showed how much race pride they whites have.

I'm well aware of the fact that you're not going to publish this, but you'll have the consulation of knowing that all Negroes are not near as big a fools as The Tribune takes them to be, as this place where I stay has the honor of never never allowing THE TRIBUNE to cross its threshold. In regard to the mixing of races which you like to yell about I believe in intermarriage, amalgamation and social equality according to staition in life.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

FLYNN OF VIRGINIA.

By Bret Harte.

Didn't know Flynn—
Flynn of Virginia—
    Long as he's been 'yar?
    Look'ee here, stranger,
Whar hev you been?

Here in this tunnel
He was my pardner,
That same Tom Flynn—
    Working together,
    In wind and weather,
Day out and in.

Didn't know Flynn!
    Well, that is queer.
Why, it's a sin
To think of Tom Flynn—
    Tom, with his cheer;
    Tom, without fear—
Stranger, look 'yar!

Thar in the drift,
    Back to the wall,
He held the timbers
    Ready to fall;

Then in the darkness
    I heard him call:
"Run for your life, Jake!
Run for your wife's sake!
Don't wait for me."
And that was all
    Heard in the din,
    Heard of Tom Flynn—
Flynn of Virginia.

That lets me out
    Here in the damp—
Out of the sun—
    That 'ar derned lamp
Makes my eyes run.
Well, there—I'm done.

But, sir, when you'll Hear the next fool
Asking of Flynn—
Flynn of Virginia—
    Just you chip in,
    Say you knew Flynn;
Say that you've been 'yar.

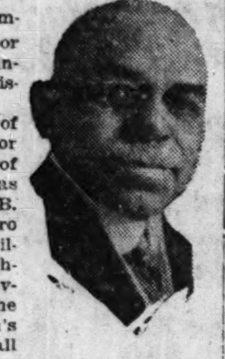
GOV. SMALL PICKS NEGRO FOR STATE INDUSTRIAL JOB

J. B. French, City Hall Ally, Gets $5,000 Place.

Gov. Len Small yesterday announced his long delayed appointment of a representative of the employers of labor on the Illinois industrial commission.

The rôle of spokesman for the captains of industry was given to John B. French, a Negro known in the Wilson avenue neighborhood for several years as the owner of French's pantry, a small restaurant on Broadway.



JOHN B. FRENCH.
[Daguerre Photo.]

French sold his place of business about three months ago with the announcement that he expected appointment to an important office. Since that time he has spent considerable time in the city hall offices of Edward H. Wright, colored, one of Corporation Counsel Ettelson's assistants. In his new place French will receive a salary of $5,000 a year.

Formerly a Bellboy.

The story of the colored man's rise to a position of power and influence seldom reached by a man of his race in Illinois was one widely discussed along Broadway last night. He was born in Kentucky, but came to Chicago while he was a boy and for several years was a bellboy in the old Grand Pacific hotel.

Later he was employed in the shipping department of a loop store. From that occupation he is said to have gone into the restaurant business. It was here that he received his experience as an employer of labor.

Brothers Thompson Men.

French is said to have a brother, Steward French, who is employed in the city health department, and another brother, who is a policeman. All three have been ardent supporters of Mayor Thompson.

This appointment is accepted by many as the explanation of a quiet trip Gov. Small paid to Chicago early in the week. There was considerable guessing at that time concerning the important business that had called the governor away from the capital.

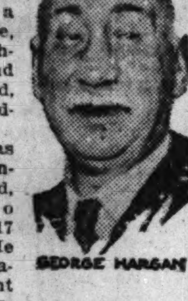
Votes Count, French Says.

French said last night he felt highly honored by the appointment. He was asked if he knew of any special reason for the governor choosing him. He named Percy Coffin and Charles R. Francis as his chief sponsors and continued:

"Well, votes—you understand—votes in this game count. I guess I am somewhat of a producer or I'd never have been made a member of this commission. Then there's that something about all appointees—that is they must be 'somebody' or their appointment would not be probable. You understand, we have grades in our race the same as the whites, good and bad."

GEORGE B. HARGAN, DOUBLE PLATOON FOUNDER, DEAD

George B. Hargan, 67, of 825 North Lawlor avenue, president of the Firemen's Association of Chicago, died at his home yesterday after an illness of about a year. His wife, Anna; his daughter, May G., and his son, David, were at the bedside.



Mr. Hargan was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to America when 17 years old. He joined the Chicago fire department and served continually for thirty-five years. Eleven years ago he was retired while holding the position of engineer.

For seventeen years he had been president of the firemen's association and, according to Harry O'Brien, vice president of the association, he is nationaly known for having instituted the two platoon system in Chicago.

The funeral will be held next Tuesday from the West Chicago Masonic temple, 12 South Oakley boulevard. Interment will be at Oakwood cemetery.

PRODUCE LETTERS FROM FIANCE TO PROVE GIRL SANE

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—To prove that Dorothy Gordon, 21 year old Boston heiress to more than $350,000, imprisoned in an insane asylum at the instigation of her guardian, was and is sane, with all the interests common to girls of her age, love letters written to her by Willard Newell, a civil engineer, whom Miss Gordon's guardian feared she would marry, were spread on the record today.

John L. Gardiner of Baldwin, L. I., has brought action to remove William F. Jardine as the girl's guardian and denies that she at any time was mentally unbalanced. Jardine receives $50 a week for management of Miss Gordon's estate and $5,000 a year for serving as president of the Gordon Supply company. He has admitted that the girl's marriage would have deprived him of his $7,600 income.

The letters from young Newell, while not conveying romantic love, refer anxiously to Miss Gordon's forthcoming twenty-first birthday, which would have brought her into her inheritance.

TIGER OF FRANCE LEAVES TO TAME AMERICAN EAGLE

HAVRE, France, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Georges Clemenceau, France's wartime premier, sailed from here today on the Paris, on his way to the United States to do his utmost to bring complete understanding and sympathy between that country and France.

A woman correspondent asked Clemenceau for an interview on American women, and he replied:

"What? Are American women so different? At my age all women are the same."

TO SPEAK IN AUDITORIUM.

Former Judge Jacob M. Dickinson will preside at the meeting in the Auditorium on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 28, when former Premier Clemenceau of France makes his Chicago address. It will be the occasion of the only public appearance of M. Clemenceau during his stay in Chicago. He will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer.

The Auditorium meeting will be held under the auspices of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. Victor Elting is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Except for the sale of boxes to finance the meeting, admission will be free.

THOS. M. BALL, ROGERS & CO. OFFICIAL, DEAD

Thomas M. Ball, general manager of Rogers & Co., printers, 2001 Calumet avenue, died last night at University hospital. Death was caused by Bright's disease, from which he had suffered for two years.

Mr. Ball was born in Chicago Feb. 11, 1878, and started his long career with Rogers & Co. as an errand boy at the age of 13, rising to one of the most important posts in the concern.

Mr. Ball was a bachelor and is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Davidson and Mrs. H. Adams, and two brothers, Gardner and James Ball.

He owned a home in Glencoe, but spent little time there, preferring to live at the Chicago Athletic club. He also belonged to the Skokie Country club.

Edward J. Poli, Son of Theater Owner, Dies

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11.—Edward J. Poli, son of Sylvester Z. Poli, owner of theaters in many cities, and representative of him in the management of several of them, died today. He was operated on for appendicitis ten days ago.

Funeral of Grant Orr to Be Conducted Today

WHAT'S WRONG HERE? STORK AND CUPID DERELICT

Bundesen Says Women Are Responsible.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Does the modern Chicago home sacrifice one baby to gain two weekly pay envelopes?

Is the fragrance of orange blossoms less pleasing to the girls of 1922 than to their sisters of a decade ago? Or is it impossible for the present day bachelor to learn how to keep step to Mr. Lohengrin's wedding march?

Chicago is asking these questions today after learning from recently compiled health department statistics that there have been 1,066 fewer births this year than last, and that 694 less marriage licenses were issued this year than in 1921.

What Analysts Assert.

Economic conditions, post-war reaction, increased interest in birth control, and the economic independence of women are advanced by analysts of the statistics as reasons for the decrease.

Health Commissioner Bundesen declared yesterday that the report was not unusual, and that the same diminution in numbers of births and of marriages persists all over the United States. "I have similar reports from the majority of other large cities in the country," he said.

Birth control, according to the health commissioner, is not responsible for the decrease in childbirth. "Religion," he said yesterday, "hasn't fallen to such a plane where people in wholesale numbers are declining to have families. There are, as the report states, fewer marriages and the decrease in births is a natural result."

Holds Women to Blame.

Women, according to Dr. Bundesen, are largely responsible for the low curve in marriage records, although he holds economic conditions partially to blame. "Women," he declared, "now do the selecting. A woman is no longer afraid of being an old maid at 23 or 24. She refuses to marry any Tom, Dick, or Harry who comes along. Her ability to earn her own living makes her think twice before getting married."

County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer points out that the decrease from last year's figures is only an apparent decrease from inflated figures and that this year's data really are a return to the normalcy of a few years ago.

Last year's increase in marriage licenses was due, Mr. Sweitzer believes, to the aftermath of soldier romances.

Mortenson Sees Reaction.

Superintendent of Schools Peter Mortenson believes that the lessening in the number of marriages is due to a reaction against the epidemic of hasty marriages culminating during the war.

"In many cases children resulted from these war marriages, and the economic adjustments which came to the family when the husband returned from war has made it a problem to raise these children. Other young people, seeing this, hesitate longer before getting married. Except in the instance of a few impetuous adolescents, men and women are now regarding matrimony with seriousness and hesitancy."

Dr. Rachelle Yarros, prominent woman physician and social worker, declined to interpret the local statistics without a general analysis of the situation. But she feels that economics is a more fundamental factor in the Chicago situation than is any increased interest in birth control.

'JAIL SUNDAY' TO BE OBSERVED BY MANY CHURCHES

"Jail Sunday" will be observed next Sunday in churches of the Chicago Church federation, according to announcement made from the office of the federation yesterday. Ministers of Cook county have been asked in a resolution adopted by the federation to speak of conditions in the jail as shown in the Kirchway "survey," and improvements recommended. A digest of the report has been sent to each pastor. In some cases the subject will be presented by special speakers.

Dr. George W. Kirchwey, who directed the survey, under auspices of the Chicago Community trust, has been asked to come to Chicago for the occasion. He will speak in Hyde Park Baptist church, Sunday morning at 11, and before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall at 8 p. m.

Whitney Swears Evan Fontaine Not Legally Free

Nyack, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Counsel for Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney submitted affidavits to Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins today charging that Evan Fontaine, dancer, who has sued Whitney for $1,000,000 for alleged breach of promise, secured fraudulently in 1921 an annulment of marriage to Sterling Adair.

Justice Tompkins was asked to vacate the annulment, but to give counsel for Miss Fontaine time to file answering affidavits. He adjourned the case for three weeks and will file a decision after the next hearing.

HERE FOR FILM'S PREMIERE

David Griffith, moving picture producer, with almost half a hundred members of his acting company and staff, is in Chicago to aid in the opening of his latest picture, "One Exciting Night," which has its premiere at the Illinois theater tomorrow night.

"I never had money enough," said Mr. Griffith at the Congress, "to produce the picture I really want to. But it is the ambition of my life." He was speaking of the gigantic picture which should strive to make friendly the peoples of the world.

The producer expressed himself forcibly on prohibition, saying: "I believe I produced a picture called 'Intolerance.' That title expresses my idea on prohibition. If it only prohibited—ah—that would be different. You see, it is intolerance, for some folks won't stand what other folks insist is their right. And who shall judge?"

Cafe Thief with Record of Fifty Overcoats Caught

Edward Godfrey, 28 years old, 542 State street, a waiter, was arrested yesterday and last night confessed to having stolen more than fifty overcoats from loop restaurants. Godfrey was sentenced to serve six months in the house of correction for a similar offense last February, and was arrested on information given by Julius Keeler, night manager of a Thompson company restaurant, from which a number of coats have been taken.

I. W. W. Board Girds for Battle in California

Upon rceipt of a report that delegates of the Marine Transport Workers' union were being arrested at San Pedro, Cal., in an effort to halt organization of men employed on the docks, the general executive board of the I. W. W., in session here yesterday, announced it "had ordered all foot loose members" to go at once to that place.

The board said it had received word that members of the transport workers' union had been arrested at San Pedro.

Held as Kidnaper of Girl, 17; Wed Her, He Says

Frank Coster, 20 years old, 2425 West Superior street, was taken into custody yesterday by West North avenue police in connection with the alleged abduction of Margaret Karmuth, 17 years old, 743 North Hoyne avenue.

Mrs. Clara Karmuth, mother of Margaret, charges that Coster, driver of a Diamond taxicab, kidnaped the girl. He told the police that the girl and he were married and that she is at present living with a cousin of his.

WOMAN'S PARTY INDORSES BILL OF EQUAL RIGHTS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—With enthusiasm and unanimity the state and national officers and delegates of the Woman's party today indorsed the "declaration of principles" presented by Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, president, after the form of the declaration of rights presented to the Seneca Falls conference of pioneer suffragists in 1848, and went on record squarely for "equal rights for all and special privileges for none."

This declaration, formulated after a year's study of the laws affecting women in all the states, demands entire equality for women with men before the law, in government, in educational opportunities, in the professions, in the church, in industry, and in the home.

Delegates from four working women's organizations, the printers' union, equal rights organization, Equal Opportunity league, and the B. R. T. branch of the Equal Opportunities league, all of New York, asked to be heard in order to voice their opposition to special welfare legislation for women in industry, and Miss Ada Wolf of the printers' union, in a five minute speech, urged the Woman's party to maintain the stand it had taken for equal opportunities for women, explaining the handicaps placed upon working women in New York and elsewhere by special laws limiting their activities.

The campaign program, also adopted unanimously, provides for national and state work to assure support for all equal rights bills before congress or state legislatures, and the creation of committees locally to work for the nomination of women to elective offices and their appointment equally with men to appointive offices, for complete equality in educational opportunities, the occupations, professions, and government service, "a single moral and ethical code for men and woman," and the protection of the position of married women in the economic world.

Piano Buyers will be greatly interested

THE tremendous demand for this superior instrument is a tribute to its excellence. The foremost authorities in piano design and interior decoration are enthusiastic over its beautiful lines. The pianos express a high degree of artistry. They pronounce a new idea in construction. The tone is delightful—rich, full, and voluminous. It has a satisfying timbre and body.

A surprising fact is that the Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand is so moderate in cost. Prices bring it within the reach of all. It has had so favorable a reception that we are now driven to the limit of production. This enables us to practice economies. The saving is put back into the instrument. This is evidenced by the superior qualities in the piano and by its moderate price.

The Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand is now sold in 512 cities and towns in the United States. The demand for it is universal. We are indeed fortunate to be able to display at the present time a complete array of all models and sizes. Be sure to see them.

Many Exclusive Features But All of Vital Importance and Fundamentally Sound

These small grands are the last word in pianos. They are exclusively styled and fashioned to meet the modern home requirements. This is made clear by such notable improvements as the Candelectra, a dainty pair of lamps ingeniously wired through the piano. Then there is the Silento, a most welcome device for the modern apartment dweller. It permits practice without being overheard by others. The Junior Unfolding Two-Level Pedals, a recent feature, are revolutionary in nature and are endorsed by such famous pianists as Rachmaninoff, Hofmann, and Godowsky. You owe it to yourself to investigate this last improvement.

Now Read These Terms

The attractiveness of the price of the Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand is increased by the ease with which you may pay it. Come in and make your choice. Pay no money down on it. The instrument will be delivered at once to your home. We only require, as evidence of good faith, a small fee for cartage charges. This offer is unequalled. It permits you to own and enjoy a beautiful instrument without burdening yourself. Convenient monthly payments take care of the balance. You have 30 months in which to pay.

Come Tomorrow and Look Around

You will be delighted by the display. Here you may see side by side for direct comparison the various models. The tone and design of one piano may be checked against another until you are sure you have just the piano you want. There is no uncertainty here, for we have probably the most extensive grouping of pianos that has ever been assembled under one roof.

FRANCE'S JOHN D. WANTS U. S. DEBT PAID IN PRODUCE

Would Cancel Loans with Same Medium Received.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Nov. 11.—"The Democrats' successes in the United States elections seems to indicate that Americans realize the difficulties arising from not coöperating with other nations," said Louis Loucheur to THE TRIBUNE today.

The former minister of the liberated regions and France's wealthiest citizen wishes to prevent a misunderstanding between France and the United States. He emphasizes the fact that France does not contest the principles of its debts, asserting that the tax payers would be willing to discharge them through increased taxation if that was practical.

"Further taxation would be fruitless because discharging foreign debts can only be affected through the delivery of gold and materials," he said. "Although the United States possesses the bulk of the world's gold it is not anxious to receive foreign goods."

France Willing to Pay.

M. Loucheur insists that France is willing to pay but demands the same conditions as those under which the loans were made—by exporting material.

"America loaned $3,600,000,000 to France, but certainly not in the form of gold bullion—she sent us steel, ammunition and wheat," he continued. "We could now similarly send our goods across the Atlantic, but the new tariff bill raises a barrier against French imports.

"It is frequently assumed that France could easily discharge her American debt if her military expenses were diminished. It is a gross error to regard internal and external payments equally. We pay the army with paper francs and we can pay America only on a basis of gold dollars.

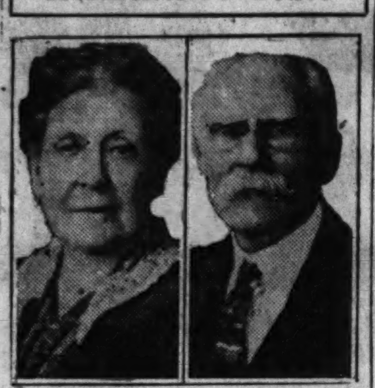
"France is doing her best to reduce expenses. Parliament has decided not to vote on the budget until the deficit is filled. Various measures are necessary to avoid a budget deficit. For instance, frauds on income tax and on the payment of duties must be prevented.

"Must Help Europe."

"A reduction in the rate of interest, which is 5 per cent in France, compared with 3 per cent charged by the Bank of England, and a reduction in the interest rate on national bonds also are necessary—the next loan should not bear 6½ per cent.

"I hear people say, 'Let us rebuild France before rebuilding Europe.' This is a serious error, and we certainly will fail to solve the problems facing us if we continue to hold such an opinion. On the contrary, we must have a general plan for the reconstruction of Europe, with coöperation from all nations. An agreement between all the great powers is indispensable to the issuing of large international loans, which are necessary to transfer from Germany to its creditors huge sums, exceeding the total gold reserve of the world."

Residents 50 Years



MR. AND MRS. S. M. RECKARD.

[Duderstadt Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester M. Reckard, 4036 North Paulina street, tomorrow will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary and half century as residents of Chicago. They have lived at their present address thirty-five years. Mr. and Mrs. Reckard were married in Sugar Grove, Ill., and came to Chicago on their honeymoon. He is 71 years old and his wife 68. The anniversary reception will be a family affair.

LEAPS OR FALLS TO DEATH FROM "L" AT CURVE

While a Wilson avenue express train was rounding the curve at Wabash avenue and Van Buren street, an unidentified man either fell or leaped off onto the elevated structure, meeting with instant death. The victim, according to the police, was about 55 years old, wore a black overcoat, dark brown mixed suit and a brown fedora hat. There were no marks of identification on his person.

Thomas Fitzgerald, 2803 Fulton street, who was standing near the man, saw the body shoot downward and notified the conductor, who at once stopped the train.

The man had struck a rail with his head, fracturing his skull and dying instantly.

Carrasco, Last Mexican Rebel, Slain in Battle

Mexico City, Nov 11.—Gen. Juan Carrasco, the rebel leader in the state of Sinaloa, was killed in a battle with federal troops near Acaponeta, state of Nayarit, to which the general had retreated. The Carrasco band was practically wiped out, and the leader's corpse was ordered sent to Mazatlan for exhibition as proof of his death. Gen. Carrasco was the last notable rebel leader in Mexico.

WILSON ASSAILS "PUNY FOES" OF JUSTICE, LEAGUE

Comments on Election for Throng of Admirers.

putting on his hat I will promise not to talk through it.

"I think then we may renew today our faith in the future though we are celebrating the past. The future is in our hands and if we are not equal to it, the shame will be ours and none other's.

"I thank you from a very full heart, my friends, for this demonstration of kindness by you and bid you and the nation Godspeed."

The singing of southern melodies by a chorus opened the program and Mr. Wilson then appeared. He was presented with baskets of flowers from Virginia, his native state: New Jersey, his home state, and the District of Columbia. The former president shook hands with each of the little flower girls and thanked them.

Before the visitors dispersed, Mr. Wilson departed for his accustomed afternoon automobile ride and for several blocks his car was able to pass at only a very slow pace through the crowds pressing on each side of the street.

Letter to Arkansas Senator.

Earlier today Senator Caraway [Ark.] made public a letter he had received from Mr. Wilson. The letter follows:

"My Dear Senator: It makes me very proud that you and other generous friends should attribute the result of Tuesday in some measure to the people's thought of me, and I am truly grateful to you for your generous expressions of confidence and approval.

"We must now clear our minds and purify our hearts to offer to the country in 1924 exactly the service it most needs and the candidates who can best render that service.

"With warm appreciation and regards,

"Faithfully yours,
"WOODROW WILSON."

See "Comeback" Effort.

Mr. Wilson, as official Washington interprets his speech, has embarked on his long expected "comeback" voyage.

Elated by the results of Tuesday's election and improved in health, the ex-President, by the foregoing address and letter, made it plain that he is ready again to present a bid for leadership of the Democratic party and dictation of its policies in the 1924 campaign.

That he is seeking to revive the league of nations as an issuse in the United States and to name a candidate who can win on a league platform was believed to be clearly indicated.

Some Democrats Unhappy.

Whether Mr. Wilson will be successful in his apparent effort to resume control of the Democratic party remains to be seen. In many quarters his move was received with joy, but many conservative Democrats looked with misgiving upon the prospective revival of the league of nations issue.

When the league is mentioned warring Republican factions are always ready to bury the hatchet and many Democratic leaders, outside of the Wilson school, realize that nothing would so quickly reunite the discordant elements in the Republican party as a resurrection of the league issue.

FRANCE TO TRY OUT PROPELLER DRIVEN MONORAIL TRAMCAR

(Copyright: 1922: By the New York Times.)

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The French government has subsidized the construction of an experimental aerial car line in north France, and, if the experiment is successful, Paris is to be given a system of air travel for its suburbs.

According to the inventor's plans a car would run suspended on a monorail. Motive power would be by propellers, similar to those on airplanes, driven by motors drawing current from the rail. He points out that air propellers can now pull a twenty ton dirigible and says that cars can be built in any convenient size. He predicts a speed of one hundred miles an hour.

L'Echo de Paris, in announcing the undertaking, says:

"The new auto bus aerial tramway will permit a high speed. The system is a combination of well known principles, many of which have been practically applied to transport.

"First—the vehicle hangs from a suspended monorail. For arrival, for passage, to avoid obstacles on roads and to cross rivers and hills it is easy to see the advantages of such a system.

"Second—traction is obtained by aerial propellers whose efficacy is now proven.

"Third—the form of carriages is based upon the latest dvelopments in aerodynamics, so that loss of power by resistance is reduced to a minimum, permitting great horizontal speed.

"Fourth—the motive force is supplied by an electric engine drawing current from the cable.

"Fifth—security is given by an automatic block system."

NEW HOME OF LEGION HERE TO PROFIT BY BONUS

Thirty million dollars is the approximate amount of the soldiers' bonus distribution in Cook county, according to figures arrived at after an analysis of the records showing the number of Cook county men who were in the service and the length of time that they served.

Out of that amount the Memorial Home and Relief Fund campaign now being conducted by the Cook County association of the American Legion has found, upon a poll of thirty Legion posts, that 5 per cent of the total amount that will be distributed in Cook county eventually will find its way to the fund for this service home.

Pledges are already on record that 10 per cent of the bonus received by the Cook county Legionnaires will be donated to build this home, while the more affluent members have agreed to give 25 to 100 per cent.

The bugle call that was sounded from each street intersection yesterday at 11 o'clock signaled the official opening of the drive.

Tax Business for Bonus to Soldiers, Is McAdoo's Plan

Fullerton, Cal., Nov. 11.—[United Press.]—William G. McAdoo, in an Armistice day address here today, urged raising of funds to pay the soldiers' bonus by taxing the benefits of private interests from the new tariff bill. The former secretary of the treasury declared that the plan would provide sufficient funds without straining resources of the treasury through issuance of long term bonds.

5,000 TEACHERS VOTE TO OPPOSE NEW BASIC LAW

Pension, Bible in School Provisions Targets.

The Chicago Teachers' federation, in a massmeeting yesterday morning, put 5,000 members on record as opposing the proposed new constitution, on the ground, particularly, that if ratified there would be few or no pensions for retired teachers of Chicago after June, 1924.

Miss Margaret Haley, business agent, cited the provision in the new document which covers the subject and called upon all the members to bring every influence to defeat the measure when it comes to popular vote on Dec. 12. It is one of the most serious menaces now facing the teaching body, she declared.

Speakers Who Oppose It.

Speakers who concurred with Miss Haley were Robert C. Moore, secretary of the Illinois State Teachers' federation, and Carl D. Thompson, secretary of the People's Ownership league. It is understood that an objection entertained by the teachers as second in importance to their pension clause is the provision in the new basic law which would require Bible instruction in the public schools. Religious differences among the teachers would make impossible an agreement upon interpretation, it is said.

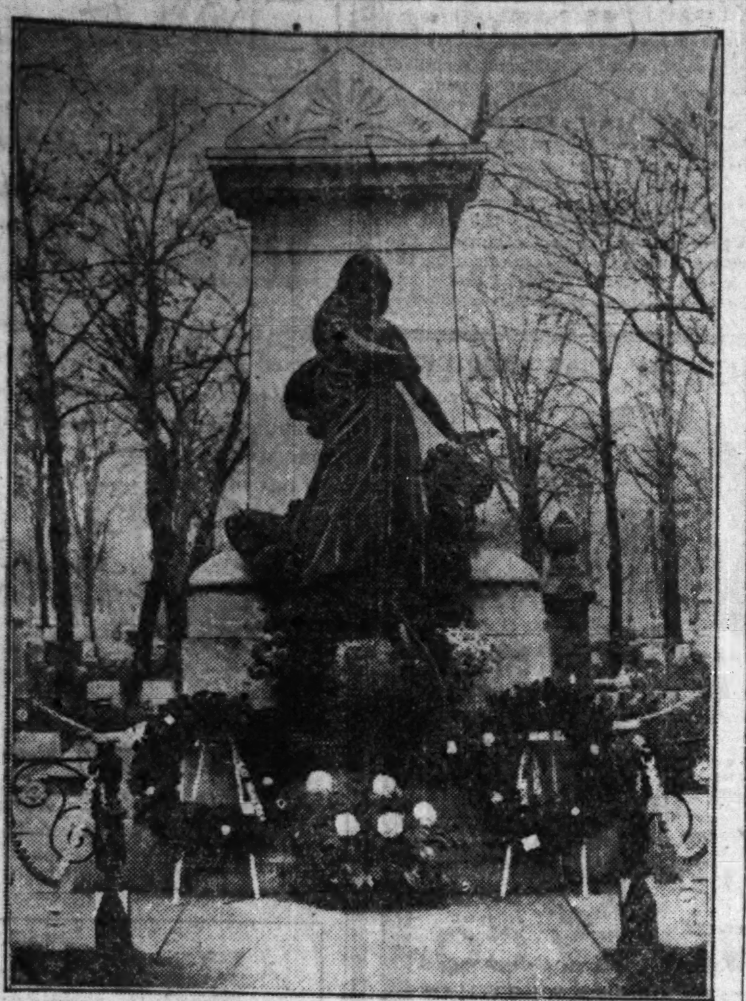
Take Issue with Teachers.

A statement from the Cook county new constitution committee, made public after the teachers' meeting, declares that "charges that the adoption of the new state constitution will in any way adversely affect teachers' pensions are absolutely without foundation in fact.

"Teachers, like every other public employé, will be better off so far as pension rights and claims are concerned under the new constitution than they are under the 1870 document.

"The chairman of the citizens' state committee for ratification of the new constitution, Justice Orrin N. Carter of the Illinois Supreme court, concurs in this view."

REMEMBER HANGED RIOTERS



Wreaths placed upon tomb erected in memory of executed Haymarket rioters by members of "Pioneer Support association," formed at the time of the executions.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

WREATH PLACED ON HAYMARKET RIOTERS' TOMB

A handful of men and women gathered in Waldheim cemetery yesterday and placed wreaths at the foot of a monument marking the burial spot of the five radicals executed following the famous Haymarket riots in 1886. It was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the executions.

Those in the group about the monument proclaimed themselves members of the "Pioneer Support association," but showed reluctance to talk.

Those buried there were August Spies, Adolph Fisher, Albert R. Parsons, Louis Lingg, and George Engel. Lingg blew off his head with a dynamite cap when awaiting execution.

The group was led by a gray haired woman who said she is a daughter of Oscar Neebe, whose name is engraved upon the tomb beneath those of the five who were executed.

A memorial service was held in the evening in a hall in West Oak street

REDS TO MIX IN ALL STRIKES AND LABOR DISPUTES

Ask United Front to Bring Dictatorship.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 10.—[Delayed.]—The congress of the world's communist leaders today discussed tactics for bringing about a world revolution to establish proletariat dictatorship everywhere. It was decided that a "united front" policy must prevail. A united front is explained as mixing into every labor dispute, participating in every strike, and working with labor parties and unions, even with the hated socialists, in order to win the workers to the red cause. United front tactics is a reversal from the former "divide and conquer" policy.

The most bitter attacks were launched today, not against the bourgeoisie, whom the communists want to conquer, but against the labor and socialist parties, as they are known in England, America, and elsewhere. These were called followers of the second internationale.

Call Socialists Traitors.

It was declared that "the world is ready for communism, but the second internationale stands in the way. The third internationale must strive to win the majority of workers. It may take years—it may not happen before our next session."

The socialist parties as they exist in America, Germany and England were called traitors and the tools of the bourgeoisie. The Italian socialists were assailed for coöperating with the Fascisti. It was predicted that a "series of illegal attacks are coming against the working class this year, of which the Fascisti victory in Italy is only the first. The reaction is growing in Europe."

The question arose whether the communists should advocate a workingmen's republic as opposed to a workingmen's dictatorship. Workers' republic propaganda was advocated because "a workers' republic may intensify the civil war which would develop out of a struggle to establish a workers' dictatorship."

Others Wait on Russia.

It was noted that communists outside of Russia had shown their tiredness. Foreign communist parties wanted to wait until Russia was better off so they could demonstrate that Russian workers were better clad, better paid, and had better standards of living than workers of other nations.

"This is erroneous," was the decision of M. Zinovieff, president of the congress, "because the workers must make their own revolutions and account for their own circumstances without looking toward Russia. Nevertheless, the Russian standard of living is becoming better, while that of the rest of Europe is growing worse."

WALTON TO TAKE OATH WITH ONLY PEEPUL PRESENT

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 11.—[United Press.]—Hobnail shoes, blue-jeans, mother hubbards, and calico aprons will be the "formal" dress at the inaugural of Governor-elect Jack Walton in the capitol here, he announced today.

"Soup and fish suits and plug hats don't get in on this celebration, and I don't encourage backless and sleeveless dress for the women folks," Walton said in declaring the inaugural ball would be a "people's party."

Col. R. A. Sneed, 77, will call the Virginia reel at the ball, and Abraham Lincoln Bowline, champion fiddler of Payne county, will attend the party, "fiddle and all." An Indian war dance will be another feature of the people's party.

Japs Spend $240,500,000 on Army, Navy Next Year

TOKIO, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—The cabinet has approved a total expenditure of yen 1,350,000,000 (roughly $675,000,000) for next year. The army will receive yen 205,000,000 ($102,500,000), the navy yen 276,000,000 ($138,000,000).

PIGGLY WIGGLY

Piggly Wiggly Saves Housekeepers Many Dollars

GROCERY BUSINESS REVOLUTIONIZED

Extract From The Daily Jewish Courier

The advent of the Piggly Wiggly stores in Chicago some six years ago was the beginning of a new era in grocery merchandising. The public immediately saw the advantages of self service both as to patience and monetary savings. From one store in 1916 they now have eighty-one in Chicago and over one thousand in the United States. The sales of the Chicago unit the past month were nearly $600,000.

The Piggly Wiggly is still an infant. Its future is stupendous. The Chicago executives of this organization are making every effort to give the public a maximum of service and minimum prices. The idea of price competition has been practically eliminated. Their immense buying power combined with their method of selling gives them the opportunity to sell groceries at the lowest prices in Chicago.

CONGRESS URGED TO PASS SUBSIDY AT NEXT SESSION

Defeat Seen if Bill Goes Over to Next Body.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Failure to enact ship subsidy legislation before the present congress cames to an end on March 4 "can only spell disaster for the American merchant marine," according to a statement issued today by the National Merchant Marine association.

This association, of which Senator Ransdell [La.] is president, frankly concedes that as a result of last Tuesday's election there would seem to be no prospects whatever of favorable action on the subsidy bill if left to the next congress.

Cites Election Results.

"The importance of the extra session of congress is emphasized by election results, with the whittling down to a narrow margin of the administration's majority in congress," the statement says. "The new congress will not come into being until March 4, but it must be reckoned with. Failure to pass shipping legislation before the end of the present congress can only spell disaster for the American merchant marine. The continued transfer of ships from the American flag to foreign registry is an indication on a small scale of what can be expected on a large scale if means are not provided to make it possible for American ships to compete with the vessels of other nations.

"With a Republican majority of more than 150 in the house and of nearly twenty-five in the senate in this congress, there is an ample margin available for the passage of the shipping bill.

House Passage Certain.

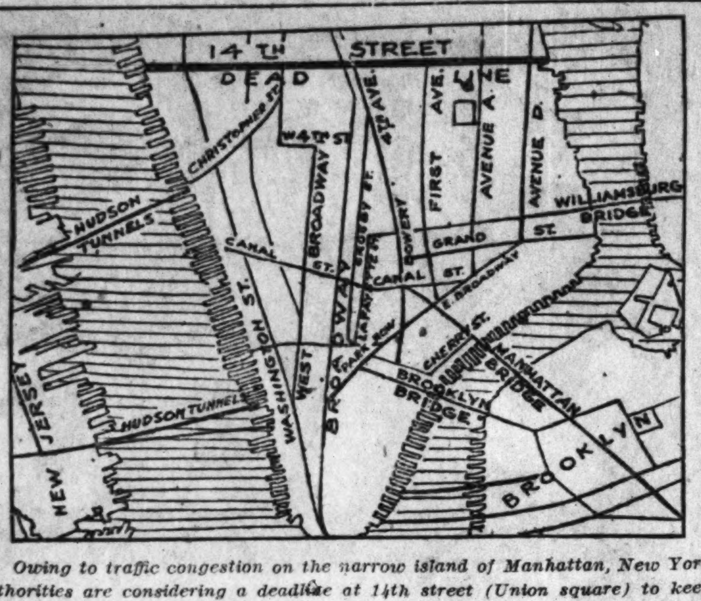
"The house can readily pass the measure in the two weeks of the extra session, before the regular short session beginning on Dec. 4, after which date the senate could take up the bill and pass it. Republican leaders in congress have assured the President that this will be done despite the filibuster expected in the senate.

The assertion of Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic national committee, that the election results is evidence that the voters of the country are against ship subsidy legislation is questioned by the association.

GAS EXPLOSION KILLS WOMAN.

Burns suffered when a gasoline stove exploded proved fatal to Mrs. Minnie Zaccarino of Morris, Ill., yesterday at the Robert Burns hospital.

DEADLINE ON PLEASURE CARS



Owing to traffic congestion on the narrow island of Manhattan, New York authorities are considering a deadline at 14th street (Union square) to keep needless vehicles out of that district. "We have 12,000 taxicabs," the chief city magistrate says, "and there is only room for 6,000. There are 2,000 unprotected street crossings where police are needed." Map shows area which may be kept clear of pleasure cars and made into one-way streets for other traffic.

Bundesen Makes All His Aids "Anti-Noise Cops"

By executive order Health Commissioner Bundesen made all health department employés special policemen yesterday for the purpose of hailing into court motorists whose ear splitting sirens constitute nuisances under the health ordinances. Every employé is directed to be on the lookout for such violations and to report them to the commissioner. In cases where the evidence is deemed sufficient, summonses will be issued and the health department employé used as a witness.

Dr. Bundesen announced that he will ask that $1,965,000 be appropriated for the health department in 1923. The figure is an increase of $405,000 over this year's appropriation. A large fraction of the increase is asked for infant welfare work.

WAR ON SEAWAY DEFEATED G. O. P., VIEW OF PREUS

Governor Says West Resented East's Opposition

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The political upheaval in the west in Tuesday's elections was due in large part to the dissatisfaction of the voters over control of congress by the east and in the interest of the east, according to Gov. Preus of Minnesota, who arrived in Washington today.

He declared that a striking example of this control was furnished by the opposition of New York and New England to the St. Lawrence waterway project, which the west is backing enthusiastically.

West Wants Waterway.

"The opposition of many in New England, but especially New York, to the St. Lawrence waterway project," Gov. Preuss said, "is thoroughly resented at a time such as this, when thousands of bushels of potatoes are rotting on the farms because they cannot get cars to ship them in; at a time such as this, when, as for instance one day last week, 1,233 cars full of wheat were standing on the tracks at Duluth and could not be unloaded because the warehouses were full, and these warehouses were full at Duluth because the boats would not take the grain and transport it to Buffalo because the elevators and warehouses there were full, and these were full because there were not cars available to carry the grain to New York.

Lays Blame on New York.

"In the face of such conditions, New York, its chamber of commerce, its splendid but misguided governor are opposing the St. Lawrence waterway so that they may continue to take toll on the farmers' labor. If Governor Elect Smith of New York takes the same attitude as his predecessor he will not receive enough votes in the eighteen western states interested in the great lakes project for transportation purposes to muster a corporal's guard. President Harding, who favors the treaty, is popular, but not congress, which our people feel is organized without due recognition to the west."

3 INDICTMENTS AGAINST BERGER ARE DISMISSED

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11.—Three indictments charging Victor L. Berger and four other prominent Socialists with obstructing the government in the prosecution of the war were dismissed by Federal Judge F. A. Geiger May 8 of this year, it became known today.

The other defendants were Oscar Ameringer, formerly county organizer of the Socialist party; Edmund T. Melms, present county organizer; Leo Krzyoki, now general organizer for the National Clothing Workers' union, and Louis A. Arnold, Socialist tax commissioner.

ARTHUR AVENUE ADDITION
— TO — ROGERS PARK

Located in the most active real estate district in Chicago—a district where you may "invest safely" with the possibility of great "speculative profit."

Witness the Following Instances:

1. "A" purchased a lot from me last spring on a time payment basis and has paid in to date—about $700. He sold his contract recently for $1,400—that's 100% profit.
2. "B" purchased a lot from me last spring and sold it in a few weeks at 25% profit; the present owner has received an offer that equals 100% profit on my original price.
3. "C" purchased a Western Avenue corner from me, and after paying in less than $2,500, sold his contract for $5,000—100% profit.

These examples indicate the remarkable activity in this property—and the same opportunity exists for present purchasers, as the remaining lots are still selling at the original prices.

PROPERTY is bounded by Western Avenue on the west, Devon Avenue on the South, Robey Street on the east—and the Edgewater Golf Club on the north.

ELECTRIC or steam transportation is available to the loop—and all parts of the city.

THE proposed 108-foot boulevard to the Desplaines River will run right past this property.

THERE is a fine marketing and shopping district within walking distance.

GRADE schools and a high school offer handy educational facilities for children.

THE property is selling subject to improvements—most of them in and paid for.

RIGID building restrictions insure the maintenance of a distinctly high class community.

LOTS are available on very generous terms to responsible parties only.

'CALL OF VOX POP' TO MAYOR'S SEAT HITS MANY AN EAR

Trusty Old Pledge Card System Trotted Out.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Pledge card campaigns for the mayoralty apparently will be extremely popular this year.

Two announced candidates already in the race are to use that method of getting support. Mayor Thompson has said that he will use this scheme, but several weeks ahead of him Arthur Millard, an independent candidate, began operations, and his supporters say they already have 90,000 cards signed up.

Other candidacies are ripening, and it is expected that several more aspirants will be having their printers turning out neat looking cards within the next few weeks. Some Democratic hopefuls plan to do so if they come out in the open. And those who proclaim the job of congressman isn't big enough for Andy Gump say they will make their candidate hear the call of the people summoning him to the mayoralty race by means of pledge cards.

Democratic Chiefs Mum.

The feelers sent out on behalf of Democratic aspirants since Tuesday's election had no visible effect on county leaders of the party. They kept their counsel, and there was not the slightest hint that even any of the minor leaders would leap into any one's band wagon until headquarters has made up its mind about the multiplicity of candidates.

On the Republican side the same sort of noncommittal discussion of possible opponents against Thompson in the primary was continued. Although he is playing golf at Catalina island, it was reported with every appearance of authority that William Wrigley Jr. will not permit his name to be used in the race. Possibly the names most frequently heard are those of Attorney General Brundage and Col. A. A. Sprague.

In some quarters other names mentioned as those of Republican possibilities were those of State's Attorney Crowe and Charles V. Barrett.

County Board Situation.

The situation on the county board, pending results of the official canvass, was said to have been clarified materially by a conference among the eight Republicans shown elected on the face of the police returns. It is understood that they have decided to act as a unit on partisan matters coming before the board.

This probably will have a determining effect upon the selection of a successor to Peter M. Hoffman as coroner. It is reported that the eight might agree upon James H. Lawley, although a number of Lawley's supporters still contend that the official count will show him reëlected to the drainage board.

The same partisan understanding is said to exist among five Rpublican holdover members of the sanitary board—that is, that they will form a combination that should be able to control the situation in the same way that the King-Eller-Lawley-Mueller-Todd majority controlled the field for the last two years.

Todd Reported Left Out.

The new lineup is said to consist of Trustees Healy, Littler, Nance, Eller, and King, with Todd left out in the cold. This situation, if it develops with certainty, is expected to bring a strong protest from the three Democrats shown elected by the unofficial returns—Crowe, Whalen, and Rosenberg.

The official canvass of the vote in the country towns advanced rapidly in County Clerk Sweitzer's office, in spite of the holiday, but John Hayes, chief clerk of the election department, said no announcements of the results indicated by the progress of the count will be made.

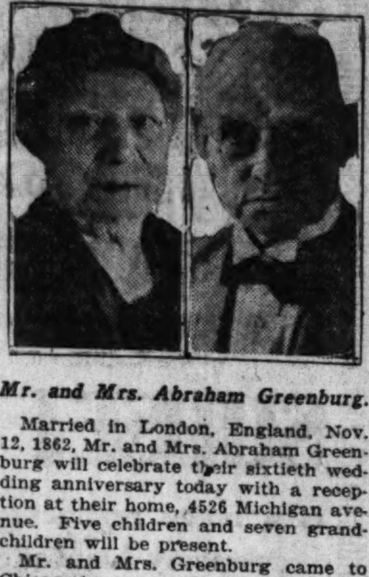
60 YEARS WED



Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Greenburg.

Married in London, England, Nov. 12, 1862, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Greenburg will celebrate their sixtieth wedding anniversary today with a reception at their home, 4526 Michigan avenue. Five children and seven grandchildren will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenburg came to Chicago two years after their marriage and have lived here ever since.

86,000 SAILORS FOR U. S. NAVY IN 1923 BUDGET

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—A prediction that the 1923 navy budget will provide for an enlisted personnel of 86,000, the total fixed by the present law, was made today by Chairman Kelley of the house subcommittee which has the appropriation under consideration. Navy department officials are understood to have favored a larger figure.

"We made a thorough examination a year ago as to the number of men who we believe necessary to operate the navy up to the arms conference ratio and went into it thoroughly," said Mr. Kelley. "But the house took a different view and put through an enlisted strength of 86,000, as suggested by President Harding.

"Without speaking for the committee, I believe that since the question was settled so recently and after such thorough consideration by the house that the judgment of the house ought to be accepted as final."

Chokes Wife; Daughter Calls Cops; Chokes Child

Marie Hayden, 13 years old, yesterday afternoon called the East Chicago avenue police when she saw her father, Peter Hayden, 45 years old, 625 Elm street, choking her mother. When Sgts. Blaul, Boss and Klatzco got there they found Hayden choking the girl, they say.

SMALL, CITY HALL AND DRY ALLIANCE GETS TWO JOLTS

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 11.—One of the proposed Small-Thompson anti-saloon league's candidates for the speakership of the Illinois house of representatives fell by the wayside today when complete returns from the Forty-eighth district showed the defeat of Representative James A. Watson of Elizabethtown. He was chairman of the judiciary committee of the last house under the original Small-McBride deal. He was considered a sure winner and his name appeared as a speakership possibility immediately after election.

Another unexpected loss to the same combination of forces was Representative Harry Wilson of Pinckneyville, who held the chairmanship of the important house committee on education in the last session. Despite protestations by his friends that he would not be found again in the state administration lineup, he was defeated by S. R. Haines, a wet Democrat. Representative W. B. Phillips wins in the Mount Vernon district against Gov. Small's entry, D. C. Jordan.

Another Blow from Egypt.

From Egypt come also complete figures showing the defeat for the state senate of Senator W. A. Spence, one of the most active of the administration lieutenants in the last senate and recommended highly by the Anti-Saloon league. He loses to John W. Shaw, Democrat, who was not a candidate in the primaries and was nominated by committee to fill in the blank on the ticket. Senator J. G. Bardill in the Alton district loses to Herbert Giberson, a wet Democrat, and Senator R. E. Duvall in the East St. Louis district is reëlected.

The present state of the returns on the legislature show that the drys have lost control of the house on the straight wet and dry issue, a control that has been exercised by the dry management for the last five legislative sessions. On the face of the available returns the house will stand: Wets, 79; drys, 74, with 77 votes necessary for a constitutional majority.

Republicans Lose Seven.

The same returns show that the Republicans stand a loss of seven votes, as compared with their party strength in the last session, and the Democrats make a corresponding gain. The partisan lineup of the house at this stage of the count shows: Republicans, 88, as against 95 in the Fifty-second general assembly; Democrats, 65, as against 58.

The senate is heavily Republican and safely dry. The Democrats make a net gain of two senatorial seats, bringing their total to ten votes instead of eight. The Republicans will hold forty-one senators instead of forty-three. The wet strength in the new senate is estimated as twenty, against thirty-one dry, twenty-six being necessary to constitute an enacting majority. This is a wet gain of seven votes over the last session.

Admit End of Small Control.

Politicians at the capital coming from all sections of the state are substantially agreed that the state administration cannot now expect to dominate the Republican house caucus, and that it certainly has lost control of a Republican senate caucus.

Official returns from Cook county will be required to determine results in the districts now represented by Senators Marks and Herlihy. Whether the Small-Thompson combination holds eighteen senators, or the required one-third necessary to block impeachment or investigation proceedings, depends largely on the final figures from these two districts and also from the twenty-ninth, where a contest by Senator P. J. Sullivan is expected.

DEDICATE TAFT WORK AT MIDWAY ON WEDNESDAY

Dedication of the Fountain of Time, Lorado Taft's massive allegorical representation on the midway at Cottage Grove avenue, will take place at 2:30 next Wednesday afternoon.

An address by Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, and a short talk by Mr. Taft will be the features of the services. The monument will be officially presented to the south park commission by Charles L. Hutchinson, president of the B F. Ferguson monument fund, that had charge of the construction.

John Barton Payne, president of the south park commissioners, will receive the monument for the commission. In case of inclement weather the exercises will be held in Mandel hall at the university. Mr. Payne will be chairman of the day.

Brokerage and transportation problems were discussed by members of the Western Canners' association at the third day of their semi-annual convention being held in the Hotel Sherman.

With Election Past Planning Begins

Raymond-Whitcomb Report Increased Interest in Winter Recreation. Men and Women who need Rest turn to America's Leading Travel Concern

The Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco and other offices of Raymond-Whitcomb report that immediately following Election Day there has been a sudden awakening of interest in winter recreation.

Men and women who have been undecided, possibly without any real reason, but because of the biennial upset characteristic of American life, are now making their plans to go on some of the great, unrivaled cruises and unsurpassed land tours of America's oldest travel concern.

Today the wise man and wise woman realizes that there is an investment to be made in recreation which does not involve relaxation, lassitude and boredom. None of these menaces to will and health could possibly find room on board a Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise steamer or on one of their tours.

The expense is undoubtedly less than equivalent comforts and facilities at the great winter resorts or even the Riviera for an equal time. Furthermore a Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise gives the needed break from daily business and social cares. There are new surroundings, new scenes and a constantly changing atmosphere—both literal and figurative. Besides, there is the beneficial effect of avoiding monotony. There is a constantly changing panorama—new lands, new views, novel scenery, strange and interesting peoples and all the kaleidoscopic enjoyment that the Cruise affords, with comforts as great as a great hotel and all for a reasonable charge.

Bookings for the Resolute, the famous, luxurious ship going round the world, sailing from New York Jan. 9; the Volendam, offering the most reasonable rates for a cruise round the world, sailing from New York Jan. 16; the Reliance sailing from New York Feb. 3, for South America and the West Indies; the Rotterdam for a cruise to the Mediterranean sailing from New York Feb. 10, are all showing a notable increase. Inquiries for land tours to Mexico, once more reopened to the American public to whom Raymond-Whitcomb originally introduced the land of Aztecs and Conquistadores are rivaling the bookings for California, Florida and Hawaii.

For further particulars regarding these tours and cruises see the Raymond-Whitcomb advertisement on the travel page. Booklets can be obtained by applying in person, by mail, telephone or telegraph to Raymond & Whitcomb Co., 112 South Dearborn street. Telephone State 6396.

Midwest Hits a Fast Business Pace.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Industry's pickup was speedier at the opening of November than at any other time since the 1920 peak period The revival of business is still growing steadily. This is shown in the monthly survey of the employment service of the United States department of labor.

The middle west, it indicates, is hitting up a stronger pace than many other sections, although the growth in employment is general from coast to coast.

Reports gathered from 355 principal cities show that in twelve out of the fourteen major groups. Into which industries are divided by the bureau more men were employed on Nov. 1 than on Oct. 1. The only lines that fell off in number of workers were tobacco, liquor, and beverages.

Industry's Centers Show Gain.

A canvass of 1,428 firms in sixty-five chief industrial centers shows the growth in operations. No less than fifty-six of the sixty-five cities reported an increase in employment during October over September. The railroads are feeling the pressure of traffic.

Throughout the country the building boom still is on, and the approach of cold weather sees a smaller seasonal curtailment than usual. The outlook is that the winter months will not see an army of unemployed like that of last year. Instead, labor shortages are being reported in most of the manufacturing and business centers. Cold weather this time, so the survey would indicate, may not see more than a normal amount of seasonal unemployment.

A panoramic view of Illinois and the neighboring states is set forth as follows in the survey:

ILLINOIS.

General—Unemployment declining. Industries employ 17 per cent more men than a year ago. Coal industry 40 per cent of normal, operating eighteen to twenty-two hours per week.

Chicago industrial district—Industry is ahead of the peak records made immediately after the armistice. Steel producers in Chicago are booked up for the rest of the year at the present rate of operations, 65 to 80 per cent. Leather industry increasing operations; the packing industry operating to capacity, and dry goods industry is running 85 per cent of capacity. The shoe industry is breaking all records. Automobile plants are holding their high rate of production. Building continues active.

East St. Louis industrial district, including Alton and Granite City—Business and industrial conditions show improvement. Shortage of farm help. Increased employment in steel and packing industries. Building program absorbing available labor.

Springfield—Unemployment exists only among railroad shopmen; serious shortage of common labor, also cornhuskers. Building active.

Elgin—Industrial activities increase. One watch company working overtime, affecting 200 workers. Four factories under construction.

Rockford—Scarcity of competent farm hands, bricklayers, carpenters, diemakers, lathe and machine operators, laborers, and zinc furnace men. Big building program under way.

Rock Island-Moline district—Business generally advancing. Shortage of farm labor. Farm implement company at East Moline gradually adding to its forces. Building operations going full swing.

Joliet—Shortage of workers in all industries, especially in steel, which is operating about 70 per cent.

INDIANA.

General.—Restricted transportation has curtailed production. Shortage of cars is retarding steel production. Acute shortage of common labor, also farm hands. Building trades are all employed but building permits indicate a falling off. Extensive road building program offering employment to many workers.

Calumet industrial district, including Gary, Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting, and Indiana Harbor.—Increased employment. Shortage of common labor and workers in steel and allied industries, oil refineries and metal reduction plants. Increased activities in steel industry. Building trades all employed and will be for next thirty to sixty days. Large building program in force at Whiting.

MICHIGAN.

General.—Favorable outlook in automobile, metal, textile, and iron industries, with an unusually promising outlook for steel. Paper industry normal. The continued tremendous building operations have kept the lumber demand at a high point, and producers are increasing output. Activities so far this year have doubled those of 1921. Numerous road projects under construction.

Detroit industrial district, including Hamtramck, Highland Park, Wyandotte—Employment improved. Slight shortage of bricklayers and masons; no surplus in any line. One coke company reports production 60 per cent of normal, due to inability to obtain railroad deliveries. Automobile production operating close to capacity. Building operations steady.

WISCONSIN.

General—Shortage of men in woods and indications that the lumber industry will be carried on more extensively this winter than at any previous time.

Milwaukee Industrial District, including West Allis and Waukesha—Upward trend in employment. Shortage of workers in building trades, machinery and textiles. Furniture industry operating 60 per cent ahead of 1921. Slight decline in automobile industry. Building contracts for second week of October totaled 937, amounting to $738,101.

OHIO.

General—Labor conditions improving, with little unemployment. Brick manufacturers operating at capacity production. Paint industry on the upward trend. Full production being maintained in rubber industry and reports indicate increase in tire production. Several additional blast furnaces have been blown in this month and iron and steel industry is again on the upgrade. Tractor and farm implement, and automobile industries gradually adding to their payrolls. Textile industry considerably below normal. Coal production retarded by lack of transportation facilities. Considerable railroad bridge work under construction.

MINNESOTA.

General. — Employment conditions highly satisfactory. Strong demand for general farm help; also men in northern lumber camps. Iron mines running full time. Increased employment noted in steel mills over last month. Extensive highway program continues to draw on available common labor.

IOWA.

General.—Heavy demand for corn huskers. Shortage of common labor for highway work now under construction which covers eighty-three counties. Shortage of skilled labor. Marked increase in employment in railroad shops.

KANSAS.

Topeka.—Good demand for corn huskers and employment in all lines about normal. Building tradesmen well employed and construction work on highways probably will last through the winter. Employment decreased in packing plants since last month. All metal plants and planing mills running full time.

50 YEARS WITH LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY; HONORED TOMORROW

MAJ. E. D. REDINGTON. [Smith Photo.]

Maj. Edward D. Redington of Evanston tomorrow will celebrate his fiftieth anniversary as an employé of the Provident Life and Trust company, with offices in the Harris Trust building, 111 W. Monroe street. He will be the company's luncheon guest at Marshall Field's grill. Maj. Redington is 83 years old, a civil war veteran, and one of the oldest active members of Dartmouth university alumni. Annually he attends the alumni reunion and in various ways has been honored by his alma mater, from which he was graduated in 1861. As a civil war volunteer he rose in rank to major. Although the oldest employé of his firm, he is always the first to report daily at the office.

PAINTING WORTH $500,000 IS FOUND IN K. OF C. HOME

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 11.—A missing painting by Claude Lorraine, seventeenth century artist, said to be valued at $500,000, and for which a search has been made for years, was discovered today in the recreation room of the Knights of Columbus home here. The building formerly was the residence of Mrs. W. J. Averill, stepmother of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the railroad financier.

When Mrs. Averill sold her home to the Knights of Columbus, the painting was included in the sale. At the time she was reported to have said that the canvas was worth $1,000.

DETECTIVES TRY TO TRACE DEATH TRAIL OF WICKENS

No Water in Lungs, Friends Say.

While a committee of Zion City citizens, headed by the Rev. Robert O'Brien, prepared yesterday to present to State's Attorney Crowe tomorrow circumstances they deem suspicious surrounding the death of Charles R. Wickens, former accountant of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, detectives took up Wickens' trail from the time of his strange disappearance from his home a month ago.

The committee is composed of members of the American Citizen Protective Association of Zion City, an organization formed in opposition to the rule of Voliva.

No Water in Lungs.

The Rev. Mr. O'Brien expects to point out to Mr. Crowe that an autopsy upon Wickens' body, after its recovery from the lake at the foot of 8th street, Chicago, two weeks ago, revealed no water in the lungs. Two distinct bruises, one upon the left hand and one upon the forehead, were clearly apparent too, it is said.

This, coupled with the fact that Wickens, who was 78 years old, telephoned his wife at Zion City that he "would be home Wednesday" several days before his body was found in the lake, indicate to his friends that he might have been murdered and his body tossed into the water later.

Came From England.

Wickens quit his post as chief accountant at Zion City two years ago following a difference with Voliva over details of his work. He had come directly from England to accept the Dowie faith and assume his duties twelve years ago.

After leaving Voliva's service he set up as an expert accountant with an office in Waukegan.

Wickens, who, his friends say, had the habit of absenting himself for weeks at a time from his home and business, merely told his wife he was "going to Chicago" upon leaving home a month ago. He did not visit the home of his son, Ira Wickens, 6134 South Artesian avenue, as Mrs. Wickens had expected.

SUNSET TERRACE
THE SPOT TO BUY

SUNSET TERRACE

is a large restricted home development property located on the picturesque

North Shore

Its very location in one of Chicago's best known NORTH SHORE SUBURBS guarantees to its purchasers the very safest kind of an investment, as well as an ideal and safe place to build a home. Chicago people have long ago recognized the NORTH SHORE SUBURBS as the only place where strictly home lovers are protected by zoning laws against encroachment of flat buildings, hotels and factories. The enforcement of these stringent restrictions has made thousands upon thousands of dollars in profits to NORTH SHORE PROPERTY OWNERS and made these NORTH SHORE SUBURBS so popular to home seekers that the supply of locations there is nearly exhausted.

MANY INQUIRIES

Our announcement last week brought in enough inquiries to assure us that we will not have enough home locations to meet the demand. We have only 290 of these home locations to offer. They range in size from 50 to 150 feet in width and from 150 to 250 feet in depth. SUNSET TERRACE lies between and is just across the street from an EXCLUSIVE COUNTRY CLUB, MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE, and CITY PARK. Sixty-two fast, clean, comfortable C. & N. W. trains, also 126 Chicago & North Shore electric trains furnish transportation to the Loop in as short time as 35 minutes.

SALE DATE--PRICES

NOVEMBER 26TH is the date set for Public Sale. We will not publicly announce PRICES BEFORE THIS DATE, BUT ASSURE YOU THEY WILL BE SO ATTRACTIVE AS TO CREATE A SENSATION. AS LITTLE AS $200 CASH DOWN will secure one of these choice home locations. All inquiries in advance of the public sale date (November 26th) will be given first choice. We strongly urge you to clip and mail the attached coupon for information now, as all particulars will be given to advance inquiries in order as received. Do not hesitate or you may be too late to even have an opportunity of making a selection.

HOT LOVE NOTES TO TEACHER-WIFE CHARGED IN SUIT

Broker McGiveran Files His Side of Marital Row.

Serious charges of misconduct, supported by excerpts from many fervent love letters, are made against Mrs. Estelle Mary McGiveran, a teacher in the Wendell Phillips High school, in a cross bill for divorce filed yesterday by John T. McGiveran, insurance broker in the Monadnock building.

McGiveran, accused of extreme and repeated cruelty, in his cross bill declares that Mrs. McGiveran, the mother of three grown children, for more than twelve years has been unduly friendly with William A. Leonard, former proprietor of a notorious poolroom at 1555 East 63d street, which was closed by Mayor Harrison in 1915 when Hyde Park High school students were found loitering in the place.

Writes Fervent Letters.

After revocation of his poolroom license Leonard, according to the cross bill, became manager of extensive oil properties in Wyoming and while there wrote letters to Mrs. McGiveran which caused his arrest and subsequent conviction by federal authorities on a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails. Originals of the letters, it was promised, will be produced before Judge George F. Rush in a hearing on Nov. 15.

J. L. Bowlus, former chief clerk for the Illinois utilities commission at Springfield and more recently traffic manager of the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce, is the defendant in a $50,000 suit for alienation of affections filed by McGiveran, now pending in the Wisconsin courts, and is also named in the cross-bill filed yesterday.

Husband Called "Old Egg."

"I would give my right arm to have you close, real close, again," reads one of the letters, purporting to be from Leonard, and now held by Attorney Michael J. Sullivan, counsel for McGiveran. "Will I make up for all the lost time when I have you in my arms again? You can [illegible] thing, everything. Use my name if you need to, if necessary for you to get away from Mac. Get as much as you can out of that old egg."

"My wife, I would like to get rid of but not just yet," reads another. "I will go the route for you, because you are the best girl in the world and I love you so. So with fond love and kisses as of old, as we used to be, just one, you and me."

The couple were married in Green Bay, Wis., on Feb. 7, 1899, and lived together until three years ago.

Gump Cheered as He Leads Holiday Parade in Tractor

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Andy Gump, driving a tractor, led the municipal division of the Armistice day parade today. Andy at the wheel in shirt sleeves demonstrated with a high pressure steam whistle that he wears no man's collar. As the column headed by Andy passed through the business thoroughfares there was wild applause and heads were bared amid cheers as he saluted the reviewing stands.

Marion Talbot, dean of women at the University of Chicago, denies she refused to receive a delegation of sorority women as stated in THE TRIBUNE recently. She says she never heard that such a delegation waited upon her.

Edward H. Utley, 7928 South Sangamon street, calls attention that his picture was printed under the name of Edward H. Brandt in the "Inquiring Reporter" column in THE TRIBUNE last Friday morning.

A. G. Loomis, father of Miss Madeline Loomis, states his daughter is not interested in the estate of the late Senator Tom Watson. She is a Red Cross worker in Washington. The information as printed in THE TRIBUNE last Friday morning was supplied with the photograph by Underwood & Underwood, photographers.

Albert Oosterheerd of the Society of "The Netherlands Abroad" states there are seven, not seventeen, women members of the Netherlands cabinet.

Budget Sessions of City Council Will Begin Nov. 20

Budget sessions of the city council finance committee will begin Nov. 20, Chairman John A. Richert announced yesterday. Night sessions will be held in effort to get the appropriation ordinance through the council by Jan. 15 in the hope that appropriations will not become issues in the mayoralty and aldermanic campaigns. The aldermen want to get the big task out of the way early so that they will have time for fence-mending before the February aldermanic election and the supplemental election in April.

Firebug Suspect Insane; Mysterious Blazes Cease

John Sorrenti, arrested Nov. 6 on suspicion of starting several incendiary fires on the south side, upon examination by psysicians of the psychopathic ward of the county hospital has been adjudged demented and will be returned to the state insane asylum at Elgin, from which he escaped. Since the arrest of Sorrenti, police report that there have been no incendiary fires in the district.

50 FOOT CHIMNEY FALLS IN LOOP; TWO GIRLS HURT

Central police and firemen were called out, two girls were bruised, and forty others thrown into a near panic early yesterday, when a fifty foot steel smoke stack on the building of the H. B. Donchian Furniture company, 29 South Wabash avenue, snapped off at its base and toppled over on the Edison-Keith Millinery company's building just across the alley at 24 Michigan avenue.

Marie Thomas and May Wilson, employed by the millinery concern, were the girls who were bruised. They were near a window on the fifth floor of the building when the long chimney came crashing down.

Knocked Down by Bricks.

The impact knocked them down, plaster and falling bricks showered them and bruised them severely. They were removed to their homes.

The stack tore away a portion of the brickwork on the rear end of the millinery company's building. The damage is estimated at $1,000.

The stack for a time towered perilously over the alley, and it appeared that it might come crashing down. But the firemen, after much difficulty, succeeded in employing a derrick and lifting it out of danger. Police lines had to be thrown out during the operation to keep the crowds along Wabash and Michigan avenues out of the danger zone.

Cannot Determine Cause.

Early investigation into the cause for the crash revealed nothing. The police stated that the stack apparently had been securely fastened, but for some unexplainable reason it gave way under a slight wind strain.

Of the forty girls working on the seventh and top floor of the millinery company's building, ten were so panic stricken that the officials were forced to send them to their homes in taxicabs.

CLYNE AID UNDER FIRE IN THE BEST BREWERY CASE

Dry Agent Says He Failed to Get Co-operation.

Further criticism of United States District Attorney Clyne's office came yesterday when Guy Ginders, chief field agent for the prohibition director, charged that an assistant district attorney failed to coöperate with the prohibition forces in the case against officials of the Best Brewing company, charged with manufacturing and selling beer.

GUY GINDERS.

Mr. Clyne countered by stating that he would not allow the government to be used as a club in a civil suit. He said Mrs. Lillian Hasterlik, one of the officials of the brewery, has such a suit pending against other officials, and that the brewery appeared to be an attempt on her part to obtain government aid in that suit.

At Work for Weeks.

Field Agent Ginders charged that he has had agents working on the case of the Best Brewing company, for many weeks. A month ago, he said, these agents went to a certain assistant district attorney with requests for warrants for the officials of the brewery.

"The assistant district attorney in question," said Mr. Ginders, "advised the agents that it would be best to go before the federal grand jury direct. He would not issue the warrants, so we agreed to that.

Warrants Not Issued.

"I looked into the matter and he told me and my men to return in two weeks with all the witnesses and he would take them at once before the grand jury. When we came back with the witnesses at the appointed time we were told that the jury had adjourned, but that warrants would be issued.

"But the warrants were not issued. We have been several times to the district attorney's office for them since, but have been refused. We are still waiting.

"We canont prosecute our cases without some assistance from the district attorney's office. This office does not stand to be criticized in this case. We are ready to take action just as soon as the district attorney's office is ready to issue warrants and to give us some coöperation."

Clyne Starts Inquiry.

Mr. Clyne, when notified of the chief field agent's charges, at once sent for the assistant in question and started a complete personal inquiry into the matter. Then he issued his reply that the government should not be improperly made use of in civil suits, adding that the prohibition officials did not have sufficient evidence when they came to his office for warrants.

"The brewery officials could not be arrested on criminal charges," he said, "unless the evidence showed that they were on the premises when the beer was being made, and that it was being made with their sanction."

CHINESE BANDITS HOLD 2 AMERICAN CHURCH WORKERS

SHANGHAI, Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—Two American missionaries, unnamed, are among foreign captives held by bandits in Honan province, according to Mme. Sederstrom of the Lutheran mission, who has been released by the brigands and has arrived at Yingchowfu. She also reported that she saw H. E. Ledgard of the China inland mission staff among the hostages.

Ledgard was held by a different band from that which held Mme. Soderstrom, she reported, and the two Americans, together with several other missionaries and two foreign railway men, were with Ledgard. He was warmly clad, she said, but was anxious over his wife and child, both of whom she found to be safe elsewhere.

Ask Americans' Release.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—[By the Associated Press.]—The two American missionaries reported held by Chinese bandits in Honan province are named Forsberg and Lundeen, according to a dispatch received today at the state department. American Minister Schurman has asked the Chinese government to procure their release.

Civil War Veteran Killed by Train at Steger

Robert Brown, 77, of 3431 Wallace street, Steger, Ill., was killed when struck by a Chicago and Eastern Illinois train yesterday. He tried to cross the tracks, it is said, in front of the train. The body was hurled about seventy feet. Mr. Brown was a civil war veteran and an old resident of Steger.

EARLY AMERICAN SONGS TRACED TO IRISH ORIGIN

Capt. O'Neill, in Book, Cites Parallels.

BY JOHN KELLEY.

Did you know that "Turkey in the Straw" and "The Arkansas Traveler," two tunes supposed to be peculiarly of American origin, were pilfered from Irish folk melodies?

Former Chief of Police Francis O'Neill, in his latest book, "Waifs and Strays of Gaelic Melody," shows by the "deadly parallel" that it is highly probable these two old backwoods classics were played in the Emerald isle many years before they became Americanized under new names.

Old Zip Coon.

In an annotation regarding the probable source of "Turkey in the Straw," also known as "Old Zip Coon," Capt. O'Neill says:

"The pioneers or early settlers of West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee were largely of Irish ancestry, and obviously their music or tunes, more or less varied by fancy, and defective memorizing from one generation to another, were of Irish origin."

On the same page are printed "Turkey in the Straw" and "The Kinnegad Slashers," from which, the captain says, the former tune could have been derived or evolved.

Of the origin of "The Arkansas Traveler," Capt. O'Neill says by way of annotation:

"The editor ventures to suggest that, like 'Turkey in the Straw,' 'The Arkansas Traveler' has been evolved from a venerable Irish strain by some backwoods fiddler. Among the probable sources from which the tune may have been derived are the following examples:

Cites Another Parallel.

"Parallel to 'The Arkansas Traveler' is printed 'The Priest in His Boots,' also 'Johnny with the Queer Thing' and 'The Queen's Shilling.'"

"The Priest in His Boots" was printed in a collection of Irish music as early as 1765. There is a great similarity between all three of the tunes, and "The Arkansas Traveler," says the captain, could have been evolved from any of them.

In his "Waifs and Strays of Gaelic Melody" Capt. O'Neill has shown an indefatigable spirit in the pursuit of what he has often termed a "fascinating hobby." The book comprises 325 selections, including airs, jigs, reels, hornpipes, and miscellaneous melodies.

His Fourth Book.

This is the captain's fourth book of Irish music, and it would seem as if he had exhausted the subject. He also is the author of a history of Irish folk music, which is regarded authoritative.

An instructive feature of his latest work is the annotation accompanying most of the selections, giving their origin.

An interesting preface written by Capt. O'Neill briefly tells the history of printed collections of Irish folk music, beginning about two centuries ago.

Typographically the book is a work of art. The cover is in the Irish colors, green and gold. It is dedicated "To the spirit of the Gaelic league and the realization of its patriotic aims."

URGE SALVATION CHIEF TO KEEP EVANGELINE HERE

New York, Nov. 11.—Protesting against the contemplated transfer to some other field of Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army in the United States, many men prominent in financial and philanthropic circles have cabled Gen. William Booth at London, urging that Miss Booth be left in command in this country.

Among the signers were: Myron T. Herrick, ambassador to France; Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce; Otto H. Kahn, Bishop William T. Manning, former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, Adolph S. Ochs, William G. McAdoo, Finley J. Shepard and his wife, Helen Gould Shepard, and Samuel Untermyer.

Snoopers in Biggest Raid Arrest Eleven in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The largest liquor raid made on Long island since prohibition became a law, according to the police, took place early today at Astoria, where $100,000 worth of liquor was seized.

The police had been tipped off to a bootleggers' rendezvous. Search of the house revealed 1,200 cases of whisky and wine, according to the police, all of which were seized. Eleven men found at the house were arrested and held in bail of $500 each.

D. W. GRIFFITH
Producer of "The Birth of a Nation" and "Way Down East" Says:

"It is our policy that our press department say nothing in praise concerning our productions. Therefore we make no statement concerning the merits of our latest production, 'One Exciting Night,' to be presented at the Illinois Theatre Monday evening.

"This picture is now being shown in New York, and we take the liberty of directing your attention to what the newspapers there have said.

"We believe, if you wish to see 'One Exciting Night,' it will be to your interest to see it at the Illinois Theatre, as we have some special effects and special music arrangements of which we have taken great care."

Enormously Funny

"'One Exciting Night' is a Hilarious Thriller . . .

And don't forget the storm. You won't if you see it . . . . A screaming, streaming climax, a magnificent piece of work, that brings the picture to a whirling, whirring end . . . . The negro Romeo's comedy is broad and busy, but he's funny" . . . . (Times.)

"'One Exciting Night' will be the popular evening pleasure for the rest of the season." (Post.)

"We feel safe in advising you not to miss it." (News.)

Surpasses All

"The most exciting motion picture ever witnessed . . . . breath-taking climax . . . . Even remembering what the master film producer had done in 'WAY DOWN EAST' his present storm surpasses all . . . . Griffith has added the funniest type of negro comedian." (Evening Journal.)

"'One Exciting Night' it is . . . . 7328 thrills in two hours with the storm still raging" . . . . (Morning Telegraph.)

"The screen does it so much better than the stage." (Alan Dale.)

"If you don't die of fright, you will laugh yourself to death . . . .

Tense moments when one thinks one's heart just cannot last another yard . . . . then comes an onslaught of comedy that congests the theatre . . . . As exciting as 'The Bat' . . . . Superior to anything of the sort the screen has known . . . . Griffith's art most tellingly evident." (The Sun.)

"A great many enormously funny bits were uproariously received . . . . The storm scene is the directorial genius at his best" . . . . (The Globe.)

"Well worth the price . . . . even the war tax." (Evening World.)

All gasp and so will you—

"Griffith's picture will live among the immortals of the silver screen . . . . 'One Exciting Night' is one of the best photoplays ever shown . . . . A storm scene the most realistic ever produced . . . . two thousand turned away . . . . all the guests gasp, and so will you." (Evening Telegram.)

"The audience, as one man, shivers at 'One Exciting Night' . . . . actions so terrific . . . . highly successful." (Herald.)

"Everybody agrees that it is exciting." (Tribune.)

Gale after gale of applause—

"And 'One Exciting Night' it is for anyone . . . . a thrilling melodramatic climax brought gale after gale of applause . . . . Entire forests seem to be uprooted and go drifting across the scene . . . . Buildings go hurtling through the air . . . . titanic . . . . compared with other storms as a terrific cyclone to a zephyr . . . . a mighty spectacle well worth seeing . . . . ludicrous flights of comedy" . . . . (Mail.)

"The tornado is indescribably dramatic . . . . Griffith has constructed a thrilling detective drama as skillfully as he can build an epic of history" . . . . (American.)

Only the finest grade of creamery butter—never any "cooking" butter—is used in the North American kitchen and bakery

Big portions of finest food at low prices: for instance

Fresh Pumpkin Pie, made in our kitchen of the freshest, finest pumpkins, a big piece	15c
Pork Tenderloin	40c
Individual Oyster Stew, made with 7 big New York Counts, an entire bottle of certified milk and a big piece of butter, with crackers	40c
Fried Chicken, dark meat, with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce	55c
Breast of Chicken (all white meat), with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce	65c

And for breakfast

Honey Waffles, with 3 strips of bacon, (or Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage), butter and pure maple sap or honey	25c
Bacon and Eggs, 2 fresh eggs fried in butter, and 4 strips of bacon	30c

In spite of our low prices there is no restaurant or hotel anywhere which goes to the unusual lengths we do to keep the quality of food the very highest. For instance: Even in our kitchens we use only the very best butter—never, for any purpose, do we use any so-called "cooking" butters. Considering how much cheaper the butter usually used for cooking is, and the fact that we use thousands of pounds per year, you will realize how much our policy of "everything the best" costs us on this one of many similar items. We even fry and scramble eggs in the finest butter money can buy.

Our pantries and kitchen are really a vast exhibit of pure food. Not even one ounce of substitutes, or "fillers" or "cheapeners" of any kind ever come into them. When we bake a pie it is all real pie. Into it we put the finest leaf lard, the sweetest cane sugar (never any beet sugar), and rich butter. The fillings are real fillings—not fattened up with "fillers."

Our chickens and meats are carefully selected—the finest money can buy. They must come up to our rigid requirements or we won't accept them. And considering that we sell probably four times more fish and sea-food than any other Chicago restaurant or hotel, it is easy to understand why we get the pick of the finest and freshest coming into Chicago.

Don't you agree it is worth while to "serve yourself" here when by doing so you get the highest quality food for about half what any hotel or restaurant must charge to include "service?"

Eat turkey here Thanksgiving Day. Bring the children. They are always welcome.

GIRL'S TIP LEADS TO ARREST FOR SLAYING IN 1917

Suspect in Policeman's Death Is Taken.

Whisky and a woman yesterday placed Edward J. Daley, 26, 6802 Justine street, formerly an electrical mechanic, in the shadow of a murder charge and sent the police on the way to clearing up the killing of a policeman five years ago.

$2.95 MAN KILLER

Daley was arrested at Beardstown, Ill., two weeks ago. His arrest was brought about through information given the police by Miss Irene Smith, 18 year old, with whom he eloped a year and a half ago. He was formally charged yesterday with accessory to the murder of Policeman Peter Pulsin.

Killed in Payroll Holdup.

Policeman Pulsin, formerly attached to the Englewood station, was shot and killed by four bandits while guarding the payroll of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company, 6233 South Halsted street, about five years ago. According to the information in the hands of detectives, Daley was one of the bandits, although he did not actually do the killing.

Shortly before his arrest, Daley is said to have confessed to Miss Smith that he was present at the killing of the policeman. Miss Smith communicated his confession to her mother, Mrs. Alice Petecke, 1626 South Morgan street. Mrs. Petecke in turn notified the detective bureau and thus brought about Daley's arrest.

Daley Denies Charge.

Daley, at the detective bureau, denied the confession.

"She's lying," he said of Miss Smith. "The only time I would say anything like that would be when I am drunk."

While the detectives were questioning him, attorneys filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for his release in the Criminal court. This was dismissed, however, when the police placed their formal charge against him.

Blow Union Safe.

Safeblowers some time between 1 and 7 o'clock yesterday morning blew the safe of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America in their offices at 1564 North Robey street, and escaped with $400.

Charles H. Burr, secretary-treasurer of the organization, told the police the robbery followed a meeting of fifty members of the organization on Friday night, at which many of them paid their dues.

Earl Miller, 21, 311 North Parkside avenue, and Quentin Miller, 50, 6709 South Ashland avenue, were charged with disorderly conduct early in the morning when they attempted to hold up the crew of a Chicago avenue street car at the Municipal pier.

Demand Conductor's Cash.

George Zilberman, conductor, and H. Alveris, motorman of the car, were at the pier terminal about 8:30 in the morning when an automobile containing four men drew up. The two Millers leaped out, demanding that the conductor turn over his money to them.

The conductor struck at the elder Miller with his fist, and Policeman Charles Bennett of the Central station heard the scuffle and arrested the men.

Emil Burback, 21, 2618 West Division street; his wife, Pearl, and Frank Tielson, 23, 1042 West Jackson boulevard, were arrested early yesterday after being implicated in the robbery of the Thomas Anastasian fur store, 4752 North Kedzie avenue, last Monday.

Their arrest was brought about by a statement from Frank Hahn, 27 years old, 1214 North Washtenaw avenue, former motorcycle policeman, who was captured at the time of the robbery.

NEW CONSUL

John D. Dritsas, a Chicago attorney, living at Glencoe, has been appointed as Greek consul for the state of Ohio. He will take charge of the office in Cleveland.

Jefferson Davis' Guard Commander Passes Away

Asbury Park, N. J., Nov. 11.—Maj. James G. S. Tomkins, who was in charge of the guard over Jefferson Davis when the confederate president was imprisoned in Fortress Monroe at the close of the civil war, died today at his home here.

TWO MORE 'PUPPY LOVE' WEDDINGS GO ON THE ROCKS

Disgusted with their marital experiences, two girl brides, Mrs. Emma Blocher Eckelaert, daughter of Mrs. Winfield S. Blocher, 5432 Drexel boulevard, and Mrs. Josephine Novak Kolendorfer yesterday filed suits for annulment of their marriages to Joseph Eckelaert and Alfred Kolendorfer, respectively.

Although but 15 years old when married on March 30, 1919, at East St. Louis, Mrs. Kolendorfer, according to her petition, acceded to the "behest and wrongful influence of Kolendorfer's mother, who encouraged him in forcing her to marry him, although the youth was himself but 18 years old."

Abandoned, She Says.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple moved to Eagle River, Wis., where five months later Kolendorfer abandoned the girl, according to the bill.

Yielding to a "hasty impulse and without first securing the permission of her mother," Mrs. Eckelaert, 17 years old, eloped to Crown Point with Eckelaert, himself a schoolboy, where they were married on Sept. 29, 1922.

Try to Keep It Secret.

Fearing parental displeasure, the young bride and groom returned to their homes and for a time atempted to keep the affair a secret. The petition asserts that Mrs. Eckelaert has not seen her youthful husband since their marriage.

LEGION NEWS

North Shore post No. 21, American Legion, will move into its new quarters in Govan hall, Broadway and Wilson avenue, on Thursday night, Nov. 16. There will be a house warming for the 1,600 members of the post. The commanders and members of other American Legion posts in Chicago are invited to attend.

JANITOR HELD AS BOY BEATER; ECHO OF VICE

Walter Stuck, janitor of an apartment building at 1235 West Madison street, was released on bond yesterday, pending a jury trial on charges of assault on Edward Andre, 16 years old, son of William Andre, a resident of the apartment.

The boy was beaten and clubbed by Stuck, his father declares, because the presence of he and his younger brothers in the doorway of the building interfered with the alleged solicitation of women, who, Andre asserts, are operating a disorderly house.

The records of the Des Plaines street police station show that twelve women living in the apartment have been arrested within the last three months. One of them, Marie Secor, was convicted of prostitution ten days ago, and Helen Gregory was arrested on a similar charge Friday night.

Capt. James McCann of the Des Plaines street station has detailed a man to watch the entrance of the building, declaring that the maintenance of bawdy houses on the west side will be broken up.

COPS GET POOL TABLE.

A pool table and the necessary accessories were given yesterday to the Desplaines street police station by S. L. Day, manager of the Goodfellow hotel, 845 West Madison street.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN HEAR CHARITY PLEA

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

The Sunday school children of Chicago and suburbs will be asked today to adopt as their share in the work of the United Charities the raising of a fund, approximately $25,000, for the giving of milk to Chicago's neediest children.

An appeal has been sent to all Sunday school superintendents by the president of the United Charities, Charles W. Folds, and he has been encouraged to believe the children will take eagerly to the proposition.

Change from Last Year.

"Last year," said Mr. Folds, "the United Charities spent $23,000 for milk for the children of Chicago's poor. It has occurred to us that the children of the city and metropolitan area would be glad to adopt this milk fund as a children's charity to be financed through the Sunday schools."

Every Sunday school which will cooperate in the babies' milk fund charity will receive a specially prepared milk bottle into which the money can be deposited. Posters have been prepared to hang in the Sunday school room, giving the dates on which the contributions are to be brought in. Little cards in the shape of milk bottles will be given the children for distribution. These will have on them the dates on which contributions are to be received.

Meet Two Difficulties.

"We have two difficulties to meet in supplying milk to needy families," said Mr. Folds. "One is the lack of money. Some families are so poor that they cannot buy milk even when they know that the lack of it endangers the lives of their children. Another difficulty is ignorance of the value of milk as a food. Some parents look upon milk as only something to drink, and because tea and coffee are cheaper they reason they will answer their little children's needs just as well.

"The children of Chicago can supply the money and the nurses of the United Charities will try to teach the value of milk as a food."

Greeks Plan Campaign for $250,000 Relief Fund

Chicago Greeks have organized committees to conduct a campaign for $250,000 for the relief of war sufferers in Greece. The first event in the drive will be a concert tomorrow evening at Orchestra hall. The committees expect to raise the money by Jan. 1.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Boys from Princeton own the city of Cambridge tonight and the suburb of Boston and all the rest of the towns in this vicinity because the Princeton Tigers completely upset the football dope today by downing Harvard's big Crimson eleven in the Harvard stadium, 10 to 3.

In the first five minutes of play Harvard lived up to advance notices and rushed the Tigers off their feet until they advanced to within striking distance, where George Owen, star of the team, booted a field goal from placement for three points. It looked then as if the Tigers would be hopelessly licked, but in the second period the tide turned in their favor and from early in the period clear to the finish of the game Harvard's great team was outplayed in every department of football.

Fumble Gives Tigers Chance.

It might be said that Harvard beat itself, for it was a miserable fumble by Gehrke at the start of the second quarter that gave Princeton the chance for the touchdown. He received the ball from a direct pass, apparently for a smash at the Tiger line, but some Tiger forward charged through, bumped him, and the ball went bounding back toward his own goal.

A couple of Princeton men were there. One of them fell on the ball on Harvard's 18 yard line, and from there the Tigers carried it over for a touchdown, a triple pass in which Gray carried the oval doing most of the damage, for he reached the 2 yard line, from where Crum smashed through.

Along at the start of the third period Spaulding, a Harvard sub, fumbled a punt on his own 30 yard line, and a Princeton end was right there to fall on the ball. This time the Tigers didn't carry the ball over, but, after being stopped on three smashes, Baker came back out of the line and dropped a beauty goal from the 33 yard line for three points that Princeton didn't need at all.

Harvard Eleven Disappointing.

The Harvard team was a great disappointment to the wearers of the Crimson colors. All advance dope had it that they would win. There was some betting at odds of 7 to 5 that Harvard would be victor. But the Harvard team either was grossly overrated or it was in a terrible slump. It had no great offense and its defense was only ordinary.

Perhaps the team was handicapped considerably because of an injury to Capt. Buell in the first half. He was out of the combat when Princeton did all its business. The captain returned for the finish of the fourth quarter, but the game was gone by that time and the team apparently had lost all its spirit.

Never before had there been a game at Cambridge with more color. The great stadium was jammed with 52,000 rooters, all it could hold. Before the contest the yells of the boys from Princeton were shouted across the vast field to the Harvard hosts, who responded with full strength.

The victory had been a surprise and the joy was all the greater. Princeton outplayed their old time rival without displaying near the offense and daring they did out in Chicago. Princeton was superior and now is ready for Yale.

LOMBARD GIVES DE PAUL SETBACK BY 46 TO 0 COUNT

Lombard won from De Paul university, 46 to 0, here yesterday in a game in which the Lombard goal was never in any danger. Lombard scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, two more in the second period, increased its score to 32 in the third session, and piled up fourteen more points in the last period.

TALK OF HARVARD DROPPING TIGERS FOR A TRIP WEST

Boston, Mass., Nov. 11.—An intimation that today's football game might be the last between Harvard and Princeton, made by Lothrop Withington at a gathering of Princeton men last night, drew from President John G. Hibben of Princeton a plea for continuance of the classic and a defense of the Harvard-Yale-Princeton football agreement. Withington is a member of the Harvard football committee and a former Crimson captain.

Withington criticised the agreement, charged that it was brought about by the domination of President Hibben and said it would not permit practice before the opening of college. "That means," he continued, "that the schedule must be cut down to five games.

West Deserves Game.

He said the western alumni of Harvard, because of their strong support of the recent endowment drive, were entitled to have a game in their section. If such a game were to be added to the schedule, he said, it would mean elimination of the Princeton game in order to have something left for the Yale contest.

President Hibben in his reply said he held six meetings with Presidents Lowell of Harvard and Angell of Yale before the big three agreement was drawn up.

"I'd like to take exceptions," he said, "to Mr. Withington's accusation that I brought a ready made agreement up here and said to Mr. Lowell, 'Sign on the dotted line.' Tremendous pressure is being brought to bear upon those in authority in these universities to eliminate football. We are trying to have the sport.

Wants Classic Continued.

"We thought it better to force the center of gravity over to the academic side, rather than on the football side. We all signed this agreement. Harvard and Harvard alumni want this Princeton game to remain on the Harvard schedule. That I know from observations in Chicago, New York, and Cambridge. This game has become a tradition. We don't care whether or not Harvard gives an 'H' for the Princeton game; that is Harvard's business. But we men of Princeton also want to continue this football classic."

7 FUMBLING PLAYERS MUST TOTE FOOTBALL EVERYWHERE THEY GO

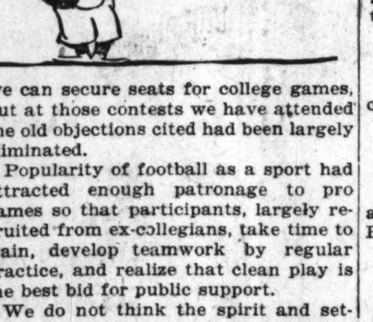
KALAMAZOO, Mich., Nov. 11.—Because seven of his men fumbled the ball in today's game with Valparaiso university, Coach Ralph Young of Kalamazoo college gave each of the men a football at the close of the contest and ordered that they carry the pigskins with them everywhere they do during the next week. Should any of them he found without the ball in his possession, no matter where, during the week, he said, he would be thrown off the team. Kalamazoo won the game, 21 to 15, the visitors making their two touchdowns as a result of fumbles.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

PRO FOOTBALL.

PROFESSIONAL football, long frowned upon and discouraged by college athetic officials, now finds a stimulus in the inability of the general public to secure admission tickets for the more important college contests.

Principal objections to the pro article in the past have been lack of adequate training on the part of players, absence of teamwork, and tendency to intentional rough play. The Wake has not been a consistent follower of pro football, nor do we expect to be so long as we can secure seats for college games, but at those contests we have attended the old objections cited had been largely eliminated.



BUSINESS IS GOOD—

Popularity of football as a sport had attracted enough patronage to pro games so that participants, largely recruited from ex-collegians, take time to train, develop teamwork by regular practice, and realize that clean play is the best bid for public support.

We do not think the spirit and setting of college contests, which furnish much of their attractiveness, can ever be duplicated on the pro gridiron, but certainly interesting spectacles of high grade football can be furnished. Since the public must attend these pro games or go without football, it can hardly be begrudged the privilege.

Pro football, if conducted properly, appears to have a greater future right now than ever before.

Retrospection.

I scent again the pungent smoke of pine
And glimpse through interlacing boughs the spark
Of your small campfire as it lights the dark
Trees about your little tent and mine.

I linger—loath to break the spell of the still night,
Watching in silence your dear face
As flames flare up and gild its gentle grace
And show me in your eyes love's tender light.

And soon you lie near sleeping, (O, how sweet your hair!)
While through the canvas walls the laggard moon traces Birch leaves in patterns like the dainty laces
That adorn the throats of women fair.

Ah, me! these memories that run like threads of red
Through all my days, so drab and gray,
Will help to keep faith along the lonely way
(That very lonely way) that I must tread.

A Former Opera.

Dear Wake: Opening of the opera season brings to memory, 'way back, a performance of Faust at the Auditorium with this cast as near as I can remember: Marguerité, Emma Eames; Siebel, Sofia Schalchi; Faust, Jean de Reszke; Mephistopheles, Edouard de Reszke; Valentino, Pol Plancon. The latter was a wealthy French cement maker who sang merely for the love of it.

This was a notable cast and a rare treat so appreciated by the crowded house that it stood up and cheered for five minutes at the conclusion of the performance.

We Were an Artist, Too.

Possibly Helpers will be surprised to know The Wake also appeared in Grand Opera at the Auditorium. Yes, indeed. In our student days we appeared on numerous occasions. We usually carried a spear. Once we were promoted to a bishop because of our height, but our feet became tangled in the blamed robes going up the cathedral steps and we lost that job.

Southbury, Mass., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Potter Palmer III., 13 year old son of Potter Palmer II. of Chicago, full back for St. Marks' school, is the idol of his teammates today, for yesterday he scored 9 points and sent the Fay school football team back to its home with a 9 to 7 defeat. Young Palmer crossed the goal for a touchdown early in the game, and in the final quarter put over a drop kick that won the contest. The two schools are rivals of long standing, and St. Marks is celebrating its first victory in several years.

BY WALLACE ABBEY

Northwestern's Thistlethwaite-coached eleven mounted to its first conference victory in two years yesterday by smashing out a 24 to 13 defeat of Purdue before 19,000 frenzied homecomers and Purple students piled into the Evanston stands. "Chuck" Palmer, on the receiving end of the McElwain-Palmer forward passing combination, accounted for three touchdowns, one of which came after the Purple ace had raced 50 yards through a broken field. Northwestern's last victory was from Purdue on the same field.

The Purple passing attack opened in the second quarter when Billy McElwain, in spite of his injuries, was inserted in the lineup at half. The Boilermakers had scored a touchdown on the opening kickoff of the game, Landis having fallen on the ball after it touched Rembe and rolled over the line. McElwain's appearance was the signal for the attack which within three minutes had made the game a tie.

Paterson Boots Goal.

Early in the second half Paterson booted a place kick from the 35 yard line and gave his team the lead. Purdue was completely swamped. Unable to gain, the visitors fell to punting, but were unable to keep Northwestern from crossing their goal line twice within ten minutes.

A few minutes before the end of the game Purdue's offense tightened, enabling Prout to score a touchdown after the ball had been advanced to the 7 yard line by a pass from Wellman to Landis. The midgit Boilermaker quarter, Holwerda, successful in his first kick after a touchdown, was blocked in his second attempt. Paterson place kicked after each Purple touchdown with perfect ease.

The contest was fiercely fought. Both lines were materially weakened in the second quarter when Penfield and W. Claypool, two opposing tackles, resorted to pugilism instead of football and were sent from the game. Dahl replaced Penfield and Swank shifted to tackle for Purdue. Preshaw replaced Swank. Substitutions were frequent on both sides, especially among the backs.

Palmer was kept from the game the

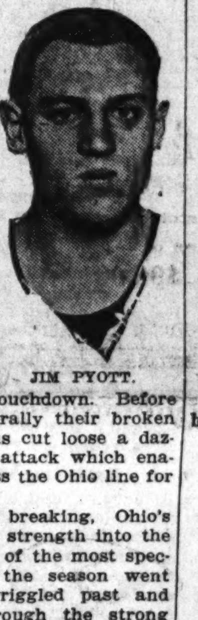
BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Chicago's Maroons clung to their chance for the conference championship today by driving home the third straight defeat Ohio has suffered and breaking the Ohio hoodoo by winning a fiercely fought game, 14 to 9.



JIM PYOTT.

Beaten, held at bay through the first half, with the Buckeyes fighting for their football honor, the Maroons came back in the second half and crashed their way to one touchdown. Before the Ohioans could rally their broken morale, the Maroons cut loose a dazzling forward pass attack which enabled Dickson to cross the Ohio line for the second time.

Then, instead of breaking, Ohio's players hurled their strength into the struggle and in one of the most spectacular attacks of the season went over and under, wriggled past and finally smashed through the strong Maroon line for a touchdown that set the crowd wild.

Escaped by Narrow Margin.

It looked then as if the Maroons might, in spite of their greater power, throw away the game, even as they did the one to Princeton, for Ohio, raging, tearing, fighting, was ripping the way to another score, forward passing and sweeping down field. Then, with two opponents leaping for the same ball in midfield, the Chicago man grabbed the flying pigskin and Ohio's rush was stopped.

Having escaped disaster twice merely because the Buckeyes who received forward passes were too slow to outrun the Maroons when forward passes had been captured and the field was clear before them, the Maroons gave the Ohioans no more chances, but clung desperately to possession of the ball, delayed and plunged until the final whistle sounded.

Chicago Begins with Fumbles.

For the first half it appeared that the fumbles of Chicago might overthrow the dope and beat them again. But after they once settled to their stride, and Zorn and John Thomas started ripping the yielding Ohio line, it was a question of the breaks.

There seldom has been seen a prettier exhibition of football generalship and spirit than the Buckeyes gave after the few minutes of muddled work had brought defeat crashing upon them. In the final quarter, with fresh reserves shot into the game—once in a batch of five at a time—they smashed the Chicago attack and made their march downfield for the score that scared the Maroons.

Then, fighting furiously, they ran back the kickoff to midfield, passed and smashed until the crowd expected the defeat of Chicago, and then were

OHIO SAYS PYOTT RAN OUT OF LINE; HUGHIE DENIES IT

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Ohio rooters are making claims tonight that Pyott stepped out of bounds in the run that gave Chicago its first touchdown. This Pyott did not do. He was running near the side line. His left foot was a foot inside the lines when he swerved suddenly and swung back into the field. His right foot on the next step was farther from the line than the left, and never touched ground outside the mark, althought it looked for an instant as if he would step outside and lose the score. I was watching him through field glasses and saw every step.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Featured by the terrific running attack of Iowa in the first half when it scored all its points and the remarkable fighting spirit of Minnesota in the last two periods, the Hawkeyes, contenders for Western conference football honors, defeated the Gophers today before 25,000 home-coming fans, 28 to 14.

It was a great game, featured by sparkling tackling and blocking. In fact, the men played so aggressively that time had to be called ten times in the first two quarters and some of the players, including Parkin, the fleet Iowa quarter back, had to be assisted from the gridiron. There were few arm or neck tackles and the runners were generally brought down with resounding thuds.

Iowa Out in the Lead.

At the end of the first half Iowa led 28 to 7 and to appearances it looked as if Minnesota would be badly beaten. Between halves, however, Coach Spaulding gave his men a severe talk, corrected their faults, with the result they came back in the second half and completely outplayed last year's Big Ten champions. The Gophers penetrated the Hawkeye line for consistent gains and executed a beautiful forward pass which resulted in their second score in the final quarter.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Despite the brilliancy of Capt. Rollie Williams, the cardinal of Wisconsin was lowered in defeat today. Illinois, touted as the under dog, wrecked the Badgers' Big Ten title hopes in a grueling battle that terminated 3 to 0, the points resulting from a drop kick by Rune Clark, the Illini quarter, in the third period.

The battle was just such a thing as these two time honored rivals alfways engage in. The spectacular, for the most part, was lacking, but hard, smash-bang football was played right from the jump. At no time was there a marked edge for either and Wisconsin might have been rewarded with at least a tie if Richards' men had seen fit to play for a kick instead of a touchdown in the first period, when Illinois held for downs on its 2 yard line, and kicked out of danger. That was the only time Illinois had its back to the wall.

Illini Line Holds.

Wisconsin made its mistake in not giving greater leeway to the forward pass attack in the early part of the game. For the most part the offensive was centered on the Illini line and the results were indifferent. These same tactics prevailed even after Illinois had scored, but at the close, with only a few minutes left, the style was switched and pass after pass went hurling through the air. Some failed, but enough were completed to drive the visitors back, and if the final whistle had been delayed a bit the Badgers might have pulled out a victory. At least they would have given the Illini a heart-shattering scare.

The first period of the tussle was tight despite the drive that sent Wisconsin down to within two yards of a touchdown. A fumble by Schultz on his own 18 yard line was responsible for this. Barr, Williams and Taft carried the ball in the drive, and then, with two yards to go, Williams was stopped cold and Illinois took the ball on its 2 yard line to kick out of danger.

Whistle Halts Badgers.

The second period was even tighter than the first, the only excitement coming late in the period when Wisconsin started on its own 25 yard line and, with a 16 yard run by Williams and a long pass, Barr to Tebell, sent the Illini back to their own 35 yard mark. It looked as if Wisconsin was on its way, but the whistle halted the fight.

The deciding points came early in the third period. Miller intercepted a Badger pass on the Illini 48 yard line. McIlwain and Schultz ripped the line for eight yards, and a pass, Clark to Rokusek, sent the ball to Wisconsin's 23 yard line. Clark then skirted end for three yards, and Schultz and McIlwain ripped through to Wisconsin's 15 yard line. Happenny added five, but Wisconsin then tightened and Clark went back for his kick, dropping the ball over the bar from the 18 yard mark.

Illini's other attempt to boot came early in the fourth period. Clark's foot was injured and Couchie rushed into his place. A moment later Taft fumbled and Rokusek recovered on Wisconsin's 35 yard line. An Illini five yard penalty was offset by a couple of good gains and then Couchie made his bid, but his kick went wide. He made it from the 35 yard line.

Abe Pollock Is Re-elected to Colorado Legislature

Denver, Colo., Nov. 11.—For the second time within two years Republicans of Denver county have returned Abe Thomas Pollock, widely known sport authority, referee and boxing expert of a local newspaper, to the state house of representatives. For years he was prominent in Chicago and Milwaukee in sport circles before removing to Denver, where he entered politics.

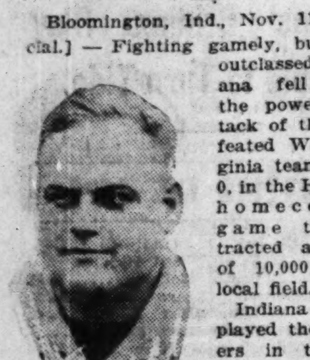
Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.] — Fighting gamely, but badly outclassed, Indiana fell before the powerful attack of the undefeated West Virginia team, 33 to 0, in the Hoosiers' homecoming game that attracted a crowd of 10,000 to the local field.



DR. C. W. SPEARS.

Indiana outplayed the invaders in the first period, but the defense showed signs of cracking in the second quarter, when the southerners brought the ball to Indiana's one yard line on straight football and passes, and Ekberg plunged through for a touchdown.

With the opening of the second half West Virginia unleashed a brilliant aerial attack that ate up yardage and defied the Hoosiers' best efforts to break up. Nardoci grabbed a pass and sprinted twenty-five yards to goal and Ekberg scored shortly after on a plunge through center.

Indiana's line was being subjected to a battering attack that was tearing big holes in it for substantial gains. In the final quarter, with Indiana offering a plucky but weakened resistance, Nardoci streamed over, and Ekberg intercepted a pass for the southerners' final touchdown.

Coach "Fat" Speers' charges displayed an excellent defense that completely checked the opposing attack, and the result after the first period was never in doubt.

YALE PUPS HAND 45 TO 3 BEATING TO MARYLAND U.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—While the Bull Dogs were away the Bull Pups played the Maryland Orioles today to a 45 to 3 defeat, piling up the biggest score of the season against the southerners. The Pups kept the forward pass flying over the heads of the Marylanders with Dan Kelley's tosses to Johnny Haas, while Neele and "Abe" Lincoln figured in every touchdown.

Pollock of the southern team boosted a goal by the drop kick route less than five minutes after the battle started. Aside from this scoring gesture, Maryland was never dangerous and never gained ground consistently. Its scoring opportunity was presented by Becket, who misjudged a punt.

Despite ideal weather conditions only 10,000 persons, the smallest crowd of the year, were scattered through the bowl. Lineup:

CENTRE WINNER OVER W. & L. IN 27 TO 6 SCRAP

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—Centre college defeated the badly crippled Washington and Lee team here today, 27 to 6. It was the Danville squad's second straight victory over Washington and Lee. Covington and Roberts for the Colonels were the outstanding stars of their team, while Cameron carried the ball almost entirely for Washington and Lee. Until today's defeat Washington and Lee had been strong contenders for southern intersectional honors.

Spectacular broken field running by Covington, with Roberts as a body guard, featured the play, which was unusually clean and free from penalties.

In the last period Washington and Lee struggled to prevent further Centre scores by incessant use of forward passes. Centre used its "penitentiary" shift only in the last period.

COLUMBIA WINS CATHOLIC TITLE; BEAT ST. VIATORS

Dubuque, Ia., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Coach Eddie Anderson's Columbia college gridders clinched the Western Catholic College title by beating St. Viator's of Kankakee, Ill., in a hard fought football game here today, 13 to 0. The first touchdown climaxed a steady parade down the field on line smashes, and an intercepted pass by Blake paved the way for the second marker. Great plunging by Conlin and Blake's excellent booting and advancing of passes featured.

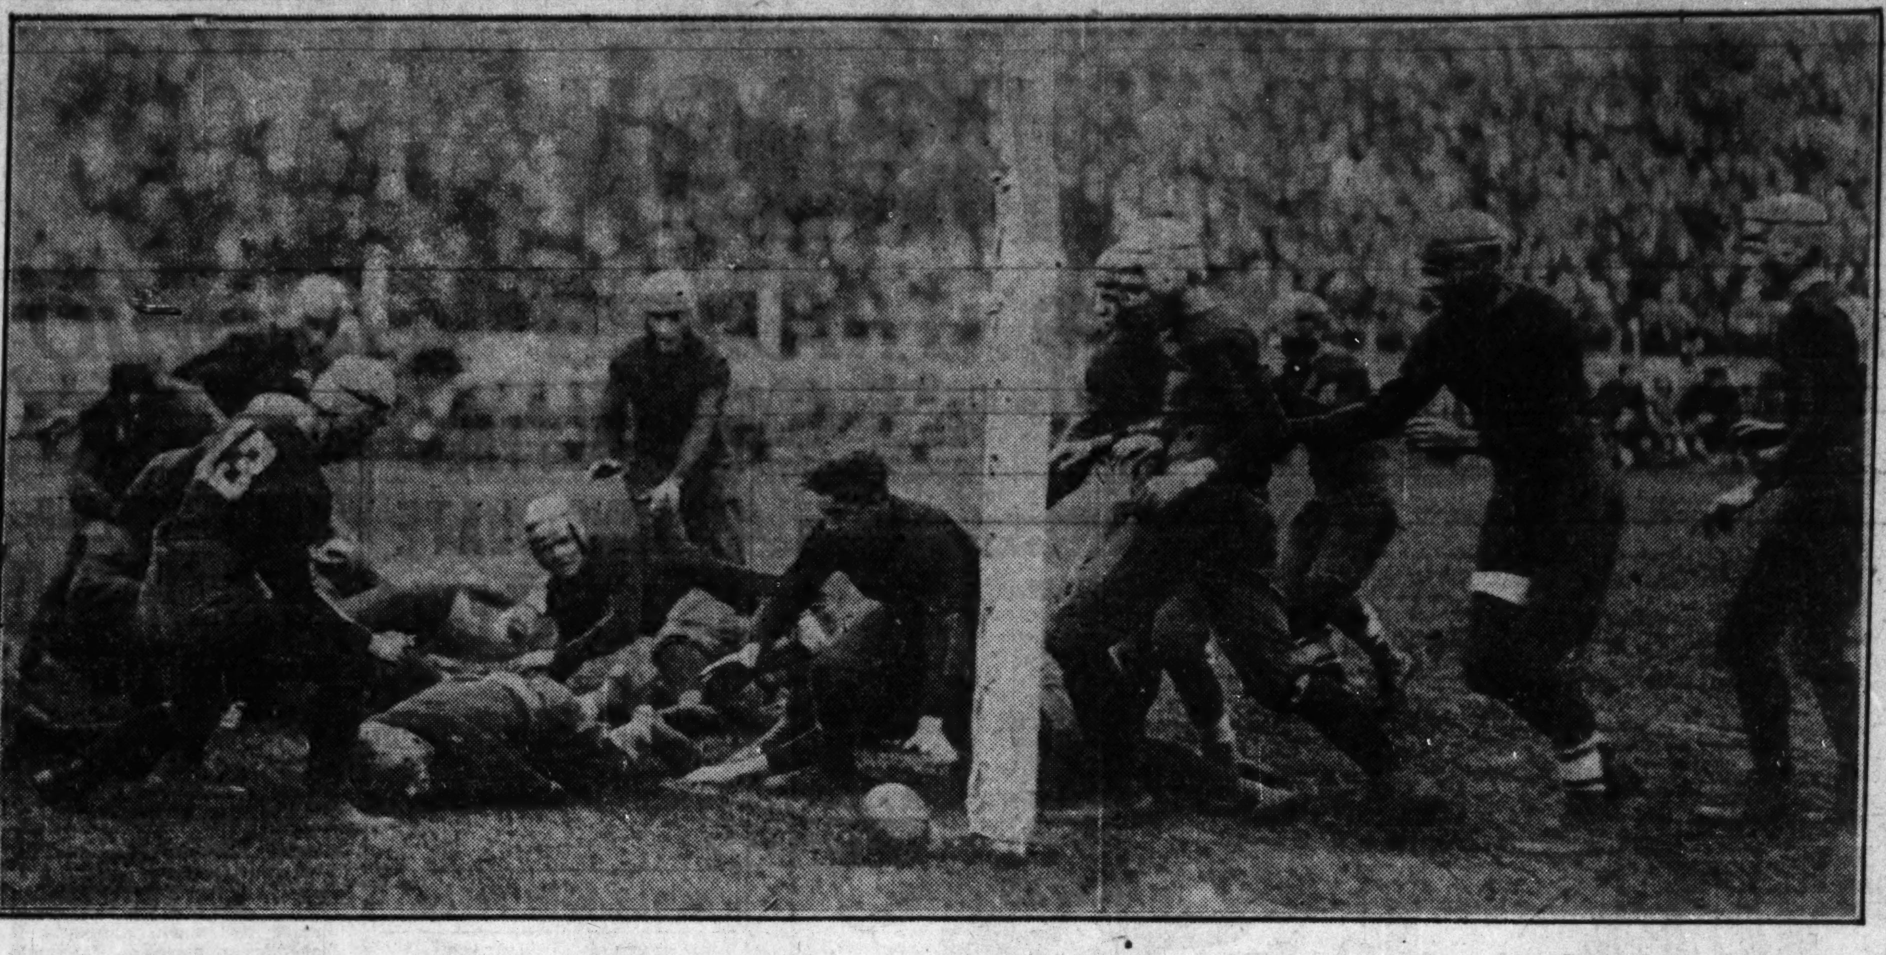
HIGH LIGHT IN HARRISON-HYDE PARK GAME



Baumracher, the chap lying flat with his arms doubled under him, just after plunging over for Harrison's touchdown in its game with Hyde Park at Stagg field yesterday, won by the latter, 59 to 7. Baumracher didn't hit a solid line, as is usually the case in a line plunge for a touchdown, but picked a hole. This explains the absence of a pile of players near him.

IOWA DOWNS GOPHER, 28-14, IN HARD GAME

was swept off its feet by a beautiful running attack, one of the best seen this year. Plays were started from behind unbalanced lines. As the ball was snapped, the guards got out to head the interference and the runners either got around the Gopher ends or cut back for the necessary gains.

Hawkeyes Full of Fight.

The team moved as a unit and the players had so much drive they made a yard or two when opposition was met. For the first time this year Capt. Gordon Locke of Iowa showed the form which made him the best full back in the middle west last year. At times the Hawkeye leader drove with so much power that he not only shot through openings in the Minnesota line, but fell on his face and then skidded along for a few yards.

Not only did Locke advance the ball by line plunging, but he made consistent gains off the Minnesota tackles and around the ends who failed at times to turn the play to the inside. Today Locke appeared much faster than any time last year, while his excellent blocking in the interference hardly could have been improved upon. In these line gaining attempts, however, the Hawkeye forwards gave excellent support. Thompson, particularly, helped on the opposing guard and made large openings for his captain. Johnny Heldt, the Iowa center, was a tower of strength offensively and seldom failed to mix in the plays after he had passed the ball safely.

Many Gophers Crippled.

In fact, it was this aggressive play on the part of Iowa which crippled so many of the Gophers. Several, including Ecklund, had to leave the game in the first half because of injuries received by hard blocking and tackling. Minnesota started to show its aggressiveness late in the second quarter and a hard tackle resulted in Parkin, Iowa's star quarter back, being carried from the field.

Although the playing of Locke was the outstanding feature from an Iowa standpoint, Earl Martineau, the Minnesota half back, showed himself to be one of the leading backs in the middle west. Although a marked man, the Gopher athlete made several spectacular runs for short distances and at times crossed the Iowa team by starting for one side of the field and then reversing and going back to the other. His speed enabled him to do this while his pivot twist enabled him to whirl out of seemingly deadly tackles. On other occasions he skipped out of the grasp of tacklers and was about the hardest man on the field to bring down.

Martineau Uses Gray Matter.

On the last scoring play of the game Martineau again crossed the entire Iowa team. After Minnesota had scored its second touchdown, Martineau assumed the kicker's position to try for the extra point by a field goal. Instead, he circled the Hawkeye left end and when he was about to be tackled at the corner of the field he dove over Capt. Locke and landed across the goal line.

Although he did not score a touchdown, Martineau was an important factor in both scores. In the first period Ecklund not only covered one of Martineau's punts in faultless fashion, but when Parkin fumbled Ecklund dropped on the ball. On the second play, Martineau tossed a dandy forward pass to Ecklund, who was stopped on the Iowa 3 yard line. Line plunges resulted in Grosse going over for the touchdown and Ecklund added the extra point by a drop kick.

After Martineau had threatened to score in the second half through his own efforts, spread formations were called. On these plays the ends went wide and the half backs took positions just behind and a little to the inside. This made two players on each side of the line eligible to receive the pass with the quarter back eligible for a short loss directly over the scrimmage line.

Merrill Scores Touchdown.

Merrill, the Gopher left end, barely missed one pass, but Martineau shot another to him and he caught it over the line for the Minnesota second touchdown. Then Martineau scored the last point for his team by circling the Iowa left end for the extra point. If this player were a member of a team which could render proper support his play would entitle him to serious consideration as an all-American possibility, which he is entitled to nevertheless. Aside from advancing the ball and doing the forward passing, Martineau did all the punting for his team.

Martineau's superb playing, however, should not detract from the general play of Capt. Locke and his teammates. In the first half the most particular football fan would not want to see a more pleasing attack. The team moved as a unit and hit together when the ball was snapped. There was perfect coördination between the line and backfield in that the backs got to the scrimmage line the moment an opening presented itself. This was especially true when Locke scored his three touchdowns.

Iowa Forwards Are Stars.

Charging and blocking of the Iowa forwards showed the intensive drilling of Coach Howard Jones. The Hawkeye ends took the Gopher tackles out or straight back, according to the direction of the plays, while the Iowa tackles worked on the Gopher guards in such a manner they were charged in, out, or straight back, according to the way the plays were sent.

Ends of both teams covered punts in excellent fashion. They were ever mindful to keep to the outside of the catcher to drive him down the center of the gridiron if they were unable to make the tackles. Players of both teams followed the ball closely and there was little fumbling despite the slippery surface of the oval.

After Capt. Locke had won the toss the Hawkeyes lost little time in scoring. An exchange of punts left the ball in midfield and then Iowa started a successful advance to the Gopher goal. Locke, Shuttleworth and Miller drove through the line and off the tackles until the ball was on Minnesota's 15 yard line. On a backfield shift sprung behind an unbalanced line, Parkin got around the Minnesota left end for a touchdown. Shuttleworth kicked the goal by dropkick.

Locke Makes Second Touchdown.

Forward passing and sparkling off tackle driving by Iowa backs placed the ball close enough for Locke to make the second touchdown near the end of the first period. The Hawkeye leader was in evidence again in the second quarter when Iowa did the remainder of its scoring. Locke scored both touchdowns after he and his teammates had made steady and consistent attacks on all points of the Gopher defense. Shuttleworth kicked all goals.

Rain, which started to fall early this morning, sort of put a damper on the homecoming festivities. Despite the unfavorable conditions the grads came by auto, interurban and steam lines to help root for their alma mater. The town was fittingly decorated for the occasion.

The Gophers left for home tonight satisfied they had done their best which they did. Coach Spaulding was satisfied with the result and remarked he does not care how badly his teams are beaten as long as they fight.

JUDGE M'KINLEY, OLD HAWKEYE STAR, SEES HIS ALMA MATER WIN

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Among the interested spectators at today's football game between Iowa and Minnesota was Judge McKinley of Chicago, who played end on the teams of 1895 and 1896 and was considered a reliable performer in his day. The '95 eleven was the sixth team in the history of the university and was coached by Sport Donnelley, former Princeton player.

COE WINS GRID BATTLE FROM KNOX COLLEGE

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The football game between Knox and Coe colleges resulted 20 to 6 in favor of Coe. Capt. Harold Turner of the visitors broke his ankle in the third quarter. Coe scored first in the second quarter on a short pass and Wernimont kicked goal. In the third quarter McKever scored on a pass from Skinner. Adams blocked the kick. The third touchdown for Coe came when Collins went through the line on the right side. Wernimont kicked goal. Knox scored late on a pass from Ludwick to Verner, who ran 55 yards for a touchdown. PURPLE AERIAL GAME BEATS PURDUE, 24-13 first quarter, but Charles Kelly, rated as a second stringer, found himself and made sensational gains through the Purdue line before he was relieved. Mikkelson, playing tackle for the first time this year, ripped open the left side of the Purdue line and made possible many lengthy gains. The Purdue full backs, E. Murphy and Wellman, gained the most for their team, although Worth and Eversman were able to register several first downs against the Purple wall.

Success of the Purple passing game was in no small part due to the ability of Taylor and Johnson to hook the pigskin out of the air on long chances. Both the ends redeemed themselves after their mediocre showing against Illinois. Purdue's ends, Swank and Landis, fought hard for the passes sent at them, but the ground gained by the aerial route for Purdue was slight. The greater part of the battle was waged in Boilermaker territory, with the visitors on the defense.

Purple Question Decisions.

Northwestern was not a little dissatisfied over some decisions and penalties which seemed doubtful. After Purdue's first touchdown the Purple seemed to lose hope for the remainder of the quarter, but in the second period a new spirit took possession of the outfit and it was all over for Purdue.

Purdue was supported by an enthusiastic little rooting section, which stood by the team till the end, but could scarcely be heard above the roar of the Purple stands. The team offered a fighting game, but was no match for the heavier Purple outfit.

Between halves the Northwestern freshmen and sophomores staged a pushball game to decide the yearly class quarrel. After ten minutes of heated shoving the frosh were given the decision, although they failed to move the ball far into the enemy territory.

Homecomers Parade Field.

Previous to the game the homecoming parade circled the field, led by the seventy piece band. It was comprised of approximately 200 floats and decorataed automobiles. Northwestern's victory was freely predicted, even by Andrew Gump and family. Following the parade Gens. Van Horn Moseley and Nathan MacChesney reviewed the R. O. T. C. unit of the school in celebration of Armistice day.

Coach Thistlethwaite was given a tremendous ovation after the game by the Purple rooters, who surrounded the field house to which the mentor and his team had retired. The band ceased playing and the head coach appeared and gave a short talk, each word of which was wildly applauded. George Trafton, line coach, also was given a round of cheers.

"Back in Conference."

Followers of the Purple look upon the victory as the return of Northwestern to conference football. Although Purdue ranks low in conference standings, the type of game played yesterday was symbolic of what alumni and students alike expect from the team next year. The victory also heartened the team from its struggle with Iowa in Iowa City Nov. 25.

KENMORE TO PLAY DRAKES.

Kenmore Cardinals and the Drake Bulldogs clash at 2:30 today at Senn field in what promises to be a hard fought combat.

KENOSHA SENDS FORT SHERIDAN "WEST" BY 20 TO 0

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Coach Munsell's troop E grid machine ripped through the Fort Sheridan eleven for a 20 to 0 victory here today. It was a ragged game that held few thrills. The stars for Kenosha were Chris Jensen, with two touchdowns, and Gearhardt one. Madjeska booted two goals for the extra points.

CHICAGO BOOSTERS PLAY.

BUCKEYES FALL BEFORE FIERCE MAROON ATTACK

stopped by the intercepting of a forward pass.

Judy Stars in Play.

Ohio had played clean, hard, and clever football under the leadership of the youngster Judy, who in the first two minutes of the battle seized an opportunity given by a Chicago fumble and ordered a drop kick which gave the Buckeyes 3 points. Through all that half the Maroons could do nothing save prove that they were more powerful. The stubborn Ohio line, yielding to the charges of Zorn and the Thomas boys, at times steadied and refused to permit consistent advances.

Nor could the Ohioans gain much, save through the fine punting of Hoge and Workman. The latter, on one occasion, standing on his own five yard line, kicked the ball ninety-five yards over the Chicago line.

Chicago was the better team, stronger, more resourceful, and faster. Twice after Ohio completed forward passes the receivers were so slow they were dragged down from behind, and nothing else saved Chicago from a 15-14 defeat and another Princeton mournfest.

Backs Accomplish Wonders.

The play of Workman at half in the first period, the work of Pyott at all times—in plunging and kicking—and the smashing of Zorn and Harry Thomas were magnificent, but scarcely seen by the crowd was the beautiful line opening by Lewis and Pondelik, aided by King. In the second half they split the Ohio line open and tore paths for the attack.

One play, a forward pass by Strohmeier to Harry Thomas, stands out in the game. It came late in the fourth quarter, when Strohmeier, dropping back to throw, dodged three charging Buckeyes, made a thirty-five yard throw across the field, and Thomas, leaping and twisting, caught the ball and came near another score.

The Maroons are being banqueted tonight—the Chicago grads and rooters singing their praises—but Ohio feels that its honor is safe—the team fought, and lost without dishonor.

TRUMBULLS AT HEGEWISCH.

Trumbull Tigers of South Chicago and the undefeated Hegewisch A. A. clash today as one of the semi-finals in the Midwest league.

HYSTERICAL MOB OF ILLINI ROOTERS CHEER TIDINGS OF VICTORY

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Three thousand Illini fans receiving returns of the Wisconsin-Illinois game at Madison this afternoon resembled a hysterical cheering mob throughout the remainder of the game after Illinois scored their three points in the third quarter. Illinois is happy tonight and indications are that the 150 piece band will be sent to Chicago next Saturday for the Chicago game.

BUTLER TRIMS DEPAUW FOR 8TH WIN IN ROW

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Butler college won its eighth straight victory of the season here this afternoon by defeating Depauw university by a score of 19 to 0. The visitors held the Butlerites to a lone touchdown in the first half, but in the third period the locals added two more, one of which came from a recovered fumbled punt. Butler's goal line was never in danger. Next Saturday Notre Dame meets Butler.

Middie-Georgia Tech Negotiations Called Off

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—Negotiations for a football game in 1922 between the Navy and Georgia Tech at Atlanta were called off definitely in a letter from Rear Admiral Wilson, commandant of the Naval academy, made public today by Senator Harris of Georgia. Admbiral Wilson wrote that it would be impossible for the Navy team to go to Atlanta because it would interfere with the cadets' school routine.

DORT SIX

From every quarter comes praise for the new Dort Six. People say they have never seen so many real advantages combined in a car so low in price. In many respects its forty-five horsepower motor is years ahead of ordinary design—every working part bathed in oil under all conditions. Come in and see this demonstrated. The Dort Four, its desirable companion, now represents greater value than ever before, due to conspicuous improvements and reduction in price.

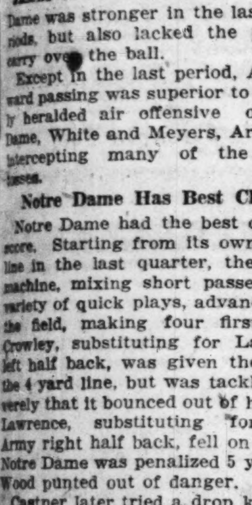
West Point, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Notre Dame and Army battled to peace without victory before a crowd that crammed the enlarged stands on the plains today. Neither team scored, though each had chances, the Army in each of the first two periods and the Hoosiers in the last quarter.



JAMES CROWLEY.

The Cadets were on the offensive throughout the first half, but could not maintain a consistent attack. Notre Dame was stronger in the last two periods, but also lacked the punch to carry over the ball.

Except in the last period, Army forward passing was superior to the widely heralded air offensive of Notre Dame, White and Meyers, Army ends, intercepting many of the Hoosier tosses.

Notre Dame Has Best Chance.

Notre Dame had the best chance to score. Starting from its own 42 yard line in the last quarter, the Hoosier machine, mixing short passes with a variety of quick plays, advanced down the field, making four first downs. Crowley, substituting for Layden at left half back, was given the ball on the 4 yard line, but was tackled so severely that it bounced out of his grasp. Lawrence, substituting for Dodd, Army right half back, fell on the ball. Notre Dame was penalized 5 yards and Wood punted out of danger.

Castner later tried a drop kick from the 40 yard line, but failed. Garbisch, Army center, also failed when he tried a placement kick from a similar distance. As the game ended Wood attempted a drop kick from mid-field for the Army.

Punting Duel.

The long punting of Castner and Wood, the opposing full backs, was one of the game's features. There were several long range duels, but neither eleven gained an advantage by this route.

Army got down to Notre Dame's 12 yard line in the opening quarter, but could not score. It was the Cadets' best chance of the day.

In the final quarter both teams resorted to frequent attempted forward passing, but none were very successful. In all Notre Dame completed five passes out of twenty attempts. Army made but three of their eight overhead plays go. For most part their line tosses grounded. Layden did intercept one army pass just as the second period ended. The Notre Dame delayed pass caused Army a lot of worry and was a ground gaining play for the Hoosiers.

CORNELL RIDES OVER DARTMOUTH ROUGH SHOD, 23-0

New York, Nov. 11.—Game, but ineffective, Dartmouth eleven was crushed, 23 to 0, at the Polo grounds today by Cornell's hard hitting machine. SHOWING ONE REASON WHY NORTHWESTERN BEAT PURDUE

"Chuck" Palmer received three long passes from McElwain in the Northwestern-Purdue game yesterday and scored three touchdowns. Photo shows Palmer smashing the Boilermaker defense after receiving a pass in the third quarter. Purdue was unable to withstand the onslaughts of the Purple backs. Northwestern interference aided materially in winning the game. Above can be seen two Purple men blocking off the visitors and keeping them from tackling Palmer. After Bill McElwain had been inserted in the Purple lineup in the second quarter Northwestern's passing attack was launched and the game tied within a few minutes. The above play was similar to dozens which characterized the driving attack of the winners.

BELOIT IS STOPPED BY LAKE FOREST, 12-3

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Lake Forest defeated Beloit today in the final Beloit home game, 12 to 3. The North Shore eleven displayed a slashing attack and defense and had Beloit stopped early.

Beloit scored at the start of the second quarter when Dawson was sent into the game long enough to boot a perfect drop kick across from the 30 yard line. Late in the third quarter, with Beloit in her own territory, a bad pass from center was sent wild and it was Lake Forest's first down on the 30 yard line. A neatly masked forward pass from Pierce to Jackson took the ball across for the first Lake Forest score. The try at goal was blocked.

In the fourth period Beloit punted to Jackson on his own 51 yard line and the flashy Lake Forest captain sprinted through the entire Beloit team for the second score. The try for goal went wild. Lineup:

LAWRENCE, 20; RIPON, 0

Ripon, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Lawrence college defeated Ripon squad in Ripon's homecoming game, 20 to 0. The first quarter was in Ripon's favor, but in the second Lawrence scored a drop kick, making score 3-0 end of first half. Beginning the second half Lawrence received the kickoff and marched the length of the field for a touchdown, later adding another touchdown and a drop kick. This leaves Lawrence chief contender for the Little Five conference championship.

N.W. COLLEGE HAS IT EASY BEATING MOUNT MORRIS

Northwestern college of Naperville ran all over Mount Morris college yesterday, winning, 45 to 0, at Naperville. Capt. Kaiser was the outstanding star of the victor's attack, scoring three touchdowns, kicking all three goals after touchdown and booting a field goal. On defense Schwab and Meyer starred for Northwestern. Mount Morris was unable to form a defense against Naperville's forward passes and end runs. Lineup:

STANDS FALL, 7 HURT OKLAHOMA ELEVEN BEATS MISSOURI TEAM

Norman, Okla., Nov. 11.—Staging a fighting comeback in the fourth quarter after Oklahoma had gained a lead of three touchdowns, Missouri Tigers were unable to catch up and went down to defeat here today, 18 to 14.

The Oklahoma victory was marred by the collapse of a specially constructed stand on the north side of the field during the first quarter, dropping 1,000 spectators several feet to the ground. Only seven received injuries, however, and before nightfall they were all discharged from the hospital. John Franing of Norman sustained a broken wrist. The uninjured spectators gathered on the side lines and watched the game through. Fifteen thousand homecomers were on hand for the battle.

The aerial route helped the Oklahoma eleven to victory. Short passes followed by long runs carried the ball down the field and Missouri seemed unable to hold up a defense.

Missouri opened up a brilliant, shifting attack to score her two touchdowns in the final period. Bond carried the ball over for the first Missouri counter after a march down the field from Missouri's 40 yard line. For the second Tiger score, Knight passed 40 yards to Haynes, who ran 15 yards across the goal. Hayes fumbled when tackled over the goal line, but Bunker of Missouri recovered for the touchdown.

GEORGETOWN IS DEFEATED, 19 TO 7, BY GEORGIA TECH

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11.—Georgia Tech defeated Georgetown university, 19 to 7, before a big crowd on the locals' field today. The Golden Tornado eleven got off to a flying start, Brewster going over for a touchdown in the first few minutes of play. Frequent fumbling and penalties marred play in the first half, which gave evidence of Georgia's superior attack.

McDonough notched the second Tech goal in the second quarter after some brilliant open and straight formations had advanced the ball well into Georgetown territory. Falvin went over for the visitors in the third period, skirting right end for 12 yards and a touchdown. McDonough tallied the final points in the same period for Georgia on a line lunge. The last quarter was bitterly fought and scoreless.

HAMBURGS MEET VISITATIONS.

A smart grid battle is the claim of both teams when Tommy German's Hamburgs clash with the Visitation Blues at Boyce field, Root and Union streets, today. The clubs are battling for the Thomas Wilson trophy. The Hamburgs have a clean slate in the 145 pound class.

NEBRASKA TAKES 20-0 VICTORY FROM KANSAS

Lawrence, Kan., Nov. 11.—Doped to win by three touchdowns, Nebraska threw in another for good measure in the annual Kansas-Nebraska clash today, taking the game 20 to 0.

The scoring was done in the first, second and fourth periods. Late in the first quarter McAdams attempted to punt from behind the Kansas goal line. The kick was blocked by Peterson, but a Kansas man fell on the ball, Nebraska scoring a two point safety. In the second quarter Scherer intercepted a Kansas pass and with a clear field ran 40 yards for a touchdown. Dewitz kicked goal.

In the final period Hartley carried the ball over for a touchdown and Russell for two more, after gains were made on straight football. Dewitz failed twice in three attempts at goal. Lineup:

SYRACUSE ROUTS CANADIANS, 32-0

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 11.—American football proved its superiority over Canadian rugby here this afternoon, Syracuse university winning its second annual international gridiron contest against McGill, 32 to 0. Although it was understood that American rules would govern the game, the officials were very lenient and allowed the Montreal players great freedom in their use of the lateral forward pass.

Passes of that nature, sometimes progressing through the hands of seven different McGill players on a wide flank dash, furnished a unique spectacular element to the international struggle, and although most of them were technically illegal, all were allowed. The lineups:

"Y" College Grid Team Beats Wheaton by 31-0

Y. M. C. A. college of Chicago defeated Wheaton college at Wheaton yesterday, 31 to 0. Wilson and Rose, "Y" college ends, starred on the defense, frequently bringing down opposing oval luggers without gains and on occasions throwing them for losses. Elgin and Munna were chief ground gainers for the victors.

IOWA WESLEYAN TEAM QUITS FIELD! FORFEITS BATTLE TO CARTHAGE

CARTHAGE, Ill., Nov. 11.—Carthage college won a forfeited game over Iowa Wesleyan here today when the latter team walked off the field in the second kuarter following a disputed decision. An onside kick, Lyons to Sandelin, which Referee Calihan of Knox did not see, led to the dispute. Carthage appealed to Umpire Benjamin of Normal U. High, who ruled the ball in possession of Carthage on the Wesleyan 3 yard line. The score at the time was 3 to 0, Carthage having scored in the first quarter.

BEARS CRUMPLE WASHINGTON GRIDDERS, 45-7

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 11.—University of California's powerful football machine crumpled the hitherto undefeated University of Washington eleven today, 45 to 7. Washington showed a flash of form in the first two periods, but California easily penetrated the Purple and Gold defense in the last half. Washington braced in the last period, but too late for another score.

LITTLE GIANTS LOSE HARD FIGHT TO W. & J.

Washington, Pa., Nov. 11.—The Little Giants from Wabash college, tackling savagely and fighting every minute, made a game attempt today to stop the victorious rush of the Washington and Jefferson eleven—and failed. Coach Neale's powerful and undefeated machine battered its way to a 32 to 6 victory.

The Wabash touchdown, made in the final period when Aul recovered a fumble and sprinted 55 yards, won the fighting visitors an ovation from the W. and J. stands. It was the spectacular play of the game.

Wabash Is Outclassed.

The Presidents were faster, more powerful, and had a more diversified attack. A delayed drive through the line was the only play that gained ground for Wabash.

In the first period a forward pass put the ball on the Wabash 1 yard line and Futhey went over. In the second quarter Spillers got a touchdown on a 35 yard run, and Erickson made one after a Wabash fumble had been recovered by Neale's men. In the third period two severe penalties stopped W. and J. when it threatened to score.

Aiken dove over the line for a touchdown in the fourth period. Then W. and J. started to march toward another score, but a fumble gave Aul his chance.

Futhey in Long Run.

In the closing minutes, Futhey returned the compliment by grabbing a Wabash pass and touching the ball down after a 45 yard sprint. Lineup:

PENN STATE TRIMS CARNEGIE TECH, 10-0

State College, Pa., Nov. 11.—Penn State, displaying old time form, defeated Carnegie Tech, 10 to 0, today, before a record breaking Pennsylvania day crowd of 15,000. The Tech team, which had tied Washington and Jefferson, made a game fight and twice in the first half got to State's 10 yard line, but was held. The brilliant work of Harry Wilson of State on off-tackle runs was the outstanding feature. His brilliant open field running enabled him to score State's touchdown on a short line buck in the second period. Palm's field goal in the last minute in the same period gave State its extra point. Tech attempted a forward passing comeback, but failed.

St. Xavier Fight Unavailing Against Middies, 52 to 0

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 11.—Outweighed by an average of twelve pounds, St. Xavier's college of Cincinnati put up a plucky game against the Annapolis midshipmen here today but went down to defeat, 52 to 0. Navy invaded the opposing goal line eight times, but were successful in only half of the number of tries for points by way of placement goal from scrimmage. Lineup:

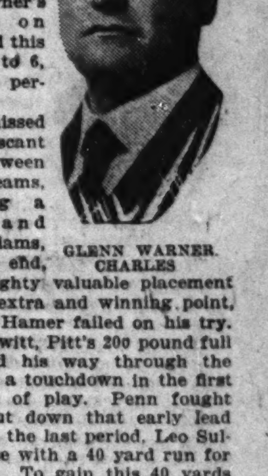
Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Pitt's supremacy over Penn still stands. By the margin of a single point the Red and Blue felt the sting of defeat at the hands of Glenn Warner's Panthers on Franklin field this afternoon, 7 to 6, before 42,000 persons.



GLENN WARNER. CHARLES

Only one missed goal was the scant margin between the two teams, each scoring a touchdown and "Pie" Williams, Pitt's right end, kicking a mighty valuable placement goal for the extra and winning point, while "Tex" Hamer failed on his try.

"Tiny" Hewitt, Pitt's 200 pound full back, crashed his way through the Penn line for a touchdown in the first four minutes of play. Penn fought bravely to cut down that early lead and finally in the last period, Leo Sullivan cut loose with a 40 yard run for a touchdown. To gain this 40 yards and the goal line "Sully" zigzagged his way more than 60 yards.

IOWA PREPS AND ENGLEWOOD PLAY TO 6 TO 6 TIE

Clinton, Ia., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Clinton high school football team held Englewood high school to 6 to 6 tie in a stiff game here today. Moore of Clinton was easily the star, with Stevens and Verdell, best for the visitors. Clinton outplayed the heavier eleven. Stevens made Englewood's touchdown after a beautiful pass brought the ball within one foot of the line. Clinton's points were made by Moore on an intercepted pass in the last few minutes. Lineup:

GARTH FOLLETT.

Capt. Edgar (Farmer) Madsen led his Oak Park High eleven to a 13 to 12 victory over Proviso at Oak Park yesterday in a memorable battle. Oak Park won when Rex Drechsler kicked one goal from touchdown, while Proviso failed in one attempt and on the second a penalty was called and they were denied right to try for goal.

Charles Kassell, Proviso right end, the great star of his team, snatched an Oak Park fumble on his own 40 yard line in the first quarter and ran 60 yards for a touchdown. That started the scoring.

Holland next took Bernard's kickoff and ran to the Oak Park 30 yard line, where he was tackled so viciously by Madsen that he fumbled and Bernard of Oak Park recovered. Then the home team started a sweep down the field, with Lee Newburn crashing the line repeatedly for long gains. He took the ball to the Proviso 5 yard line, from where Pratt bucked over for a touchdown.

How Proviso Lost Point.

Drechsler then went in for a try at goal, which he made, but the point was disallowed on Umpire Friedland's ruling that there was holding in the line.

Proviso again took the lead near the end of the half, two long passes, Holland to Bullard and Holland to Kassell, placing the ball on the Oak Park 5 yard line, and Garth Follett circling end for a touchdown. Proviso lost its try for goal when Center Pabodie raised the ball off the ground without passing it and was downed by Capt. Madsen. Umpire Friedland at the same time called an Oak Park offside, but the referee ruled in favor of Oak Park.

Coach Winters' fighting youths came back strong in the third quarter. Newburn again began a line assault that took the oval to the Proviso 5 yard line, where it was stopped. Follett's hurried punt went out of bounds at his 25 yard line.

Drechsler Again Appears.

Drechsler again was sent in and tore off 7 yards. Drechsler passed to Gordon for 5 yards. Newburn made 9 yards on two plunges and Hall made it first down. The ball was on Proviso's 3 yard line—and Hall cross bucked over for the touchdown. Drechsler kicked the goal that was to prove the winning point.

Madsen's work in the line was the outstanding feature in Oak Park's play. Besides Drechsler, Newburn, Hall, Ullman, Bernard, and Ellason of Oak Park and Follett and K. Bullard of Proviso were other bright luminaries.

CRANE-AUSTIN TIE, 6-6.

Crane and Austin battled to a 6 to 6 tie at Pyott park yesterday morning, neither having the pushing power necessary to break away for a running lead. Austin was seriously handicapped by the absence of Simpson and Robinson, stellar halves, who were injured. Crane scored first when Cox, left tackle, completed a pass from Austin's 10 yard line. Coltrin, captain of the Austin crew, galloped more than 40 yards for his team's score in the third period when Crane fumbled. Lineup:

EDGAR MADSEN.

Captain of Oak Park high, yesterday led his team to a 13 to 12 victory over Proviso at Oak Park. Madsen is one of the greatest linemen in the Suburban league, and his play yesterday may have earned him the place as center on the mythical "all" team in his circuit.

Prep Football Games

BEATING Deerfield, 25 to 7, at Evanston yesterday, Evanston football team now occupies the same place as Oak Park on the pedestal of fame as Suburban league leader. Oak Park and Evanston met earlier in the season, playing to a scoreless tie. With Ritchie, smashing Evanston full back, ripping through the Highland Parkers' line for long gains, the Deerfield defense appeared lacking in ability. Deerfield made its touchdown when Watt received a long forward pass and on the next play plunged over. Lineup:

Hyde Park yesterday wrote the story of a football team that found itself. Humbled two weeks ago by Lindblom, the Blue and White gridders crushed Harrison Tech, 59 to 7, at Stagg field. The Blue and White was everything a great scholastic eleven should be, with a powerful, resourceful attack and with only one exception showed well nigh impenetrable defense. Considering that Harrison the previous Saturday had defeated Lindblom, the overthrowing of the dope, especially by so heavy a score, was a monumental upset.

Coach "Butch" Scanlan's line, which in the Lindblom game showed a lack of fight, woeful slowless and inexperience, had become a powerful wall yesterday, resisting practically all attempts to gain by straight football.

Harrison Starts Well.

Harrison, after holding, 13 to 7, in the first quarter, virtually gave up in the second period. Battered helpless by the heavier Stony Island avenue machine, two of its men painfully injured, and outclassed in all departments of play, Harrison did well to keep the score from mounting even higher.

Cushna and McFatridge were the injured lads, the former suffering a badly wrenched back and the latter a wrenched ankle. On only one occasion did Harrison show an offensive that shoved Hyde Park back. That was in the first period, when, after Hyde Park scored two touchdowns, Harrison braced and swept down the field, Baumracher plunging over the goal.

Duvall's Passing Brilliant.

Capt. "Chuck" Duvall, playing his most brilliant game of the season, gave a performance of forward passing seldom bettered on a Chicago prep gridiron. Time after time he hurled the oval to a waiting teammate with unerring accuracy, either for short or long distances. His line plunging was the sort that made him a sensation last season.

Hannaway, a slight lad, furnished the day's greatest feature, an eighty-two yard run for a touchdown on the return of a punt in which he circled, cut back, and eluded tackler after tackler. McGivern and Wilson were other stars in the Hyde Park back field. Lineup:

SCHURZ CRUSHES LANE, 25-0.

STRONG AKRON TEAM BATTLES DRISCOLL AND CARDS HERE TODAY

With a whole string of ex-college grid stars in their lineup, Akron Indians will clash with the Chicago Cardinals at Comiskey park this afternoon in one of the most notable of the National Pro Fotball league battles.

The Cards, victors in every game they have played this season, have strengthened their aerial attack with the addition of Eddie Anderson, 1921 captain and star wing man of Notre Dame. The Akronites, three year olds in professional fotball, have been victorious in all but five of their forty-seven encounters.

"Rip" King, 200 pound full back and one of the most brilliant booters in the history of West Virginia football, is one of the most notable of the invading eleven. Other college stars who will buck the Cardinal line tomorrow are "Curley" Kramer, half back, Hamline; "Untz" Brewer, half back, Maryland; "Pep" Sheeks, quarter and drop kicker, North Dakota; Jim Flowers, center, and Bob Spiers, tackle, Ohio State, and Benny Corcoran, end, Georgetown. The Akronites' back field averages more than 200 pounds.

Elevated trains stop at 35th street, only a few blocks from Comiskey park, where the contest will be fought. The management of the Cardinals has arranged to admit two boys under 16 to the game for the price of one full ticket. The lineup will be:

NAPERVILLE SECONDS COP.

Though Naperville's second squad held the ball during the greater part of the game against Wheaton seconds, 162, at Wheaton yesterday, it was not until the final quarter the visitors were able to score. Perry, left end, recovered a fumble on Wheaton's 25 yard line and dashed across.

A redskin invasion of Chicago will occur this afternoon, when Jim Thorpe's Oorang Indians and the Chicago Bears come to grips at Cubs' park, the Marion, O., squad being composed exclusively of braves from various tribes.

The Indians have developed a notable offensive, consisting of passing and a rangy open field attack. Most of the visitors have won their blankets in Carlisle, Boutwel, Sanook, Downwind, Busch, War Eagle, Running Deer, and Thunder having learned their football in that school. Long Time Sleep, the huge right tackle, is a Flathead from Montana, graduated from Haskell, where he developed into one of the greatest of Indian athletes.

Visitors Have Power.

The visitors have a wonderful defensive forward wall and a speedy backfield. Winneshiek, center, though the lightest man who will start, is a skillful player with heaps of speed. Hill and Busch, guards, weighing 200 and 220, respectively, and Long Time Sleep and War Eagle, tackles, are looked upon as capable of turning aside the most powerful plunges of the Chicagoans. H. Broker will feed the ball to the halves and full. He manages the team like a good chief.

Laurie Walquist, former Illini luminary, probably will start at full for the Bears, Pearce and J. Sternaman working at quarter, with E. Sternaman and Stinchcomb, all-American end, from Ohio, taking care of the halves. Blacklock of Michigan Aggies and Scott of Wisconsin, all-American men, will be at the tackles' positions.

Thorpe in Exhibition.

The bleachers will be open to kids under 16 years of age at half price. Besides the grid battle proper, Jim Thorpe, famous coach of the invading outfit, will put on a punting exhibition, and a group of Indians will add a touch of the wild and wooly by staging a war dance before the game begins.

ST. LOUIS COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL ELEVEN WINS OVER LATIN BY 7 TO 6

St. Louis Country Day high came to Chicago yesterday and conquered the Latin school eleven, 7 to 6, in the battle at Cub park, La Baune planting the pigskin behind the goal posts for the visitors in the second quarter when the local led, 6 to 0.

In the second half neither team was able to push the ball across the mark, though several threats were made by each. Latin counted their score in the first quarter when after pushing the oval to St. Louis' 45 yard line, Meloy completed a pass from Collins, planting the ball on the 10 yard line. Agar plunged the remaining yardage. Meloy failed to kick goal.

La Baune scored in the second frame, dashing around end for a 15 yard gain and a touchdown. Welch booted the drop kick. Earlier in the game, Carrol had sprinted fifty yards, putting the ball on St. Louis' 20 yard line, from where Meloy failed on a drop kick. Lineup:

Winter Comfort-Summer Freedom—
Two Paiges at about the price of one

Here is the car that meets every man's or woman's need. Solves the family discussion over open and enclosed cars. Comfort and protection around town in winter. For a winter country trip, sedan comfort and touring car performance.

In summer a true touring car with a top that goes up or down at will. All the openness that makes the call of the country so delightful. Seven passenger capacity—room for friends, luggage, camp equipment.

In winter it is a sedan in appearance. All glass enclosed. Tight and weather-proof. Not a rattle or leak. Glass set in rubber. Thin steel frames giving full vision—very important for safety in winter driving. And featheredge rubber around outside edges of frames to close all openings tightly.

And wherever you go, Paige Six-66 performance to make going a delight. Are you caught behind a plodding horse team? Never mind. Gears won't bother you. The Paige can crawl at 2 miles an hour in high. When you see a chance to get ahead, just step on the throttle and you go from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds.

In the country, hills melt away, other cars are left behind. Try your car on Hubbard Hill. See whether it will match this Paige performance—35 miles an hour at the top from a standing start in high gear at the bottom. Then you'll want a Paige Six-66.

This combined winter and summer Paige—the finest, handsomest car Paige ever built—really two cars in one—costs only $2385 f. o. b. factory. So great a value is the Paige that only one fine car now outsells it. See this new type Paige today.

CAPTAIN ALCOCK WINS RICH CUP RACE AT PIMLICO

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The Pimlico autumn season came to a close today with one of the greatest surprises of the meeting when W. S. Kilmer's great gelding, Exterminator, was almost disgracefully beaten in the Pimlico cup at two and a quarter miles. The victory went to the Quincy stable's Captain Alcock, which won handily by two lengths from J. S. Cosden's Paul Jones. A sixteenth of a mile back was Exterminator for third among the five starters, while Exodus and Lady Emmeline had been pulled up when beaten.

The race was worth $7,100 to the winner, and it was just such a purse that was needed to put Exterminator in first place among American money winners, a place now held by Man o' War. It seems very doubtful now if he will achieve his goal this year. Captain Alcock paid in the mutuels $16.20, $6.00, $3.20; Paul Jones, $6.70, $3.10; Exterminator, $2.40.

Campaign Too Long.

It was possible to find in the running of the race reasons for the defeat of the big horse, but the true reason probably is that he had too hard a campaign, running under heavy impost, and that the effect told on him today. For a mile and a half he ran as of old, and then suddenly he faltered and the others went past him with no trouble.

In the short distance of a sixteenth of a mile he dropped from first to third, five lengths back, and it was quite clear then that he was beaten. He would not have been in the money but for the fact that Exodus cracked a furlong further back and then ran to the outside fence, where Thomas pulled him up. Lady Emmeline was far back at all stages and was completely outclassed, so Exterminator took third without opposition.

Regular Jockey Ill.

It was reported a few days ago that Exterminator had hurt a foot, but his trainer announced before the race today that "old slim" was as good as ever. He was too soon to see his mistake. It was also necessary to get another rider today, as Albert Johnson was ill. Marinelli was substituted and he did not use good judgment in the early running, even though Exterminator was not his old self.

MRS. H. H. FRAZEE TO GET DIVORCE, HOME, AND CASH

New York, Nov. 11.—[United Press.]—That a divorce be granted to Mrs. Elsie Frazee, wife of Harry H. Frazee, the principal owner of the Boston Red Sox, was recommended today by Referee Abraham Stern, who has been investigating the case.

The referee also recommended that the agreements privately entered into by the Frazees some time ago should be continued. These provide that Frazee, who has large theatrical interests, give his Chicago home, "Oak Hearth," to his wife, give her $40,000 in cash, to be paid over a period of two years, and $50,000 in insurance on his life. After her death the sum is to go to Harry Jr., 18 years old, whose custody was given the mother.

ST. PROCOPIUS, 25; ELMH'RST, 0

St. Procopius collegians drubbed Elmhurst 25 to 0 at Cermak park yesterday afternoon. They scored four touchdowns with smashing line drives and long runs, in which Cilek and Kruml played stellar roles, before 3,000 fans. Elmhurst gained little with aerial work, while the Procopius forwards were able to stop short their line plays. In the second period Kruml sprinted 40 yards to plant the oval on Elmhurst's 10 yard line. Cilek in the final quarter scampered 30 yards to score. Lineup:

PRO GAME TO RACINE.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—The Horlick Racine eleven blanked the Columbus Panhandlers, 34 to 0, today in a National Pro Football league game. Racine made downs twenty-three times, while the visitors were able to make downs but six times. Nesser's toe kept his mates from an even worse defeat.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

GAME BIRDS ARE ABUNDANT THIS YEAR.

If there ever was an autumn when a fellow could shoulder his shootin' iron and sally forth with high hopes of finding plenty of birds, this is it. Waterfowl, quail, rabbits, all kinds of small game, have apparently thrived this past season, and the statement is true not only of Illinois but many other states.

From the west come reports of an abundance of ducks and geese. In the state of Washington they had a great "party" on the opening of the duck season. Doc Brown, who lives out North Dakota way, says there are all kinds of birds, although the warm weather has slowed up shooting, and now comes Fish Berg, our official scout, with reports about the abundance of birds in Illinois.

From downstate comes the same brand of glad news for the hunter. At Morris, Ill., are many young mallards, also some teals and pintails. At Henry the swamps are alive with ducks, and once a norther with a bit of snow stirs them up there will be some shooting. Old timers down there say they have never seen birds pile in so early and in such numbers. And snipe! Coming home from Canada I saw flock after flock of snipe from the train, swirling above the marshes in Dakota and Minnesota. Fish Berg says there are millions downstate, too.

From Michigan we have also heard about the large numbers of quail this year, and some sportsmen have also reported an unusually healthy number of woodcock.

WHERE WAS EXTERMINATOR?

The 1920 winner of the Kentucky Derby finished second to Captain Alcock in the Pimlico cup race yesterday. Exterminator showed the effects of too much campaigning, and was a sixteenth of a mile back in third place.

JOHN PAUL JONES.

START DRIVE TODAY FOR ILLINOIS RACING

BY FRENCH LANE.

First steps to give Illinois a racing bill, legalizing the pari-mutuel system of wagering, will be taken today, when officials of the Illinois Jockey club meet at their headquarters in the Garrick theater building. The meeting will get under way at 3 o'clock.

That a majority in both the Illinois house and senate will favor the proposed bill is the announcement made by Jockey club officials. They are also of the opinion that Gov. Small will welcome a chance to write a clean racing bill into the Illinois statutes. Scores of downstate newspapers have pledged their support, according to the local Jockey club heads.

Preliminary plans for the advancement of the bill will be made at today's meeting. The legislature convenes at Springfield in January and a campaign that will enlist statewide support for a racing bill will be started at once.

Plans will also be made today for an early meeting at Hawthorne next season, opening on May 19 and closing June 9. A great many improvements are planned at the historic west side track during the winter and spring.

Sparta III. and Ulster United.

Victoria and Pullman Car Works.

Jugo-Slava and Norwegian-Americans.

ST. GEORGE'S LEAGUE.

Sunflower and Ivy Lodge at 52d street and Cottage Grove [10:30 a. m.].

Games start at 2:30. Pullman-Canadian game postponed.

Two excellent soccer matches are carded in the major soccer league this afternoon. The Olympia team, holders of the Peel cup and league champions, will meet the Thistles at Roosevelt road and Cicero avenue. So far the Scotchmen have showed great improvement over last year and its looks quite on the cards they may upset the champions, who have lost only one game in two years.

The Bricklayers, who have strengthened their team materially, will invade Riverview park to clash with the Swedish-Americans, and this should be an excellent contest. The Pullman-Canadian game, scheduled at Pullman, has been postponed.

JOE STECHER SIGNED FOR FRIBERG BOUT

Joe Stecher of Nebraska, who scissored Paul Martinson to defeat at the Star and Garter on Friday night in the fifth round of their scheduled six round bout, was signed yesterday by the Midwest Athletic club to go twelve rounds with John Friberg on Nov. 27. Friberg's recent draw here with John Pesek earned him the match with Stecher.

Ald. Olson, chairman of the city athletic commission, who saw the Stecher-Martinson bout, told Stecher that if he did as well against Friberg efforts would be made to get him a match with "Strangler" Lewis for the heavyweight championship.

Paul Prehn, University of Illinois wrestling coach, is out after Lou Talaber's scalp. Prehn last week earned a verdict over Billy Shober in straight falls at Mason City, Ia., and feels he has the same chance to flop Talaber. From Talaber's camp it was intimated that Prehn would be accommodated. Talaber claims one victory over Prehn and is confident he can repeat.

WALTER GOLVIN SOLD BY CUBS TO COAST CLUB

Secretary John Seys of the Cubs announced last night that Walter Golvin, the promising young first sacker who was loaned to St. Paul of the American association and recalled this fall, had been sold to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league.

Golvin made the training trip with the Cubs last spring. He looked so good that they kept a string on him. He was the leading first sacker of the association and helped St. Paul win the pennant.

GROVES LEADS TRAP FIELD AT LINCOLN PARK

At the Lincoln Park Gun club shoot yesterday afternoon Jim Groves made the best showing, breaking 117 out of 125 targets. M. A. Reed of New York A. C., nonresident member of the local club, broke 112 out of 125, twice hitting twenty-five straight. L. A. Ensminger scored 47 out of 50 shots, Reed 46, and M. L. Bowers 45. George Peck cracked 71 out of 75 clays. In the doubles Ward Burton hit 41 out of 50.

SEASON OPENS AT SINAI SATURDAY

Sinai Social center will open the indoor swimming season next Saturday. Events for swimmers of all classes will be staged. Jackson natatorium, Chicago Hebrew institute, Bellfuss natatorium, Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. DESCHAMPS, CUNY ASK RELEASE OF SIKI SUSPENSION

SIKI IS PINCHED

[Copyright: 1922: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The misfortunes of Battling Siki continue and now are taking on a distinctly comical turn. Tonight the victor of France's idol, Carpentier, was arrested just as any ordinary citizen. Wishing to celebrate Armistice day in a manner worthy of his position, Siki donned the uniform of the famous Algerian rifles, wherein he served during the war, and went proudly promenading along the boulevards. An inquisitive policeman asked by what right he was wearing the uniform. As Siki long ago was demobilized, he could not show any such right, and he was marched to the police station. When the commissioner learned his identity Siki was released, but he will be prosecuted for illegally wearing the uniform, an offense punishable by a prison term.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—[By Associated Press.]—The Echo de Sports today publishes a detailed account of the meeting of the French boxing federation at which the Senegalese, Battling Siki, was disqualified for nine months for his attack on M. Cuny, manager of the boxer Prunier.

Cuny joined François Deschamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, in asking an acquittal, saying: "Of course it is deplorable, but is he entirely responsible? He holds a title too heavy for him. He is a child who has been allowed to play with a gun."

Deschamps said, "Don't rob Carpentier of the chance of recovering from Siki that which he has lost."

The writer declares the color question was in no way involved and that it was not even considered. He proposes that as Siki volunteered for military service in 1914 he might be given "amnesty" in celebration of Armistice day.

The culprit himself aroused certain sympathy before judgment was announced, declaring: "When I was plain Siki no attention was paid to my tricks; they were only laughed at. But since I became champion people get angry."

His manager, Hellers, accepted the situation philosophically, saying that "it was bound to come sooner or later."

"He never wished to go to America," he declared, "among the people who he said 'despised Negroes,' and I had the utmost difficulty to get him to promise to cross the channel to fight in London.

ON LOCAL LINKS

ALEXANDER H. REVELL, who was a visitor in Washington last week, played a round with President Harding at the Chevy Chase club. Presidential scores are not published, but in such a match Chicago probably would be favorite over Marion.

Jesse F. Matteson and the rest of the regular ticket were elected at the annual meeting of the Edgewater Golf club last night. The report of Judge Foell, retiring president, showed the club to be in sound financial shape. Memberships now are rated from $1,700 to $2,000, with a prospect of an advance in the near future. Herbert A. Lundahl, former president, won the club championship, defeating Hiram D. Fargo Jr., 7 and 6, over a soft course.

The Question.

Should boys be encouraged to take up boxing?

Where Asked.

Grant park, foot of Monroe street.

The Answers.

John Michael, 1640 South Fairfield avenue, sheet metal worker—I think it would be a good thing if all boys, including the older boys, took up boxing. It is good pastime and a good sport. I box now and then at the neighboring clubs. Naturally I enjoy the fun of it, else I wouldn't do it.

M. H. Andrews, 909 Sunnyside avenue, traveling salesman—They surely should. Every boy should be encouraged to take up boxing and athletics in general. It develops them mentally as well as physically. We ought to have some boxing laws in this state that would allow and guarantee good, clean boxing. Eliminate the politics. It spoils it when politics gets into it.

C. W. Bartz, 708 North Oakley boulevard, salesman—I have a little boy who is 7 years old. Last Christmas I bought him a set of boxing gloves, and he has enjoyed them immensely. I think it has done him a world of good. I put on the gloves with him a couple of times a week, and we both have a picnic. He likes to box with me every night.

A. T. Altschul, 610 Cornelia avenue, salesman—I have been donning the gloves, as they say, off and on ever since I was a wee bit of a fellow. I probably am not overfond of that form of athletics, but it is a good, healthy exercise, and all boys should be encouraged to learn the game. It would be especially beneficial to the self-conscious boy and the boy lacking nerve and energy.

J. W. Dunklau, 3722 Maple Square avenue, real estate broker—I've always been in favor of it. It is a good form of training, and puts boys in position to take care of themselves in any emergency. At the same time, I think it is a good exercise for them. That doesn't mean that they are to turn out to be professional boxers, prize fighters, roughnecks, or anything of that sort.

SUNSET VALLEY'S NEW GOLF COURSE GAINS IN FAVOR

BY JOE DAVIS.

DR. JOHN B. ELLIS. [Walinger Photo.]

Fine progress has been made in the organization of the Sunset Valley Country club, which will be located on the 500 acre farm of Charles Herendeen at Crystal Lake, Ill. Golfers around Chicago have shown much interest in the establishment of a genuine country club within a short ride of the city, while the project appeals strongly to many residents of the lake district.

Among the prominent golfers who have consented to take places on the board of governors are Norman C. Naylor, president of the Chicago District Golf association and former president of Westmoreland; Charles Herendeen, former president of the Herendeen Milling company and former president of Beverly Country club and Chicago Automobile club, and Charles Evans Jr.

Other Prominent Directors.

Dr. John B. Ellis, member of the Edgewater Golf club and Chicago Athletic association and on the faculty of Rush Medical college, and George O'Neil, vice president of the Special Sale Service company of Lord & Thomas, also will be governors, as will be Walter Beckley of the Beverly and La Grange Country clubs, president of the Beckley-Ralston company; George J. L. Janes, former president of the Beverly Country club, president of the Chicago Auto club and president of G. J. L. Janes company; J. J. Barclay, western manager of the Review of Reviews, and Dr. W. D. Mahoney of the Beverly Country club.

With a commodious clubhouse and the utilization of Mr. Herendeen's home as a bachelor dormitory, plans have been made for a membership of 700. The first 300 memberships will be sold at $1,000, $200 of which is payable on application. The next 200 memberships will be sold at $1,500, and the balance at $2,000.

The city office of the club is located in the Steger building, 28 East Jackson boulevard.

Sell Budlong Woods Memberships.

Dr. Francis J. Buss, president of the new eighteen hole course at Budlong Woods, announced yesterday the memberships for the season of 1923 will be sold at a nominal figure. Applications for these can be made to Secretary G. A. McCorkle, 139 North Clark Street, Chicago.

Evanston has the Evanston community course, and Wilmette the new Playmore course. There are community courses at Winnetka, Glencoe and Highland Park, while plans are on foot for a community course at Lake Forest. The Highland Park club, which has nine holes, is considering adding nine more.

OPALS MEET FRIARS TODAY.

The Opal A. A. and Oak Park Friars will play off their semi-final football game for the Cermak trophy, postponed from last Sunday, at Justin ball park, 22d street and Kostner avenue, this afternoon. Last Sunday's rain checks will be honored today. Kickoff at 2:30. Ben Beys will play a curtain raiser at 1 o'clock.

HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

FREDERIC C. WOODWARD, 1722 East 56th street, joined the Hole in One club, his mashie pitch for the eighth hole at Jackson park, 80 yards, finding the cup. He was playing with E. O. Jordan, F. R. Mecham, and M. A. Bigelow.

Joe O'Grady, no relation of Sweet Rosie, became an ace by making the eighth hole at Garfield park, 179 yards from the tee.

E. A. Herrick, chairman of the sports and pastimes committee at Ridgemoor, collected from John McElhatton, R. E. Williams, and L. H. Krieger by making the eleventh hole, 140 yards, in one.

GRAUMAN DROPS FROM CUE LEAD IN CITY LEAGUE

Losing to Weston in the final game of the week, Heine Grauman of Smith & Brunner's fell into second place in the Chicago Billiard league race. Kendall of Schaefer's, who has played only two games, is the sole undefeated player. Tredick won two games last week and went into a tie for third place with Walker of Singer & Spokes', each having won three and lost one game. Champion Kieckhefer is finding the sledding hard, while the veteran, Charley Le Gros, has lost five straight. The league standing:

WESTCOTT

The Car with a Longer Life

The "Last Word" in Sedans

The latest sedan to be placed on the market is the new Wescott.

Brought out late in the season, it combines the really worth while features of the first closed cars produced earlier in the year with many very attractive exclusive features of its own.

You will particularly like its new low, long, graceful contour—extra length of hood balanced by a sturdy, well made touring trunk in the rear.

The interior is a revelation in color blending, fine upholstering and luxurious fittings and appointments.

But charming as you will find the Westcott on first acquaintance, your lasting enjoyment of the car will largely come in the exceptional durability and reliable performance of the famous Westcott chassis which has justly earned for it the title—"The Car with a Longer Life."

By all means see this Newest of Sedans before you buy.

When you need brakes, you need 'em bad

YOU may never need brakes badly. But if you will pick up any Monday morning paper and read the week-end automobile accidents, you will see the wisdom of keeping your brakes in perfect condition.

Modern brakes are skillfully and scientifically designed. They are marvelously powerful and fully able to keep you safe. But in order to be always ready to do all that brakes can do, they must be lined with brake lining made just as skillfully and just as scientifically as the brakes themselves.

Rusco Brake Lining, scientifically woven on our own special looms, of tough yarns of brass wire and asbestos, will stop any machine that can be stopped. It is no match for sheer recklessness. No brake lining is. But with modern brakes, and Rusco Brake Lining, and a clear head, you are perfectly safe. We guarantee satisfactory service.

Jury Recommends Red Lights for Road Barricades

November Celebrations to Open Many New Through Routes.

BY E. E. PIERSON.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—That the Illinois legislature should enact a law requiring all public road contractors to place red signal lights upon barricades erected to prevent traffic from moving over newly finished highways was the recommendation of a coroner's jury which investigated the fatal accident on the Grant highway recently.

It was shown at the hearing that the contractors had posted a detour sign 400 feet from the barricade, which was plainly visible for day travelers. A similar sign was attached to the barricade, but the absence of a red light made these warnings valueless at night. This is not the first accident of the kind, but it is said to be the first attended by a fatality.

That portion of the Grant highway between Rockford and Freeport, a distance of twenty-five miles, has been completed by the contractors, but the new road will not be thrown open for traffic until the last of the month. The stretch from Freeport west to Stockton is practically completed, and when the contractors take down the barriers there will be a stretch of approximately 100 miles of the road completed between Chicago and Stockton, leaving a gap of only thirty-five miles between Stockton and East Dubuque on the Mississippi river, the extreme northwestern corner of the state.

Steps are being taken to celebrate the completion of the Grant highway through Stephenson and Winnebago counties by the assemblage of prominent citizens on the county line. A tentative date of Dec. 1 has been selected. Such an event is counted upon to promote cordial relations between the cities and counties. A program will be arranged by joint committees from the Rockford and Freeport Business Men's associations.

Stephenson county was one of the first in Illinois to adopt the Wisconsin system in patrolling the country roads. The Rotary club of Freeport, to encourage the patrolmen and stimulate a rivalry among them, offered two prizes of $50 each and five prizes of $5 each to the seven who had made the best showing of the year. In addition the Rotarians gave a banquet to all of the patrolmen of the county. Next year they promise larger prizes.

That portion of Route 7 between Geneseo and East Moline will be formally thrown open for traffic on Nov. 18, thus giving motorists a new hard road all the way from Chicago to the tri-cities of Moline, Rock Island, and Davenport.

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions which are accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send in your name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." No questions will be returned. For today's question G. A. Smith, 403 East Church street, Marshalltown, Ia., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Has your auto paid for itself?

The Answers.

James D. Stover, 1214 East 62d street, industrial investments—I consider that my car has paid for itself in two ways—in the time it saves me in getting around town and in the pleasure myself and family get out of using it. The fact is, whether it pays for itself in dollars and cents, everybody considers a car indispensable once they have had one.

Dr. C. H. Courtney, 3159 Washington boulevard, physician and surgeon—Yes, I believe my car has paid for itself, but whether it has or not I wouldn't want to lose it. I have been using a car for a good many years. My last car is a 1916 model, and after I get it painted and fixed up a little I believe it will give good service for another year or so. One can't complain about the cost of a car that stands by you that length of time.

Herbert Moss, 7246 Bennett avenue, lumber man—Regardless of everything, none of us would be without a car so long as we could afford one. They are a good investment for the pleasure we get out of them. I bought my first car in 1911. All told, I have bought four cars. For a while I spent all my money on them. I believe if I had only $500 today I'd take half of it and put it in a Ford.

Ben J. Gurney, 80 East Jackson boulevard, insurance—No, not yet. It hasn't been in use long enough to bring in enough additional business to make up the difference, but it will in time. When they allow us to park a little longer on the street, and when they get the traffic tangle untangled—well, that will help all of us get more out of our cars.

Mrs. Anna Cherney, 661 East 170th street, New York City—Our auto is paying for itself as we go along. Mr. Cherney and I bought and built this boat in the spirit of adventure. We started for California and found that by advertising movies as we go along we can make expenses. Autos are made for travel, and we are traveling. Our auto is also carrying the ads that pay our bills and its bill. It's making good, and we are enjoying the trip.

Extra Auto Show.

New York is to have a second automobile show this year, running coincidentally with the exhibition in Grand Central palace. This newcomer in the automotive show field is to be housed in the historic Madison Square Garden, from Jan. 8 to 11, and it will take care of some 400 car, truck, and accessory manufacturers who have always wanted to exhibit their products to New York show crowds, but who have been prevented by limitations of space at the command of producers of the palace show.

One of the novel features of the garden show will be the greatest accessory store in the world. Manufacturers will send the products they desire to have shown and a staff of trained clerks will take charge of the store, book orders for the various products, and represent the various manufacturers. In this way the only expense to the maker is forwarding his exhibit.

Road Chiefs Hit City Streets and Narrow Pavements

Hope to Avoid Towns in Highway Routes of Future.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

NATIONAL highway congestion and the "billion dollar limitations" that are beginning to appear in Uncle Sam's mammoth transportation system are due for the concentrated attack of automobile and roads authorities this winter. Following the annual conventions of highway leaders in Chicago and other construction centers, engineers predict that at least two basic features of the federal highways already completed will be eliminated from future plans.

The first is the generally adopted eighteen foot pavement width, which authorities declare is at least two feet too narrow for safety on main traveled roads. The second is the recognized fallacy of running through state and federal routes into towns and cities when it is possible to avoid congested city streets and traffic danger by routing them along the border of corporate limits.

Dangerously narrow roads are gradually disappearing as a result of widening the shoulder work throughout the east and near traffic centers in Illinois. Builders explain that the laying of as great a mileage of all-season pavement, no matter what limit lack of building funds set for their width, has been the vital item in the last five years. They expect to see the development of 24, 50, and 100 foot pavements as traffic requires them, and to establish separate freight and passenger car highways by the same gradual method.

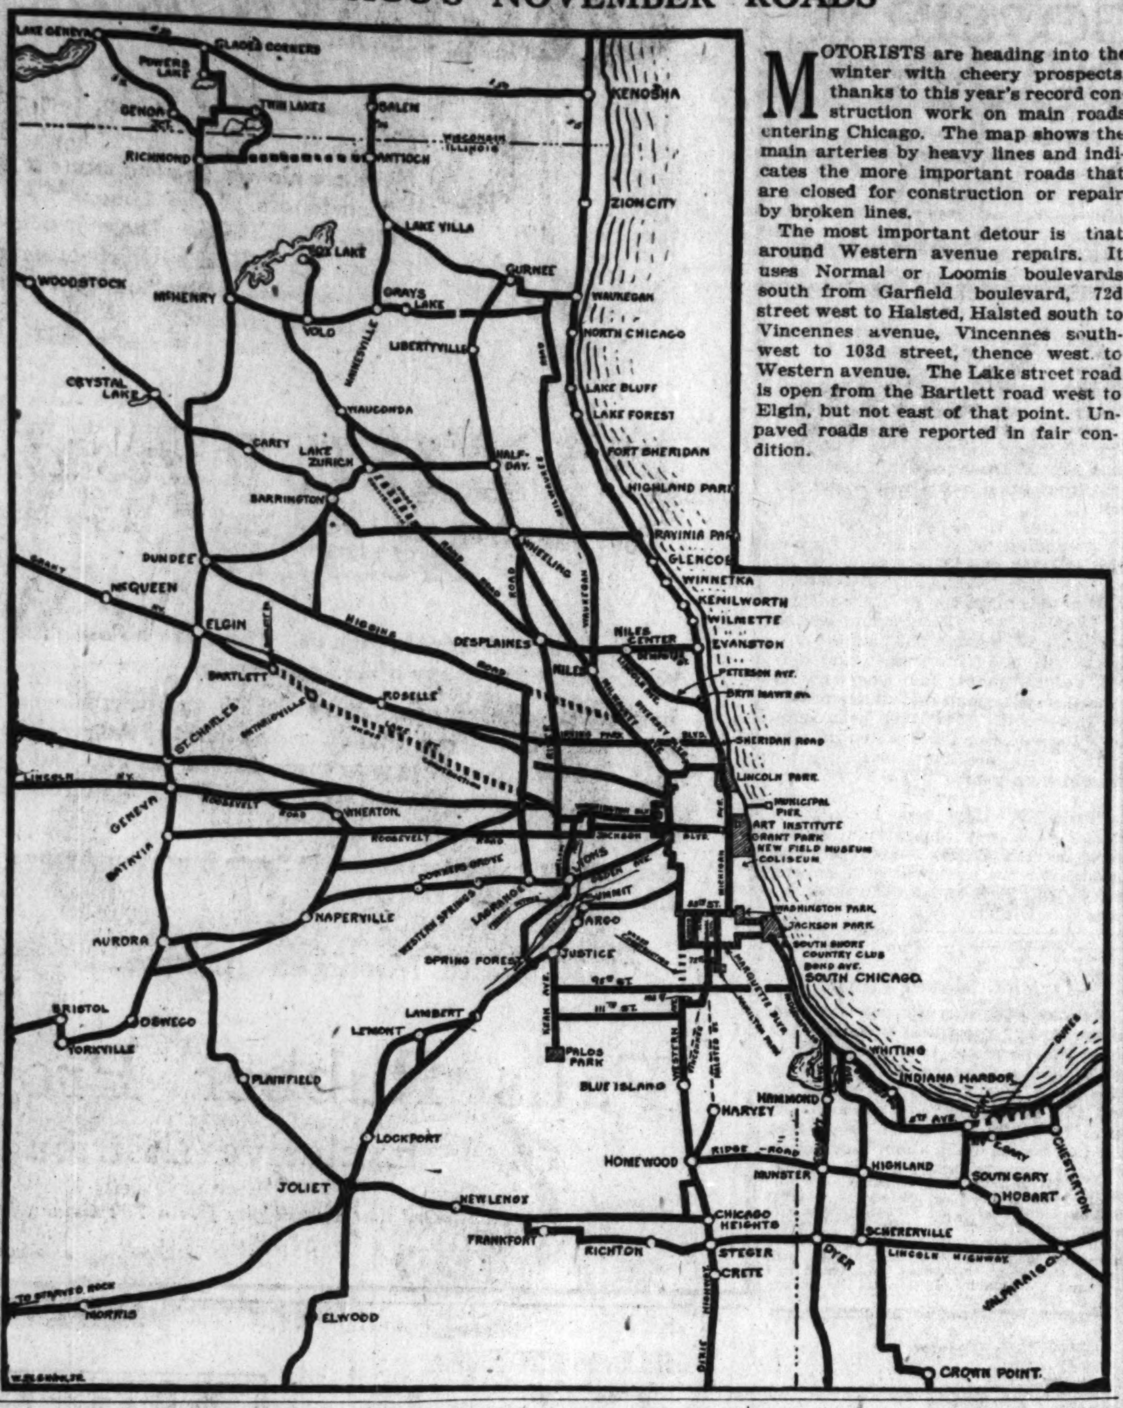
The routing problem is considered more difficult. In the majority of states main road pavements have been laid out through the heart of every village and town within striking distance, although state and federal funds cannot be used to improve streets in any of the larger communities. The traveler thus enjoys smooth running and economical operation everywhere in the open country, but meets irritating delays, rough and unrepaired roads, and careless route markings the moment he reaches the edge of most towns.

A tour of the Illinois bond issue system strikingly illustrates this recognized construction mistake. The "Valley Way," leading from Chicago through Joliet, Peoria, and Springfield to St. Louis, is honeycombed with community barriers. Scores of motorists have complained to the state concerning the rough pavements and danger in Lemont, Joliet, Marseilles, Ottawa, Peoria, Springfield, and several of the larger towns to the south. In some instances the towns are improving streets used by the state route, but conditions were found to be uniformally bad by a recent inspection tour. Lack of proper markings through the towns and congestion in the business districts, where the routes invariably center, add to the delay and danger. The state highway department has no jurisdiction over this condition.

Like conditions were found at the outskirts of Bloomington, Decatur, Danville, and other population centers along the various state routes, and on practically every Chicago street carrying state road traffic into Chicago.

Many of the good roads captains, among them the men responsible for the projected $60,000,000 state highway system in Missouri, plan to launch a national campaign against the future routing of state and federal highways through towns along their line, this winter. The Missouri routes avoid towns wherever possible, connecting communities with the main highway by spur pavements.

CHICAGO'S NOVEMBER ROADS



MOTORISTS are heading into the winter with cheery prospects, thanks to this year's record construction work on main roads entering Chicago. The map shows the main arteries by heavy lines and indicates the more important roads that are closed for construction or repair by broken lines.

The most important detour is that around Western avenue repairs. It uses Normal or Loomis boulevards south from Garfield boulevard, 72d street west to Halsted, Halsted south to Vincennes avenue, Vincennes southwest to 103d street, thence west to Western avenue. The Lake street road is open from the Bartlett road west to Elgin, but not east of that point. Unpaved roads are reported in fair condition.

BATTERY CONNECTORS.

Horseshoe nails may be made into very satisfactory battery connectors by soldering about a foot of insulated wire, one nail on each end. The nails are then priven into the battery posts under the connector. If the nails get dull or bent they may again be shaped or straightened.

ANOTHER RECORD

TOTAL sales value of shipments of manufactured rubber products for the six months' period of 1922 reached $348,090,432, or nearly $18,000,000 more than the comparable figure of 1921. In making the sum the manufacturers used up 256,758,727 pounds of crude rubber, as compared with 131,979,361 pounds in the first six months of 1921. It is thus apparent that while consumption of crude rubber was nearly doubled, the money result comparatively was not nearly as great.

These figures and others equally as interesting were announced in the annual statistics of the industry for the period named by the Rubber Association of America, Inc.

History Repeats.

Memories of the time when the stage coach was in its heyday, especially along the old National road, which in the early years of the last century ran from Cumberland, Md., out through southern Illinois, are revived in the application of the Wabash Valley Transit company for the right to operate a motor bus line over the old road.

The company has asked the Illinois commerce commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity to run motor busses over the National road from Marshall, Ill., near the Indiana line, to Effingham. It was over this highway that the stage coaches and the "mountain ships" carrying huge loads of freight plied their way a century ago.

Free Auto Rides Blamed for Many Youthful Crimes

"DON'T help boys and girls run away from home by giving them free auto rides," reads a warning posted in California.

Sorrow is caused in hundreds of homes by thoughtless motorists who give children "lifts" along the roads and streets, according to Automobile Club of Southern California officials.

County juvenile authorities throughout the southern and central sections of the state have prepared figures to show that 90 per cent of all runaways are caused by free auto rides given to boys and girls by motorists.

It is also pointed out that motorists who pick up strangers in their cars are liable for heavy damages if the stranger is injured, due to the carelessness of the driver—and an accident may happen at any time.

Besides the actual danger to the motorist from holdups, the practice gives encouragement to boys to leave their homes, often penniless, and start out to see the world for themselves.

PREPARE FOR WINTER

A LEADING motor car company gives the following "don't forgets" to the motorist for winter driving:

Anti-freeze solution, preferably half water and half denatured alcohol, with a small amount of glycerin to prevent alcohol vaporation.

Keep this anti freeze solution constant by adding more alcohol than water.

Have carburetor cleaned and adjusted for winter driving.

Blow out heating chamber and passages frequently to eliminate carbon.

Clean out carbon and grind valves.

Blow out carburetor and gasoline lines to eliminate water and sediment.

Drain and flush out transmission and rear axle and refill with lubricant suitable to temperature range of your locality.

Keep the storage battery fully recharged.

Add distilled water to battery twice a month.

Change oil every 500 miles of driving.

No Closed Car Offers Finer Luxury

Irrespective of price, you cannot find a sedan on the market today that offers more in all the essentials that spell closed car comfort and luxury than you will find in the Hupmobile Sedan.

It is true that there are larger, heavier cars, more costly to buy and to keep,—but none that combines more of dignity, of beauty, of absolute protection against the weather.

Careful comparison will also, we believe, force you to the conclusion that no lower priced sedan offers all these necessities in anywhere equal, or adequate, measure.

Remember, too, that this Hupmobile means longer motor car life, constant service and satisfaction at remarkably low cost.

Even if the body were less fine, the Hupmobile chassis, in every sense of the word a fine car chassis, would place it foremost in your mind.

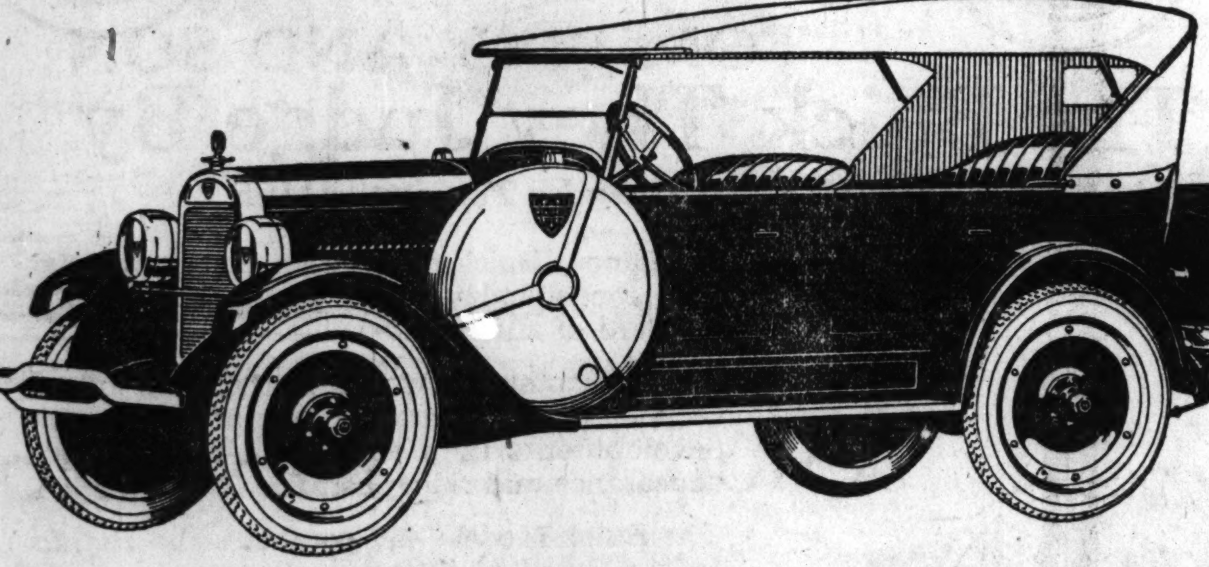
MAXWELL



Announcing the Good Maxwell Sport Touring Car

The first car at anywhere near the price to display such striking beauty and generous equipment. Its distinct individuality and pronounced charm arouse instant and outspoken admiration.

The same mechanical goodness, finer performance, and low cost operation that have enabled the good Maxwell to make such deep inroads in public preference. The price and value are almost beyond belief.

Body and hood beautiful Chester Hunt red. Fenders and disc steel wheels black, with bright nickel wheel rim. Olive drab top, two-ply duck, rubberized. Heavily nickeled radiator shell, tie bar, head-lamps and cowl lights. Also winged water indicator, strong bumpers, trunk bars and door handles. Bright patent leather upholstery, deeply buffed. Extra tire with cover, mounted in special carrier on left side of Touring Car and rear of Roadster. Commodious trunk on rear of five-passenger car. Special khaki curtains open with doors.

Factories Adopt Convoy System in Auto Deliveries

Dearth of Skilled Labor Felt by Expanding Industry.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—With greatly increased production and the railroads unable to meet the demands on account of inadequate shipping facilities, the automobile industry of Detroit and Michigan is facing a serious problem. Every factory has been forced to resume driveaways in the delivery of new cars and trucks, and congestion on the trunk roads leading out of the state is nearly, if not quite, as great as it was two years ago.

It is pointed out that railroads have been slow in ordering new rolling stock to take care of the losses in junked cars. For that reason the motor car plants have been the principal sufferers.

The driveaway plan is an industry in itself. Automobile companies have placed in effect a complete set of rules governing overland deliveries which are much similar to rules laid down for convoys by the army during the war. There is always a man in charge of the convoy and assistants in charge of the various units. Rules about speed are strict, and only those men with years of experience are permitted to drive.

Following the unlooked for activities of the present year, the various automobile companies are planning ahead. The greatest boom the industry has experienced is right now in full swing. By all past precedents the middle of November should bring with it a good sized decrease in the output of motor cars, but as yet nothing more than a slight easing up has occurred.

A building program of enormous proportion, which calls for the expenditure of many millions of dollars within the next year or two, is under way. New plants are to be built, as well as additions to those already in operation. In the list are found the leaders of the industry—the Fisher Body corporation, Buick Motor company of Flint, Chevrolet Motor company, Dodge, Lincoln, Hupmobile, Gray, Paige-Detroit, and Durant. To this list will be added others before the dawn of a new year, and part makers realize that in order to keep abreast of the car builders they, too, must have additional facilities.

The total cost of all these new projects will total around the $50,000,000 mark, although accurate figures are not available.

These new projects mean much to the automobile industry, and also to skilled labor. Already skilled mechanics have been completely absorbed by the various plants of Michigan, but during the early months of the coming year the Fisher plant alone will need another 18,000 workmen. Employment agents for practically every automobile factory in Detroit and Michigan are even now busily employed in strengthening their present forces, and arranging, as far as possible for the added number of thousands which they are satisfied they will need before the year 1923 is far advanced.

Although there is a "gentleman's agreement" among employment agencies of the automobile plants that "kiting" wages of individuals in an effort to fill important vacancies will not be indulged in, it is being done with considerable success — and "winked" at by superior officers.

ALONG THE SPEEDWAY

These tiny electric cars are not guaranteed to break existing track records, but they offer speed and thrills enough for the amateur drivers who flock to Marseilles for the water fêtes. The races are staged and cars repaired all on the one circular track.

Demand Cooperation.

SPEAKING before the Society of Automobile Engineers in Detrait, C. F. Kettering head of the General Motors laboratories, astonished his listeners by the announcement that hundreds of millioins of dollars that the automobile industry has spent could have been saved by calling production engineers and cost accountants into conference with designing engineers while the designing of cars was in progress.

"We have been too much interested in the cost of labor," said Mr. Kettering, "overlooking the fact that overhead expenses, given insufficient attention, may be an equally important factor in the ultimate cost."

At the same time, Pierre S. de Pont, president of General Motors corporation, stated the automobile industry had only been "scratched a bit." He declared there were thousands of uses for the automobile that have not been pictured and predicted, and that the next few years would be full of development. If all factors in the industry would work together its problems would be solved easily.

NO THRILLS.

New Trail Marks Greet Tourists in Western Run

THOUSANDS of new signposts for the guidance of motorists over roads both in southern California and leading to California are now being placed by the Automobile Club of Southern California, according to a report just issued.

The re-signing of the Lincoln highway and the National Old Trails road (Santa Fé trail) has been completed.

Practically all new signs have been placed on 2,000 miles of the National Old Trails route leading west from Kansas City. On the Lincoln highway about 40 per cent of the signs have been replaced. This replacement work is made necessary to a large extent by the vandalism of motoring parties in shooting up the metal signs.

A complete re-signing of the Owens Valley route and the great Midland trail is now under way as far as Bishop and into Keeler, Ballarat. New signs are being placed from Ballarat to Randsburg, Barstow, Silver Lake, Needles, Parker Cadiz and Stoddard well into Victorville.

Important work is now under way on the signposting of the road between Socorro and El Paso and the re-signing of the Bankhead transcontinental route from El Paso into California by way of San Diego.

New Service Standard.

Since the birth of the automobile industry manufacturers have given much thought, as well as having kept accurate statistics covering the repair costs on the various makes, exclusive of tire and battery trouble.

Sufficient data have been gathered along this line to enable at least one automobile manufacturer of a low priced car to announce the establishing of a precedent that is sure to stir the industry. The plan, in fact, eliminates the element of chance for the purchaser, and he knows that for an extra $25 paid on a new car all repairs will be taken care of for a period of one year from the date of purchase.

There is no loophole in the guarantee, which includes labor and parts necessary to maintain proper running conditions and excepts liabilities only from

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

SERVICE station efficiency has been advanced to high water mark in the new plant at Archer avenue, Wallace street, and 24th place, opened yesterday by the White company. Under the direction of Newell Lyon, manager of the Chicago district, all service equipment in the old White stations in Wabash and Michigan avenues was transferred without interrupting service operations.

Harry Branstetter, pioneer of the Wabash avenue sales row, has opened a new Kissel sales headquarters at 2538 Michigan avenue. He will continue the Wabash avenue establishment in addition to his new headquarters.

Net earnings of $1,751,905.23 for the third quarter of 1922 are reported by the Nash Motors company of Kenosha. Total net earnings for the nine months are $5,023,441.19. Commenting on the record, C. W. Nash added that all during the year his factory has been oversold, despite plant additions and increased production, and that ninety-five more Nash cars have been marketed than during the first ten months of 1921. He predicts a still greater demand next year.

Charles P. Root has been given charge of a new department established by the Chicago Motor club to arrange for the shipment of members' cars to southern and Pacific coast resorts this winter.

Trucks Move Town.

Monday was moving day for Jennings, Mich. The whole town was put aboard large motor trucks and moved to Cadillac, a distance of eleven miles. The town was twenty-five years old and the houses moved varied in size from 24 by 30 feet to 24 by 40 feet. The trip was made in about four hours.

TO CLEAN UPHOLSTERY.

Tufted or studded upholstery is a great catcher of dust and dirt. The ordinary whisk broom cannot reach the bottoms of these small depressions. About the only thing that will is a painter's brush with stiff bristles that come to a point, and which will be found a valuable addition to the garage equipment.

The Most Important Closed Car Quality

It is not the fittings in the body. They add neither to utility or comfort.

In the Essex Coach you get every essential closed car comfort. You get all weather protection, and a beautiful car you will be proud to own.

While there are no vanity cases, guard rails, step lights, trunk, etc., you do get genuine car performance.

The Essex, experts here and abroad say, is "the finest, liveliest car of its size that is built." It has a great economy in fuel, oil and tires.

It stays out of the repair shop. It stays in condition. That is the most important closed car question.

The Standard of Comparison

The Buick They Judge By

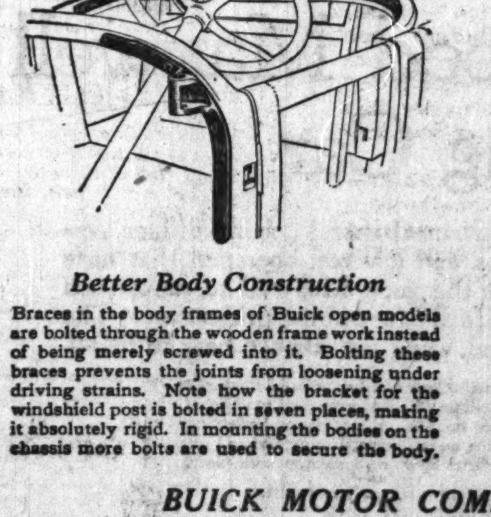
The Model "45" Six Cylinder Touring—$1195

The famous Buick five-passenger, six cylinder open model today, as in past years, set the standard of automobile value.

It is the motor car by which others are judged because it represents the best of each year's developments in mechanical refinements, appearance and riding comfort.

The Buick Model "45" combines the characteristic Buick qualities of performance and stability with distinctive beauty and a completeness of appointments not to be found elsewhere.

We'll be pleased to give you a demonstration any time.



Better Body Construction

Braces in the body frames of Buick open models are bolted through the wooden frame work instead of being merely screwed into it. Bolting these braces prevents the joints from loosening under driving strains. Note how the bracket for the windshield post is bolted in seven places, making it absolutely rigid. In mounting the bodies on the chassis more bolts are used to secure the body.

The Buick Line for 1923 Comprises Fourteen Models:

Fours—2 Pass. Roadster, $865; 5 Pass. Touring, $885; 3 Pass. Coupe, $1175; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1395; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1325. Sixes—2 Pass. Roadster, $1175; 5 Pass. Touring, $1195; 5 Pass. Touring Sedan, $1935; 5 Pass. Sedan, $1985; 4 Pass. Coupe, $1895; 7 Pass. Touring, $1435; 7 Pass. Sedan, $2195; Sport Roadster, $1625; Sport Touring, $1675. Prices f. o. b. Buick factories. High Rents Fall Before Advance of City Motors

Survey Shows 500,000 Cars Are Used by Commuters.

A NATIONWIDE investigation into the uses to which the motor car is put by its purchasers, conducted by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, discloses that in 135,000 instances in sixty cities throughout the country the motor car has been used as a vehicle of relief from high city rentals. The owners of this number of automobiles have moved from the city to the suburbs and depend solely upon their cars for transportation between their offices and homes.

The result of the investigation is to be placed before the forthcoming conference of the highway education board at Washington. The conference has been called by John J. Tigert, U. S. commissioner of education, to discuss all phases of highway construction, but primarily to continue steps, inaugurated two years ago, to further the educational work of colleges and universities numbering highway engineering among their courses.

Thus far the investigation is incomplete. The sixty cities from which reports have been received include only three of the chief cities of the country, Baltimore, Detroit and Cleveland. The figures do not include New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco, St. Louis, Los Angeles or other cities of approximately their population. The combined population of the sixty reporting cities is less than 8,000,000.

If the same ratio is maintained throughout the rest of the United States, not less than 500,000 automobiles have been used during the past three years in the fight against high rents.

Baltimore and Detroit are tied for first place in the number of motor cars used primarily to carry workers to and from their work each day. In each case the number is approximately 25,000. Louisville is rated next, in returns compiled thus far, with 20,000. Oak Park, Ill., and Cleveland are rated at 5,000 cars each; Toledo at 3,500; Tampa, Fla., Dayton, O., Pasadena, Cal., and Casper, Wyo., at 3,000 each. Eight cities—Danville, Ill.; Waterloo, Ia.; Nashville, Tenn.; Winston-Salem, N. C.; Tulsa, Okla.; Houston, Tex.; Richmond, Va., and Bellingham, Wash.—are reported to the chamber as having 2,000 cars each which have been devoted to this purpose.

Tough on "Petters."

A GRIEVOUS surprise awaited the students of the University of Michigan who own automobiles and who intended to use them for "fussing parties" when they returned to college last month. A recently adopted city ordinance has gone into effect which provides:

"No more than two persons shall occupy the front seat of any automobile, except that a child under 10 may be the third person. No person shall be seated in the lap of the driver, nor shall the driver be seated in the lap of another, and the driver shall keep both hands on the steering wheel at all times the car is in motion."

The city attorney declares that the ordinance was passed because many accidents in the city have been traced to the students who were found to have had one or more young women companions in the front seat with them.

TOP MENDING.

To mend a tear in the top it is best to use woolen yarn to draw the edges together, after which a patch of material similar to that of the top is applied with rubber cement, set by the vulcanizer.

Baker Crosses Again.

Erwin G. "Cannonball" Baker, who has burned up gas and roads in fifty-nine transcontinental trips, is now making his sixtieth trip between New York and Los Angeles in an effort to see how little gas he can use.

He is driving a Neracar, equipped with a two and one-half horse power engine, the smallest machine to attempt this trip under its own power.

Between New York and Kansas City Baker covered the 1,357 miles at an average speed of twenty-two miles per hour, and averaged nearly ninety miles to the gallon of gasoline.

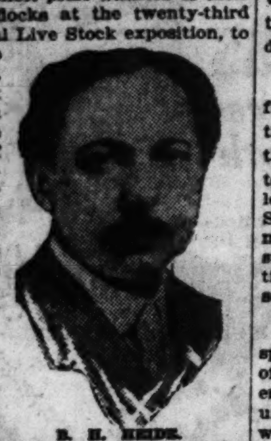
Making Way for International Live Stock Show

ALL roads lead to Chicago for live stock men of Canada and the United States who are planning to exhibit prize winners of their herds and flocks at the twenty-third International Live Stock exposition, to be held here Dec. 2 to 9. No fat stock exhibition depicts the progress of the American farmer as does this gigantic show, the largest live stock exhibit in all the world.



B. H. HEIDE.

Stalls and pens are being assigned to more than 10,000 cattle, horses, sheep, and hogs, the largest entry on record, indicating the growing interest in the production of good live stock in this country.

As B. H. Heide, manager, ran through the entry list yesterday, he pointed to the names of men who have shown animals in the big arena ever since the first show was held here. "They were here at the first show and have not missed a single one since," he said.

Attracts Wide World Visitors.

From a fairly small beginning the exposition has grown until it attracts visitors from all parts of the world, and the various championships awarded are looked upon by live stock men as the greatest honor that can be won in this or any other country.

The students' judging contest will be held the first day. A half dozen Canadian college teams are expected to be here to compete with twenty or more agricutural college teams of the United States. The University of Alberta is among the new dominion institutions that are on the list this year.

Among the American colleges and universities to be represented are Ohio, Pennsylvania State, Minnesota, Nebraska, Purdue, Iowa State, Idaho, Wisconsin, California, Illinois, Delaware, Texas, North Dakota, Kentucky, Michigan, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri.

The junior live stock feeding contest, the competition among boys and girls showing stock fed and fattened by themselves, will be staged on Saturday, the opening day.

Railroad Rates Reduced.

According to Mr. Heide, special railroad rates will be offered this fall for the first time since before the war. He expects this concession to bring many thousands of new and old visitors who have heretofore been kept away by high rates. An unusual number of special trains are expected to be made up in different parts of this country and Canada.

Exhibits from Canada, according to entries, will exceed all records for dominion farmers. Ministers of agriculture of various Canadian provinces are coming to meet governors of states Europe, South America, and Mexico will be represented at this year's show.

Hay and grain show exhibits are piling up higher than usual this year to compete for the $10,000 to be offered in prizes.

Entries for the nightly horse show, which has become a big feature, attracting thousands of Chicago visitors, close Nov. 20. Leading exhibitors throughout the country will be here again this year.

Men Who Have Seen It Grow.

As Manager Heide reviews the developments of the International with veteran stockmen who have seen them all come and go, frequent reference is made to incidents of the first show, almost a quarter of a century ago.

"During the period covered by the exposition's history, which began Dec. 1, 1900, the live stock industry of America has undergone a wonderful development, aided and guided by the valuable lessons that breeders and feeders have brought to this great show," says Mr. Heide. "The slow maturing 4 year old bullock has given way on the market to the more profitable 2 year old finished beef. The heavy lard hog has been supplanted by the meatier middle weight barrow. Grades have taken the place of scrubs, and pure breds have been greatly improved."

GARDEN NOTES

Evergreen trees on open lawns in cities need protection in winter and summer, especially while they are young. Dogs cause them to die, particularly if trees are near the street or in open parks and on public grounds. They may be protected by stretching wire netting around each one, making the circle of wire big enough to keep dogs at least two feet away.

It is common to see palms and ferns, frequently used for permanent decoration around hotels, covered with a thick layer of dust. This is harmful to the plant and should be washed off leaves at least every week or ten days. Soap and water will remove scale and mealy bugs, if applied in the early stages, according to Le Roy Cady, horticulturist at the University of Minnesota.

Asparagus starts off with a rush in spring if beds are carefully cleaned off about this time of year and covered with a heavy coat of stable manure when winter sets in. The plants will be protected from alternate freezing and thawing that tends to lift the roots out and expose them; and then, too, the nitrates from the manure have time to leach down into the soil ready to be used in the spring.

A. P. C. R. A. Session Dec. 6.

During international week the American Poland-China Record association will have its annual meeting. Plans have already been made to hold it on Dec. 6 at the Hotel Sherman, beginning at 1:30 p. m., and followed by dinner at 7 o'clock.

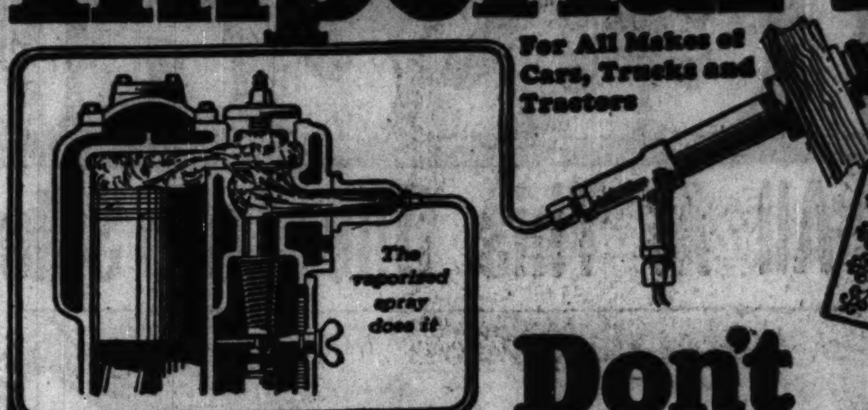
Imperial Primer



For All Makes of Cars, Trucks and Tractors

Start INSTANTLY in Cold Weather

GUARANTEED SATISFACTION OR YOUR MONEY BACK
We guarantee the IMPERIAL PRIMER to start your motor instantly, double the life of your battery, prevent thinning of crank case oil, and give you complete satisfaction. If it fails to do so, we will refund the purchase price.
Imperial Brass Mfg. Co., Chicago

Don't Ruin Your Motor By Using a Choker

You can absolutely ruin your motor by using the choker which is already on your car for starting. It is not a primer at all—but controls the mixture of air and gasoline When you shut off the air with a choker, pure gas is pulled in your cylinders—but pure gas will not explode. As the gas is "swashed" around, the air gradually is saturated until it fires. The gasoline residue seeps down past your pistons into the crank case and thins out your oil. The result—ruinous wear and tear on your bearings and cylinders, big repair bills, and eventually a ruined car.

An IMPERIAL PRIMER is altogether different. It shoots vaporized gasoline into the cylinders, gives INSTANT STARTING, makes it impossible to ruin your lubrication, doubles the life of your expensive battery.

There is never any question about your engine starting when you have an IMPERIAL PRIMER. It always works. When you pull the plunger out, it pulls gasoline from your gas line. When you push it in, it injects a finely atomized vapor right into your cylinder which fires instantly.

Think of the saving on your battery—no grinding, no tearing down of plates when cold weather has made your battery only 50% efficient. An IMPERIAL PRIMER adds greatly to the pleasure and economy of cold-weather driving.

Get an IMPERIAL PRIMER today. Practically every garage and motor accessory store handles them. You can have it installed in an hour—or do it yourself, if you prefer. Full instructions with each primer. No cutting of gas lines, no threading, flaring or soldering for all connections are made with Imperial Compression Couplings. Get an IMPERIAL PRIMER at once—you need it.

See What Happens When You Use a Choker

See how the gasoline, pulled into the cylinders when you use the choker, runs down past the pistons into your crank case. It thins out your oil, reduces the efficiency of your lubrication, and results in terrific wear on your bearings and cylinders.

On all sides of you are owners of International Motor Trucks

On the streets of the average city you will find abundant evidence and testimony as to International Motor Truck performance. Many hundreds of trucks, bearing the reliable name "International" on the hood, carry millions of tons of merchandise and material per year on these streets.

In this vicinity as elsewhere, Internationals have achieved a great popularity and a remarkably even distribution. State registration figures show that Internationals are owned in practically all counties of the United States.

For the man in search of solution for his hauling problems, the opinion of these owners is the most valuable guide. Let him consult one or a dozen of them. He will find invariable loyalty to International Motor Trucks, based on plain, every-day, low-cost hauling experience, and backed by the security that goes with the famous International Free Inspection Service Policy.

Whatever your hauling requirements, there is an International Motor Truck to meet them—a 2,000-lb. Speed Truck for rapid delivery work [chassis $1250 f. o. b. factory]—a complete line of heavy-duty trucks up to 10,000-lb. capacity—a special passenger bus chassis—haulage units with regular and special bodies for all purposes.

The Free Inspection Service Policy guarantees inspection several times a year to all International trucks during all the years they will be in service. The facilities for this unusual service are centered in 93 International branch house service stations scattered over the nation and for local owners in extra full measure at the address below.

FARM AND GARDEN

Wisconsin Leads Accredited Herd Work of Nation

This is the third of a series of articles on Wisconsin's progress in dairying and the strides farmers in that state have made in their campaign to eradicate tuberculosis from herds.

By Frank Ridgway.

NOTHING has added more impetus to the war against tuberculosis than the accredited herd plan fostered by the United States and state governments. Proof of its value is to be found in the fact that, while it is only seven years old, there are more than 400,000 cattle on the accredited list today. Of the states operating the system Wisconsin stands in the lead.

"Accredited herd work was the first method to give breeders full credit for efforts to eliminate infected cattle and maintain a healthy herd," says Dr. James S. Healy, inspector in charge of the state-federal system in Wisconsin. "Before the plan was introduced the man who found tubercular cattle in his herd was handicapped in selling his stock. Since it is evident that the man who tests is doing all he can to keep his herd clean, he deserves advantages over the man who does not."

Making Eradication Worth While.

It was an important step in tuberculosis eradication when in 1915 Wisconsin introduced the accredited herd certificate. Within two years the state had fully accredited sixty-five herds. The plan was then adopted by the United States department of agriculture and the United States Live Stock Sanitary board in Chicago.

Various cattle buying states had passed laws forbidding the admittance of cattle not tested from selling states. At the time live stock men appealed to federal and state officials for protection against the inroads of tuberculosis, the test had been going on for years, but there was no recognized national effort to protect cattle buyers or the men who were testing. Now this condition has been relieved to such extent that cattle on the accredited list can be moved from one state to another without restriction. It is serving to free pure breds of infected members and is making eradication worth while. It is purely voluntary and is creating sentiment in favor of the test in all parts of the country.

Federal Aid Gives Confidence.

Pure bred breeders endorsed the plan from its beginning in 1917, and the demand to admit grade cattle was soon made by farmers who had no registered animals. A farmer who has at least one pure bred female and a pure bred bull may have his cattle tested.

"The advent of the federal government gave impetus to the work because of the confidence it inspired and because a limited amount of free testing was provided as a stimulus," says C. P. Norgard, agricultural commissioner of Wisconsin.

On Oct. 1 there were 1,842 accredited herds on Wisconsin's list, representing 41,536 head of cattle; 58,293 cattle passed one test, and 138,893 are under supervision.

Publish Tested List.

In pointing out the advantages of the state-federal action, Dr. Healy says the farmer is given the privilege of shipping cattle interstate by testing his herd once a year after the certificate has been issued.

All accredited and once tested herds are listed in a bulletin published jointly every three months by the federal and state governments. It goes to agricultural colleges, live stock exchanges, breeder associations, live stock, sanitarians, and to farmers who apply to the agricultural department at Madison, Wis.

Buyers invariably ask for cattle under state-federal supervision, according to the inspector. Another advantage is that a certificate is issued as soon as cattle have passed two annual or three semi-annual tuberculin tests. Every farmer has good reasons for being proud of such a document.

Federal-State Coöperation.

Wisconsin laws have been modified to fit the federal indemnity law so that a true, coöperative, fifty-fifty program could be followed. Together the federal government and the state pay the farmer one-half the difference between the appraised value and the salvage after the freight charges have been deducted, with the limits of $90 for pure breds and $40 for grades. For example, if the animal is appraised at $60 and the salvage is $40, the state and federal governments together pay one-half, or $20. They also pay the federal inspector on an equal basis. Reactors must be slaughtered within thirty days after being appraised. To maintain an accredited herd all a farmer must do is to have his cattle tested once a year by an accredited veterinarian, who may be a local man. If on the government's approved list, he holds a certificate and is authorized to test for export to Canada and foreign countries.

GREATEST COW EAST OF ROCKY MOUNTAINS.—This famous Holstein-Freisian cow, Kolrain Marion Finderne, has just finished her 365 day record, producing 35,339.7 pounds of milk and 1,278.58 pounds of butter, which makes her the highest yearly milk producer this side of the Rockies and second highest in the world. She is owned by A. H. Loeb, Chicago, owner of Loeb farms, Charlevoix, Mich. Ernest G. Loeb, one of the managers of the farm, and his wife are shown in the picture with Marion, taken at the farm on the shore of Pine Lake soon after the record was completed, a few days ago.

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

Not many dairymen are thoroughly familiar with the big question of the variation in the costs of producing milk. "Milk costs are necessary in order to determine profits or losses of the herd," say P. E. McNall and D. R. Mitchell in their new bulletin, "Why Costs of Milk Vary," which has just been issued by the University of Wisconsin. "Costs per hundredweight of milk varied from $1.88 to $4.01 for different months of the year." Such facts as these are brought out in the new bulletin, which contains valuable information for the practical dairyman who is trying to hold down production costs.

Better Prospect for Farms.

During the last two years registration in the various agricultural colleges of the country has shown a marked tendency to fall off, according to Dean H. W. Mumford, University of Illinois. He believes that if the movement from the country to the city is widespread enough it will mean that in the near future the United States will have a shortage of men who are willing to devote their time and energy to farming pursuits.

Making Brush Land Pay.

Raising from 300 to 500 bushels of potatoes to the acre on land that was once covered with sagebrush is the achievement of L. D. Sweet, Denver, Colo., who is to speak at the Kansas Potato show opening at Topeka on Wednesday.

Not all of the big fruit crop was left on the ground to rot, or gathered and sold at a loss. Thousands of bushels were preserved by farm girls, members of canning clubs throughout the country. Figures showing the result of their work last year indicate what a big dent they made in this year's crop. The 52,000 club members canned 2,200,000 quarts of fruit and vegetables and 510,000 quarts of jelly, according to government reports.

Conference on Soil.

The third annual conference of the American Association of Soil Survey Workers will be held at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Nov. 17 and 18. Various subjects, including types of soil, tests and surveys, will be discussed at the meeting by association men who are carrying on soil survey work in various states in connection with universities and agricultural colleges.

POULTRY TIPS

Chinese eggs are apparently causing little or no worry among poultrymen in this country because of the tariff and prohibitive legislation. Fresh laid eggs will have a chance to sell at a good price, and poultrymen can afford to double their efforts in trying to find good laying rations that suit the needs of their layers' appetites.

For many years egg producers have realized the value of feeding sour milk to their chickens, and now the Missouri station has been running tests that prove the value of this protein feed. The best egg records were made where hens were fed sour milk as a supplement to the regular ration of grain. Tankage ranked next to sour milk as a protein supplement. Bran, shorts, and corn meal, equal parts, and a limited amount of grain as scratch feed was the mixture used.

This has been an exceptionally favorable fall for chickens to get in the habit of roosting outdoors, especially this year's pullets and cockerels. It's time to do away with all outdoor roosting places wherever possible, and drive the birds out of trees to indoor perches. It takes more feed to keep the birds in good condition if they roost outdoors in cold weather, and the egg production is usually held in check until the birds are forced to roost inside.

Stout Crates Economical.

Wisconsin farmers who are planning to ship some of their champions to shows this fall and winter will be interested in "Better Shipping Crates for Live Stock," a new bulletin issued by the College of Agriculture at Madison. "Poor crates cost stockmen of this country thousands of dollars every year," says the author. He has gone into details to show how stout crates may be built that are easily handled.

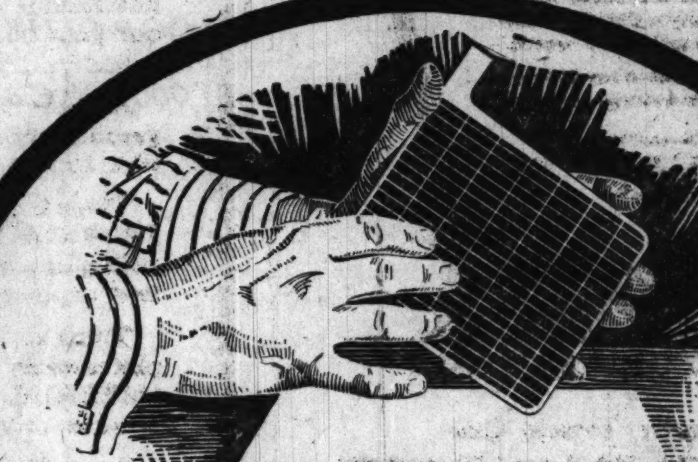
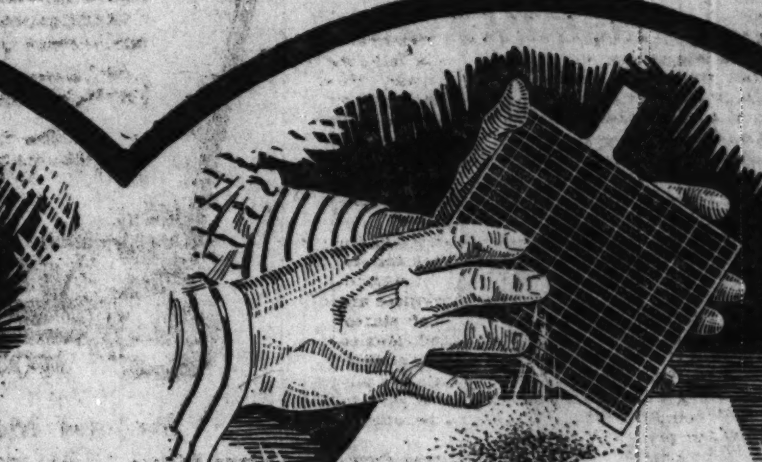
UNIVERSAL BATTERIES



Rub a Universal plate briskly. Try to rub away its body. Not even a speck of dust on the white paper below. Long life is sure.



Rub an ordinary battery plate. Observe the dust that falls on the paper—the substance of the plate crumbling away. Short life is certain.

Universal Plates Are Hard—Hence, Long-Lived

Test plate hardness to know battery life. Rub a Universal plate—not a fleck of dust. Rub an ordinary plate—thickly sprinkled dust shows its softness.

It took 20 years' experience and 521 experiments to assure Universal plates their long-life-giving hardness. Thus we developed our secret mixture of red and yellow oxides, forming the body of the plate. So vital this exact proportion that a variation of 6% may mean a 40% difference in the life of a plate.

And to give added hardness, Universal plates are hand-pasted—the mixture pressed tightly, firmly, smoothly into the grid. It is then stiffened to an almost concrete hardness by long, mild drying.

All battery plates gradually crumble away, due to chemical changes caused by charging and discharging. The harder the plate, the longer it resists decay. Hence our patient research and experimenting to assure to Universal plates super-hardness.

Yet, hard as is this secret mixture, it retains that porosity necessary to a highly efficient plate. Test a Universal plate with drops of water. They are absorbed with blotter-like swiftness. This means quick, unresisting action with the acid in the battery. More porosity means more plate surface exposed to the acid. Hence, Universal plates are extra-porous to give topnotch efficiency—extra-hard to give long life.

Charge for Service—the Square Deal Originated by Universal.

Every Universal Service Station is authorized to charge 15 cents for flushing a battery and taking hydrometer reading—25 cents for flushing, hydrometer reading, and voltage test. No tips accepted. It's a square deal for the car owner—a necessity for the battery man who wants to deal squarely. Every car owner ought to welcome and push this horse-sense principle. Pay for what you get—get what you pay for.

Mr. Battery Man! Is Your Town on This List?

Put it there by becoming a Universal dealer. Don't give away your employe's time in free service, hoping to make your money out of new battery sales. It's poor business. Make your place a Universal station. As a Universal dealer you have the best foundation for a larger business and the best battery service in the world to back you up. And remember, we make all parts for all makes of batteries. Write for proposition.

HYDE PARK CO-OP STORE VENTURE PROVES SUCCESS

Merchant-Landlord Tells of Profits.

BY AL CHASE.

We've heard a lot about coöperative flat owning, but little, if anything, about co-op store ownership. If one is a good thing, why isn't the other. If an apartment renter buys his flat to keep the landlord from shoving up the rent every few months, why shouldn't a store tenant accomplish the same results by the same methods?

This question has been answered so satisfactorily that we are glad to give it publicity. A year ago last May, Charles E. Fox of the realty firm of J. J. Carroll & Co., approached four merchants at the southeast corner of 53d and Harper avenue with the proposition of buying the west end of the Hyde Park State bank block on a coöperative basis. He offered them a frontage of 125 feet on 53d and 80 feet on Harper, comprising six stores, six offices, and two apartments. This was part of the property acquired by the bank from the Phipps estate early in 1920. The tenants had all occupied stores or offices in the building for a number of years.

Skeptical at First.

The proposition was put to them as an investment as well as an assurance of being able to continue their business in the same quarters over a period of years at a moderate rental without any increases. They were skeptical at first, but when convinced bought the property.

The owners are Michael Kramp, merchant tailor; James Gardner, confectioner; Benjamin Hoffman, cigar store; and the Misses Delahunty, ladies' apparel.

They paid $135,000, or on a basis of approximately $1,080 a front foot. During the last year and a half they've refused several flattering offers, one being as high as $1,800 per front foot.

Earns 8½% Net.

Michael Kramp, who acts in the capacity of trustee for the various interests, reported yesterday that after a year and a half of coöperative ownership a net return of 8½ per cent has been earned. This is figured after paying all expenses and carrying charges and allowing for taxes and depreciation. In addition to the net return on the total amount invested it also allows the various merchant-landlords a reduction in rent of from $50 to $75 per month less than what other merchants in the same block are paying for smaller and less desirable stores.

"It's the best method I know of by which a merchant can continue business in one location without having to meet the constantly increasing cost of maintaining a good store location," said Mr. Kramp. "Then, too, I figure it's a 100 per cent safe investment for surplus funds. The saving effected in the rental itself is an adequate return on the invested capital."

"It's only a question of time when more merchants will realize the benefit of owning their own property," said Mr. Fox, "and the coöperative plan will become more and more popular."

News of the Architects

Fugard & Knapp, for eight years in the loop and during that time firm believers of downtown as the place for architects' offices, moved to rented quarters at 212 East Superior street a year and a half ago. Yesterday they bought the property across the street at No. 219, a three story residence, 20x45, from Mrs. Mary Margraeff, for $20,000, through the Bowes Realty company. They will remodel completely inside and change the exterior to a design along Italian lines. They plan moving Jan. 1.

They recently have been made associate architects with Murgatroyd & Ogden of New York on the new skyscraping Allerton house at Boul Mich and Huron. Much of Fugard & Knapp's work lies along the gold coast, as they are architects for the McLennan interests.

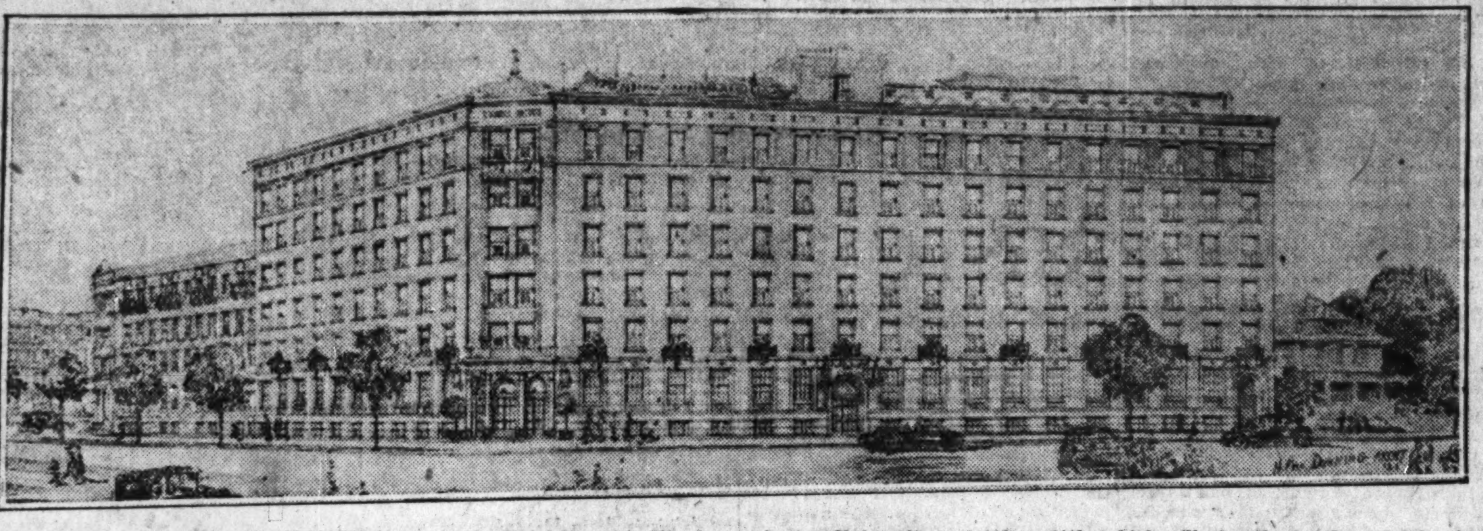
Edward H. Bennett of the Chicago zoning commission and an international authority on city planning, will give a talk on "Zoning of Chicago" before the Illinois chapter of the American Institute of Architects at the next monthly meeting on Tuesday evening at the Art institute. It will be illustrated with charts. Dinner will be served in the clubroom at 6:30 and the regular meeting called at 8 o'clock.

J. L. Popkin announces he has withdrawn from the firm of Spitzer & Popkin and is now practicing architecture and engineering independently at 189 West Madison street. His telephone is Franklin 5727.

WILL BUILD ON ALDINE AVENUE.

Ella L. Young has bought from the Pike estate 84 feet of vacant at 431 Aldine avenue for $35,775 through Baird & Warner and will at once erect a six apartment building.

New Hotel Hayes and Annex in Woodlawn



Work has started on the $1,000,000 annex to the Hotel Hayes in Woodlawn, designed by Architect N. Max Dunning. It will front 116 feet on University avenue and be six stories. When completed the present structure at the southeast corner of 64th and University will be torn down and a structure similar to the annex erected. It will front eighty feet on University and 112 on 64th, which will give the hotel a total frontage, as shown above, of 196 feet on University. The present four story annex, now the newest portion of the hotel, is shown on the left at the corner of Minerva avenue. The Hayes will have 650 rooms when the new annex is completed. More is told in another column on this page.

PLAN $750,000 NEGRO HOTEL ON INDIANA AVENUE

Will Have 1,200 Seat Film Playhouse.

ANTHONY OVERTON

Two big building projects of more than usual interest are announced for Chicago's extensive colored section on the south side. They are within three blocks of each other, and both are being built by Negroes with their own money and for the sole use of colored people. The architects in both instances are white.

The larger of the two is a $750,000 eight story hotel and theater building, to be erected at the northwest corner of Indiana avenue and 36th street from plans by Architect B. K. Gibson. It will be called the Stradford, the principal owner being J. B. Stradford.

To Have Large Ballroom.

The hotel section will contain 250 rooms, all with bath. There'll be a large lounge and lobby, as well as a big ballroom, on the second floor. Shops and a lunchroom will occupy the first floor. In the basement will be a forty table billiard parlor, a bowling alley, and barber shop.

The theater will have a regulation stage and will seat 1,200. Combination vaudeville and films will be shown. Work probably will start within a few weeks.

Start Work on Bank.

Just three blocks away, at the northeast corner of State and 36th place, work started on Thursday on a four story concrete building by J. L. & L. F. Harris for the Overton Building corporation, to cost $225,000. Z. Erol Smith is architect.

The Douglass National bank, of which Anthony Overton, head of the Overton Building corporation, is president, will occupy part of the first floor. This bank, with the exception of one in Oklahoma, is the only colored national bank in the country. It was founded last June. All the officers and 92 per cent of the depositors are colored.

Risk Company to Move North.

There'll be three State street stores in the bank building, and on the second floor will be fifty-two offices for colored physicians, dentists, and lawyers. Negotiations are now on with a large colored life insurance company to move its offices to Chicago from the south and use part of the third floor. The Overton Hygienic Manufacturing company, of which Mr. Overton is president and owner, maker of beauty specialties for colored people, will occupy the remainder of the third and all of the fourth floor. Mr. Overton, said to be one of the wealthiest Negroes in the country, was born in Louisiana and came to Chicago eleven years ago.

FANNIE MAY TO OPEN SHOP IN THE BLACKSTONE

Fannie May is to open a Boul Mich candy shop. H. Teller Archibald, head of the Fannie May Candy company, yesterday leased the 16x40 shop in the Blackstone hotel at 638, formerly occupied by Logan & Bryan, for five years at $6,000 annually through Willoughby & Co. This will be the ninth Fannie May candy shop in Chicago and the eighth in the downtown district, there being one uptown. There is also one in Peoria.

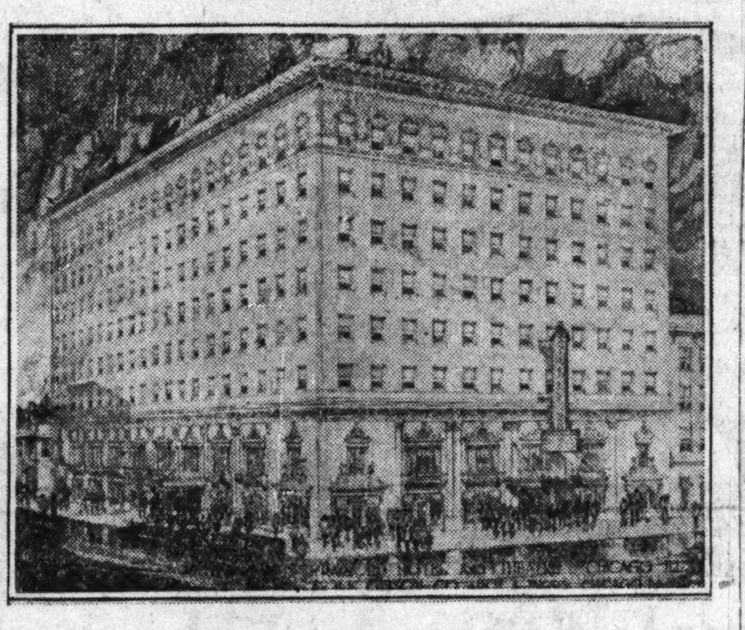
Stradford Hotel and Theater for Colored Folks



What is claimed will be the largest and finest hotel to be operated solely for colored people by Negroes is planned for the northwest corner of Indiana and 36th, on a 100x150 site. In addition to a 250 room hotel there will be a 1,200 seat playhouse. B. K. Gibson is architect. More is told about the new Stradford in another column.

$1,000,000 MOVIE, BANK, FLATS, AND SHOPS FOR BLOCK

Architects Dubin & Eisenberg are drawing preliminary sketches for a $1,000,000 building project, which, if carried out, will cover the entire block bounded by Chicago, Monticello, Lawndale, and Huron. A two story bank and office building and 2,500 seat theater is planned for the 265 feet of frontage on Chicago avenue, with a depth of 130 feet.

Back of this the property will be subdivided into thirty lots of twenty-eight feet frontage each and improved with two and three story buildings. Work will start within two or three weeks on twelve three story three flat buildings. On each of the two Huron street corners a 50x125 twelve flat building will be erected.

The owners are Samuel Miller of the Miller Supply company and H. Kaplan of H. Kaplan & Co., contractors and builders. The property fronts 528 feet on Lawndale and Monticello avenues and 265 on Chicago and Huron.

WOODLAWN GETS MARY'S FOURTH LOG CABIN SHOP

Another Mary's Log Cabin candy shop has been opened—this being the fourth of a chain which is expected by R. Z. Greenberg, president and treasurer of the Mary's Log Cabin Candy company, to extend eventually pretty well over the city.

Mary's fourth attractive replica of a log cabin is at 865 East 63d street, where space 18x70 has been leased for five years. Half of the 1,260 square feet will be used by the candy shop.

Log Cabin No. 1 and the candy kitchens are at 1023 East 55th street. The second was opened on the Rialto some time ago, at 61 West Randolph street. The third was opened in the Emmerman building, at Lawrence and Sheridan, last July. Each store is designed to represent a standardized log cabin.

PHONOGRAPH COMPANY BUYS PLANT.

The Davis Phonograph company has bought the three story factory, 120x125, at 314-24 West 43d street, from Harry C. Diamond through Hart & Whetson for $65,000.

GAUDINESS TO BE TABOO IN NEWEST LOOP CLUBHOUSE

$1,000,000 Covenant to Have Soft Colors.

An Italian palace in the loop! That's what the new $1,000,000 Covenant club, to be built at 14 North Dearborn street, just across from the Boston store, aims to be in both architectural features and its atmosphere. (Let's hope it'll have a better heating plant than most Italian palaces have.)

President Fred Bernstein has just made public the plans for the new club, first told about in this department on March 11.

"In view of the fact that the modern club of today is vitally necessary and to be treated as a home, the building has been designed in the Italian period," says Mr. Bernstein. "All details, especially those of the exterior, have been taken from an Italian palace. The color treatment of the interior will be strictly confined to browns, gold, and neutral grays. A special object being borne in mind, to forego gaudiness. All departments will be treated with the warmth and friendliness that the Italian period has to offer."

The plans, by Oscar B. Marienthal and Walter W. Ahlschlager, Inc., architects, call for an eight story building with foundations for sixteen. The basement, ground floor, and second will be rented.

The third and mezzanine floors will have a gymnasium; fourth, a billiard room, recreation rooms, barber shop, and club offices; fifth, main lounge, ladies' parlors, and reception rooms, library, and check rooms; sixth, grill, private dining rooms, and kitchen; seventh and eighth, banquet hall, with kitchen service. Eventually eight more stories will be added, to be devoted entirely to living quarters.

Wrecking the present building will start May 1, with the hope of having the new club finished in ten months. Temporary quarters are now being sought.

David Labowitch is vice president, L. E. Berger is second vice president, Edward Graff recording secretary, Harry Shutz financial secretary, and M. E. Greenebaum Sr. is treasurer.

OLD TIME HAYES GUESTS ASK FOR SPACE IN ANNEX

Work Starts on $1,000,000 Hotel Addition.

JOHN HAYES.

John Hayes Sr., who opened the Hayes hotel on the south side of 64th street, between Woodlawn and University avenues, in 1893, established a name in the hotel world which has become unique. A name, by the way, which his sons, John and Frank, are perpetuating in a $1,000,000 addition. Mr. Hayes Sr. died in 1896.

It is the annex which has brought to light so emphatically the reputation Mr. Hayes established. This department ran a story last June about the proposed addition. Yesterday it was learned that sixty-eight definite applications for space in the new building have been received by the present John Hayes, and every one is from an old timer who had lived at the original Hayes hotel, but had been lured away by the luxuries of more modern hostelries. Every one has written that he wishes to return as soon as the new section is completed.

"You bet every one of those sixty-eight former guests will have the pick of the place," said John Hayes yesterday.

Work has now started on the big addition, designed by Architect N. Max Dunning, with the expectation of having it ready for guests by July or August. There'll be 250 rooms and on top will be a glass covered roof garden as well as a pergola. In the basement will be a recreation room, with a depressed floor, 50x60, for dancing.

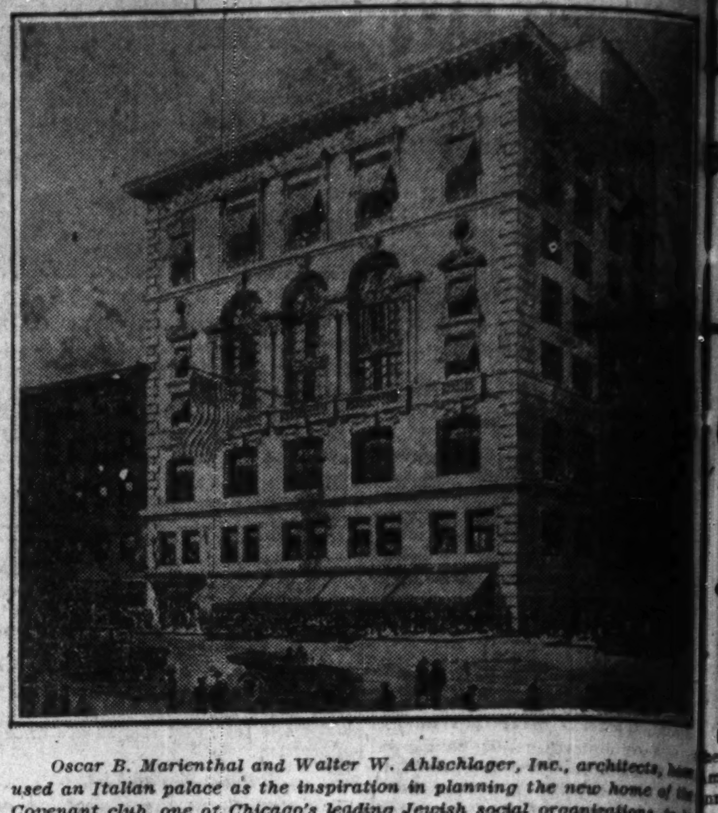
A separate service building is planned back of the main hotel structure, which will house the kitchens and boiler rooms. In the new annex will be a cafe and a cafeteria.

The two Hayes brothers, Frank and John, also operate the Colonial hotel at 6325 Kenwood avenue.

$135,000 Paid for Cottage Grove and 61st St. Corner

The southwest corner of Cottage Grove and 61st, 50x125, improved with a two story white enamel building, has been sold by J. C. Mantz to S. Inlander for $135,000, subject to $70,000. Frank H. Lang & Son represented both parties.

An Italian Palace for the Loop



Oscar B. Marienthal and Walter W. Ahlschlager, Inc., architects, have used an Italian palace as the inspiration in planning the new home of the Covenant club, one of Chicago's leading Jewish social organizations, to be erected at 14-20 North Dearborn. Further details are given in a nearby column.

FIRST LEASE MADE IN NEW BOUL MICH BUILDING; $200,000

Harold Bradley & Co. announce the first lease in the new Waller building, now nearing completion at the southwest corner of Upper Michigan and Chicago avenues, to a new concern, yet unnamed, which will operate a women's, misses' and children's wear and accessories and specialty shop. The two north stores and the entire second floor were taken for ten years at a term rental of $200,000. The lessees have an option taking effect in 1927 to rent the third floor at $8,000 a year for five years.

Hat Shop to Pay $72,000 for 15x18 Store for Ten Years

The "Smart Hat Shop" has rented a store in the Mallers building, at 63 East Madison, approximately 15x18, through E. C. Brownlee, for ten years at a term rental of $72,000, which is at the rate of $7,200 a year, or over $26 per square foot.

Tribune's New Slogan Sells Trucks

MR. T. owned a small auto truck business and was in the habit of using Tribune Want Ads to help him sell the trucks. This is the ad he was running, but he was not satisfied with the results he was getting:

MOTOR TRUCKS!!!
Largest assortment of used trucks in city; all sizes and makes; rebuilt and at bargain prices. 0000 W. Randolph-st. Monroe 0000.

Somewhat discouraged, he asked a Tribune representative what was wrong with his ad, and was advised to give more definite information about the trucks he had for sale. He applied the Tribune slogan and ran the following amplified ad:

This Want Ad sold eight trucks. "The more you tell, the quicker you sell," agrees Mr. T.

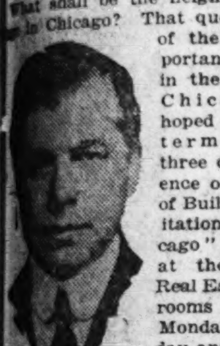
REAL ESTATE NEWS

BUILDING HEIGHT CONFERENCE TO LAST THREE DAYS

Question May Soon Be Determined.

What shall be the height of buildings in Chicago? That question, one of the most important involved in the zoning of Chicago, it is hoped will be determined at a three day conference on "Height of Buildings Limitations in Chicago" to be held at the Chicago Real Estate board rooms on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.



EDWARD M. BASSETT.

Edward M. Bassett, of New York, one of the foremost authorities on zoning in America, will be the principal speaker, announces Charles M. Nichols, chairman of the Zoning committee of the Realty board.

Tomorrow noon Mr. Bassett will address the members of the board at their regular luncheon at 12:30. In the afternoon he will confer with the Building Owners and Managers' association and will discuss the zone plan of other large cities with special reference to the high building centers.

On Tuesday at 2:30 Mr. Bassett will deliver an address at the board rooms on the experiences of New York under height limitations and what it would do if it had to do it over again. He will also speak of the troubles Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other cities are now experiencing, in all of which he is acting as advisor.

At 2:30 p. m. on Wednesday he will be in conference with the Citizens' Height of Buildings committee of the board, which has been considering the subject for the last six months. Every one interested in the height question is especially invited to be present and take part in the discussion.

Frisco Furniture Company to Open First Local Store

The Halperin Furniture company of San Francisco has bought the two two story buildings at 3918-22 Lincoln avenue from Charles Bugg, for a price said to be $70,000, and will open its first Chicago store there. The property fronts seventy-five feet on both Lincoln and Robey, and was at one time occupied by the Bugg theater. Ricaby, Russell & Co. represented both parties.

VALKRIE HOTEL SOLD AGAIN.

For the second time within nine months the three story Valkrie hotel at 1320 East 7th has been sold through Charles E. Fox of J. J. Carroll & Co. Carl A. Gowdy of Oak Park bought it in January for $75,000 and has now sold it for $86,000 to James W. Moran, the present tenant, who will convert the first floor into stores.

NOW, HENRY! BE A GOOD LITTLE CAR AND GET RIGHT INTO THAT BATH!

Chicago automobiles are going to have their first public swimming pool. C. G. Burkhartsmeier has bought the Chicago rights to the patented Auto Wash Bowl, now in successful operation at St. Paul, and Architect William C. Presto has drawn plans for the first Chicago "wash bowl," to be built at once at the intersection of Western, Elston avenue, and Diversey, at a cost of approximately $20,000.

A huge concrete bowl, 76 feet in diameter, filled with water, four inches deep at the edges and about a foot in the center, is the main feature of the project. Motorists with mud incrusted cars drive in and around the bowl till the mud is loosened; then they move in front of a battery of high power showers, where the old bus gets a cold shower—which all doctors, motor and otherwise, agree is the proper thing to wind up a bath with. Then, with the mud all sprayed off, the car is turned over to a corps of men who rub it dry.

There'll be other conveniences, such as grease racks, etc., where motorists can get their cars fixed in addition to getting them bathed. The "wash bowl" idea is so popular in St. Paul that on one Saturday 450 cars were cleaned. The Chicago concern is called the Automobile Wash Bowl and Service company. Mr. Burkhartsmeier is president and treasurer. If motor baths prove popular here, Architect Presto says Chicago will have enough "wash bowls" to keep all the cars in town clean.

Beg Your Pardon

S. P. Phillips of Henry H. Banford & Co. calls attention to an error in reporting the sale of the thirty flats at 5936-48 South Park avenue in this department last Sunday. There were two mortgages totaling $132,000 assumed by the buyer, who paid $75,000 in cash and gave as part payment an Illinois farm valued at $100,000, making the total purchase price $307,000, instead of $200,000 as given. Brusilla R. Dailey was buyer and Joseph Siedl seller. Mr. Phillips and Murdoch & Co. were brokers.

E. C. Summerfield represented F. W. Woolworth & Co. in their lease of the first floor and basement at the southwest corner of Lincoln and School, for fifteen years, at $307,500, reported last Wednesday.

THOMPSON READY TO GO AHEAD ON HIS LOOP HOTEL

John R. Thompson has at last decided to build the twenty-two story $3,000,000 hotel at the northwest corner of Madison and Dearborn, told about in THE TRIBUNE several years ago. Marshall & Fox are working on the plans for a building to front 160 feet on Madison and seventy feet on Dearborn. Construction is expected to start next April, and the first section may be completed early in 1924. As originally stated, the Hotel Thompson will be a popular priced high class commercial hotel.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The weakness that has been noted in many of the industrial issues since election day extended to the railroad list shortly after the opening of the trading session yesterday. During the first hour practically all the railroad stocks were offered at declines from the previous day's prices, and in some issues the trading was exceedingly touchy during the two hours of trading. On a turnover of more than 13,000 shares Rock Island broke 2⅝, to 36⅝; St. Paul preferred yielded 2⅝ points and the common lost 1⅝; Great Northern preferred showed a net decline of 2⅝, New York Central a loss of 1½, New Haven 1⅝, Reading 2⅝, and Illinois Central preferred 1⅝.

The so-called Waldorf crowd—that is, a clique of big speculators who make their headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria—bought a line of United States Steel common on Wednesday afternoon which was estimated at near 50,000 shares. They paid between 107¼ and 108½ for the stock. For some unknown reason, they dumped the whole lot "at the market" on Friday, taking a loss which ranged from ½ to 1½ points on the transaction. Since it is quite generally known that the Waldorf crowd is not composed of philanthropists, and that they do not trade merely to give commissions to the brokers, all of Wall street was asking itself the question, "What happened?"

Production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended Nov. 4 totaled 1,589,249 barrels daily, according to estimates made by the Derrick, an increase of 22,870 over the preceding week.

Production of gold at the Rand in October was 778,159 fine ounces. This is the largest output since March, 1917, when the total was 787,094 fine ounces. In September, 1922, the production was 747,089, and in October, 1921, at 707,825 fine ounces.

There were 387 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 407 in the preceding week and 364 during the corresponding week last year.

Approximately $70,000,000 will be paid by the government on Nov. 15 in interest on Liberty bonds of the second 4¼ issue.

Interest and dividend disbursements for November are estimated at $257,252,557, compared with $245,050,500 for November of last year.

OFFICIALS APPOINTED

George A. Kelly has been appointed general solicitor of the Pullman company. For the last two and one-half years he has been connected with the company's law department. His appointment fills a vacancy that has existed since the war-time federal control of the railroads and their subsidiary industries was lifted.

Bertram M. Winston, president of Winston & Co., has been elected a director of the Chicago Title and Trust company. He succeeds the late E. A. Cummings.

John G. Rodgers, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, has been elected a director of the Continental and Commercial National bank. He succeeds F. A. Hardy, resigned.

At the annual meeting of the Morris Plan Bankers' association, Willoughby G. Walling, president of the Chicago Morris Plan bank, was elected president; R. B. Umberger, vice president and manager of the Chicago bank, was elected secretary and treasurer.

Standish Hall has been appointed assistant secretary of the Union Trust company. After graduation from Harvard, Mr. Hall spent several years in travel and research in Europe and South America.

J. H. Read has been elected assistant manager of the bond department of the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

PRODUCE MARKETS

A fair business was on in all lines of produce yesterday. Supplies were ample and prices unchanged with the exception of live spring chickens, which declined, and white potatoes, which advanced 5c on choice. Receipts of potatoes yesterday were 75 cars and for the week were 647 cars, against 615 cars the previous week and 537 cars last year.

In the eastern markets there was little business in butter and cheese, and prices were unchanged.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

While there were few important price changes in the local unlisted securities market, trading embraced a much wider range of stocks. Motor and accessory issues were popular and prices were fractionally improved. Timken Detroit was the group leader, advancing some 6 points to top sales at 32½ on the declaration of a 150 per cent stock dividend. This gain was partially eliminated, however, closing 29½ bid, 30½ asked. Packard Motor common continued active and strong and at 18½@18¾ was a point improved. Ford of Canada ranged between 395 and 405. Buying of Motor Wheel caused this issue to move from 11½ to a close of 12½@12¾. Paige-Detroit was off ½ point at 22½@23. Some few trades of Earl Motors preferred voting trust certificates were made at 11⅝.

Prices in the industrial division were spotty, advances in many issues being offset by declines in others. Kellogg Toasted Corn Flakes had a spectacular rise from an opening of 50 to reported high sales at 60. Stock was wanted at this figure at the close with odd lots offering at 63. Bids of 44 for Elgin National Watch failed to bring out stock. Butler Brothers at 37¼@37¾ showed little change. Some few transactions of Beatrice Creamery were reported at 199@201. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was quiet, but a point higher, at 59 bid, 61 asked. Creamery Package developed strength and closing prices of 34 bid, 36 asked, showed this issue up 1½ points. Burroughs Adding Machine declined 2 points to 136 bid, 139 asked. Chicago Railway Equipment sold at 150. Avery common was again offered at 17 and the preferred at 50, but these prices failed to bring out bids.

While trading in the sugar group was far from brisk, these shares were in much better demand and resultant prices showed practically the entire list in higher ground. Columbia was up ¼ at 5¾@6; Michigan was equally improved at 5½@6; Godchaux preferred was unchanged at 81@83; Holland St. Louis ranged between 4¾@5¼, while Utah sold at 3¼.

The continued demand for the better grade of preferred shares is being reflected in prices, many issues being devoid of real offerings. Sales of American Type Founders 7 per cent preferred were made at 100@102. Barnhart Brothers & Spindler 7 per cent first preferred issue was wanted at 96½ with sellers at 98½. Bids of 103 were in evidence for Beatrice Creamery 7 per cent preferred, with sellers at 105. Some few transactions were recorded in Benjamin Electric 8 per cent preferred at 101@103. Bordens Condensed Milk 6 per cent preferred was quoted 100@102, while Bucyrus 7 per cent preferred changed hands at 102@102½. By Products Coke 9 per cent preferred was wanted at 102½, with offerings at 104½. Chicago Mill and Lumber 7 per cent preferred closed at 98. Fairbanks Morse 7 per cent preferred was generally wanted at 98. H. W. Gossard 7 per cent preferred was quoted 94@96. Hurley Machine 7 per cent preferred sold at 109. Insurance Exchange Building 7 per cent issue was quoted 101@103. Bids of 81 for National Grocer 6 per cent preferred failed to attract possible sellers. Packard 7 per cent preferred improved a point to a close of 94. Albert Pick 7 per cent preferred was quoted 96½@97½, while the class A preferred shares of Montgomery Ward & Co. sold at 83½@85.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1922: Fairchild News Service.]

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—Leather glove manufacturers have increased their wage scale 10 to 14 per cent, the highest increase ever granted in the industry. Workers had demanded 25 per cent, but compromised. Increased wages are expected to make more certain higher prices for gloves next year. Wholesale advances may be announced soon.

NEW YORK.—Conservatism prevails among both New York and St. Louis raw fur dealers, particularly those operating on American pelts. Sentiment is general for a low priced catch during the new season.

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Silk hosiery prices for spring delivery will be higher throughout the Pennsylvania knit goods industry, it is believed here. Cotton hosiery advances already have been made.

NEW YORK.—Midwinter season [at retail] for millinery opens Monday. Great efforts have been made by wholesalers to push the new season merchandise and retailers in general are well stockd with new goods.

NEW YORK.—A pressing demand from retailers still is felt in the men's hat market. Manufacturers report the spring line season one of the most remarkable for volume in their experience.

PATERSON, N. J.—Broad silk plants in this district are working at full capacity. Mills producing Jaquard and fancy goods lines are showing considerable activity after two years of dullness. The ribbon business, though still slow, is gradually picking up.

RAILROAD NOTES

Officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis report activity in all lines of industry, judging from the demand for cars from various quarters. Apparently the coal demand is a little less urgent. Officials of southern roads reported a continued big tonnage of coal, and a heavy movement of general freight, with lumber and building materials in big demand, judging from the loadings, the total of which was well above the aggregate of a year ago.

Reports to the American Railway association show that the demand for freight cars on American railroads in excess of the current supply amounted to 179,239 on Oct. 30. This was an increase of 12,890 cars over the total on Oct. 23. Reports also showed 3,716 surplus freight cars of all kinds and in good repair scattered throughout the country. This was a decrease of 693 in a week.

The Southern Pacific company announced that it had let a contract for the immediate construction of 7,000 freight cars, to cost a total of $8,000,000. The equipment will be delivered during 1923, and a large proportion will be turned out on the Pacific coast.

Applications of transcontinental railroads for authority to lower rates to and from Pacific coast terminals on traffic originating east of the Rocky mountains or destined therefor were denied by the interstate commerce commission.

A heavy movement of express from the eastern trunk line territory has caused the establishment of an extra express train on the Pennsylvania road, which is scheduled to operate daily between Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Two Railroads Granted Right to Appeal on Tax

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 11.—The Chicago Great Western and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroads won a temporary victory in federal court in their fight against tax assessments on their lines in Iowa. Both lines were granted the right of appeal direct to the United States Supreme court, and the executive council was temporarily restrained from certifying the assessment to county auditors at the rate fixed by that body last July, it was announced today.

The Dominant Factor

After all is said and done, a First Mortgage Real Estate Bond Issue is but a large individual first mortgage put up in retail packages of convenient denominations.

In an individual first mortgage the dominant factor of safety is the particular piece of property securing the mortgage. This is also the dominant factor of safety in a first mortgage real estate bond issue.

In every LEIGHT-HOLZER first mortgage real estate bond issue the actual value of the land and building provides a margin of security sufficient in itself to insure the safety of the principal and interest.

In selecting your real estate bonds do not overlook the importance of the dominant factor—the SECURITY.

This and other LEIGHT-HOLZER safeguards are explained in the booklet, "Ten Tests of a Real Estate Bond"—sent free upon request.

Loop Office and Loft Space Is Getting Scarce

TENANTS holding leases that expire between now and April, 1923, ought to give immediate attention to renewals or a search for new quarters.

GOOD loop space is getting more scarce every day—and the wise managers and tenants are looking ahead—in anticipation of their future requirements for more desirable offices or larger quarters.

I HAVE available, right now, a limited number of exceptionally desirable office suites—and a few wholesale lofts—at rentals that are much lower than existing conditions warrant.

THE best space may be contracted for now. Phone for a personal appointment—or a request for one of our representatives to call.

REAL ESTATE
—to be readily saleable
must be properly financed

On very high-grade well located properties have first mortgage funds to loan at:

5½%

If your real estate holdings are to be classified as liquid assets, which can be sold for value upon short notice, your equities therein must be of convenient size.

Your mortgage should be so arranged that too much cash will not be required of a purchaser.

The proper relation of mortgage to equity is a matter of great importance to all, who as owners or builders are interested in having their properties in condition to sell readily, and for full value.

When your present loan is to be renewed, or if you are interested in obtaining a building loan, competent advice and assistance in procuring one of right size, and at most reasonable rates, is of undoubted value.

We invite you to call at our offices. We will gladly discuss your real estate financing with you. No obligation is incurred by getting acquainted, and it is quite probable that, with our assistance, you may do better on the loan, the rate and the terms.

BUNTE BROTHERS
7% Preferred Stock
Tax Exempt in Illinois

To Yield Over 7½%

Listed on Chicago Stock Exchange

BUNTE Brothers, established in 1876, has always been a consistent money maker, and is one of the soundest and best established of the old Chicago companies. They are today one of the largest manufacturers of high grade Candy, Chocolate and Cocoa in the United States occupying the largest plant in the world devoted entirely to Candy. The company enjoys an enviable record, having earned the dividend requirements over twelve times in a single year. Gross sales for ten years increased over 700%. They were also one of the few companies to operate at a profit during 1921, the Preferred dividends being earned twice.

The dividend requirements on the Preferred stock outstanding are only $66,500 per annum. Earnings for 1922 are estimated at approximately $500,000 which is about eight times the total dividend requirements. In our opinion Bunte Brothers Preferred stock is selling out of line compared with other high grade Preferred issues. We strongly recommend the purchase at present prices.

Trend of hog values was upward at the close with Saturday's average 10c above the previous session at $8.35, against $8.25 a week ago and $7.00 a year ago. Big packers were among the best buyers and late shipping orders were urgent. Several loads sold at $8.65, with a few head at $8.70. Price range at the finish was narrowest of the season.

Week's hog receipts at 165,400 were second largest since June, yet 25,300 below the ten year average of corresponding week since 1911. The estimated average weight last week at 232 lbs was lightest since February, 24 lbs below two months ago, yet 18 lbs above the ten year average.

Closing cattle trade was comparatively strong. Over a third of the 3,000 received Saturday were western rangers, with 500 "natives" in the arrivals consigned direct to packers. Late prices stood 15@50c above a week ago, with in-between native steers showing most strength. Week's top for beef steers was within 10c of year's top at $13.50.

Lambs Sharply Higher.

Yesterday's receipts were practically all "directs" to packers from other markets. Late transactions of yearlings and lambs reflected 75c@$1.00 higher levels than a week ago, with aged stock showing 25@50c advance. Feeding sheep and lambs gained 25@50c during the week, best quotable at $14.25. The week's extreme top fat lambs at $15.00 stands 85c above previous week and highest since May 16, while average price at $13.95 compares with $13.40 previous week. Closing values were highest of the week, prices advanced on all but the closing two sessions.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 29,000 cattle, 43,000 hogs, and 26,000 sheep, against 28,217 cattle, 35,272 hogs, and 21,-[illegible] sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 74,000 cattle, 165,-000 hogs, and 90,000 sheep, against 70,355 cattle, 193,896 hogs, and 103,437 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 38,000 to 50,000. Lester Armour marked 38,000, Charles Gross 40,000, E. S. Waterbury and H. H. Moore 42,000, J. M. Waters, A. G. Welhener, F. R. Burrows, F. W. Waddell, and Edward Morris 45,000, E. R. Gentry 49,000, and Fred Young 50,000.

7% The United States Parcel Post Building Co. First Mortgage Gold Bonds on building and 99-year ground leasehold in Cleveland, Ohio, and Agreement for Twenty-year Lease to the United States Government

Amount of Issue, $550,000 Non-Callable to Maturity

Dated October 1, 1922; due Semi-annually, October 1, 1925 to October 1, 1930. Interest payable April 1 and October 1. Coupon bonds in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000 with privilege of registration. Federal Normal Income Tax up to 4% paid by the borrower insofar as may be lawful. Borrower, The United States Parcel Post Building Company.

The New York Trust Company, New York City, Trustee

SECURITY: These bonds are secured by an absolute closed first mortgage on building and equipment, 99-year ground leasehold, and agreement for twenty-year lease to the United States Government.

The Building will consist of five stories and basement, substantial construction with steel, brick and stone exterior, with full equipment to meet the specifications and inspection of the Post Office Department, and will contain approximately 127,664 square feet.

The 99-year ground leasehold contains the privilege of purchasing the ground at an agreed price; however, the ground rental of $12,000 a year prior to 1931 is lower than the prevailing interest rate on this price, making the leasehold more advantageous until 1930, when the purchase option will be exercised.

The Government has signed an Agreement to Lease a minimum of 33,143 square feet in the building as a Parcel Post Station for a straight twenty-year term under its standard form of lease from which the cancellation clauses will be eliminated. The owners have further agreed to lease additional space as required to the Government at the same rate of rental, and the Government already has opened negotiations for a considerable amount of such additional space. Many applications have been received from responsible concerns to lease and occupy any space in the building not at first required by the Government.

VALUATION of the building, equipment and 99-year ground leasehold has been conservatively computed to be greatly in excess of the amount of the bond issue. The income from the building is estimated at $110,000 a year—more than three times the average annual interest on the bonds.

LOCATION: The Cleveland Parcel Post Station Building will front 147 feet on St. Clair Avenue and 167 feet on West Second Street, in a block facing on the public square of Cleveland, the fifth city of the United States in size, and second only to Chicago as a manufacturing center. On the square are the largest banks and office buildings, the finest hotels, and the principal public buildings in Cleveland.

TRUSTEE: The New York Trust Company, one of the leading banking institutions in the United States will act as Trustee. The proceeds of the bonds, and the income from the building during the term of the bonds are assigned to the Trustee for administration. Guarantee policy for the full amount of the loan and full insurance will be assigned to the Trustee. Interest and principal are payable at the office of Jacob Kulp & Co., Inc., Chicago, or The New York Trust Company, 100 Broadway, New York.

H.O. STONE
H.O. STONE

In 1861
At State and Lake

THE FIRST real estate ad of the pioneer, H. O. Stone, published in 1847, bears the address "65 Lake Street," which then meant the corner of State and Lake, where the State and Lake Theatre now stands. There he had his offices—the real estate investment headquarters of Chicago—from 1847 to 1862. Our illustration was drawn from a time-worn lithograph, published in 1861, at the outbreak of the Civil War.

"His Soul Goes Marching On"

H. O. STONE, the pioneer who in 1835 laid the foundation of H. O. Stone & Co. From the marble bust owned by the Chicago Historical Society.

THIS REFRAIN from the old Civil War marching song expresses in a phrase the spirit of this House, built on the foundation laid by the great pioneer and early citizen, H. O. Stone.

That he had a vital and honorable part in the development and progress of Chicago everybody knows. He was one of the city's first merchants, the first big grain dealer, and he became the foremost real estate man of his time. That he lived, dealt with and served his fellow citizens as every man must who wishes to grow and prosper with a community—is history.

And today this House adheres to the high ideals of the man to whom it owes its existence. The honor this city accords his memory furnishes us a powerful incentive to pass from one generation to another the heritage of fair, safe and conservative dealing received from him.

In the spirit, therefore, in which this House served your great-grandfather, your grandfather and your father, we desire to serve you and—still looking to the future—endeavor to improve and broaden our service, keeping ahead of the times, so that eventually we may enjoy the privilege of serving your children and your children's children. "His Soul Goes Marching On."

EXPORT BUYING BRINGS RISE IN WINNIPEG WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Winnipeg and Liverpool grain traders paid little attention to Armistice day as their markets were open while all United States exchanges were closed. Liverpool closed unchanged to ¼d higher with the strength in the distant futures at the last, while early trading showed the reverse. Winnipeg wheat advanced ½@1¼c at the extreme and closed ½@1c higher with November leading. Rye advanced and closed ½@¾c higher, the latter for November. Oat values were stronger.

Cash wheat premiums in Winnipeg were unchanged at ½@¾c over their November for No. 1 northern, with delivery by Nov. 20 to 25 sold at ⅞@1c over, No. 2 at 1c under, and No. 3 at 4¼c under November. Export demand for Manitoba wheat was good, with large sales reported of wheat and flour at the best prices of the crop. A large amount of November contracts held strong interests, who will take delivery of the cash grain for winter storage in oats.

Wheat Shipments Big.

Winnipeg reported that failure of cables to show strength made hedges hard to dispose of early, but exporters took the bulk of the offerings, especially of nearby months, while in some instances they sold May. Clearances from Fort William Friday were 2,954,000 bu of wheat, 400,000 bu oats, and 261,000 bu rye, headed for American markets and Canadian ports.

A wire to J. E. Bennett & Co. said that with a continuation of the mild weather another 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 bu of wheat will leave Fort William before the close of navigation. Rainy weather throughout the greater part of the west has delayed the movement from the country to elevators, as roads are bad. This delay will give the country elevators a chance to ship out grain and put their houses in shape to take care of more grain.

Supply After Navigation Closes.

It is estimated that 125,000,000 bu wheat will be left for export after navigation closes, which, considering the big Canadian crop, should not be burdensome on the world's market with no new crop in sight here until next October, and our wheat is the highest gluten content known to the world.

Bids on Winnipeg December wheat for Monday were 99⅝@99¾c and offers $1.01⅜. May bids $1.03¾ and offers $1.05@1.05⅛.

Wheat receipts at Winnipeg were 1,458 cars, oats 147 cars, rye 37 cars, barley 419 cars, and flax 32 cars. Last year wheat receipts were 859 cars, oats 100 cars, rye 15 cars, barley 20 cars, and flax 11 cars.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—COTTON—Profit taking and selling by the uptown interests offset the buying by cash interests and by Liverpool and prices after showing a small gain early declined and closed on a small rally with losses of 7@20 points. World's spinners' takings are 700,000 bales under last year. The Turkish situation is an unsettling factor. Dry goods prices are advancing and the point is made by conservatives that the advancing tendency may check consumption. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close	Prev. close.
Jan.	25.90	26.06	25.78	25.89	26.00
March	25.87	26.01	25.69	15.80	25.90
May	25.65	25.72	25.47	25.53	25.61
July	25.28	25.31	25.08	25.16	25.23
Dec.	26.15	26.28	25.90	26.07	26.20

Spot quiet; middling, 26.15c.

J. E. Bennett & Co. say: Spinners are making 25c per pound—$125 per bale—gross spinning cotton and selling the goods. Why should not the farmer receive 35 cents per pound for the remnant of this crop, now that the crop is known to be a world's disaster?"

American Grain Blocks Elevators in Montreal

Montreal, Que., Nov. 11.—[Special.]—American grain is blocking elevator accommodations in Canada and there is some criticism of the attitude of the elevators, including those at Montreal, in storing American grains and impeding the flow when there are not sufficient facilities to keep Canadian grain on the move. The grain shipping committee of Montreal has been asked by the department of marine to serve as special committee to handle the movement of grain through Montreal.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

A great many more grain traders were around the commission houses than is usual on a Board of Trade holiday, as the New York stock exchange was open. The break in stocks did not change ideas of grain values amongst those favoring the constructive side, but made those bearish a little more so. Those favoring the advance in grains said there might be declines, but they believed them temporary, while others said the markets have acted contrary to trade expectations the last sixty days and advanced wheat when the period for a decline was at hand and that there may be a decline when an advance is expected.

Shortage in the feed grain crops in various sections of the country is having considerable influence on the demand for milling wheat, according to Southworth & Co. of Toledo. Mills are able to grind flour from wheat costing 10@35c per bu more than the Chicago December and sell the flour at a relatively low figure on account of the big demand for the wheat offal. The low price of the flour has tended to force it into consumption at a rapid rate, and no doubt much of the unaccounted for disappearance of wheat is going to make up a full dinner pail, and domestic consumption should show a substantial increase this year.

A decrease of 10 per cent in the winter wheat acreage for the 1923 crop would bring the total down to around 40,000,000 acres, according to G. Walter Beaven, with J. S. Bache & Co., or the smallest since 1916, when it was 39,203,000 acres. From that total it jumped by leaps and bounds under the war stimulus to 50,489,000 acres in 1919, the largest on record. This year, in line with private forecasts, means a reduction as evidence that the United States has readjusted its acreage from a war to a peace total, after allowing for the average annual increase.

A belief that increased receipts of wheat at terminal markets will be shortly reflected in reduced cash premiums is expressed by William C. Weigand with the J. Rosenbaum Grain Co. While the world's situation has not changed materially the undertone of the market is easier.

EARL STEPS OUT; SCOPIE NEW HEAD OF EARL MOTORS

Earl Motors, Inc., the automobile reorganization which appeared last spring following the adjustment of Fort Dearborn bank activities in Chicago, is to go forward under a new director after Nov. 21, according to announcement made yesterday by John W. O'Leary of Chicago, chairman of the Earl executive committee. D. E. Earl, president and moving figure in the big Michigan manufacturing company, has resigned. George Scopie, vice president and comptroller, will be in charge until the regular board meeting Nov. 21.

"Affairs of the company are moving along as usual and will continue without interruption," said Mr. O'Leary. "Mr. Earl's place will be filled when the board meets in Chicago. Reports of reorganization further than that are unfounded."

Six Types of Investors
Which Group Are You In?

NO matter in which group you find yourself there is now an investment plan that helps you to save, protects your savings, and pays as liberal a yield as is consistent with this safety—a yield ranging up to 7%.

There is but one fundamental upon which the safety of your investment depends—the integrity of your investment house. This requirement is well met by George M. Forman & Co., who from a 37 year association with sound investments with attractive yields, have prepared a plan for you. Mail the appended coupon for the booklet, "How to Select Safe Bonds."

The Experienced Investor

The man who, as trustee or executor of an estate, or as investment official for a corporation, or who is seeking sound investments for his own funds, desires a non-fluctuating, non-speculative investment with as high an interest rate as absolute safety will permit. If you are in this group let us tell you about an investment field in which your funds will yield a steady and attractive income, ranging as high as 7%.

The Woman Alone

The woman deprived of a husband's protection often has her interest intrigued by questionable investments. The best protection for a woman, upon the safety of whose investments rests the welfare of herself and those dependent upon her, is a connection with a reputable investment banker.

The Man Who Spends All

To the man who finds it extremely difficult to save it is especially important that a way be found that not only encourages him to make saving a habit but also assures him of absolute safety. A plan awaits every man or woman in this group.

The Savings Depositor

As funds accumulate many savings investors take advantage of the Forman Plan which pays an attractive yield without affecting the safety of their investment.

The Speculative Buyer

The man easily enthused and often misled by the mirage of big, quick profits. Were he to figure his losses on poor investments against an occasional profit he would find that his net income amounted to less than the same investment would have brought in safe securities, such as he can now learn about through the plan of George M. Forman & Company.

The Father with Foresight

The man, ambitious for his son or daughter, thoughtful of his family's future and protection. George M. Forman & Company's plan safeguards the interests of family and children against any emergency.

THE PLAN FOR YOU

A special service awaits you, regardless of which type of investor you may be. Tell us your investment problems and let us send you our interesting booklet. Write or call for your copy, or phone Central 6020.

The New York Times.

New York, Nov. 11.—[Special.]—Foreign exchange and the stock market were the points of particular interest today, as they had been the day before.

Stocks moved much as they did on Friday; further declines, ranging in numerous cases from 1 to 5 points, left Wall street increasingly perplexed. With European exchange rates the movement of recovery was more general than on the previous day; virtually all of them advanced moderately, with sterling and lire ending well above the preceding week's final prices, but with francs and marks at a considerable net decline. Next week, with England's $50,000,000 payment due on Wednesday, may develop some interesting movements.

Fear Corporation Surplus Tax.

The stock market fixed its mind today on what it appeared to consider the settled policy of this congress or the next one regarding a tax on company surpluses. Possibly some such expedient has been talked about at Washington.

Any one can propose in congress drastic or even absurd legislation; but people with ordinary methods of reasoning usually wait to see what the bill comprises, whether it will ever get out of the committee to which it is referred, and who is likely to vote for it if it does emerge. The stock exchange, however, looks for discouraging news when a market is declining, and is not always particular as to its quality. Any rumor relating to a "corporation surplus" is nowadays sure to put the Wall street mind into commotion.

British Exports Keep Up.

Today's cabled report of Great Britain's foreign trade last month is the first of such statements for a period subsequent to the enactment of the Fordney-McCumber tariff. The tariff went into force on Sept. 21. England's exports during October are some £2,000,000 less than in September; but the September total had been enlarged both by shipments of coal to America and by hurrying forward merchandise to get in before the new tariff schedules were applied.

Passing September, it will be seen that last month's total British export trade was above the monthly average of this year and largely in excess of the monthly shipments from April to June, inclusive. Since the statement does not cover destination of the exports, it is impossible to say exactly what happened with shipments to America.

New York Bank Loans Fall.

While the agricultural sections are experiencing an increased demand for money for moving the crops, demand for credit has slackened in the New York district, possibly as a result in part of stock market liquidation. For the second consecutive week loans of the New York clearing house banks show a substantial decrease, this week's contraction amounting to $40,910,000, while net demand deposits declined $41,031,000. A surplus reserve of $35,482,510 displaces last week's deficit of $4,086,240. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

To Holders of Called Victory Notes: Use Care in Reinvesting.

All 4¾ per cent Victory notes which bear the distinguishing letters A, B, C, D, E, or F, have been called by the treasury department, and will be redeemed at par and accrued interest on Dec. 15, 1922, after which date they cease to bear interest. On the surrender of their notes present holders will have the funds thus liberated to reinvest. Realizing this, investment houses, brokers, and dealers in stocks and bonds everywhere have been active, trying to secure the reinvestment of these funds in the securities which they have to offer. Many of them offer to take these notes at their redemption price in exchange for their own securities.

As a large number of Victory note holders doubtless got their first, and perhaps only, experience in bond investment through the purchase of Liberty bonds or Victory notes, we wish to caution them that not all bonds are safe, and that they would exercise the greatest care to be sure that the security which they select for reinvestment is a sound one. This money has been protected in a safe investment, which brought in a moderate rate of income. It will now be liberated, and tempting offers of investments bearing a much higher rate of income will be made. It must be remembered, however, that one generally pays for higher income rates with lessened safety. Safety of principal is much more important than the most part offer high grade investments, but even these vary in degrees of a high rate of return. Don't jeopardize the safety of $100 for the sake of securing $2 or $3 of extra interest per annum. True, it is still possible to secure sound investments yielding as high as 6 or 7 per cent, but these are the exception now and not the rule.

Reputable investment houses will for safety, and great care should be exercised to differentiate between those that really are sound and those that are not. But there are a lot of unscrupulous but convincing salesmen about offering all sorts of so-called investments, which range from moderately weak to hazardous speculations. They will tell you that they are as safe as your Victory notes, but don't believe it. Before you consider an investment consult some impartial authority, who is in position to know. Don't be rushed into an investment—there is always time. Better spend time in investigation than in regret. You cannot be too careful where you put your money. It is better to be sorry that you did not invest than that you did. Think that over.

The resources and experience of this department are freely at your service. We shall be glad to give a frank and impartial opinion on the investment possibilities of any security submitted to us.

Investment in Industries
Protected by Real Public Ownership

THE PUBLIC UTILITIES of the United States are rapidly becoming owned by the people through direct possession of income paying securities. The total number of public utility investors in this country is now said to be about 1,600,000.

Operation of the customer ownership plan is adding thousands of citizens daily to the vast army already financially interested in these essential industries.

As more and more people thus demonstrate their confidence in the utility companies serving their home communities, by purchasing capital stock, investment in such companies is made increasingly desirable to the general investor.

Customer ownership of the service companies means first hand, direct ownership by the people, and at the same time, fully responsible, skilled and experienced management. Control of operations will continue to be lodged in the specialists most competent to exercise it.

Widespread customer ownership of the utilities unquestionably gives these industries a new and more favorable standing in the public consciousness. It operates both towards popularizing fair treatment from political bodies and to further improve the standard of management.

The new conception of public utilities—that of responsive and exceedingly useful public servants, owned by the more thrifty individuals whom they serve—is not yet fully appreciated by the investing public.

• • •

An element of protection of the strongest and most far reaching character is being woven into utility securities of a large and increasing number of companies, heretofore lacking in any industrial investment.

• • •

Certain organizations, of which Standard Gas and Electric Company is one, have been conspicuously successful in this method of unifying corporate and public interests.

A Holland Furnace for Christmas

ALL of the Holland Furnaces that the Company set out to produce in 1922 have been sold. The entire sales quota for the year was reached in the first ten months.

But this condition was foreseen in September and new arrangements were made to produce enough more furnaces to at least partially supply the demand for Christmas.

It has become quite common for entire families to unite in buying a Holland Heating System for a Christmas gift. Whole households look forward to it every year, and as the supply of both Holland furnaces and Holland trained men will be limited, as usual, we are publishing this Christmas suggestion now—our last announcement for the year.

If you will order your Holland right away, the entire family will be enjoying the health and comfort of it on Christmas day—and for a lifetime afterwards. But during the few weeks left we'll have to hold strictly to the rule of "first come first served," so don't delay your order if the Christmas idea appeals to you as much as it does to so many others.

Holland Designed for Fine Homes

Although the Holland Furnace, as you probably know, was designed primarily for use in the finer homes, it is now heating many, many homes of moderate circumstances.

This fortunate condition has developed through selling direct to the user from the factory, and through the wonderfully efficient manufacturing facilities in two great factories.

We rejoice that sales plans, mechanical progress and efficient management have enabled us to sell the Holland for use in modest homes as well as the more elaborate ones. As Lincoln said, "God must have liked poor people—he makes so many of them."

Not having a lot of money certainly doesn't mean that people are truly poor. If they are well and happy they're rich—a good deal richer than some of the wealthy. But whether they have a lot of money or not, people are realizing more and more that there cannot be much in a home that is worth while without healthful heating and ventilating.

A Holland Furnace makes homes more healthful, comfortable and happy. You may have the money to buy any kind of heating plant you choose but, regardless of price, just as soon as you know all of the differences between the various systems we firmly believe you'll choose the Holland.

Holland Furnaces for Christmas will be sold as usual, either for cash with a liberal discount or on the time payment basis. It is EASY to buy a HOLLAND Furnace!

LEADERSHIP

Some keen and experienced observer once remarked: "When any product is accorded a position of pre-eminence in its field a heavy responsibility is also laid upon it. The leadership it has won by its superior qualities, it must maintain. Having outstripped competition, it must surpass itself."

Speak to any Holland Furnace man about competition and you will find that here is an organization which honestly feels that it is competing only with itself, and you'll find that he is a man that fully realizes and honors the responsibility to himself, his Company and the Holland user.

No doubt little improvements will be made in the Holland System from time to time, but the very fact that the system was first planned for the best of homes, and that the principal progress since that time has been the cutting of costs through radical efficiency development tells in a few words why the Holland is so decisively the leader in its field.

The Holland is not only the leader now but, if a sincere desire to serve and an iron determination in the hearts of men mean anything, the Holland Organization of experts will keep right on being the greatest in the heating business.

The friends who greet you in your own drawing-room receive an impression of you that you will never know . . .

All around you people are judging you silently

YOU CANNOT escape it—that frank, unspoken comment that is born in the mind of every person you meet.

The friends who greet you in your own drawing room—the strangers who pass you in the street—each one of them is storing up impressions of you that you will never know.

Don't let little evidences of neglect—carelessness about your appearance— create an unfavorable impression.

Keep your skin clear, smooth, flawless! Nothing has more influence on your appearance than the condition of your skin. It should be above criticism, always.

If you have an unattractive complexion—a skin that is dull and sallow, or marred by ugly little blemishes—begin now to overcome this condition. Any girl can have a smooth, clear complexion. For each day your skin is changing—old skin dies, and new takes its place. By the right treatment you can make this new skin what you will.

Read the two treatments given on this page. One of them tells how you can correct an oily skin and give it the smooth, velvety texture it should have. The other tells you what to do for a pale, sallow skin—how to rouse it to color and life. These are only two of the special Woodbury treatments used by fastidious women everywhere for improving the condition of their skin.

These and other complete treatments for each type of skin and its needs are given in the booklet of famous skin treatments that is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today and begin tonight the treatment suited to your skin.

The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for general use. A 25 cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for general toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments.

A complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations

For 25 cents we will send you a complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing:

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.
A sample tube of the new Woodbury's Facial Cream.
A sample tube of Woodbury's Cold Cream.
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder.
Together with the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 332 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio. If you live in Canada address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 332 Sherbrooke Street, Perth, Ontario. English Agents: H. C. Quelch & Co., 4 Ludgate Square, London, E. C. 4.

Use this treatment for a skin that is too oily

First cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now, with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

Use this treatment regularly each night before retiring, and within a week or ten days you will notice a marked improvement in your skin.

A pale, sallow skin should be given this special treatment

Just before retiring, fill your basin full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over top of the basin and cover your head with a heavy bath towel, so that no steam can escape. Steam your face for thirty seconds. Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into the skin with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold, and finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

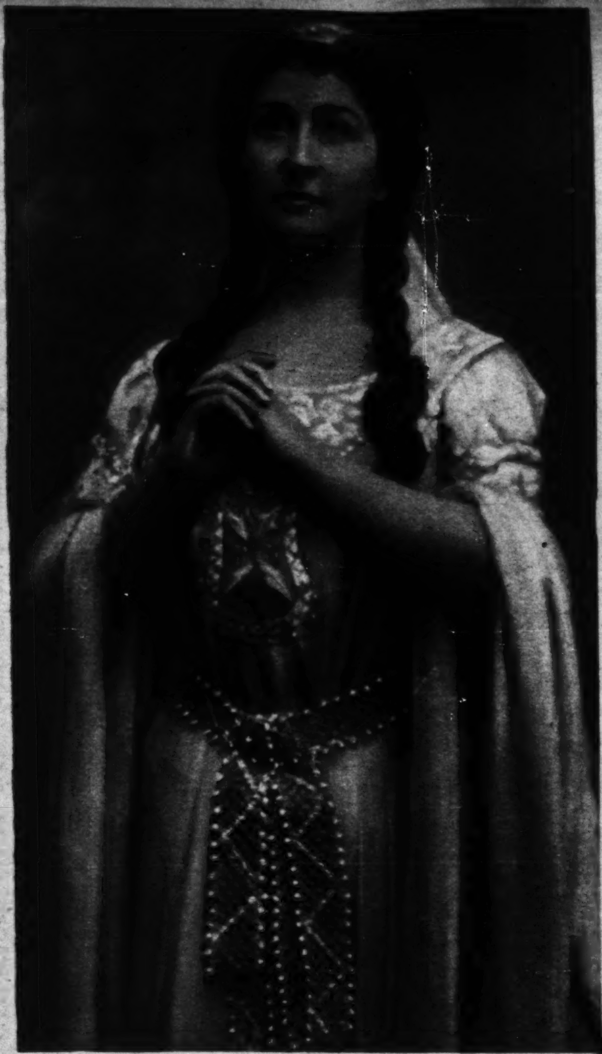
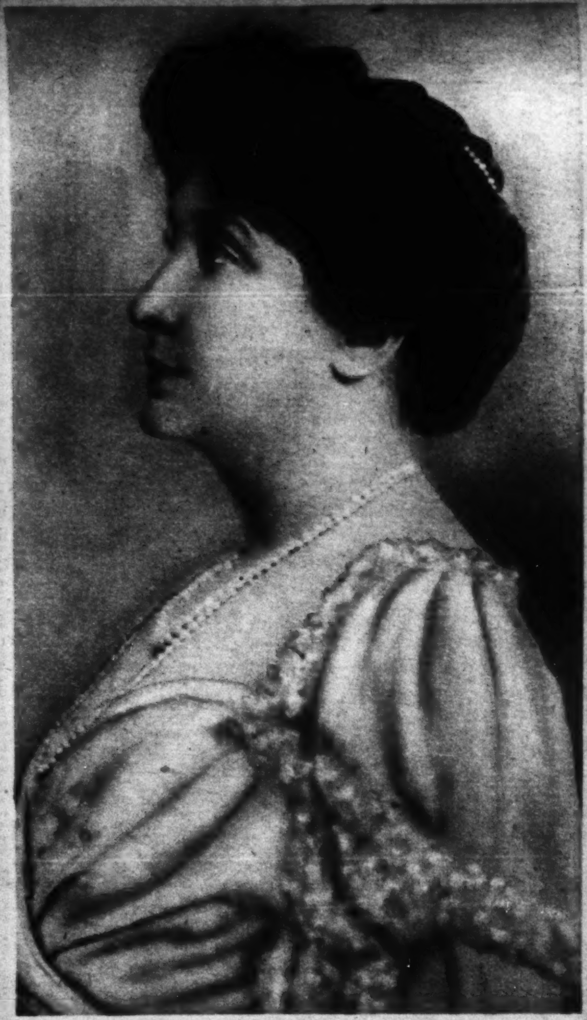
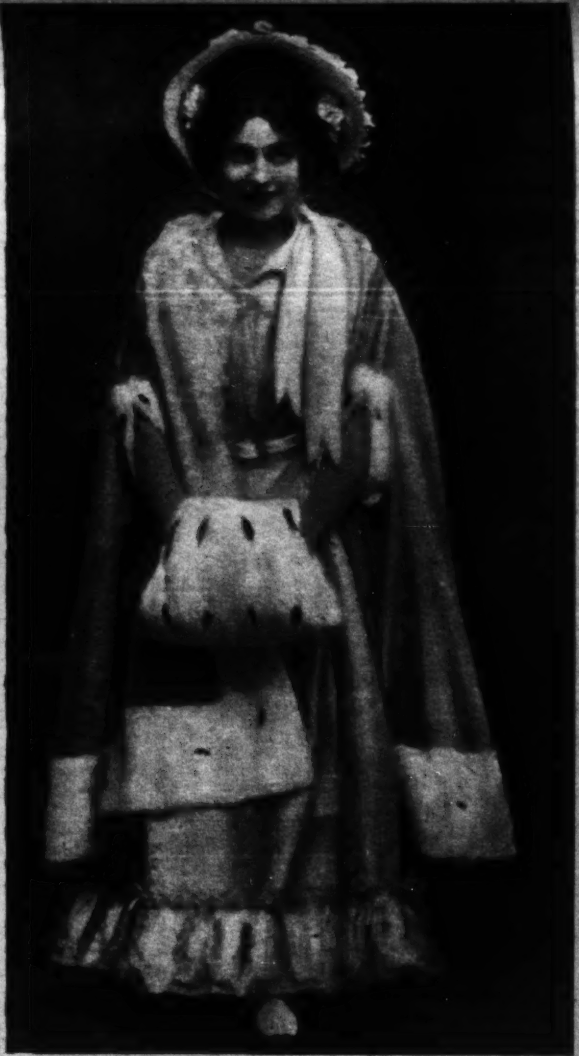
DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN—



MME. EMMA EAMES made her American grand opera debut in 1891? The picture shows her as she appeared in the role of Marguerite in "Faust." The Chicago grand opera season opens tomorrow night at the Auditorium.



MME. NELLIE MELBA'S salary of $3,000 a night as grand opera singer created a sensation? This picture was taken in 1908. Mme. Melba first appeared in concert at the age of 6, but her musical studies really began at 3.



GERALDINE FARRAR sang the role of Mimi in "La Boheme" in the second year of her notable career at the Metropolitan? She retired from grand opera about a year ago after sixteen triumphant years with the Metropolitan.

This newest Goodrich creation is a real contribution to fashionable footwear. Pavlovo is a handsome, graceful boot for either street or carriage wear. Foot and sole are of Goodrich rubber, and the upper is waterproof jersey cloth, finished with a cuff of astrakan cloth.

It slips on and off street shoes or evening slippers without effort. In bad weather the cuff can be turned up and snapped tight, keeping the leg warm and the foot dry. Pavlovo conforms in height to dress skirt lengths adopted for the season. Your dealer sells Pavlovo.

Stops Pain Instantly

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in two forms—a colorless, clear liquid (one drop does it!) and in extra thin plasters. Use whichever form you prefer, plasters or the liquid—the action is the same. Safe, gentle. Made in a world-famed laboratory. Sold by all druggists.

SOME NEWCOMERS IN CHICAGO OPERA

Four artists new to Chicago who will appear in season which opens tomorrow.

Made to wear with the newest fashions

Carter's Knit Underwear is made in individual styles to suit every gown and every material. High or Dutch necked, long-sleeved, ankle length models for the tailored suit or gown; or soft sheer models in silk or lisle, with delicate ribbon shoulder straps, for evening wear.

The lines of the costliest dress are easily ruined without the right foundation—are you wearing the correct underwear?

Underwear as soft and snug as the sheerest slip!

Carter's Knit Underwear is designed in a great variety of individual styles. Its slim lines of elegance and ease make a perfect foundation for the most clinging or diaphanous frock. It never pokes up—never slips into view at shoulder or neck; never shows an ungainly bunch or wrinkle. You can get it in luxurious silk, or in cotton almost as soft as silk; in wool, cotton and wool, or silk and wool. Even in the heavier weights it is not bulky.

Ideally comfortable for children and babies

Carter's Knit Underwear for children and babies represents the very best that manufacturing experience and skill can do. Carter baby vests have become the standard vests millions of mothers have chosen. They are made of yarns selected for their wonderful fineness and softness, and knit by a special process that makes them unusually elastic. Thoroughly shrunk and sterilised before it leaves the factory.

The very latest word from Paris is that street costumes are keeping to the slender silhouette, and that the growing tendency of evening gowns is toward a silhouette following even more closely the natural lines of the figure.

How can you acquire the winter's silhouette, and still be warm and comfortable? This makes your underwear problems exactly as important as your outerwear problems!

Carter's Knit Underwear solves your problem. It is made in an almost endless variety of styles and weights to meet the requirements of every material or fashion for daytime or for evening wear.

Exactly the same care is given to the fitting of Carter's Knit Underwear as your dressmaker gives to fitting your dresses. In fact the original of each style of Carter's is actually fitted by a dressmaker, on a living model.

The fabric itself is knit on a machine with so many needles that the exactness of the knitting gives it a remarkable elasticity. A Carter suit clings to your figure without pulling or binding. Although it gives with every change in your position, it never gets loose and baggy.

You will love the "feel" of a Carter suit. Only the most superior grades of raw material are used, all their original values retained by various washings in distilled water and by bleaching in a special preparation of peroxide of hydrogen. The result is the wonderful feeling of silky softness that lasts even after long wear and frequent washings.

Many little niceties of finish add further characteristic touches to Carter's Knit Underwear. The double crochet edging in the styles for women and children is a detail found exclusively in Carter's. The seams are made to be really flat, and the ends are "budded" to keep from ripping. The button holes are reinforced, and the buttons are double-stitched so they will not pull off.

With its superiority of workmanship and material, and its unerring reflection of the demands of fashion, Carter's Knit Underwear is not only an economy, it is a necessity!

You can get Carter's Knit Underwear at good stores everywhere, in styles for women, men, children and infants, in all weights of cotton, cotton and wool, wool, silk and wool, and silk.

Confident

Women who use Scolding Locks Hairpins—the newest thing—are confident, always, that their hair looks neat. Scolding Locks Hairpins cannot come out. They are crimped two ways—in and out on one side, up and down on the other.

Women like them to restrain light strands over the ears and heavy hair at the back. Scolding Locks are specially enameled all over and filed smooth at points. They cannot catch the hair or the net.

The new styles of hair dress demand Scolding Locks Hairpins. If your dealer cannot supply you, send 10 cents to the factory for 100 assorted lengths in the Lavender-and-White cabinet; 60 invisibles, 5 cents.

SOME NEWCOMERS IN CHICAGO OPERA

Four artists new to Chicago who will appear in season which opens tomorrow.

CLAUDIO MUZIO will sing soprano roles. Her father was stage manager in the early days of Chicago opera. She was a member of the Ravinia company and was liked.

(Photograph: copyright: by Mishkin.)

INA BOURSKAYA, mezzo-soprano, came to this country last winter with the company organized in Russia during the Kerensky regime. In one season she has been made a member of the Chicago, Metropolitan, and Ravinia companies. (Photograph from Moffett.)

FEODOR CHALIAPIN is a gigantic basso, rated as one of the foremost artists of all time. He is here represented as Mephistopheles in Boito's opera of the same name, one of the roles in which he will appear at the Auditorium this winter.

CESARE FORMICHI'S appearance on the Auditorium stage will be his first effort before an American audience. His reputation in Europe is high, and he will impersonate most of the important baritone characters of this season's Italian operas.

Why Dainty Women Prefer NUL—

There are five big reasons why dainty women like Nul better than any other perspiration corrective.

First, because it safely destroys every trace of perspiration moisture and odor. Second, because it's guaranteed not to spot or stain the daintiest fabric. Third, because it leaves the most sensitive skin soft, smooth and white. Fourth, because it dries quickly, and leaves a fairy-like film of dainty white powder which lasts for hours. Fifth, because it can be applied at any time, day or night, without precaution in using and without after treatments to prevent injury to the skin.

These five reasons ought to make you want to try Nul yourself and see how it excels as a perspiration preventive.

Sweet, dry underarms always when Nul is used.

Nul dries so quickly it can be used on a moment's notice.

SPECIAL NOTE

You can get Nul at most drug stores and at department stores and toilet goods counters everywhere. But if for any reason your dealer has neglected to stock Nul, we'll mail you a full size tube in plain wrapper for 60c. Or, if you prefer, send a dime for a trial tube. Write today to Sheffield Pharmacal Co., 339 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Fortunate Baby That Sleeps in Lingette!

CARESSINGLY soft as a rose petal is the shimmering, silky surface of this fine cotton fabric.

Defying warm cleansing suds, and hot irons, Lingette is ideally suited for the making of baby dresses, petticoats, little coats, "baby buntings", coverlets and bassinette trimmings!

Lingette

Everybody thinks it's silk

Lingette's success has led to many imitations, some of which lose their shimmer in the first washing. We warn our customers against any material offered as Lingette unless it is stamped "Lingette" on the selvage; against any ready-made garment unless it has a Lingette label! Remember, "Lingette" is never sold under any other name!

Write for names of stores near you that sell Lingette.

They're Fine for Cold Weather —Patrick Greatcoats

Patrick Greatcoats made of the celebrated Patrick cloth, and tailored the Patrick way, are particularly desired by well dressed men.

In the coldest weather there is nothing finer than one of these Patrick Greatcoats. They are not only in extremely good taste but they are warm—oh, so warm.

That's because there is no other cloth like Patrick cloth. It is made of highest grade, long-fibre, pure, virgin wool "from sheep that thrive in the snow." Patrick cloth is as distinctive to America as friezes to Ireland, cheviots to Scotland, tweeds to England.

Patrick maintains its high quality by performing every manufacturing process, from the raw wool to spinning the yarn, weaving the cloth, and making the finished garments.

In the separate overcoat factories of Patrick in Duluth, the highest priced tailoring ability obtainable exercises that craftsmanship and minute care which shows in the style and finish of Patrick Greatcoats.

Ask to see Patrick Greatcoats, Mackinaws, Sweaters, Caps, Hosiery, Auto and Outing Blankets and Sports Clothing. Sold by best dealers everywhere. New style book is now ready and will be sent upon request. It describes the entire Patrick line of pure wool products.

DON'T GET HURT! Seventy miles an hour spelled death for one of four men who sped down Riverside drive in New York in a racing car said to have been stolen from Barney Oldfield, the noted driver. The machine leaped over a curb and crashed against a tree. The dead man was catapulted against the tree, and two others in the car were seriously injured. The broken speedometer showed seventy miles an hour.

The fire and vigor that most men lose—he has it back at 59

He was nearly 60. After a severe illness, he was ready to resign himself to old age. And then, like thousands of others, he discovered a simple way to restore the vigor and vitality of perfect normal health.

The fresh living cells of Fleischmann's Yeast contain a natural food—with the very elements which help the body perform its two most vital functions:

—Build up the worn-out tissues from day to day

—Remove regularly the poisonous waste that accumulates.

Like any other plant or vegetable, yeast produces the best results when fresh and "green"—not dried or "killed." Fleischmann's Yeast is the highest grade living yeast—always fresh. It is not a medicine, it is a natural food. Results cannot be expected unless it is eaten regularly. Eaten regularly day after day, it helps to "tone" up the whole system and assures regular daily elimination.

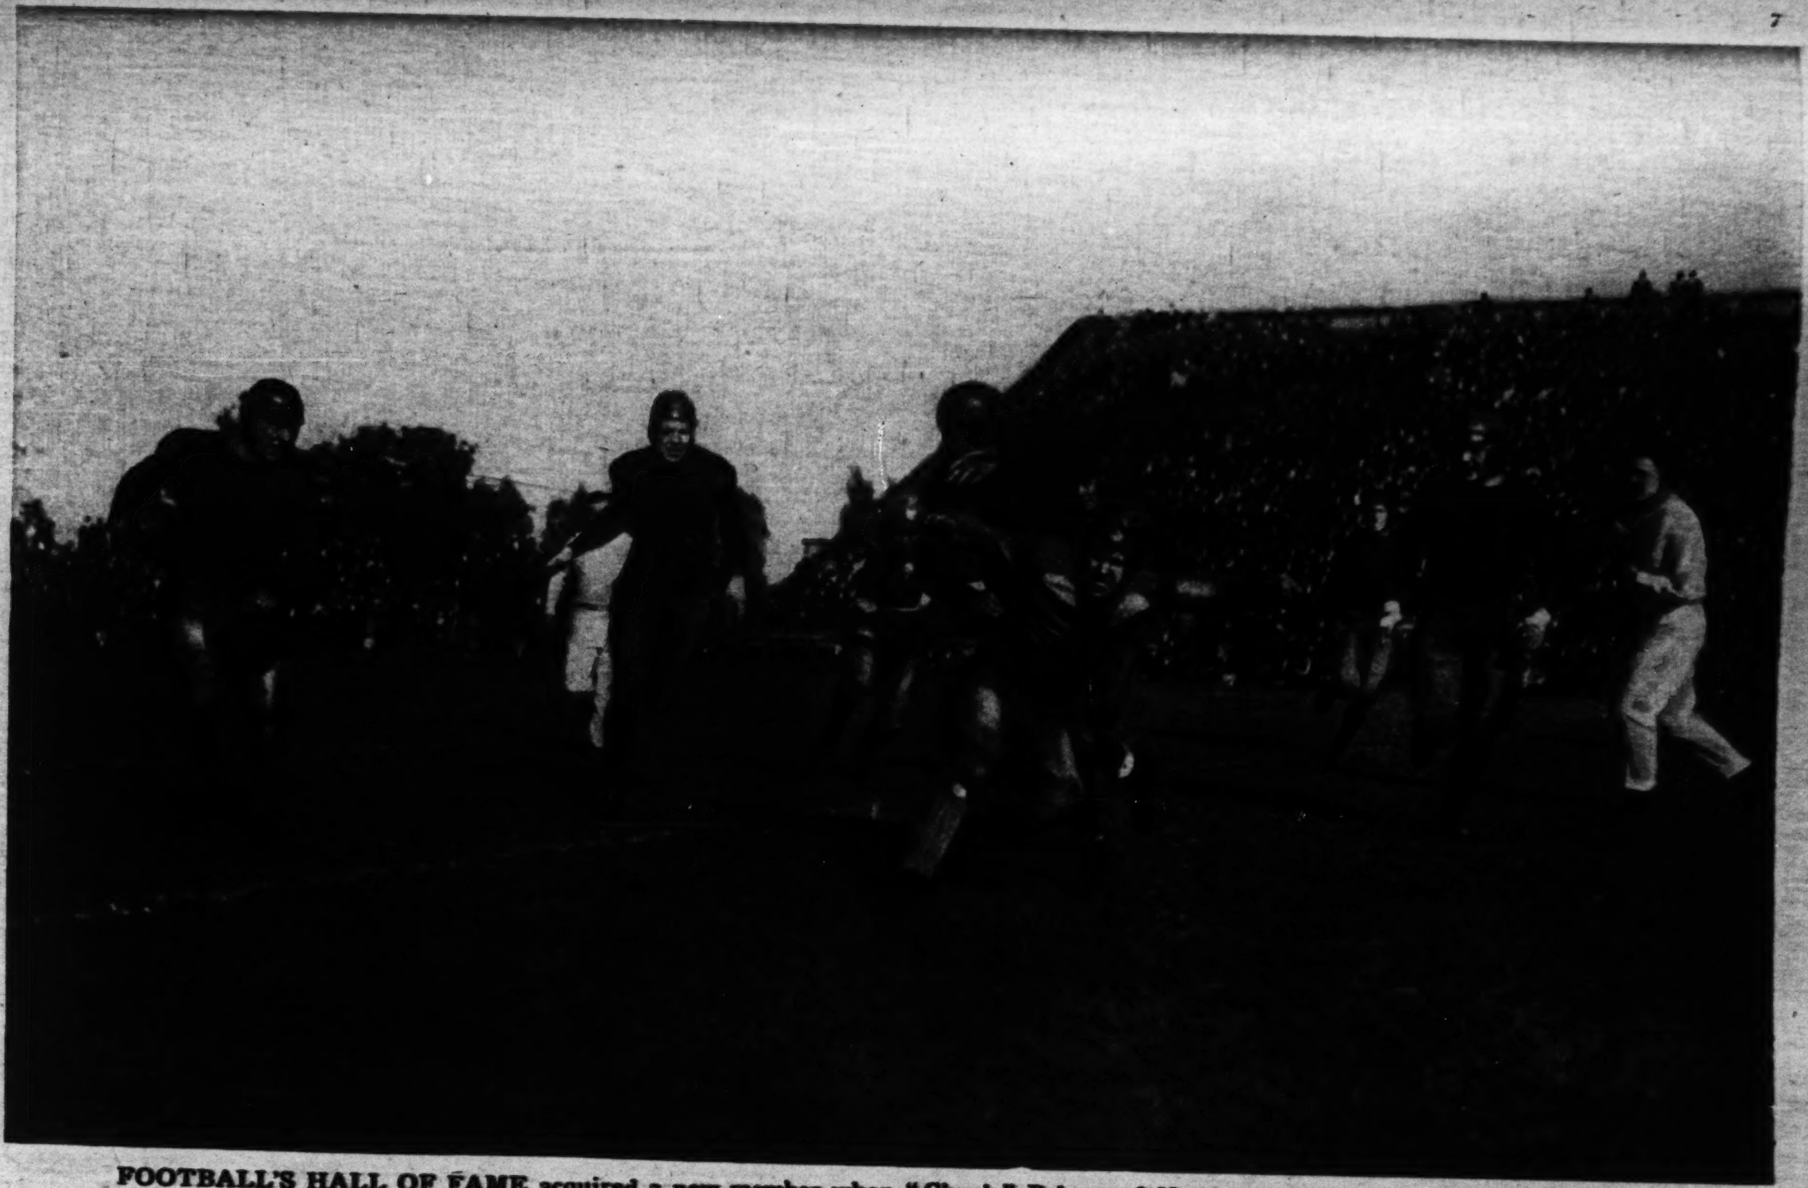
Everywhere physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast to correct constipation, skin disorders and to restore appetite and digestion.

"Today I am 59 years young"

A recent letter from a Westerner tells how, three years ago, he had a severe breakdown. "I was 56 years old," he writes, "and looked about 96. I went out from here to the hospital on a stretcher.

"Today, after 32 months daily use of Fleischmann's Yeast, I am 59 years young—and can outwalk, outrun, outjump, outshoot, and outride any man 30 years my junior."

Eat two or three cakes a day regularly—plain, or spread on crackers, or mixed with water or milk. If you prefer, get six cakes at a time. They will keep in a cool, dry place for two or three days. Begin at once to know what real health means! Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.



FOOTBALL'S HALL OF FAME acquired a new member when "Chuck" Palmer of Northwestern university picked up a fumble behind his own goal line and dashed 101 yards for a touchdown against Minnesota. That magnificent effort, the longest run in fourteen years of major football records, gave Northwestern a 7 to 7 tie with the Gophers. Palmer is shown steaming across his own thirty-yard line. A grim visaged Purple warrior is seen blocking off an enemy who would halt Palmer's progress.

ALICE JOYCE

Spanish, Irish and Welsh types of beauty all add to Alice Joyce's charm.

She might have inspired that immortal song, "Drink to me only with thine eyes."

[Photograph from Edward Thayer Monroe.]

NEW YORK.—Of Miss Alice Joyce, who in private life is Mrs. James B. Regan Jr., Miss Neysa McMein famous illustrator, said: "If I were to die and go to heaven, all I'd ask for would be to be made like Alice Joyce."

Curious to find out exactly what would inspire one woman to request, as the reward of a life's labors, to be remodeled after the design of another of her sex, I sought out Miss Joyce and found her about to embark on a dress sight-seeing jaunt, that glorious pastime which never palls nor wearies, or when it does, there is every indication that hope were well abandoned.

So over the phone we planned to meet, and the grave was not our goal. No, there was an opening in town—one of those ultra "fraternity" establishments where, unknown, you are suspected of concealing such burglars' tools as pencil and sketch pad and an eye for modish detail. And where the haughty hostess shoots you a glance from beneath her plucked out eyebrows, which translates itself into: "Out with all of them, including your eye."

Arriving there first, I perforce waited in the outer reception hall, where passed a stream of pretty women, who, upon showing cards or giving the grip or whatever distinguishes the ins from the outs, were privileged to ascend the spiral staircase to the tune of "Poor Butterfly."

My crude philosophizing upon poor butterflies and $250 dresses you want without the disconcerting 0 after the 5 was interrupted, fortunately, by the appearance of one who walked with a brisk air and a smart step. She wore a stunning little black satin turban, around the crown of which wound two rolls of satin ending in two jaunty streamers on the right side; a dark blue tailored dress, dark stockings, and patent leathers. She had arrestingly lovely eyes and her face was illuminated with expression. It was Miss Joyce, with the many perfectly good reasons why one might wish to be remodeled after her exclusive design.

Eyes to Inspire a Poet.

MISS JOYCE is five feet seven inches tall and has dark brown hair, beautifully arched brows, and eyes that could easily inspire the same flame of devotion as those of the lady who touched off the immortal "Drink to me only with thine eyes." Particularly lovely are her eyes, hazel brown in color, with the light of health and a love of life in them. Her full, warm mouth discloses beautiful, even, white teeth. A lovely contour of cheek and chin rounds out the picture.

She was quite tanned from a summer spent at the seashore, where she had gone in for golf and swimming—the first time in her life she had had a real chance at outdoor sports, heretofore having had to report early and late for motion picture studio work. A stanch swimming devotee now immediately after she got back in town she signed up with a gymnasium which has a swimming pool attached.

There is a lovely natural wave to Miss Joyce's hair, which ordinarily she wears parted in simplest fashion on the side and drawn into a knot at the back. Sometimes for evening wear she does it up into a modernized French roll, which is most becoming. But she is the type you could imagine in any style of coiffure, so definite is her charm of expression and beauty.

She weighs about 125 pounds, which, with her five feet seven and the even distribution of her weight, provides a graceful, beautifully rounded figure. She has charming poise and ease of movement.

You think of Miss Joyce in terms of warmth, whereas another beauty might give out a sense of coldness and still another an atmosphere of too great vitality. You are not conscious of Miss Joyce's dress, for instance, nor of her hair, nor of any particular feature. Yet you are conscious of a vast charm throughout. She is all in the picture, so to speak. If one may be excused for use of a word which unfortunately has been frightfully abused, although in its proper sense none other carries the meaning as well, she is a lady in looks, in dress, in manner. You do not think of her as wearing any particular type of dress, say, because you feel she would be lovely Alice Joyce in any style—lavender and old lace, ultra evening dress, or sports clothes.

I think she would be the last person in the world to believe any one would crave to be fashioned after her.

"I would like to be a more distinctive type," she confided to me. "I would love to be able to find a color, a style, a perfume,

How Alice Joyce Keeps Her Beauty

AND behold, these are Alice Joyce's secrets of beauty:

Moderation in eating all the year round, with no second helpings, no matter how tempting the viands.

Abstinence from sweets and all fattening foods whenever her perfection of figure is imperiled by a gain in weight.

Quite frequent visits to the dentist to ward off any possible inroads on her lovely teeth.

Use of good cleansing creams to preserve and enhance the beauty of a good clear skin.

A healthful, normal life in a setting consisting of a wholesome, well-appointed home.

To these secrets Miss Joyce has added a sixth and seventh—golf and swimming, particularly the latter. During her vacation at the seashore last summer she took up these two sports for the first time in her life, and now is a devotee. Heretofore her motion picture work had barred her from any great indulgence in either sport.

Her heritage of beauty is threefold—Irish, Spanish, and Welsh—and she has all the warm qualities of beauty that are associated with the typical southern belle.

anything to be individual. Like Catherine Calvert, for instance, who wears red, or black, or white exclusively. I'm not individual, and I love that in people. I just try out everything that comes along, from soap to dress."

She named other girls whose beauty she admired. Dolores she thought the most marvelous looking creature she ever had seen.

"I have seen her come into a room and pale every one present, so superb she is," she added.

I don't believe Miss Joyce has had to do much worrying so far about keeping her figure.

"Once in a while," she confided, "if I feel a pound or two weighing down upon me, I just lay off sweets and fattening things. I never let myself get more than three or four pounds over. My system of diet is an all-year-round one, and it consists in moderation in food and no second helpings. I figure the second helpings do the damage."

An excellent tip, by the way. And as she has never had to wear corsets, that were sufficient argument.

Like most other professionl stage persons, she has that clear, good skin which I think must be attributed to the constant use of good cleansing creams. Instead of a rouge for street, Miss Joyce buys a bright red powder and a white and mixes them until she gets a tone which, when applied to the face, gives the appearance of healthy tan, that suits her olive skin exactly.

She is most careful about going to the dentist often enough to ward off any inroads on her lovely teeth—a precaution which would prolong the beauty of many another mouth.

Little Alice and Peggy.

AFTER the fashion revue we wandered over to Miss Joyce's apartment on Park avenue. A charming little miss of 6, Alice, and an infant daughter, Peggy, greeted her with open arms, smiles and gurgles, respectively. Is there anything, I ask you, that emphasizes a woman's loveliness as does a charming home background and the role of an adoring mamma? I think not! Warmth of tone here again! Spacious rooms, furnished on lines of comfort and subdued colorings. Just what you would expect.

Proudly Miss Joyce produced a half completed sweater she was knitting for Alice, and, just to prove this was no stage setting, she rattled off a few more rows.

In her boudoir a charming color scheme was noted in the plain golden brown velvet rug, the Chinese blue painted furniture, the lavender silk coverlets.

Here I was admitted to the secret of a formal headdress which she is popularizing. She takes a band of ribbon about six inches wide (one was pink brocaded in silver, another jade embroidered in gold), pins one end in the hair at the nape of the neck, brings it around over the right ear to the middle of the forehead, whence it is carried back almost directly to meet the piece already pinned; around it goes again to the right, but this time a few inches higher than the right ear, down to the middle of the forehead, and on down over the left ear, forming in the middle of the forehead a drape as in the Hindu's headdress; from the left ear it continues on to be pinned in and the end tucked away where she started out. A little draping of the ribbon close to the crown is necessary to suit the shape of the individual head, but it does make quite an elaborate headpiece for very formal wear.

Miss Joyce was born in Missouri, with a strain of Welsh, Irish, and Spanish in her makeup. She lived for a time in Virginia, and confesses she would love to be able to say she were a Virginian.

She could say it all right, for she has that quality of beauty you associate with the historic southern belle.

The drink for football weather

BRISK autumn weather — youngsters forever thirsty for a live drink. Give them Clicquot—all they want of it.

They love Clicquot Club Ginger Ale—all its golden bubbles and all its happy taste. It's a good drink in cool autumn—the natural warmth of the ginger in it prevents any possibility of a chill.

It's a good drink in summer too, and winter, and spring. And they always like it.

So do grown-ups always like Clicquot Club Ginger Ale. If there ever was a universal taste for anything, this is it—they all like it.

It's a good, pure drink—water from deep rock springs, ginger from Jamaica, fruit flavors and cane sugar that are the best to be had—all these are blended for Clicquot Club.

There are other Clicquot Club beverages that are just as good and pure—Clicquot Club Sarsaparilla, Birch Beer, and Root Beer. Have a variety case of Clicquot drinks in the house at all times. Keep a few bottles on ice—they're best when they're cold. Buy a case from your grocer or druggist.

A New and Vastly Better Process of Newspaper Color Printing

In the picture above is shown the first step in COLORoto—preparing the copper cylinder. Copper is electrolytically deposited on a steel core, and the surface ground and burnished. On the surface of the copper cylinder the pictures and type which you see in this section are etched. In the picture below the colors in an illustration are being "separated." Negatives are made—one each for yellow, red, blue, and black. From these are printed positives and both negatives and positives are expertly strengthened by retouching (see the picture above). A "gelatine transfer" is then made from the positive, as shown in the picture below, and a very fine screen printed into the transfer, which is "squeegeed" on to the copper cylinder and developed. The cylinder is then immersed in acid and etched, after which it becomes a unit in one of the huge presses which print over eight hundred thousand COLORoto sections every week.

COLORoto advertisers enjoy advantages unique to themselves:

Good color reproduction in the most eagerly sought for, most thoroughly read section of The Sunday Tribune—the COLORoto Magazine—an institution in each of every five homes throughout The Chicago Territory.

And the price is low! $2.70 to $3.40 a Milline—the lowest Milline rate of all quality color magazines

A MORE detailed account of the COLORoto process, as well as of all other processes employed in the daily production of The Tribune, is embodied in a new 304 page book, "The W. G. N." Send $2.00 to the Business Survey of The Tribune for a copy, or see your favorite bookseller.

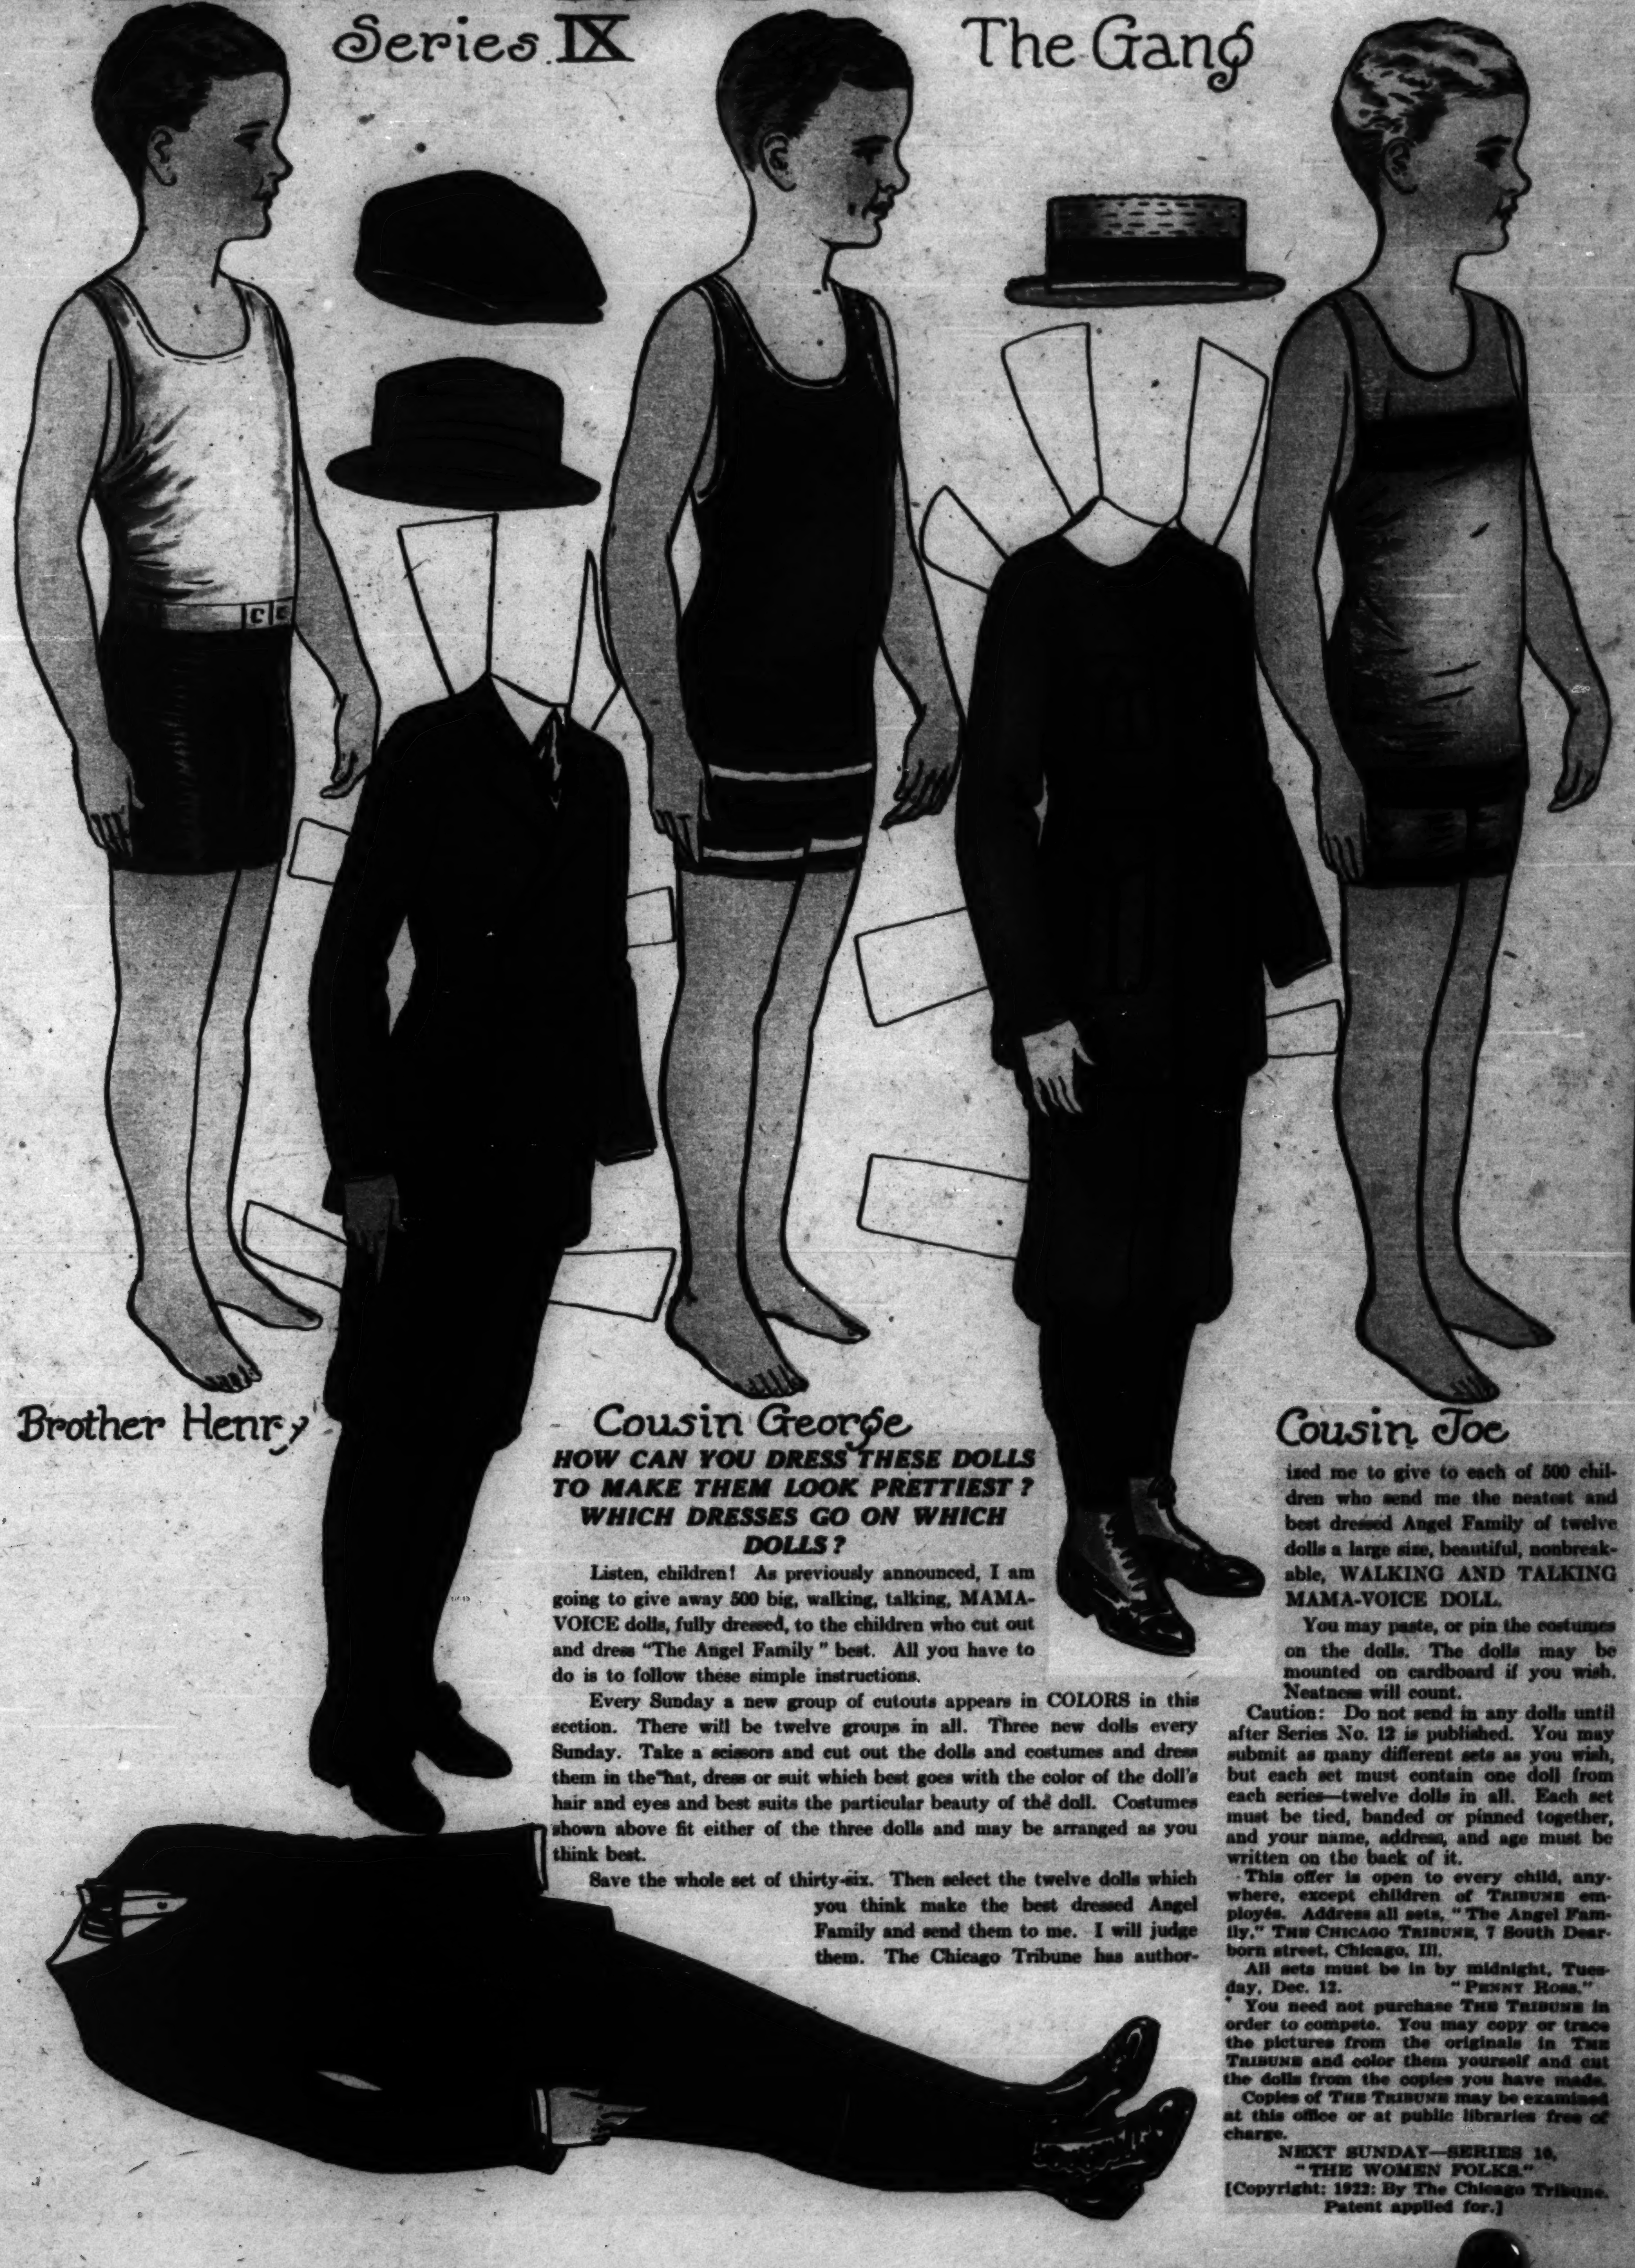
THE ANGEL FAMILY

By Penny Ross

Series IX The Gang



HOW CAN YOU DRESS THESE DOLLS TO MAKE THEM LOOK PRETTIEST? WHICH DRESSES GO ON WHICH DOLLS?

Listen, children! As previously announced, I am going to give away 500 big, walking, talking, MAMA-VOICE dolls, fully dressed, to the children who cut out and dress "The Angel Family" best. All you have to do is to follow these simple instructions.

Every Sunday a new group of cutouts appears in COLORS in this section. There will be twelve groups in all. Three new dolls every Sunday. Take a scissors and cut out the dolls and costumes and dress them in the hat, dress or suit which best goes with the color of the doll's hair and eyes and best suits the particular beauty of the doll. Costumes shown above fit either of the three dolls and may be arranged as you think best.

Save the whole set of thirty-six. Then select the twelve dolls which you think make the best dressed Angel Family and send them to me. I will judge them. The Chicago Tribune has authorized me to give to each of 500 children who send me the neatest and best dressed Angel Family of twelve dolls a large size, beautiful, nonbreakable, WALKING AND TALKING MAMA-VOICE DOLL.

You may paste, or pin the costumes on the dolls. The dolls may be mounted on cardboard if you wish. Neatness will count.

Caution: Do not send in any dolls until after Series No. 12 is published. You may submit as many different sets as you wish, but each set must contain one doll from each series—twelve dolls in all. Each set must be tied, banded or pinned together, and your name, address, and age must be written on the back of it.

This offer is open to every child, anywhere, except children of TRIBUNE employés. Address all sets, "The Angel Family," THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

All sets must be in by midnight, Tuesday, Dec. 12. "PENNY ROSS."

You need not purchase THE TRIBUNE in order to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the originals in THE TRIBUNE and color them yourself and cut the dolls from the copies you have made.

Copies of THE TRIBUNE may be examined at this office or at public libraries free of charge.

THE ROOM ON THE ROOF

The Story of a Crime in a Skyscraper - - - - - - by Will Payne

A brilliant funnel of light shot out from the magic lantern, striking the screen.

THOSE who believe that all the mystery stories have been told, and that there are no new kinds, have the surprise of their lives coming when they read the first installment of the new Blue Ribbon serial, "The Room on the Roof," by Will Payne, which is published in this issue of the Coloroto magazine. It is not only a new kind of mystery story but also a remarkable story of Chicago life, with all its thrills, adventures, complications, and climaxes in the most remarkable setting ever chosen for a novel—the roof of an eighteen story skyscraper in the loop.

La Salle street, one of the world's great money markets; Wells street, the day and night life of the loop, the homes and haunts of society folk—all these figure in Mr. Payne's story of a crime committed on the roof of the skyscraper. Casting aside the timeworn trappings of the mystery novel, he has made an extraordinary motion picture invention the treasure trove of his tale, for possession of which all the characters strive, and there is a wholesome, charming love motif to lighten up the grim background. "Will Payne's best story," is the verdict of critics.

Mr. Payne knows his Chicago, as for many years he was a Chicago newspaper man. He has more than a dozen successful novels to his credit, together with scores of short stories, many of which deal accurately with Chicago life. He was born in Whiteside county, Illinois, is 57 years old, and at present makes his home in Paw Paw, Mich.

And now you're ready to begin reading the first installment.

FIRST INSTALLMENT.

The Double Cross.

ONE day in July, 1918, a big, trampish man trudged north across the Wells street bridge. It was Chicago weather at its worst, parboiled air making existence anywhere in the sun a sticky misery. The big man was not suitably dressed for it—a cloth hat, instead of straw; coat and trousers too heavy. A short, ill-trimmed beard, the color of moldy straw, covered his face.

Three blocks north of the bridge he turned off Wells street and soon stood before a doorway of sooty brick beyond which a flight of dirty stairs arose. His destination was the fifth floor and there was evidently no elevator. He cursed a little, and toiled up the stairs.

The door up there was labeled "Curlin Camera Company." Panting, sweat trickling into his beard, he moved the battered hat to the back of his head and entered a showroom, twenty feet square, where cameras, lenses, and the like were displayed in glass cases. Not a penny had been wasted to make the room attractive, and there was nobody in it. A door in the opposite partition, with the sign "President" above it, stood ajar. The caller stepped over there, pushed the door open, and announced, "I'm looking for the boss."

A gangling, red faced man in shirt sleeves looked up from the desk within and snapped, like a slap in the face, "What you want?"

"You advertised for lens grinders," said the caller and smiled as he added, "I'm the best lens grinder you ever had in your shop."

His appearance savored not only of the tramp, but of impudence. There was a cast in his left eye, giving it a dead look. Somewhere behind the beard a grin seemed to lurk.

Simon Curlin, president of the camera company, was careless in dress himself; but he hated dirty people, he hated impudent people, he hated tramps. Irascibility was stamped all over him—in his long, red, leathery face, and smouldery eyes that seemed to peer angrily out at the world under eyebrows so faintly marked that the eyes looked bald. Sparse reddish gray hair stood up over his head. He took no pains to conceal the disfavor with which he viewed this applicant.

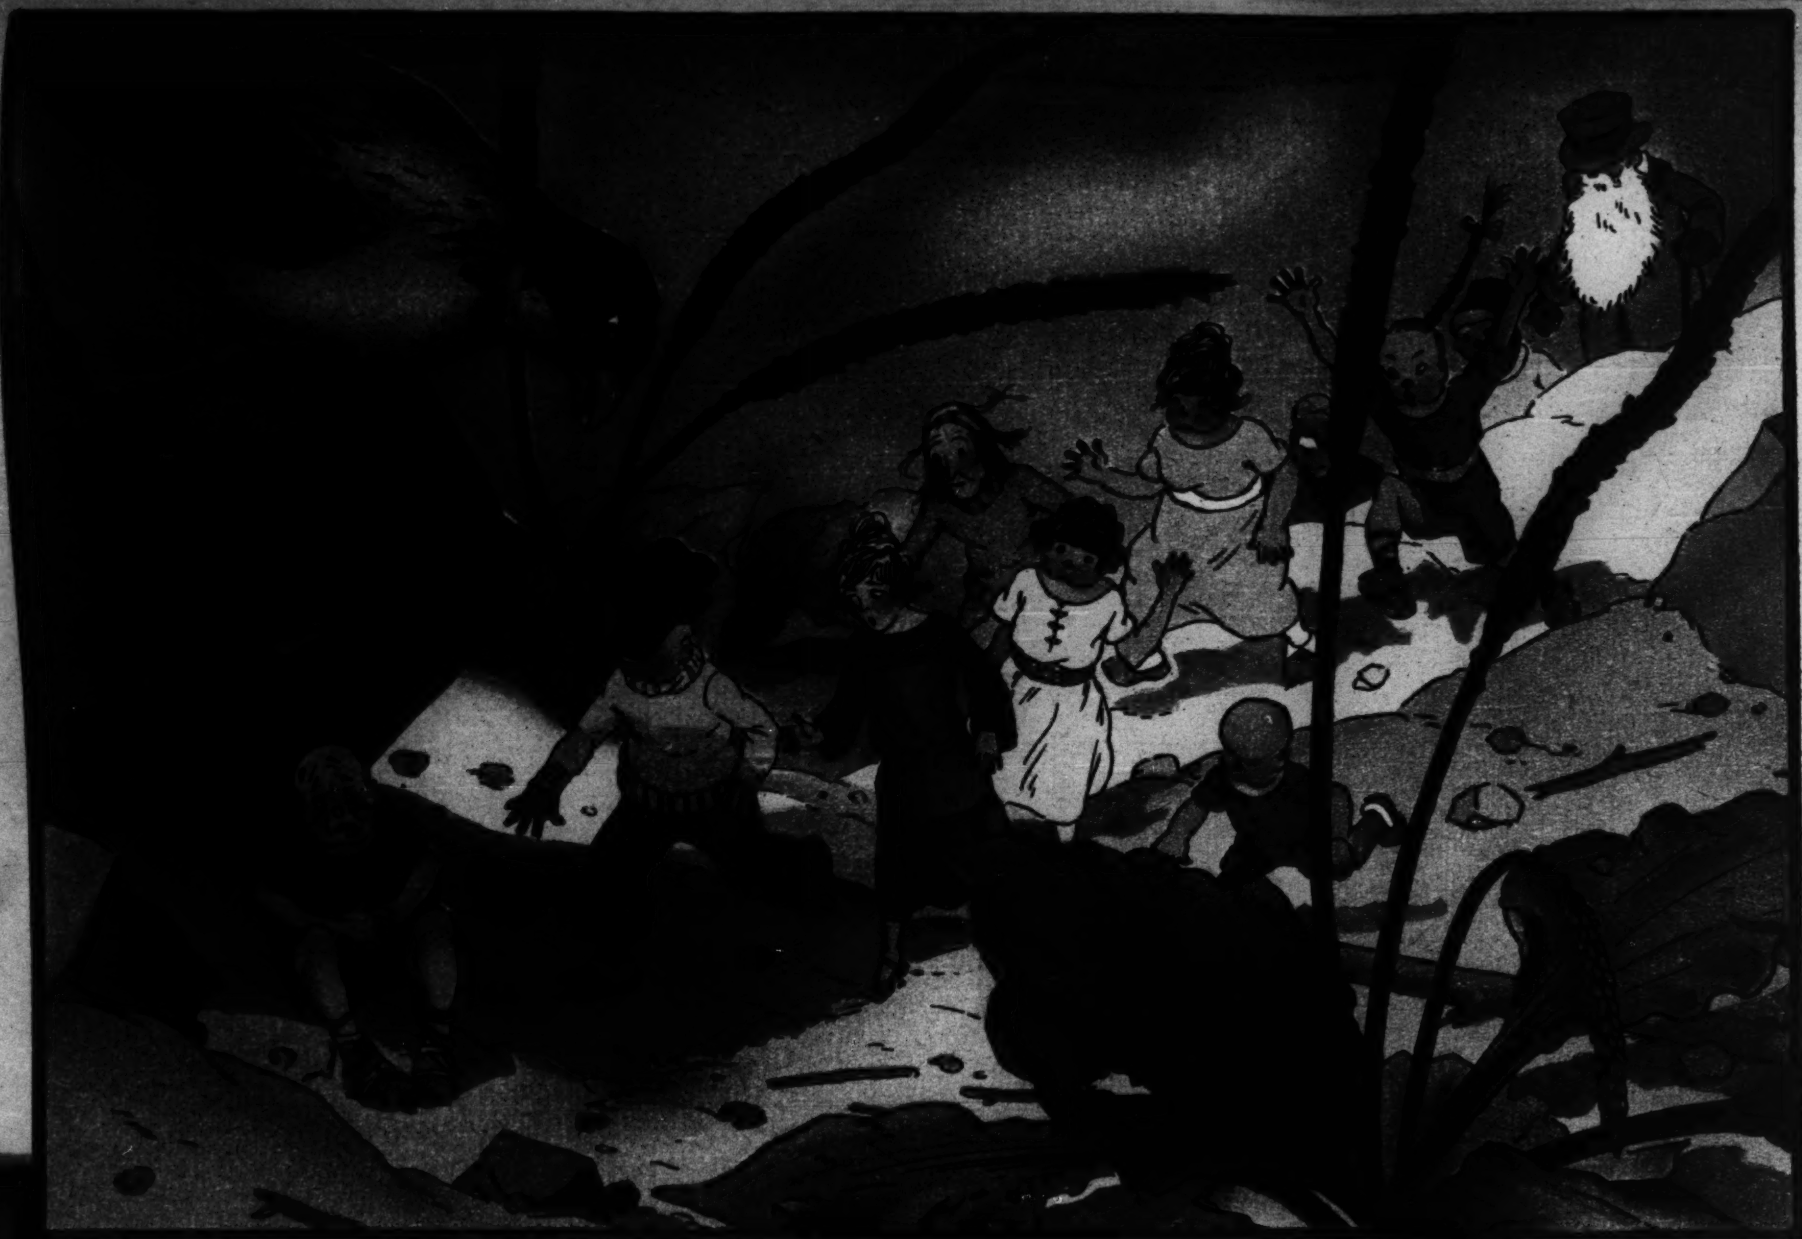
But he did desperately want lens grinders. War had combed the country of men, and set up an insatiable demand for lenses. This fellow might fill one of the gaps in his workshop temporarily. Grudgingly and grumpily, he asked him a few questions, and agreed to give him a trial. The man said his name was Adolph Krom, and beyond that Curlin did not care to inquire—lest he discover that it was his duty to turn the fellow over to a recruiting officer, instead of setting him to work in the shop.

He presently found, to his surprise, that Adolph Krom was an exceptionally skillful workman, capable of making the very finest lenses. Moreover, he did not belong to a union. Curlin hated unions. Krom staid on—soon appearing in decent clothes, beard and hair presentably trimmed. Curlin began to favor him with a good opinion. The man was not only skillful at his trade, but intelligent, with many valuable little suggestions.

THE camera factory occupied the top floor, which—behind the showroom and offices in front—was a dingy and barnlike loft divided by a number of plain board partitions that reached only two-thirds of the way to the ceiling. From these partitioned spaces one might catch a smell of new wood, or of leather, or of paint and varnish. Krom was in the biggest of them, occupying an L of the building, with rear windows overlooking the alley. But greenish liquid fire in long glass tubes furnished most of the light—a light both sharp and ghastly. Here men sat at swiftly revolving discs from which arose the purr of diamond dust biting, with gentle insistence, into glass.

A den, fifteen feet square, was partitioned off from one corner of this room, the newness of the boards showing that this partition had been recently erected. The door to it was often open for ventilation. From his workbench Krom could look into the den, which provoked a very lively curiosity in his mind.

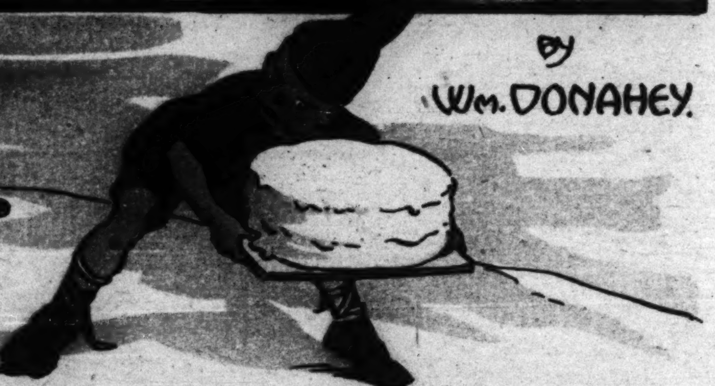
It was occupied by a dry wisp of a man, only five feet tall and weighing hardly a hundred pounds. His meager face bore a thin growth of grizzled whiskers, which he clawed with bony little hands. But by a comical misfit this weazen face was capped by a noble brow thatched with curly gray hair. Below the eyebrows the man was a mere monkey; above the eyebrows he was a philosopher. Sometimes for hours he



THE TEENIE WEENIES.

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

BY Wm. DONAHEY.



THE DUNCE ALMOST HAD A BIRTHDAY PARTY.

"WHAT sort of a coat are you going to make, my dear?" asked Mrs. Lover, as she picked up a stitch she had dropped in the pair of tiny stockings she was knitting.

"Well, I thought I'd make one of those wonderful slim coat dresses," answered the Lady of Fashion, squinting adorably at the needle she was trying to thread. "I thought I'd put a collar of caterpillar fur on it and also put a band of fur at the bottom. That piece of blue cloth the Turk brought in yesterday will make fine material for a coat, and with some chain lightning embroidery I think I can make a stunning coat."

"Too fussy!" exploded Tess, who hated sewing "Believe me, I wouldn't spend my time puttin' fussy doodaddles on coats. What's the difference how they look? All you want is comfort."

"Pretty and tasteful clothes mean comfort for me," answered the Lady of Fashion quietly.

Nothing more was said for some time, and the little ladies worked hard at their various tasks. Some were knitting tiny stockings and sweaters, and others were sewing on trousers, coats, and shirts.

"Say!" cried Tess Bone Guff, throwing aside her sewing with a toss of her bobbed hair. "I'm dead sick and tired of sewing. We have been sewing, and sewing, and sewing, and sewing for the last month. I think it's time we had some fun for a change."

"I know, Tess, it's hard doing the same thing all the time, but you must remember we hadn't a stitch of clothing left after the fire, and we must get some warm clothes ready for the winter," said the Lady of Fashion.

"I know all that," answered Tess. "I'm willing to do my share, but can't we have a little rest—some fun or something?"

"Let's have a little party," suggested Mrs. Lover.

"I'll tell you what!" cried the Lady of Fashion. "We can give the Dunce a little surprise party—his birthday comes day after tomorrow."

"What! Give that lazy, indolent rascal a party?" gasped Tess.

"Why, Tess!" cried the Lady of Fashion reproachfully. "That's no way to talk about the poor Dunce. He's not as bad as all that. He's just thoughtless and really the best-hearted little fellow in the world."

"Yes, he's good-hearted with other people's property!" cried Tess. "Do you know what he did to me last week? He took a piece of cheese I was saving for Buddy and carried it over to that good for nothing mouse that lost part of his tail in a trap. That's what he did, the rascal!"

It took a great deal of argument to win Tess over, but finally she promised to help, and the next day the little women went quietly about getting ready for the party. It was to be a surprise, and on the morning of the party Mrs. Lover and the Lady of Fashion made a big cake while the rest of the women made sandwiches and other goodies.

The cake was a thing of beauty. It was taken out of the tin in which it was baked, put on a piece of cardboard, and hidden away. Several hours afterward it was discovered the cake was gone, and the little women hunted everywhere, thinking some of the Teenie Weenies had taken it for a joke. It could not be found, and the poor Lady of Fashion was on the verge of tears when Tilly Titter, the English sparrow, flew down in front of one of the houses with alarming news.

"I say!" she chirped. "The Dunce is in a bit of a bad way. 'E's 'aving a bloomin' fit or something. I was 'oppin' about lookin' for a bite to eat when I 'ears a moanin', and, 'oppin' on a brick, I sees the bloomin' Dunce a-moanin' and a-rollin' on the ground. 'What's the matter?' I asks, but 'e makes no answer, and I flies over to break the news."

"Where is he?" asked the General anxiously.

"I'll show you," answered the bird; and she hopped off toward the big road near the Teenie Weenie village, followed closely by the excited Teenie Weenies.

The little folks hurried across the road and down into a ditch, where they found the Dunce rolling in pain under a big brick.

"What's the matter?" cried the General.

"O-O-O! Wow! Wow! Wow!" bellowed the Dunce, holding his stomach with both hands and rolling his eyes around in a most peculiar way.

"What in the name of goodness is the matter with you?" asked the General.

"Wow, wow, wow!" groaned the Dunce. "I'm—I'm—I'm sick, I'm poisoned. I'm poisoned! I ate a cake, and I'm poisoned. Took it out of the women's house. Ate it all'

"He's eaten the cake we made for his surprise party!" cried Tess.

"Give him a dose of castor oil!" shouted one of the excited Teenie Weenies.

"Give him a tannin'!" cried Grandpa, who came hobbling up. "A lickin' will do him more good than castor oil."

"Yes, I think a whipping will help here!" cried the General. "Somebody just get a match and whittle me a paddle, and I'll 'tend to this ungrateful fellow."

"Don't whip him, General!" cried the Lady of Fashion. "It's his birthday, and he ate the cake we intended for his party, so it's all right—he has suffered enough."

"All right," said the General. "Come on, some of you fellows, and carry this miserable fellow home."

The poor Dunce was carried home and put to bed. He was given a big dose of castor oil, and the Lady of Fashion heated a flat pebble, which she put on his aching stomach.

"I'm sorry I took the cake," said the Dunce feebly.

"Of course you are, dear," smiled the Lady of Fashion. "Was it a good cake?"

"Yes'm," moaned the poor Dunce. "T—T—That is, it was while I was eatin' it."

bent over a desk, absently plucking his beard or ruffling his hair. Sometimes he restlessly paced his cage.

Krom's fellow workmen held different opinions about the man in the cage. Some said he was a nut; others said he was an inventor. Krom proposed to find out for himself. The little man's name was Steinman.

Various persons—fellow workmen and others—who formed Krom's acquaintance in his hours of leisure observed that he had one odd taste in literature. That is, all newspaper reports of swindles seemed to have a peculiar fascination for him. He would read them with the greatest care, dwelling upon the details with an appreciative relish.

After he had been nine months at Curlin's, and felt himself well established in his employer's regard, he took a week off, without notice, and went on a spree. In that state he was loquacious, and freely expounded a cynical philosophy of life, as follows:

"Get 'em to thinking there's money in it, and they'll believe anything."

"They're all suckers because they're all crooks."

"Ask the first man you meet to lend you a hundred dollars. Tell him you want to give it to a poor widow with seven starving children and he'll tell you to go to hell. But tell him you're going to paste another cipher on the bill and change it at the bank for a thousand dollars, and he'll fall for it."

"Gold bricks and green goods are the easiest things in the world to sell because the sucker thinks he's getting something for nothing."

At the end of the week, being sober again, he returned to the camera factory and gravely informed Curlin that he'd been ill with the flu.

"You've been drunk!" said Curlin, who had no small change of mere politeness. But Krom was a very valuable workman and retained his job—with a satirical little grin behind his beard.

About that time the great Comboy-Larsen Company, world's largest makers of cameras and lenses, sent Curlin a polite note calling his attention to the fact that a shutter which he was using on some of his cameras infringed a patent held by them. They must ask him to desist from using the shutter or pay a moderate royalty. Curlin replied, in effect, that the shutter was his own invention and the Comboy-Larsen Company might go to the devil.

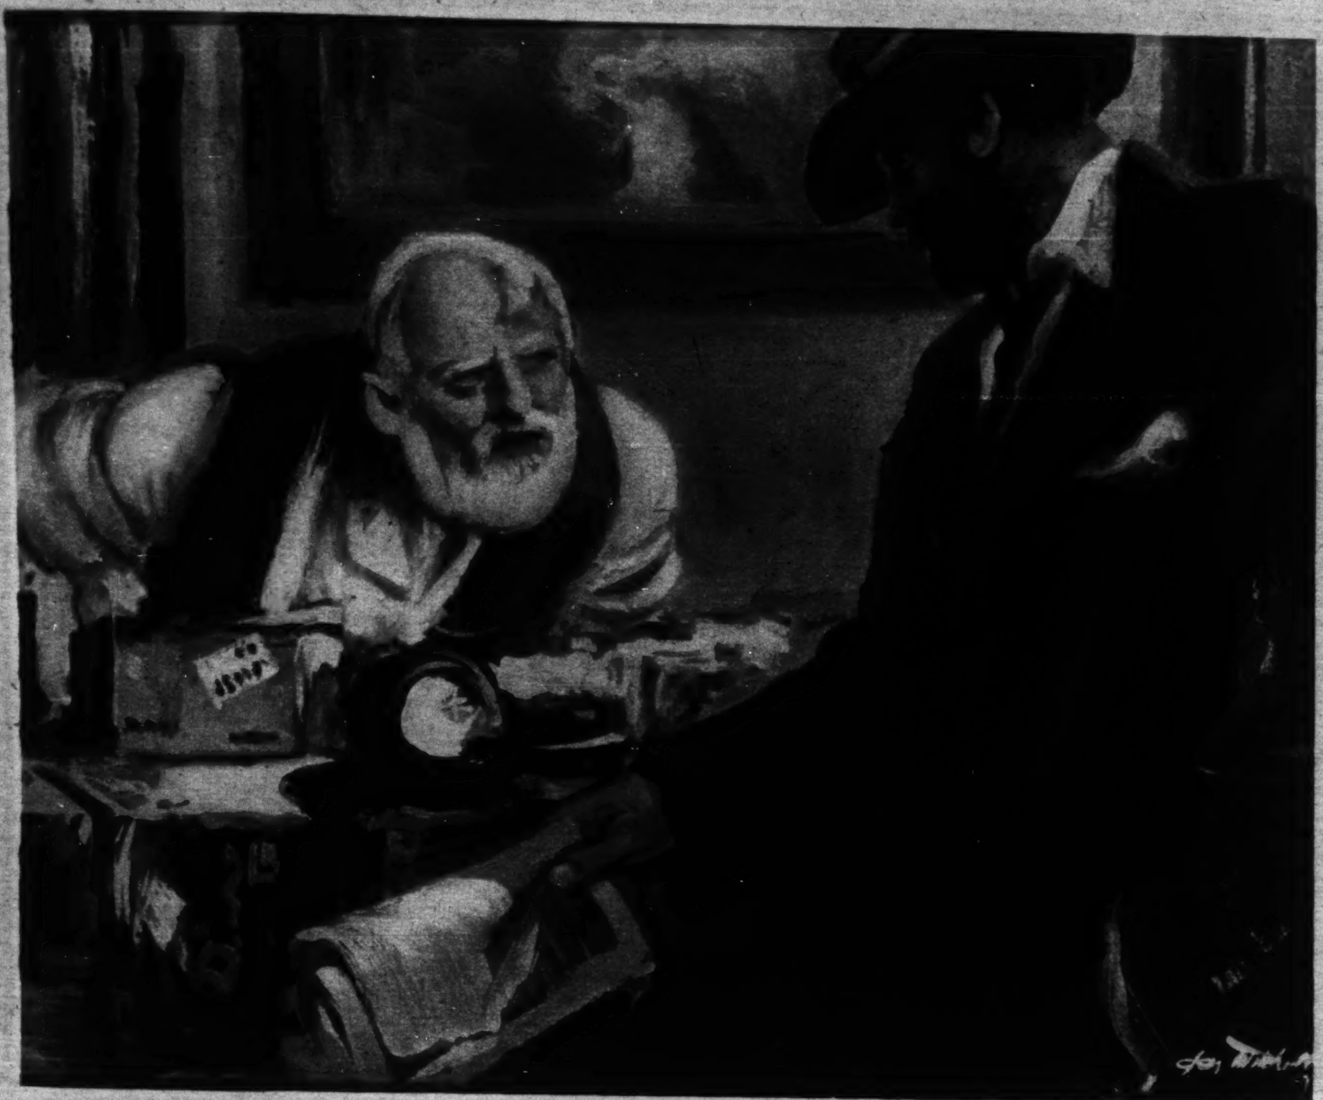
There followed long, costly, and bitterly contested litigation, in which Curlin—to his unspeakable wrath—was finally worsted. In this litigation the Comboy-Larsen Company was represented by the eminent law firm of Ellis, Martindale, Harwood & Smith, with offices in the top story of the Belknap building on La Salle street. Krom was a witness for Curlin and so became interestedly aware of Nathaniel Harwood, third member of the law firm.

ONE April evening in 1921, Nathaniel Harwood stood at the arched granite entrance of the Belknap building, evidently waiting for some one. The canyon-deep money street—below Madison—was but scantily populated at that hour, the city's evening attractions lying elsewhere. Yet there would be, now and then, a woman to look at Harwood standing by the entrance. There were always women to look at him.

Not only a very handsome man, but handsome in a distinguished way. The perfection of his clothes was distinguished also—no mere creased and varnished newness, as of a tailor's dummy. The lounging attitude of his slender figure, negligently supported by a silver handled walking stick, was graceful without posing. He was, in fact, forty-three; but the threads of gray at his temples, or here and there in his sleek, dark mane, gave a note of achievement. The contrast with them made his lightly tanned face seem only more youthful. Gray blue Irish eyes surveyed the street with a pleasant, assured look.

THE ROOM
THE ROOF

A cab drew up to the curb. From it emerged big Krom and little Steinman, the former carrying a bulky canvas bag of the sort popularly called a "telescope." Harwood led them back to the one elevator that was still running, and they went up to the eighteenth floor. There he let them into a big, dark room containing a dozen desks; then past smaller rooms, also dark—all part of the legal establishment of Ellis, Martindale, Harwood & Smith—to his own private office in the corner of the building where he turned on the electric lights.



A gangling, red faced man in shirt sleeves looked up from the desk within and snapped, like a slap in the face, "What you want?"

This private office was, perhaps, too spacious and too lavishly furnished for mere professional uses. The hangings at the broad windows were of tawny, plaited silk. The long and shiny desk of expensive wood had silver trimmings. Upon it stood two massive silver candlesticks supporting clusters of electric bulbs. Above the low book shelves, of the same handsome wood as the desk, and delicately carved, the walls were covered with tapestry. All this might have seemed much more suitable to a luxurious woman's boudoir than to a lawyer's office.

But Harwood was a widower. His only child—a daughter of sixteen—was away at school. This office, as he explained to his friends, was really where he lived. If he wished to lavish money on it—well, he had the money to lavish.

The window shades were down now. But in day time they commanded a wide view of far, cluttered roofs under a haze of smoke that thickened until the view was lost in it.

A big view, like that from the high mountain whence Satin exhibited the kingdoms of the earth.

For this particular visit the office had been supplied with a white screen on a perpendicular easel which now stood at the further end. From his "telescope" Krom extracted a sort of magic lantern, a folding tripod, some photographic plates. He and Steinman placed the magic lantern, or projecting machine, on a tripod and adjusted the screen. Pacing back from the screen, Krom put a chair in front of the tripod, inviting Harwood to occupy it. A brilliant funnel of light shot out from the magic lantern, striking the screen. Krom turned off the other lights and sat beside Harwood while Steinman manipulated the machine.

Three still pictures were thrown upon the screen. The first two were photographs taken in a park, showing fresh and brilliant natural colors. Harwood had seen still photographs in natural colors before, however. It was the third picture that interested him most.

In his father's house, as in nearly all other self-respecting American homes of that period, there had been a stereoscope with "views" of Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon, the Capitol at Washington, and other famous scenes. The contrivance consisted of two square lenses under a leather hood which one held to one's eyes. A pasteboard card, containing two duplicate photographs of the view, was put in a movable clip in front of the lenses. When one looked at the photographs with the naked eye they were flat, like any photograph, with perspective but without depth. Seen through the stereoscope, however, the pictures had depth and roundness.

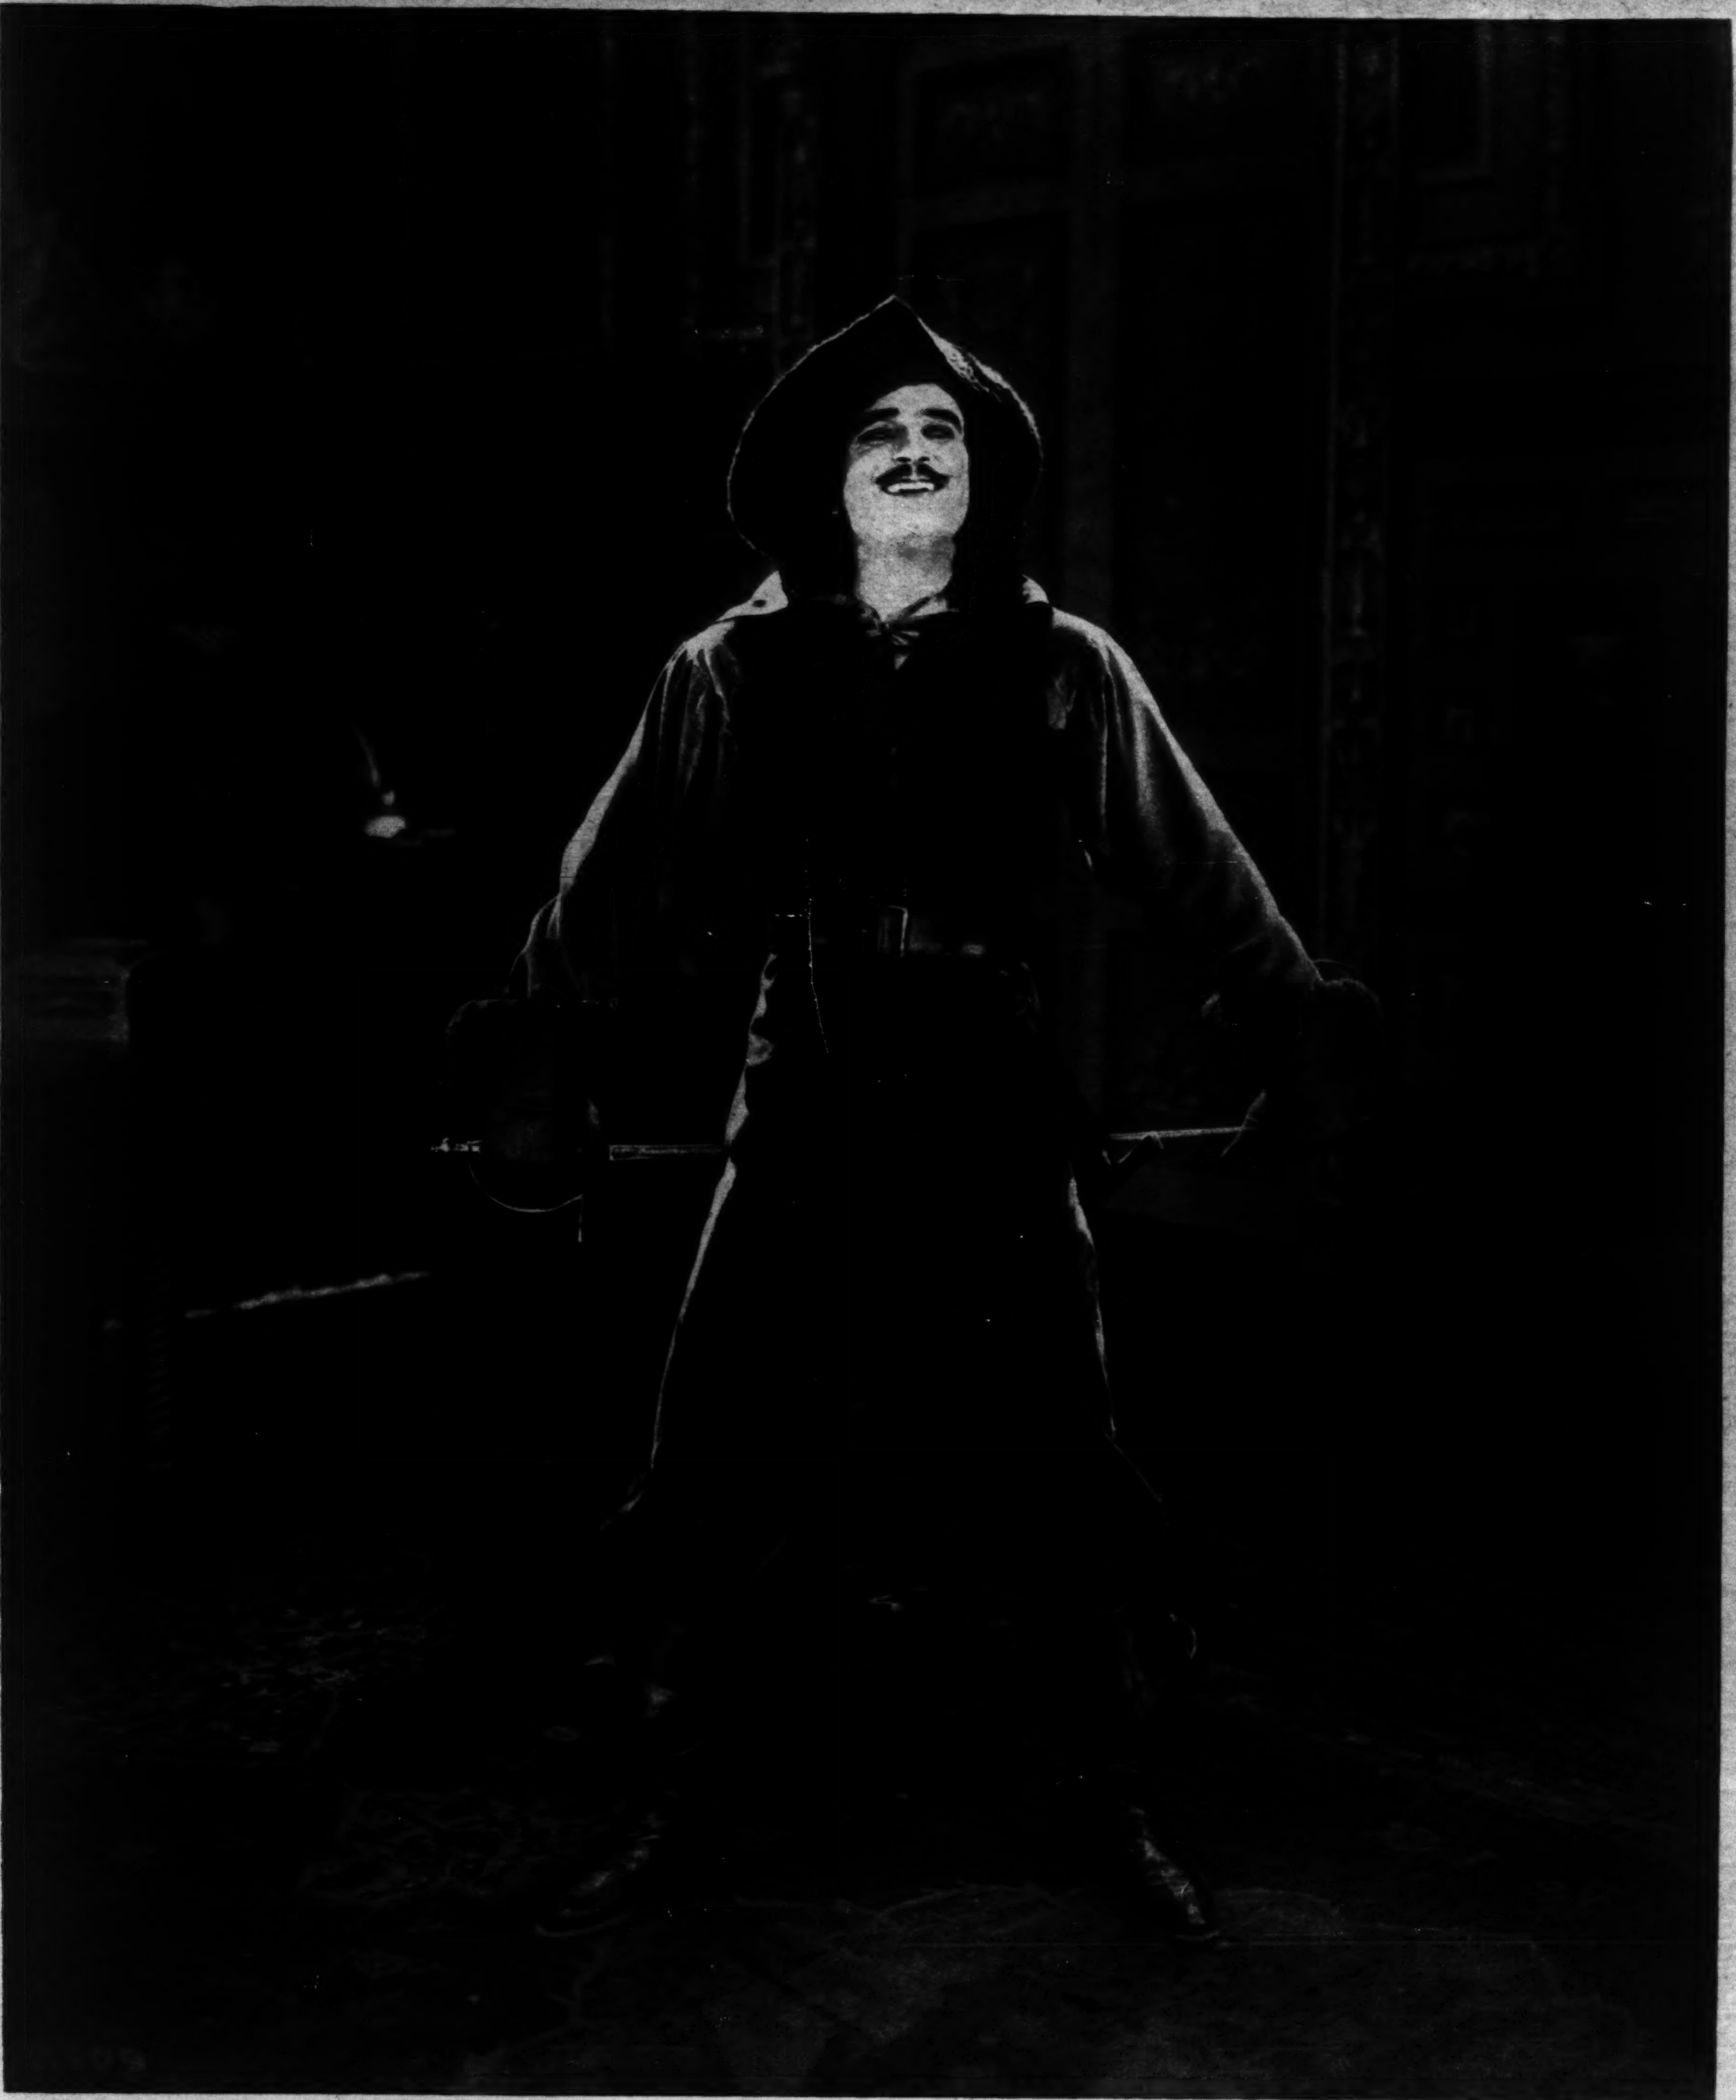
He was vaguely aware of the explanation. Normal people have two eyes, so that within a certain limited field of vision they behold two sides of an object in relief, like a tree or a man. A photograph has only one eye and gives a flat image. For stereoscope views two photographs are taken—a right-eyed one and a left-eyed one, so to speak. When the duplicates blend, in proper focus under the lenses, one gets the effect of depth and roundness—as though one could walk away back into the picture and fairly look around the trees.

This third picture had that effect. It needed no argument to convince Harwood that if those two things could be combined in motion picture photography—the fresh, vivid natural colors and the stereoscopic effect of depth and roundness, one would have an invention with which one could sweep the board. In arranging for this meeting, Krom had said that he and Steinman had such an invention at the tips of their fingers. If that were true, it meant millions.

THE little show being over, the three men sat down to talk, and then for the first time Harwood really took cognizance of the third one of the party—the dry wisp of a man with meager, sparsely bearded face and noble brow, named Steinman. His manner reminded Harwood amusingly of a nervous, furtive little animal, at once eager and timid. He hooked his heels on the rung of the chair, put his hands on his small, up-thrust knees, listening to Krom's slow utterance with a kind of quivering intentness, now and then breaking in himself, speaking with a thick and guttural German accent; and, if he tried to tell of the invention, immediately running off into a technical jargon that was all Greek to the lawyer, so that Krom had to take the talk out of his mouth again, saying, with a good natured drawl:

"'Fraid Mr. Harwood can't understand that, professor." And with a smile to Har-

"HE'S A SMILEHOPPER."



DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS showed his teeth, hopped over a table, and lo, the movie fans adored him! They'd been a little fed up with the sighing, dying type of hero. They were a trifle bored, also, with their broncho busting heart breakers in the "westerns." They didn't know it—but they wanted something new. They got it. "IT" was Douglas.

With a broad and beaming smile he vaulted on to the silver sheet. Folks straightened up and said—"WELL!" The girls breathed deep and registered contentment allee samee a breath of mountain ozone had hit them. The men said:

"Now, THAT'S what I call ACTING! He doesn't give you this mushy LOVE STUFF all the time." (Don't you like to hear men talk? So naive!) They took—and are still taking—Mr. Fairbanks like they would a dose of golf, tennis, or handball. He does the work and they think how good it would be for them.

ANYWAY, the breeziness, apparent wholesomeness and good nature of Douglas Fairbanks are what have made and kept him a favorite. (Of course he's a three ring circus in addition.)—Mae Tinee.

wood, "Hard for me to follow it myself unless it's written down and I can take my time. The nub of it is that we've got the invention. We can give you motion pictures in natural colors and in relief—like the stereoscope. We know we've got the principles right. Working out the apparatus will take time—might even take five, six weeks. The way I look at it, it'll cost you a couple of thousand dollars at the outside. All the professor and I are asking is grub and a place to work in. Then there'll be some materials and tools. As you might say, you'll grub-stake us."

TWO thousand dollars was a trivial matter to Harwood. His mind was running on to the immense possibilities of such an invention as these men promised. Already he knew a good deal about the fiscal side of the motion picture industry—to his cost so far.

"Of course, Professor Steinman didn't have any money," Krom was explaining, presently, looking soberly at the lawyer, but one eye, with the cast in it, seemed dead, so it was oddly like being looked at by two men out of the same face. "Curlin knew about him through this article in the scientific magazine that I've told you about and sent for him. The professor didn't know anything about business, either."

He turned good-naturedly to Steinman as he said that, then back to Harwood, and the sober, rather drawling utterance continued:

"Curlin thought he had this color photography for motion pictures by the tail—some notions of his own. But he said he didn't have time to work 'em out. So he hired Professor Steinman." The speaker gave a half-titter, half-chuckle. "Thirty dollars a week! Curlin don't believe in wasting money. Curlin's idea wasn't really any good, you know. The professor and I had to work out ideas of our own."

Steinman broke in eagerly: "Gurlin's ideas! My goodness, Mr. Harwood, he never get anywhere with those ideas—just run round in a cirgle lige dog bite its own tail. See now!" Gesticulating, he raced off into his technical jargon again until Krom stopped him with:

"That's too deep for us, professor."

The inventor cocked his head to one side and announced whimsically, "It's too deep for anybody! Those ideas of Gurlin's reach from top of the ocean to the bottom and never get anywhere! He insist, you see, it's in the camera. But it ain'd in the camera! It's in the lens! He mage great big camera—so big!" He stretched his small arms to indicate. "Tage aboud five, six, seven pictures one on top the other to get his colors. It gan't be done!"

"No," Krom interposed, good-naturedly, "it couldn't be done. As I said, the professor and I had to work out our own ideas—practically. But now Curlin would claim the invention outright—and give us a week's pay and the boot. Seems to me that ain't fair." He appeared to be submitting the point to the lawyer candidly.

HE had mentioned a contract before, in their first conversation on this subject. Harwood now asked, "Have you a copy of that contract?"

"I've got the contract itself," said Krom. "There never was a copy. He didn't even give the professor a copy—just kept the original himself. You can read it." He took a folded document from his inner pocket and handed it to the lawyer.

A question naturally occurred to Harwood—to-wit: how had Krom gotten hold of this contract except by stealing it? But he did not choose to ask the question. That was Curlin's affair. He read the contract.

It was skillfully drawn, but part of its contents was in technical terms which he could not understand. The gist of it was that Curlin had evolved the principles for making motion pictures in natural colors and with a stereoscopic effect of depth and roundness. Steinman was to work out the details under Curlin's supervision at a salary of thirty dollars a week. The invention when completed was to belong absolutely to Curlin.

Perhaps, as a matter of strict legal interpretation, the contract was binding. Harwood couldn't say positively about that without knowing more about the technical side of photography. At least the contract would afford a fine basis for a lawsuit over the ownership of the invention.

"You see what it is," Krom observed. "Rotten, I call it. The professor here has no money and no business experience. Curlin proposes to buy him body and soul—and brains—for thirty dollars a week, and hog the invention—when it's really the professor's invention and mine. Nothing fair about that, I say—or decent." He submitted that to Harwood with an air of candid reasonableness.

"No doubt about it's being rotten enough," Harwood replied.

"Sure!" said Krom, and reached for the contract. "That's what I told the professor. It's just daylight robbery. Nobody's bound by a slave driver bargain like that."

The contract was in his hands then. Very coolly, as though the case had been fully argued and decided, he tore it into bits and dropped the bits into the waste basket. He then smiled soberly at Harwood and remarked, "And that's that, as they say."

The lawyer, in fact, was somewhat shocked. Simply tearing up a legal contract—which had probably been stolen in the first place—was a crude method of disposing of it. But after all that was Curlin's affair, not his.

In the course of the shutter litigation he had formed his own opinion of the irascible, pig-headed, bitter old camera maker; and he knew of some stinging comments which Curlin had passed upon him. The idea of the old curmudgeon having the tables turned upon himself, even in this crude fashion, secretly amused him.

KROM drew a big hand down a side of his bearded face and observed, with deliberate gravity: "We don't propose to have Curlin hog this invention—give us a week's wages and the boot; but when we get it done, if there's anything owing to him, we'll pay it." That had the effect of putting the affair on a most honorable basis.

Steinman also nodded quickly and broke in: "Yess! So I say to Adolph. If anything iss due, we will pay. . . Me? What I want, Mr. Harwood, is chance to worg oud this invention—some grub, some place to work in peace. I haf this idea for motion picture in colors now thirteen years—long before I know Gurlin. I worg what I can; but, my goodness, a man must haf grub, he must half tools, he must haf shob to worg in, he must haf some materials—in shord, he must haf liddle bit of money, yess? Me? I don't haf any liddle bit of money. I worg odds and ends times, when I can. So much disadvantage, you see . . . I haf this idea of picture in relief—stereoscope—seven, eight years now. I haf plenty ideas, but, my goodness, whad can a man do with such ideas unless he got liddle bit of money? So I go with Gurlin." He pawed his beard.

"But I don't get peace then. He iss all time running in, 'Why you do this? Why you don'd do that?'—all the while sticking to his own foolish ideas—buzz, buzz. It geep a man distracted with a dog running in to barg at him all time lige that. I haf this done year ago if I had peace and quiet to worg in. So I say, gif me peace and quiet to worg in, Mr. Harwood. If anything is due Gurlin we pay, yess?"

"We're just asking you to grub-stake us now," Krom reminded him.

It pleased Harwood to take the attitude of a generous patron to these hard used inventors. "Suppose I allow you fifty dollars a week apiece for living expenses while you're working it out?" he suggested, smiling.

"Fine!" said Krom, promptly.

"Fery generous," Steinman concurred.

They talked then of what should be done with the invention. Harwood suggested that the best way would be to charge a royalty for the use of it—say, five cents for each foot of film, or ten cents. They'd have to study that over and see what the traffic would bear. Both Krom and Steinman concurred.

Pleasant, handsome, in his luxurious office, it still pleased Harwood to be the generous patron. But there were considerations of a strictly business sort.

"You know how these things often go," he remarked to Krom, amiably. "Usually the inventor has no capital or business experience or business connections. It's a toss-up whether somebody'll not get his invention for a song. I'm already interested in the motion picture industry. I can take care of all the legal details properly. What's more important, I'm in a position to market this thing to the best advantage—see that nobody runs off with it. I think I can get a good deal more out of it than you could get alone. My idea would be two-thirds of the royalties to you and one-third to me—for promoting it and looking after the legal part and advancing the capital."

"That sounds perfectly reasonable to me," said Krom.

"Yess!" said Steinman.

"I'll draw a contract," Harwood continued. "Meanwhile you can go to work as soon as you please." He smiled genially. "Your salaries will start tomorrow.

Krom stroked his bearded face again, considering gravely, and replied: "About going to work—we'll need a place to work in. You see, Curlin is laid up now, but he sends word he's coming back to his office next week. He'll be sore. We've taken some of our stuff out of his shop—and that contract. Didn't seem any other way to do, unless we was going to lay down and let him rob us blind. Far's I'm concerned, I'd tell him to go to the devil. But the professor here is nervous. All he wants, as he told you, is a place where he can work in peace and quiet. He's nervous about Curlin."

Steinman gave one of his quick little nods and remarked, "He knock my head off if he find me. A man can'd do such worg lige this when he's got to be thinking all the while aboud his head getting knocked off."

AN idea occurred to Harwood: "I've got a room up here on the roof that you can work in. I built it especially for a place to get away to when I wanted to concentrate—hermit's cave. You can work there. I'll show it to you."

To enter his handsome private office one passed through an ante-room, or cabinet, a dozen feet square—handsome, also, ceiled with expensive wood. Leading the way and turning on electric lights as he went, Harwood opened a door in the west wall of the ante-room or cabinet. That door gave to a small, bare, cement floored hall in which a flight of narrow iron stairs arose to the roof. Another door in this stairway hall opened to the public corridor outside the law offices, but that door was locked now. The iron stairs had been put there when the building was erected for the use of workmen or janitors who might have business on the roof. Originally they ended above, in a little hutch from which one stepped out on the roof.

Harwood had been up there one day and suddenly found himself charmed with the idea of building a little cabin—a retreat—up there on the roof, to which he could retire when he wished to escape the incessant stream of callers and telephone summonses. He had arranged it with the owners of the building. So now the original hutch at the head of the stairs gave to a short passage which led into his retreat, and it had amused him to have the retreat built in resemblance to a ship's cabin, with round windows five feet above the floor. The room measured fifteen feet by twenty-five—furnished also in resemblance to a ship's cabin. The visitors looked around it with some astonishment.

"Make a very good work shop, I should say," Harwood commented. "You're welcome to use it as much as you like."

In fact, the sudden notion of this retreat had quite charmed him, and with restless energy he had set about getting it constructed, at once going to the owner of the building for permission, getting an architect to draw the plans, telling the builder it must be taken in hand immediately. For a little while shutting himself up here, alone on the top of the world, delighted him. But the novelty soon wore threadbare—as a child with many toys soon loses interest in the newest. In the last twelve months he had spent hardly twelve hours on the roof. But now that he had visitors who were evidently impressed, he wished to show the place off.

JANITORS and workmen had other means of gaining access to the roof. Nevertheless, a door had been cut in the west wall of the cabin. Harwood opened it and led them out to a vast strange view. In the foreground buildings could be distinguished; elsewhere only myriad lights and dim hints of structural shapes—as though the sky had fallen down and they were looking at the stranded stars and broken clouds from a great elevation. A wind blew from the west, and that, too, seemed interstellar, unearthly.

The walls of the building rose in a parapet four feet above the roof. Against the west wall, not far from the door to the cabin, stood a pair of wooden steps. Krom climbed them and looked sheer down the precipitous wall. "Look at this, professor," he invited; "step up here."

Little Steinman climbed the steps, bent over and looked down. Eighteen stories lay beneath them, but darkness exaggerated the effect of height; the twinkling lights far below might have been as deep down as hell.

A panic seized the small inventor. He had the actual sensation of hurtling immeasurably downward through that space. In a sudden collapse, his knees knocked together. The very marrow of his bones seemed to have a prevision that it was his fate to fall there. Starting back from the wall, he stumbled off the steps, picked himself up, and ran to the cabin door. In the light that flooded through it both Harwood and Krom saw that he was trembling. Krom laughed. Inside the cabin Steinman took off his hat and wiped his noble brow with shaky fingers.

"My goodness!" he gasped. "If I worg up here I geep that door locked, I bed you!" Even Harwood laughed good-naturedly.

A few minutes later Krom took a final survey of the room and announced to the lawyer, "It'll be a fine place for us." That cast in his left eye oddly divided his expression, yet Harwood was aware that the man looked at him with admiration—as at a wizard who, with a wave of a wand, could produce snug cabins high in the air.

And at that moment Harwood had some such feeling about himself—a penetrating and constant faith in his star. If he said "Fiat!" there would be a cabin in the air. He felt himself armed and bucklered, a familiar of Fortune. For this affair of the photographic invention had fallen in pat, just when it was needed. . . .

He was the son of a country clergyman who had finally resigned from the ministry and been elected to congress. After finishing law school, an introduction to Josiah Cutter of Cutter, Ellis & Martindale had opened a wide door of opportunity. He had married Cutter's daughter, Josephine, who at her father's death inherited a fortune which the newspapers generously estimated at three million dollars. At his wife's death her will gave him one-third of the fortune outright and two-thirds as trustee for their only child, Mathilde. The fortune then actually footed up a million and a quarter, of which three hundred thousand was represented by the house on Lake Shore Drive and the country place at Oconomowoc.

THERE had been some poor luck. Harwood had a genteel and conservative attitude toward gambling in stocks which his clerical father would have approved. But in order to secure a greater income he sold some high class low interest bonds and invested in the bonds of several new western irrigation projects. His friend Sam Holden thought highly of the projects. Finally, there was a loss of a hundred and forty thousand dollars. A burned child dreads fire, and for two years Harwood let the securities in the strong box alone.

The farm implement consolidation, however—thrashing machines and tractors being the chief products—was one which half a dozen experienced and able men of his acquaintance thought highly of. The preferred stock would pay a steady seven per cent, while the common stock—fifty shares of common, as a bonus, with every hundred shares of preferred—ought easily to pay eight or ten per cent. His firm handled some of the legal details; even canny old Tom Ellis, senior member of the firm, went into it. What better guide could a man have? But the merger went into bankruptcy. Harwood's loss was a hundred and twenty-five thousand.

Those two items made a hole in the estate which must be repaired. In the boom year of 1919 anything and everything, it seemed, was bound to succeed. The inebriate air of that time naturally affected a man as sanguine as Harwood. A concern whose legal business was done by Ellis, Martindale, Harwood & Smith owned, or leased, some thirty successful motion picture theaters in Chicago and nearby towns. That business was like the mint—simply coining money with the regularity of a machine. The concern formed a consolidation with three others of like nature. In order to control their own raw material, so to speak, the consolidation bought the Hilite Photoplay Company, which produced motion pictures. Having control of the raw materials, an even bigger contact with the public was desirable, so many other motion picture theaters were bought or leased—at vastly inflated boom prices.

The boom collapsed, and Silver Crown Amusements, Inc., mostly collapsed with it. The stock at present was occasionally traded in on the curb at five cents to the dollar. Harwood had six hundred thousand dollars invested in it. As affairs stood, his share of the estate was quite gone, and his daughter's share—for which he was accountable as trustee—was more than half gone.

The situation might have been desperate. But when Letitia Belknap—widow of Arthur Belknap, landlord and real estate operator—returned from the seashore and Lenox in the coming fall her engagement to Nathaniel Harwood was to be announced. Her fortune was not less than ten millions in real money. Harwood still believed in his star.

THE ROOM
THE ROOF

That, roughly, was the juncture of affairs when his motion picture invention fell in pat. Harwood had not the slightest idea of treating the inventors otherwise than most honorably and generously. They should have two-thirds of the royalties. But his mind was already running eagerly on to the formation of a company which would control the company. With such a lever in his hand Silver Crown Amusements, Inc., would quickly ascend the precipice down which it had fallen. If these two odd, shabby chaps could give him a patent on motion pictures in vivid natural colors and in relief—well, he'd look out for the rest.

Just two odd, shabby chaps and three still photographs—that was all he had so far. But he felt in his bones that they were going to give him what they promised. At least he could well afford to risk a couple of thousand dollars on the venture.

In the lightest, most casual way, he several times thought of pig-headed, miserly, ridiculous old Simon Curlin, the camera maker—whose contract, probably, had been stolen and whose rights may have been slighted in other respects. But he thought of Curlin only with a smile of amusement. The pound-of-flesh old curmudgeon might look out for himself.

Krom and Steinman took possession of the roof room, coming and going through the ante-room, or cabinet, in front of Harwood's office. But a difficulty at once developed—as Krom good naturedly explained. The queer, timid old "professor" was nervous all the time, obsessed by a fool idea that Curlin was going to pop through the door and throw him off the roof. He wanted to get out of town somewhere; and Krom really thought that would be much better, for then the old man could keep his mind on the work in hand.

Harwood considered that a moment good naturedly and had a solution:

"All right," he said. "I'll take him up to Slow River—nice quiet country town; I lived there for several years when I was a boy. I can find some place for you to work in there."

And it was so decided.

SLOW RIVER, Michigan, is a country town much like any other of two thousand inhabitants in the Middle West. The small and sluggish stream whence its name comes meanders between low banks through the town's outskirts; and the railroad cuts through, straight as a ruler, bisecting the lower end of Main street.

Farther up, Main street is overlooked by a certain law office as different as possible from that on the top floor of the Belknap building; an office comprising but two small rooms, with an aged air—pervaded, when the windows are closed, by a faint, musty, dusty smell as of accumulated years. The calfbound volumes that line two sides of the front room, the threadbare matting on the floor, the worn black walnut desk all bespeak long use. The fading sign on the door says, "William P. Liscomb, Attorney and Counsellor at Law."

One April day this office's open windows admitted a soft, moist wind that sent young blood to the head. Within three days the big maple tree beside the Griggs house, across the street, had put forth a world of tender, feathery leaves. Judge Liscomb's stenographer paused at the middle window, a yellow lawbook in the crook of her arm—for she was reading law, too. Her very bones were aware of the mighty song of invitation which the soft wind bore. She was mechanically aware of the dingy, musty room which enclosed her; of the ramshackle and mostly empty main street of a country town. But she was not rebelling at anything; not thinking about anything in particular—just pausing, abeyant, a-dream, hardly aware of the familiar scene before her eyes.

Then her attention abruptly focused upon a new object in that scene—namely, a long, shiny touring car which had drawn up in front of the Griggs house. It had not been there two minutes before.

The stenographer got a foolish little thrill out of that vehicle. It was the one make of car, besides a Ford, that she could tell at a glance—a make famed for its costliness. That particular kind of automobile aroused a curiosity in her mind something like that with which, at the age of three, she would have stared at a veritable Cinderella coach. There was an actual fairyland for whose inhabitants the money never gave out; at a wave of whose wands, houses, servants, jewelers, processions of obsequious dressmakers sprang into being; who had only to say "Europe" and all the means of transportation immediately arranged themselves. She often tried to imagine what it would be to live that way—instead of having to be very careful of one's two year old best gown so that next year it could be made over for a younger sister, Kate. So she got a foolish little thrill out of the long, shiny machine across the street.

She was still idly gazing at it when the hall door opened, and she turned to look at the handsomest man she had ever seen—in spite of gray threads at his temples—and the best dressed. She had time to connect him with the machine across the street and to wonder, "Can he be——?" for the office was expecting distinguished company that day.

He was taking off his hat and asking, with a pleasant briskness, "Is Judge Liscomb in?"

"He will be in a minute," she replied. She was smiling at him, like a door tentatively held open. She hesitated only an instant and put the question, "Are you Mr. Harwood?" And when he answered "Yes," she bubbled, as though congratulating herself. "I was sure of it! Of course, I knew about your telephone message. You wouldn't remember me; but perhaps you remember my father—Frank Malden—and my mother; she was Betty Tilden. I've often heard her speak of you."

"Frank Malden! And Betty Tilden!" he exclaimed, as though the memories stirred his heart. He was shaking hands with her, warmly; and she was shining at him.

The names she mentioned meant little enough. But when she turned by the sunlit window the man received a poignant impression of young grace and beauty. It thrilled in his nerves now as he held her hands, taking her in—lithe figure, nearly as tall as himself; dark blue eyes under a square brow, with abundant dark brown hair; beautifully modeled chin. . . .

He made talk, drinking her in. Her father, she said, was dead; but her mother was very well—would be glad to see him. He didn't care at all what she said; but cared only to watch her face—the swift little shadow for her father, the glow for her mother. When Judge Liscomb came bustling in, Harwood had to arouse himself and break a spell.

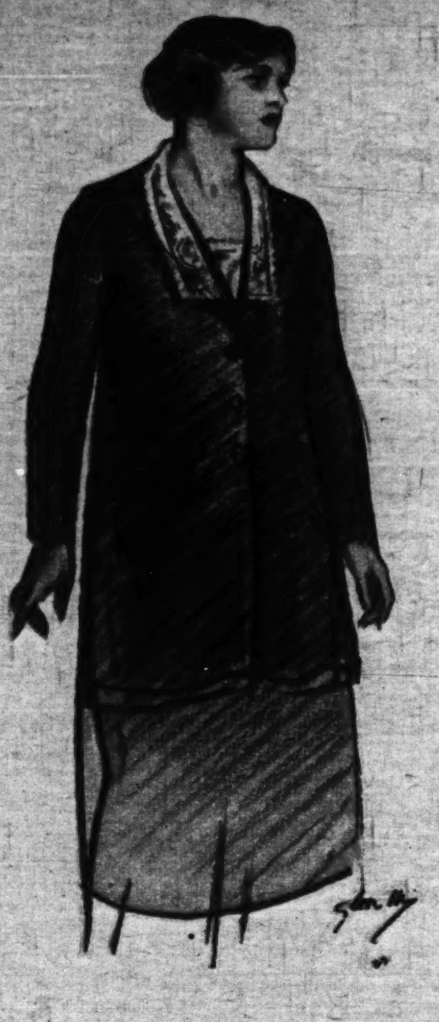
WHILE Elizabeth Malden was talking to Harwood she noticed that an odd looking little man had followed him into the law office. Harwood now introduced him:

"Miss Malden, this is Prof. Steinman. I'm going to leave him to you for a few minutes while Judge Liscomb and I talk over a bit of business."

The judge and Harwood then retired to the judge's room, and Elizabeth turned her attention to Steinman, who had deposited his small person in a large office chair, where he looked like an aged child. His shabby overcoat and hat would have been suitable in size for a boy of twelve, and the little hands with which he placed the hat on his knees were of a child's size. But his thin beard and the curly thatch above his noble brow were thickly streaked with gray . . .

There was a warm flutter in Elizabeth's breast from the adventure of meeting the great Nathaniel Harwood and finding him such an attractive, friendly person.

Two squares from her mother's cottage stood a small and simple brown frame dwelling, with an L, which was a sort of local landmark, being one of the two domiciles which the Rev. Bryan Harwood had occupied during his residence in Slow River. There—strangers were informed—"Nat" Harwood had actually lived when a boy; from it he had gone daily to the public school, and engaged in such and such boyish escapades. "Nat" Harwood was Slow River's one distinguished human product, his name figuring frequently and conspicuously in metropolitan newspapers, while in the town where he had resided as a boy his wealth and influence had become a sort of contemporaneous myth. Meeting him face to face in Judge Liscomb's musty office was a dramatic episode—pleasantly fluttering Elizabeth Malden's pulses . . .



She turned to look at—

She turned a smile of invitation upon the small figure in the chair and began, at random, "Did you find the roads good coming from Chicago?"

His body stirred with a slight, nervous motion and he fingered his hat brim; she suspected that he wished to bolt for the door. But she persisted, smiling—with a secret amusement which was not unfriendly. It reminded her of trying to win the confidence of the wrens which nested near her mother's cottage. They would even come and sit on her finger, but always with little starts and tremblings, ready to flit away. She soon felt toward the small figure in the chair a sort of fond amusement, as toward the wrens; and he was presently sitting on her finger, talking away quite freely, asking questions about the village as though he had never before seen an American country town.

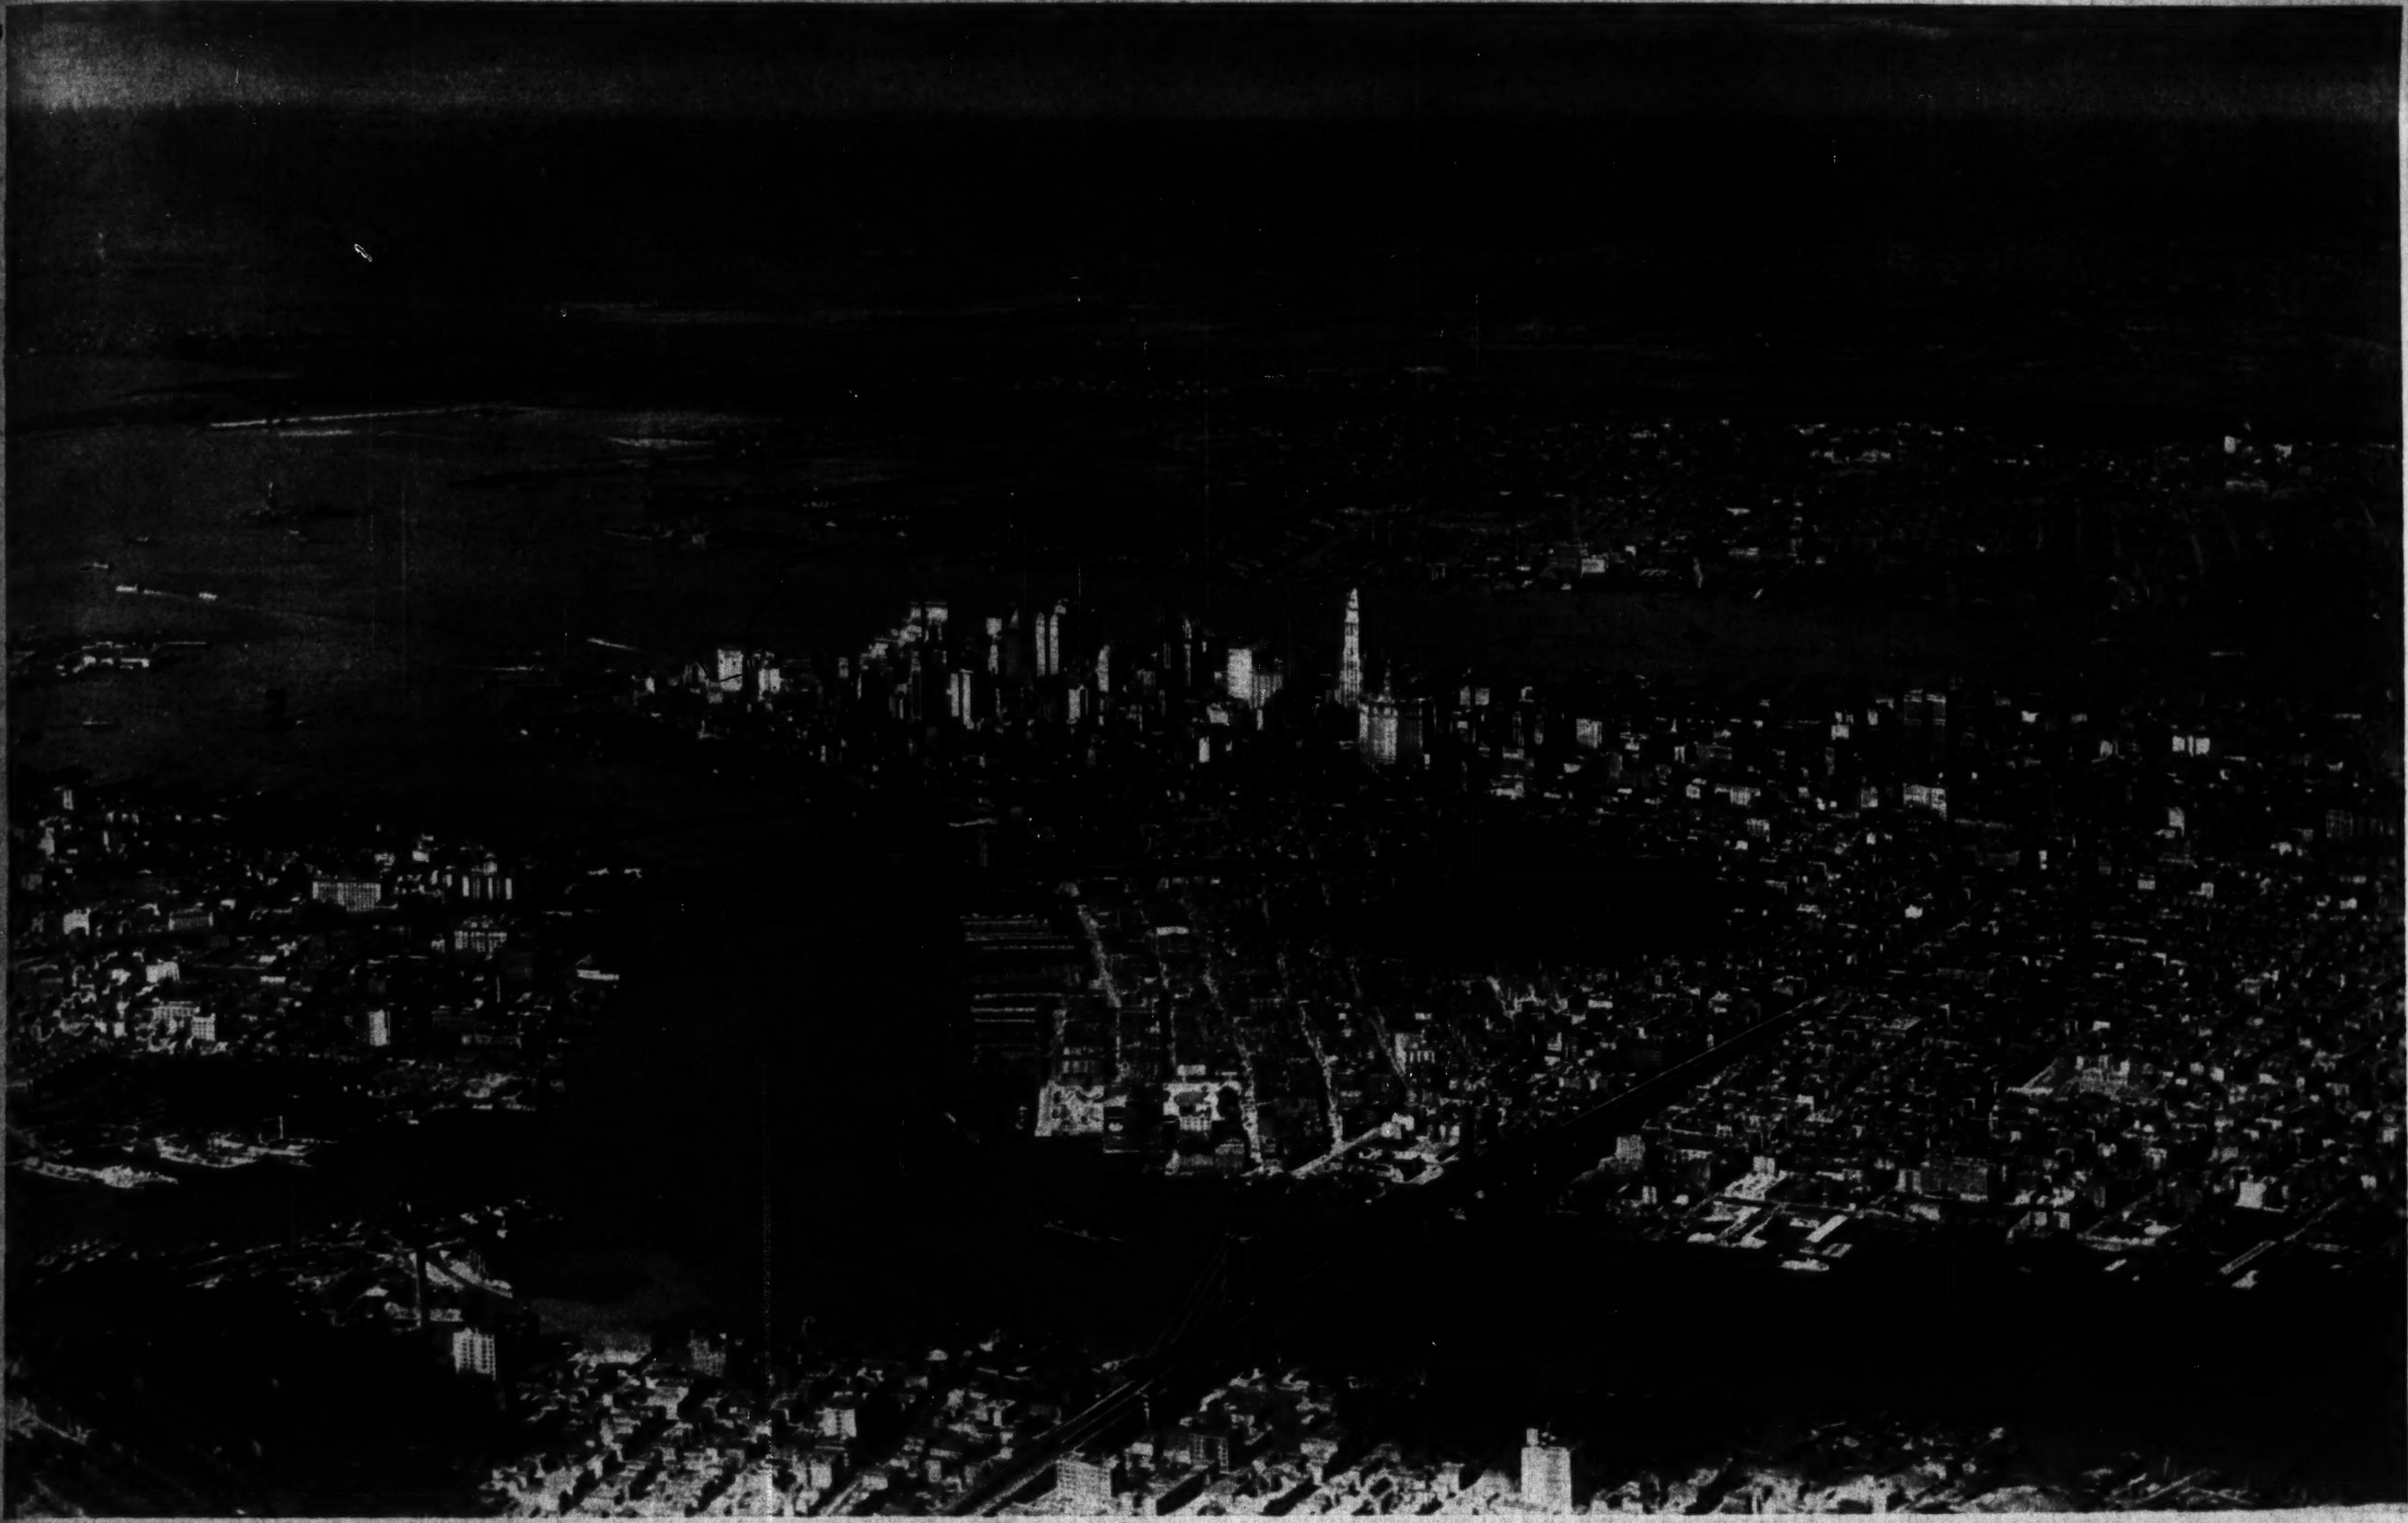
"I ain'd a professor," he told her. after she had used that title several times. "That's just foolish name Grom make up for me. What I am? I guess, maybe, I'm just a olt blockhead." His meager face spread in a rare smile. Elizabeth laughed and found herself quite falling in love with this quaint, aged child. Falling in love with people of both sexes—who were far out of the matrimonial range if of the male sex—was one of her occupations.

Judge Liscomb and Harwood came out of the judge's room, and the noted Chicagoan lingered a few moments for further conversation with the judge's stenographer. That first thrilling impression of her had been no illusion. All the charm was still there, in the slim, vigorous figure, dark blue eyes under a square brow, the curve of lips and chin—above all, a glow of warm, vivid life. He noticed now that there was no color in her cheeks, yet the glow was delicately there, too.

The three men went out, and from the high, old fashioned office window Elizabeth soon saw them rolling away in the long, shiny car.

At a quarter to six, Judge Liscomb not having returned, she locked the office and took the familiar way home past the Griggs house and up Maple Street. The warm, moist smell of spring toward sunset was de-

CAN THE GENIUS OF GREECE CONTRIBUTE TO THE TRIBUNE'S NEW BUILDING?



A CITY OF EIGHT MILLION SOULS, photographed from an airplane 3,000 feet above the ground. New York is now the largest city in the world, according to its city directory, which puts the population at more than 8,000,000. Manhattan island is seen stretching from the right between the Hudson river, at the top, and the East river. Upper Manhattan is an overflowing melting pot of great apartment houses, little old homes, cheap tenements, small stores, and larger businesses crowded from the busier downtown districts. Great skyscrapers dot the main business section, extending from the center of the island, on the west side, clear down to the battery at the end of the island. The Woolworth building can be distinguished as the largest structure in the picture, dwarfing the Singer building, the Metropolitan tower, the city hall, and other famous edifices of the city. New Jersey, the state of commuters, is shown across the Hudson at the top of the picture. The Williamsburg bridge, in the foreground at the bottom, the Manhattan bridge, shown next, and the famous old Brooklyn bridge connect Manhattan with Brooklyn and Long island. A good portion of Brooklyn appears at the extreme left, with the turn in the East river which leads to Brooklyn navy yard. Off from Brooklyn are seen Governor's island and Bedloe's island, on which stands the Statue of Liberty.

liciously good. Some robins hopped on the neat lawns with frame dwellings behind them. Now there was a heavy scent of lilacs. And always along with her sense of spring there was the pleasant tingle of this afternoon's new adventure. But when she turned the corner of Vine street there was a livelier tingle. That long, shiny car—light green with silver stripes—stood in front of her mother's cottage. Automatically her step quickened.

Steinman and the chauffeur were in the car. Judge Liscomb and Harwood were in the cottage—where Harwood was genially re-establishing himself as Mrs. Malden's schoolboy friend. All three were laughing over one of his reminiscences as Elizabeth came in. Naturally it brought him nearer—fairly into the family circle.

AFTER the callers left Elizabeth and her mother ate supper of canned tomato soup, canned salmon, bread, butter, and tea on the kitchen table. They usually ate that way.

Elizabeth's father has died when she was eight, leaving her mother this cottage and life insurance which yielded an income of four hundred dollars a year. Her mother was shorter than herself by half a head; of late many gray threads had come into the soft brown hair; the last two years she had been obliged to wear eyeglasses. But her figure was still girlish; there were numberless little turns and poses of her small head—a straight little nose, curved lips. Still the prettiest woman in Slow River, Elizabeth declared!

With the cottage and four hundred a year the mother and two daughters might have barely lived. But Mrs. Malden proposed far more than barely living. She danced extremely well and gave dancing lessons. She could play the piano acceptably and gave music lessons. Once she valiantly essayed drawing and painting lessons—improvising the instructions as she went along. And she made things to sell—always pretty things: baskets woven of colored beads, embroidered handbags, gay lamp shades. Latterly she made dinner place cards, for which there was a limited market in Valley City, sixteen miles away.

They were by no means barely to live. They were to go with the best; they were to be in whatever swim Slow River afforded; there were to be gowns as becoming as any—contrived with incredible ingenuity of matching and making over. They were to hold up their heads! Decidedly, always they were to hold up their heads! Both girls went through the high school. Bess had done the undergraduate course at Ann Arbor in three years, and even undertaken the postgraduate law school. But Kate was entered as a freshman at Ann Arbor then, and after one term in the law school Bess took the position in Judge Liscomb's office, where she could read law under his guidance.

THE ROOM
THE ROOF

Somehow it had been managed! This had been no shambling, droop tailed poor widow's household. In the things that seemed to be most important they'd swum with the best—chin up! Always chin up! Now that she was twenty-three Elizabeth often thought of it with a sort of awe. This charming little mother's nimble feet and pretty, tireless fingers had somehow brought them through! When the daughter really thought of that it brought a big ache into her heart. She longed to hug the laughing little mother till her ribs cracked. She yearned to step out into the road, with her mother's glove in her cap, and challenge the world to come on and fight. Only really there was nobody at all to fight. Elizabeth vaguely regretted that—now that she felt herself to be the man of the family.

So far as mere money went it had, of course, been a dog-and-rabbit race, with the dog getting laps ahead every now and then. It had long been a familiar fact to Elizabeth that local tradesmen were not enthusiastic about extending credit to the Maldens. Bills were always paid—finally. But it was sometimes a longish finally. And the housekeeping was of a very sketchy, impressionistic sort—the food mainly canned stuff on a corner of the kitchen table. When old Dr. Ridley protested that it was most unhealthy and would undermine the constitutions of growing girls, Mrs. Malden laughed and pointed to the girls. In the face of their sleek limbed, glowing vigor, Dr. Ridley could only scratch a baffled head. . . .

Next day Elizabeth learned from Judge Liscomb that Harwood was leasing the basket factory. This was a one story brick structure, twenty feet by sixty, near the railroad tracks and a quarter of a mile or so from any other building. The manufacturing enterprise for which it was built had not succeeded and for several years the little factory had stood empty. It seemed a suitable place for Steinman and Krom to work out their experiments in.

THE morning of this next day after Harold's visit to Slow River, Krom climbed the stairs to the Curlin Camera company's office. Simon Curlin was at his desk that morning for the first time in ten days—influenza, the doctors called it. He looked as though he needed several weeks of recuperation—the long face haggard, and the bold eyes for once lacking luster; his manner listless.

"Good morning. Glad to see you back. Feeling some better?" said Krom at the door in a sympathetic manner.

"I'm back," Curlin replied—too dispirited to be really ill natured.

Krom took a chair and observed: "Flu seems to be pretty bad again. Steinman's been laid up—come down with it two days after you did. He don't seem to pick up much. The doctor said he ought to get out of town a while—in the country where he could get fresh air and have nothing to bother about for a couple weeks. There's a place down in Indiana where I stayed once—farmhouse near a lake. I took him down there yesterday. He seems to like it first rate. Guess it'll do him good."

"Hope so," said Curlin apathetically.

"He's sort of lonesome—naturally," Krom went on. "I ain't feeling any too well myself—pains in my head and no appetite. I'm going to knock off a couple weeks and stay there with him. We can stay down there cheap."

Business was dull then; nothing seemed to matter very much; there was no edge to the old camera maker's mind.

"Well," he said in listless assent, and added, "I'm going down to French Lick tomorrow, I guess."

Krom arose, and remarked soberly, "I'll let you know how he gets on."

"All right," said Curlin.

As Krom went out a grin lurked behind his beard and the eye with a cast in it appeared to conceal a good joke. The smile broadened on the last flight of stairs, and blossomed, so to speak, in a sound that was half titter and half chuckle. He was thinking:

"The old goat'll blow up when he finds out what's happened to him!" It was, perhaps, the most amusing thought that Krom had ever entertained.

That would keep Curlin quiet for two weeks at least, and Krom went up to Slow River. An accumulation of dust and cobwebs was swept out of the bare little basket factory; fresh air was let in. An electric motor and a lathe for lens grinding were installed. Express packages containing glass, tools, and various commodities were delivered.

These evidences of life in the long empty shop aroused much local curiosity—which was discouraged by a fresh sign on the door: "Positively No Admittance." From Judge Liscomb's office word circulated that some important experiments, looking to the establishment of an optical instrument manufactory, were going forward, and no one was admitted because the processes were secret.

THAT by no means entirely discouraged local curiosity, however; besides, the comparatively lonely location, out there by the railroad tracks, gave Steinman some uneasiness lest the enemy, Curlin, make a sudden descent upon it. So presently a watchman was employed to enforce that "no admittance" sign.

The person selected for this post was Peter Green—one of those citizens of no particular occupation who can be found in all country towns—a chronic odd-job man. He had once served as a deputy game warden, and the village, for special occasions, employed him as an assistant constable. Between jobs—which was about half the time—he could usually be found in Lafe Hartman's pool parlor or in Charley Miller's cigar stand, both famous centers of local news.

He was well suited to constabulary jobs or for a watchman, being very strong, with plenty of courage—under six feet, but broad shouldered and bandy legged, with a heavy jawed, pugnacious face, a big straggling mustache, and eyes set close together; the mere sight of him sufficient to enforce a no trespass sign.

The two big doors of the basket factory—one in the side and one in the end—were fastened with stout iron bars. To get in or out one went through an office which occupied the front of the long, narrow building. Peter had little to do except sit in this office and see that no unauthorized person did get in; or he could take a chair to the sidewalk by the office door and there keep watch. The new job was greatly to his taste.

Elizabeth Malden was one of the authorized persons. Now and then she walked around by the factory for a little visit with her friend who said he was no professor. That was the only opportunity of visiting with him. A cot had been set up in a corner of the factory and he slept there, taking his meals at Aunty Prothroe's boarding house, which was over toward Mrs. Malden's cottage. People in that part of town soon got used to seeing the dry wisp of a man—like an aged child—trotting back and forth between factory and boarding house, usually absorbed in thought and paying no attention to any one he met. Elsewhere he was hardly ever seen.

The town also got accustomed to a big, beefy figure, carelessly dressed, the lower part of the face covered by a beard the color of moldy straw, a cast in the left eye. This man appeared and disappeared—writing "A. Krom, Chicago" on the register of the Griggs house, where he lodged and took his meals when in Slow River. Sometimes he drove to town in a small car—furnished by Harwood—and sometimes he came by train. Every one knew, of course, that he was engaged in those mysterious experiments at the basket factory—something important, without doubt, since Nathaniel Harwood was the attorney in the matter.

IT was at the basket factory that Krom first saw Elizabeth Malden. Sitting at the work bench, he was suddenly aware of an extraordinary vision—a slender figure in a simple linen dress with a hat that he had no detailed perception of, only it looked like spring—flowers—fragrance; a face under the hat. Then he saw that the vision was for Steinman; the little man was running to fetch a chair. Probably it wouldn't have occurred to Steinman to introduce Krom.

But Elizabeth, standing so close he felt a fragrance, was looking at him, smiling, and saying to Steinman, "This is Mr. Krom, isn't it?"

While Krom stared up at her from the bench, Steinman replied, quite impersonally, as though they were discussing a piece of furniture, "Yes, that is Mr. Krom."

Elizabeth's smile twinkled brighter as she completed the introduction herself, "I am Miss Malden—Judge Liscomb's stenographer."

Krom muttered, "Glad to know you."

She spoke a few further words and then turned away for her visit with Steinman. A dull, confused shame surged in Krom's mind. He ought to have stood up when she spoke to him instead of sitting at the bench like a lobster! From somewhere or other he remembered that he should have arisen. He must have looked like a fool to her!

Only fifteen feet away she and Steinman were chattering away. Krom observed that with astonishment. The queer, shy old nut was actually chattering—making a regular ladies' tea party of it! And Miss Malden was shining at him; her clear laughter rang in the shop. Wouldn't that beat hell? Regular tea party! Krom reflected, with a satirical implication, that he was no lady's man. That tea party lasted nearly half an hour.

Rising, the caller spoke a few more words to him. Should he get to his feet now? But it didn't matter; he remained at his bench. When she went out neither he nor Steinman mentioned the call—the latter plunging at once into his work.

BUT all this was mere by-play. Nathaniel Harwood was finding a surprising lot of time to spend in the home of his boyhood. Of course, he was greatly interested in the invention that Steinman and Krom were working at. But he could have got the reports of that from Krom, who spent at least half the time in Chicago, and when in the city came almost daily to the roof room, which had now been turned into a workshop.

Harwood had been fond of Josephine Cutter when he married her—he thought. He had looked properly mournful at the funeral. But directly after it, when alone, he had not been able to keep a faint smile of relief from coming to the surface. Josephine, like her father, had been a person of very decided opinions, in which she had such implicit faith that she could understand any opposition to them only on the grounds of a moral or mental defect. Harwood mournfully feared that his daughter Mathilde was like her in that.

All his life admiration of women had surrounded him like a native air. But early training, or temperament, kept him to a conventional standard of conduct; he was a famous squire of dames to whom no scandal had ever attached.

He was now, in practical fact, engaged to Letitia Belknap, who had many admirable qualifications for a wife—one of them being the possession of ten million dollars—and who was one year older than himself.

There was an odd paradox in his life, of which he was now aware. Women had always been his friends. His big success had come through a woman—Josephine Cutter. He was aware—sensitively if secretly—that some men held that against him, slightingly, saying that he had won his marshal's baton by marriage, not by his own merit; that the most conspicuous object on his coat of arms was a petticoat. Naturally, they would say that all the more when he married Letitia Belknap. In short, he had owed much to woman, but not the great debt; for no woman had ever before carried him out of himself and shown him a new heaven and a new earth. Woman had given him a lot of money and prestige, social consideration and clients—a great heap of small change, but no elysium.

Not until now. It by no means happened all at once. That first day in Slow River he got a draught of wine which brought him back for more—and the more he drank the deeper the thirst. It took time, but by July—he spent the Fourth at Slow River—he made no bones about it to himself: Forty-three years old and head over heels in love!

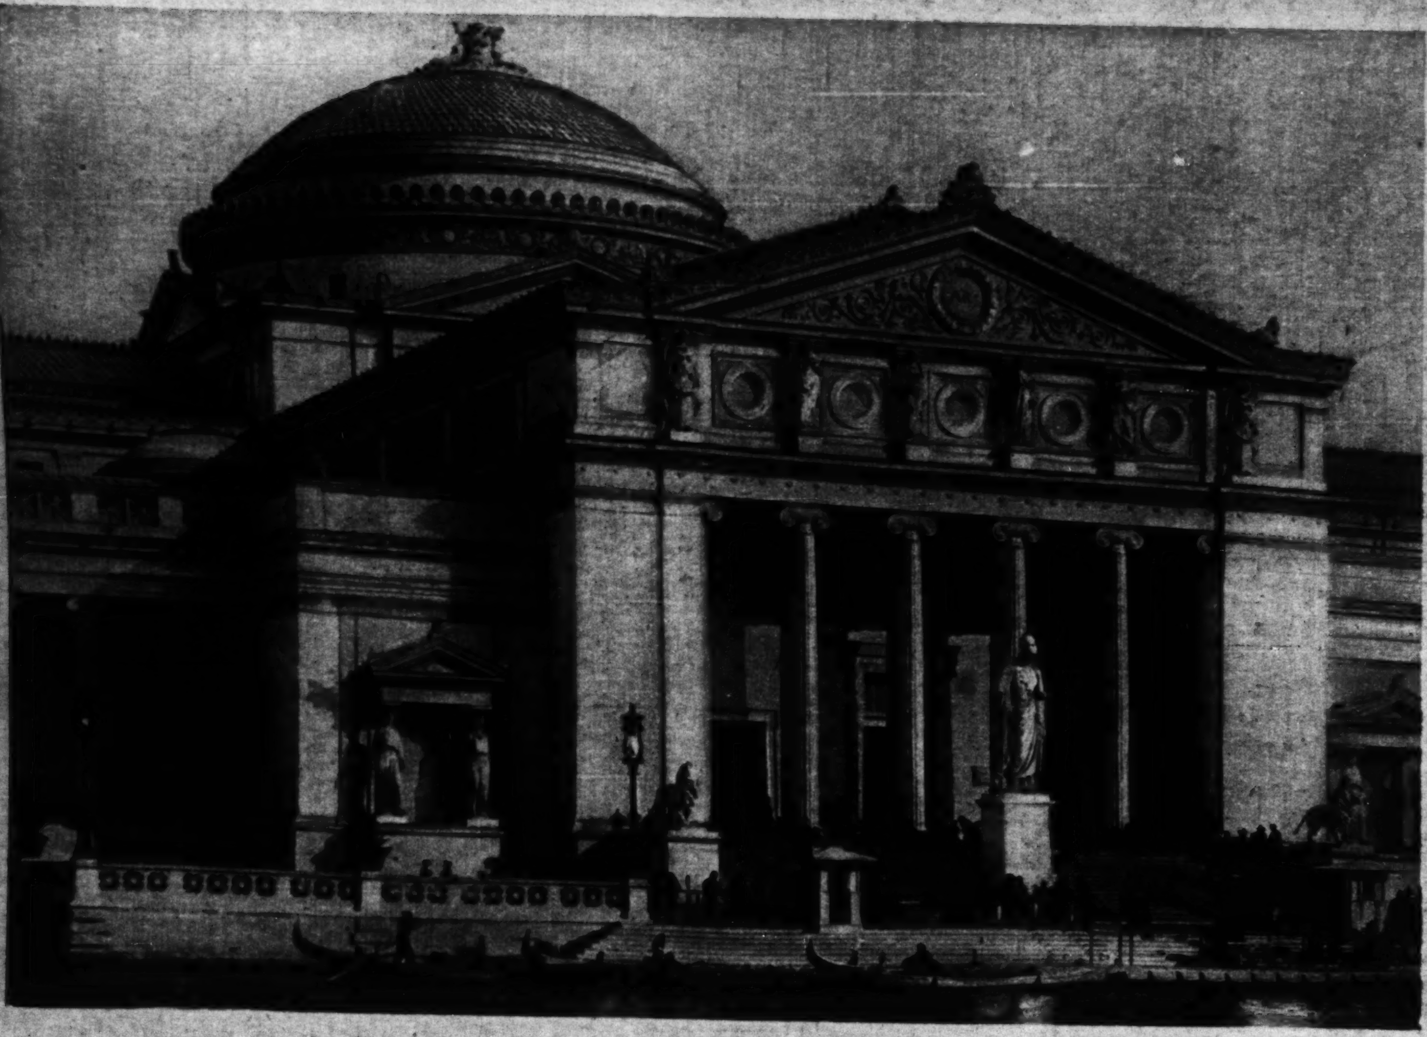
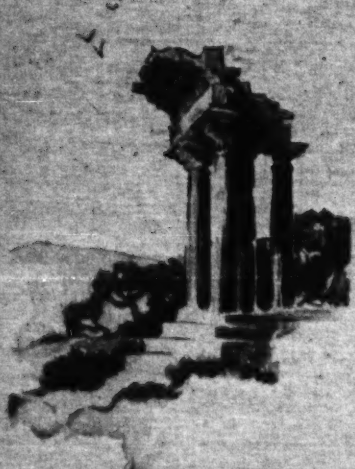
CAN THE GENIUS OF GREECE CONTRIBUTE TO THE TRIBUNE'S NEW BUILDING?



JAY HAMBIDGE of Yale, one of the greatest authorities on Greek architecture, says of the old Fine Arts building in Jackson park that next to the Parthenon it is the most beautiful building ever done in the classic style. The photograph at the left was taken at the time of the World's Fair, after which the building was used, for a number of years, to house the exhibits of the Field Museum. The building has fallen into decay, and a campaign is now under way for its restoration.

WHILE Pericles was head of the Athenian democracy the Parthenon was built in honor of Athene Parthenos, the protective divinity of Athens. For twenty years the quarries of Attica were plumbed for their most beautiful marbles and these great blocks were joined and adjusted without cement. The sculptor Phidias, who was the counsel of Pericles in matters relating to the embellishment of Athens, superintended and directed the artists and workmen who built the temple. To his unerring judgment is due the perfect proportion of the Parthenon—the height and thickness of the columns, pediments and other proportions of the temple which harmonize to give the impression of perfect symmetry.



THOUGH science has brought us new and better methods of construction since the days of the Parthenon, for sheer architectural beauty that old temple has never been surpassed. The Tribune hopes to build the most beautiful modern building in the world. The best known architects are competing for The Tribune's $100,000 prize. Doubtless, many of them will seek suggestions for The Tribune's new home in the calm, serene strength of the temples of the ancients.

CHEEK

The Island was Held Sacred as the Resting Place of a Bride Who Had Been Drowned; then Along Came the Fair Alison, and Richard the Disturber.

PART I.

The Invader.

A SLENDER boyish looking girl of that-age which the appreciative observer tries vainly to class whether as childhood or womanhood, and is right on either decision, was paddling her canoe off the rocky point of an island on a still, hot day in June.

The little island of about twenty acres shared in common many of the attractions of the girl. It was fresh and vivid, solitary, and gave the impression of intimacies unexplored. Its depths seemed charged with romance, secret wild flowers rare and sweet, a spring or two, and sunny spots between the big oaks and pines and little beaches where the sand was fine and there might even be treasure in the recesses of the cold, clear water under the bold pitch of the low cliffs.

The island held a fascination for the girl, first because it marked the limit of the scope permitted to her adventurings alone. It lay in what looked to be a lake, but was actually the sea, and it blocked the narrow mouth of a deep estuary, the rampart of its seaward shores protecting this from violence. Such big storm swells as were deflected through the deep narrow channels on either side had spent their force and heaved in after an exhausted fashion on this day, burnished and long, and smelling curiously of watermelon, perhaps from their polish of fish oil left in the wake of schooling mackerel.

The girl's kindly but positive injunctions were that in her paddlings about she was not to venture beyond the seaward angle of the island nor to land upon it, and as it was her creed to obey this parent whom she loved with that curious passionate devotion that a very young girl is apt to fix upon her ideal of a perfect man, there was no element of temptation, even in the thought of disobedience.

But now an unsettling factor had developed. The island, known locally as "Mary's island," was oddly enough a mystery, even to the local folk of that wild and picturesquely beautiful coast, the most beautiful section of the most beautiful coast line in the world, and also the most dangerous by reason of its strong currents, half tide reefs, and fickle weather variations, where on the loveliest of days a stealthy fog might come slipping in, smoky and fine, and screening the unexpected bash of a squall from almost any quarter. Nobody appeared to wish to land on the island nor to disturb its tender, mournful serenity by the cutting of trees, vandal violation of its big, white birches, or even the filling of a keg from the cold, sweet spring known to bubble under a ledge almost at high water mark.

For the island had its ghostly guardian in a cairn of stones and a rough hewn cross of granite erected at its eastern promontory. This monument was almost in reach of the spray while yet under the boughs of the big oak that found its nurture from huge roots gripping the rocks like an octopus and drawing its nurture from their crevices.

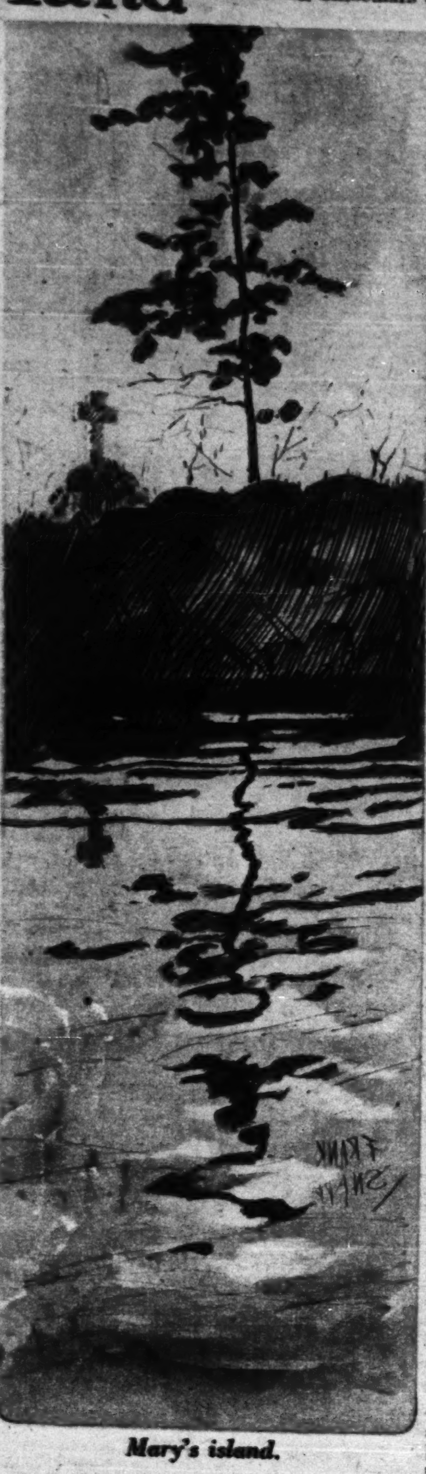
People, even to careless boys cruising in small boats, were unconsciously respectful of the tenure so positively yet serenely proclaimed by this cross and cairn and the great oak over both that, if they landed at all, their inspection was brief and rather awed. The legend of it was not very old, whilst yet so solemn, so sentimental, as to assume a certain simple grandeur of idea and execution.

A catastrophe at sea had in the course of elemental forces deposited the body of a young wife on the point of Mary's island, and her husband, refusing his place in an overloaded boat and picked up nearly exhausted on a hatch cover, had bought the island, interred his bride upon it, and endowed it as her tomb in perpetuity. A quarter of a century later, though rich by this time and a power in the world of finance, he had not seen fit to disturb this arrangement. And so the little island remained and bade fair to remain always the tomb of his bride, and through some way of reasoning he had never seen fit to revisit the spot. A host of conjectures and romance had been builded from this fact alone.

Alison stopped paddling and surveyed the western point of the island with resentful eyes. Something that puzzled her was going on there. It had perplexed the local folk and likewise aroused their captious disapproval. They did not like to see that isolated fragment disturbed, and yet there was nothing that any one seemed authorized to prevent. Even the summer folk, of whom there were some few unobtrusive ones, disliked the idea of Mary's island being violated, even if its tenantry could be considered a violation when the intruder was of direct kin to the one laid there to rest. Arguments may prevail and carry conviction, pleas for the service of the living and the excellent advocation of utility and that so lovely a spot should be animate. And yet there lurks in the bosoms of all a profound distaste for intruding upon consecrated ground without much reference as to whom it may be consecrated. Custom also has a great deal to do with it. If an island or point of other land becomes, in order of events, a picnic ground, even a cathedral erected there could scarcely give it solemnity; and until the flight of years had worn down memories, a picnic ground it would remain.

But Mary's island, of which the first occupant had been as a tomb, was regarded as a tomb, and, for all its alluringness and vivid beauty, no one ever thought of even camping there. The fishermen themselves preferred to run on up into the bight if waiting for a tide or shift of weather rather than to anchor in its sheltered western cove.

It is doubtful if anybody felt this respect more strongly than the boyish girl in the canoe. As she now rested with the paddle athwartships in front of her, she stared at the island under straight brows of a penthouse sort uncommon in so young a girl and aggravated by her frown. Her eyes were precisely the shade of wood violets, their lashes very long and black, and the harsh salt air had so far refreshed, rather than weathered, the exquisite softness of her skin. Her bare forearms were round and so perfectly and uniformly developed that the muscles under them were not in evidence.



Mary's island.

She reached beneath her and raised a pair of strong binoculars through which she now examined intently the activity upon the island. She was indifferent to the fact that her scrutiny must be clearly observed by the solitary cause of this activity. In fact, she saw him stop his work and stare at her for a moment or two, his attention having been caught, perhaps, by the heliographic flash of sunlight on the lenses of her glass. He made a little gesture, a sort of salutation, as if to say "How do you do; look me over if you like," a sort of general indication to such effect, that might have been partly amusement with a hint of defiance. At any rate, it served to whet the girl's hostility, almost as if he had said, "Yes, I'm putting a living presence on this consecrated scrap of rock and woods, and what are you going to do about it?"

The binoculars were good as might have been expected of their ownership, because Alison's father was a professor of astronomy in government employ and he had sent in some large and honest orders for instruments of high price, ground in the Lemaire works. Through them she observed that this privileged vandal (as she classified him) was youngish of appearance, rather squarely built, and, to judge from the size of a stone she observed him to be hoisting by means of rough ways and a derrick, sort of a human winch. Alison saw also that as he hoisted these monoliths he appeared to be landing them in place and in cement.

Alison paddled a little nearer. She was acting entirely within her privileges because her father's orders were merely that in her cruising about she remain always within the scope of his vision should a sudden anxiety as to her safety move him to sweep the bay with the telescope from the porch of their camp. This parental injunction was simple and concise.

"Go where you like, sweet," had said the professor, "so long as you are never out of my sight." To most girls of her age and social station such an order would have been impossible to obey without serious sacrifice of personal liberty. But for Alison it was entirely reasonable, permitting her to circulate in an orbit of many miles, and, of course, it did not apply to the immediate environment of their premises. Like all of her father's requests, it was based on love and reason. He knew that she was a skilled canoeist and could swim like the seal or sea otter that in many ways she resembled. But in the intervals of his writing and study he desired to see that all was well with her. The visual sense supplied this demand. His nature was such that on the whole he would rather have seen her in some danger than unable to see her at all. His prohibition as to landing was a little slipshod perhaps, the idea being merely that once swallowed in the depths of the woods she must be removed from his field of observation.

Alison now turned the matter in her mind. She desired intensely to know what this young man was doing on Mary's island, and what he was building there, and why. To her direct and candid nature it seemed that the best way would be to go and ask him. For over a fortnight she had observed his maneuvers and the reticence of the local population, of which the curiosity was no less than her own, though veiled, permitted merely of the brief comment, "'Pears like he figgers to build a stone house." Nobody was obtrusive enough to demand why he would want to build a stone house there, or why he should do this alone, and when he might expect to complete it. His own imparted information, corroborated by the scanty mail in the name by which his letters were addressed, showed him to be of the same name as the now elderly man who had purchased the island a quarter of a century before. Alison's father declined to interest himself at all in their mysterious neighbor. Like many scientists and others whose most valued prerogative is privacy of mind and body and dearest desire not to disturb or be disturbed, the mere idea of inquisitiveness was abhorrent, almost a profanation of individual rights, and Alison had got a certain amount of this quality by induction, though, being feminine and normal, she could not share it wholly. It must be remembered also that, although but seventeen, she was a full powered girl and ripe for life, which is to say for love, for romance, for experience that she might find by exploration, but could not support it thrust upon her.

WHEREFORE she laid down her binoculars and paddled in leisurely manner to the jutting rocks from the foot of which the solitary builder was hoisting his material. He could not have helped but observe her near approach and he was not the only one to do so, as a big dog who, like most canines, reflected the personal traits of its master, rose from some sunny corner and stalked down to the water's edge, less to challenge than to inspect the intruder. Alison in the flat calm heard the young man say in accents of supreme indifference, "It's only a little girl in a canoe, Bill," whereat Bill stretched, yawned, and returned to occupy his former strategic position.

Alison was distinctly annoyed. If the man had said, "It's only a girl, Bill," in that voice of which the indifference bordered on contempt, her feminine antagonism might have been aroused, but the "little" galled her. She had discarded infancy so recently that his classification struck her as less an injury than an insult. Like many highly vital girls, the process of shedding her childhood, both physically and mentally, had been an abrupt transition that, so far, none but she herself had seemed able to appreciate. Perhaps to a certain extent the change had been spiritual as well, and that alone might actually have made her younger, since most children are spiritually the seniors of adults.

But so far as concerned her vigorous young body, and no doubt hitherto latent within, the process had been that summer startlingly abrupt, not like the well worn simile of the opening of a bud, as children are flowers to begin with, but more resembling the sudden appearance of other flowers on the same stalk.

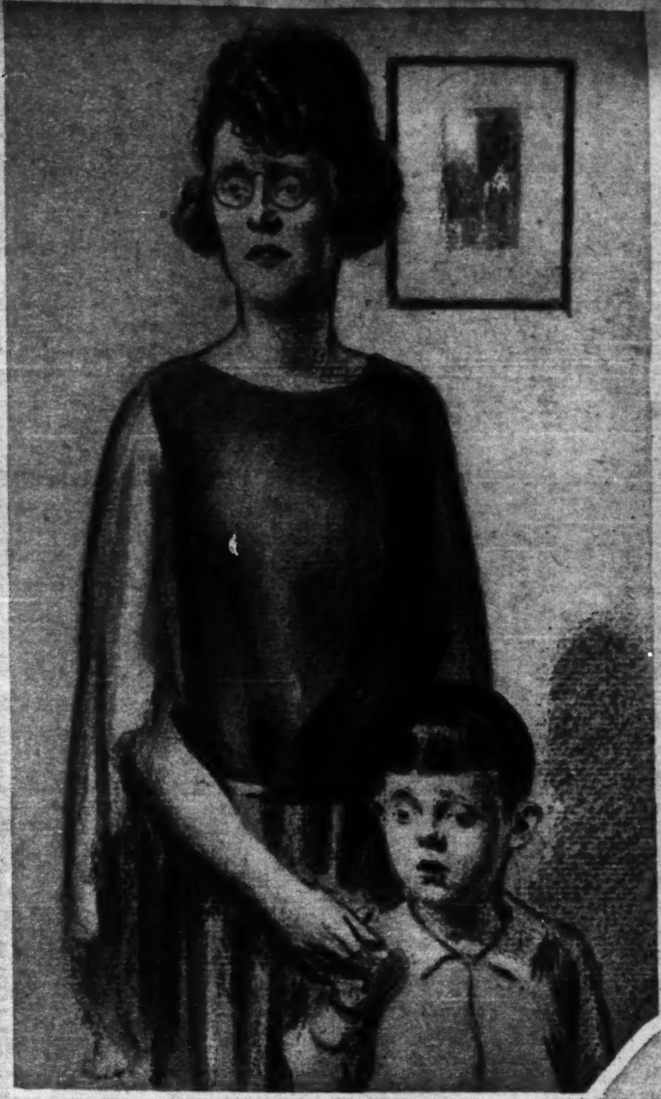
Alison found herself possessed of new emotions, enriched by them while yet a little shy of their recent presence. She had never been a dreamy child, rather more like a boy in fact in her pursuits and pleasures and frame of mind. But now she found herself given to musings and doubts and uncertainties and a wonder at the possibilities of life. Her imaginings did not impede her useful and diverting occupations, but walked or paddled or swam with them to make their engagement more colorful. She had never thought much about the male of her species until quite recently, and then often with a curious defiance, as one resenting an interest that hitherto one has managed very well without.

The lure was at this moment very strong, infused with an immense curiosity. If two or three young men had been merely camping on the island she would have protested their presence there as unwarranted trespassing and might have avoided the place. But one young man alone engaged in some sort of stone construction was another matter. So she paddled closer to inspect this specimen and his work, so close in fact that she discovered him to be a young fellow of twenty-four perhaps, of pleasing appearance, well knit and going apparently about his work with a sort of cheerful effi-

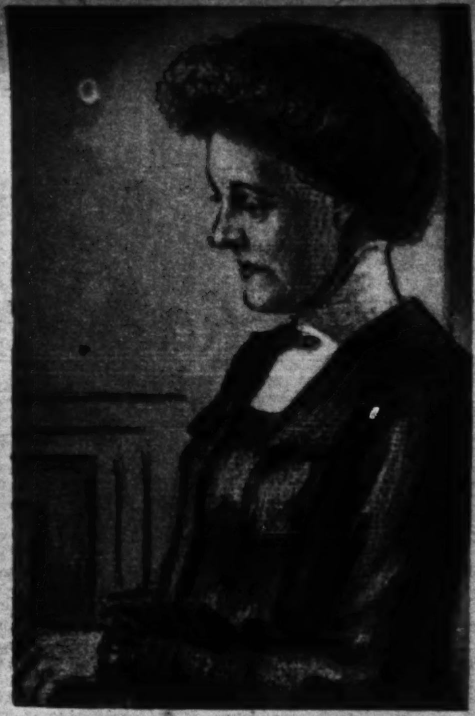
The LITTLE WIFE

By W. E. HILL

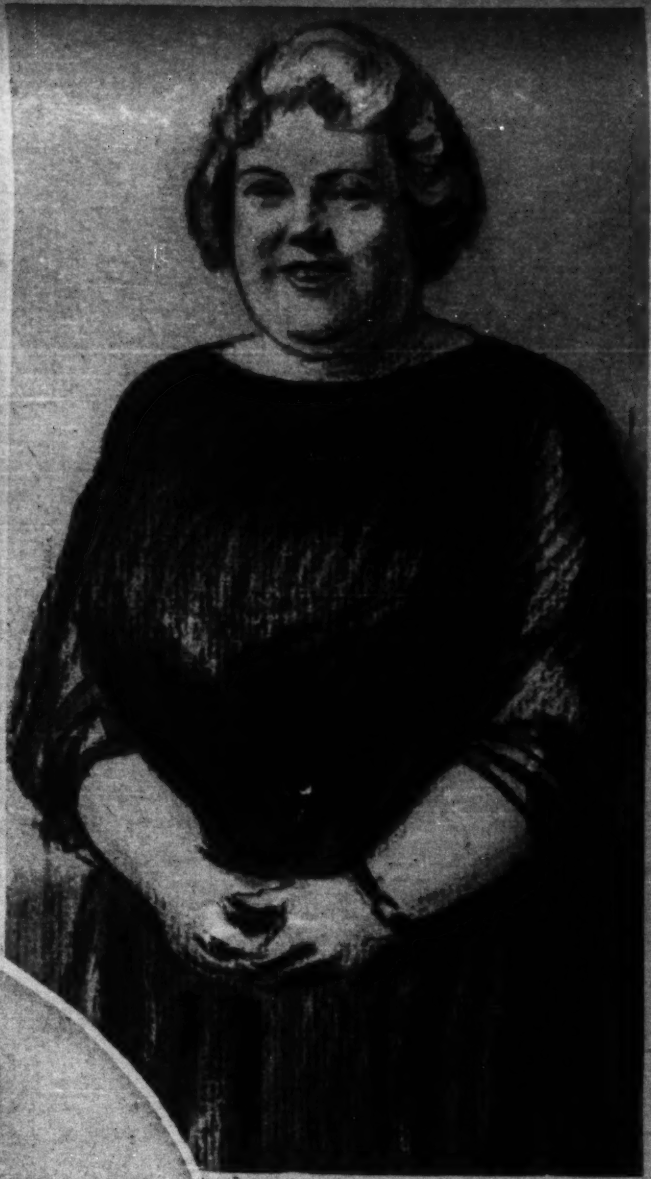
Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune.



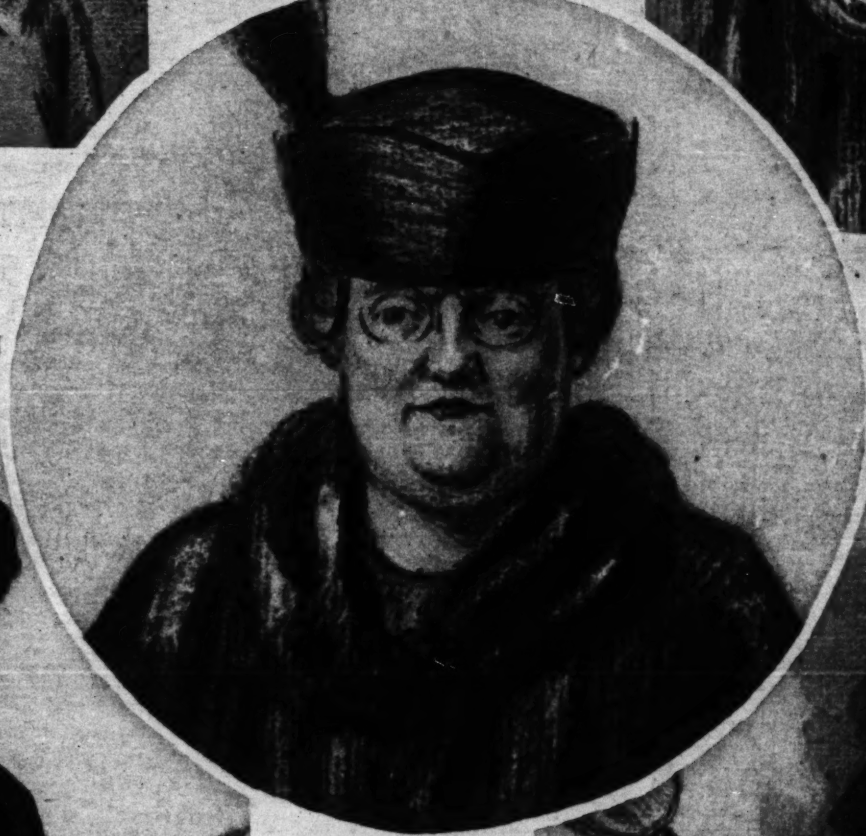
The fond parent. When papa comes home right away he will be asked to go down the street and tell Harold Speare's papa and mamma that Harold took Spenser's kiddie car and wouldn't give it back for ever so long. And Spenser was just as dear about it! Told Harold he needn't ever give it back.



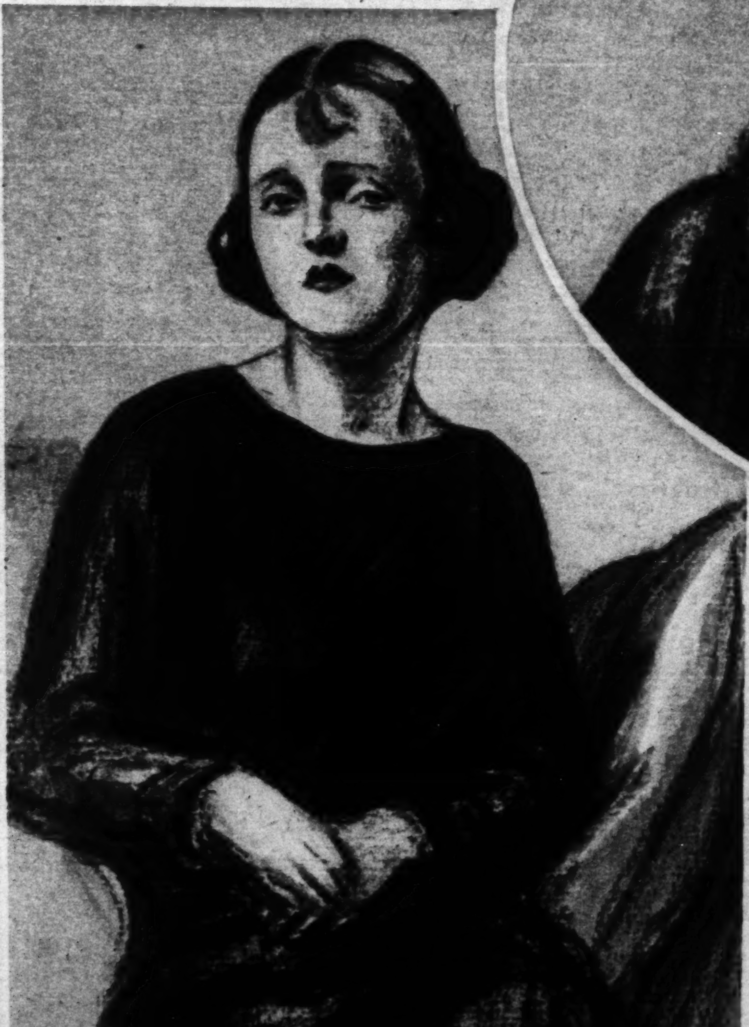
The economical wife. Many's the time Mr. Beemis has been heard to remark that there isn't another Mrs. Beemis in the whole world. There's no waste in Mrs. Beemis' kitchen! (Mrs. Beemis is visiting the icebox to see how much cabinet pudding there is left from Tuesday's meal.)



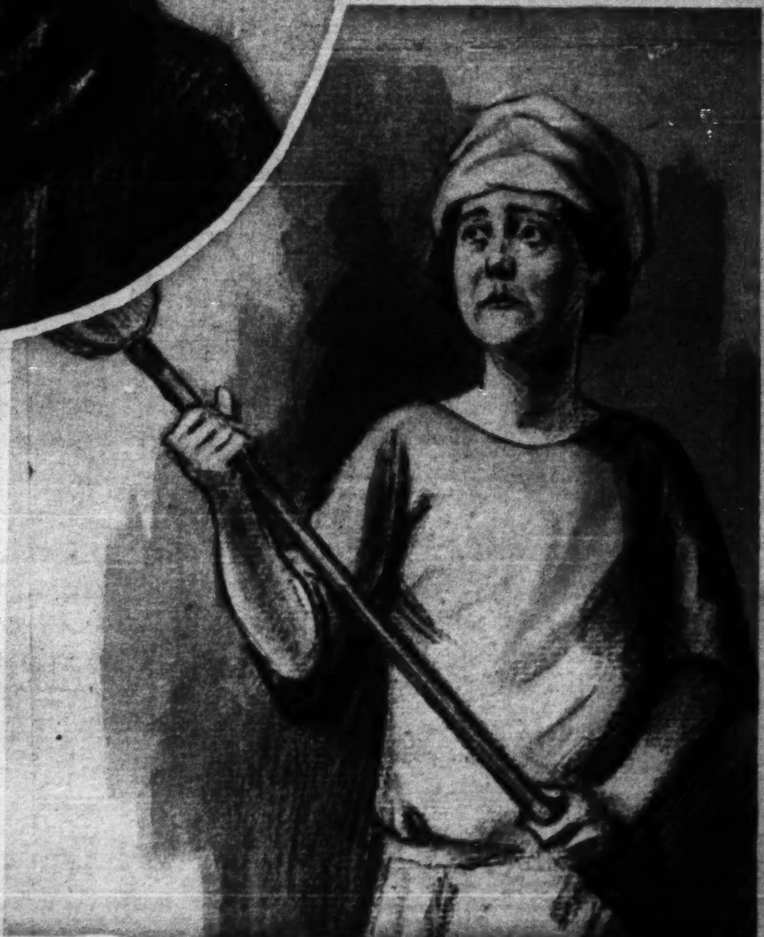
The stylish stout. The stout better half has lost her figure (she was the slimmest thing you ever saw when she graduated from college) and most of her looks. She laughs a lot and can eat rolypoly pudding without turning a hair. She is so good natured that nobody, least of all her husband, minds her increase in weight.



The clubwoman. When night comes the clubwoman will be tireder than the tired business man to whom she is joined in holy wedlock, and she will have a headache between the eyes from reading the minutes of the last meeting before the Woman's Civic Club.



The jealous wife. The jealous better half resents any outside interests — her husband's stenographer, his family, and, above all, his college friends who have an annoying habit of talking over old times in which the jealous wife played no part.



The good housekeeper. The good housekeeper spends her days showing Annie, the maid, how it ought to be done. She is always cleaning something, or canning something, and her proud boast is that you can eat from off her kitchen floor if you feel like it.

ciency as she could see from the mounting wall of big heavy stones with a clean, straight fracture that he was hoisting from the water's edge by means of a derrick, windlass, and rough ways put together from straight spruces that he had felled and peeled. This in itself seemed an outrage, to cut trees on Mary's island, with its defenseless tenantry of the cairn and cross on the opposite side of a little bight, where the long, lazy ripples washed on a strip of shingle and fine white sand.

CLOSE up to the rocks she stopped paddling and surveyed him with a level examining glance, when he acknowledged her presence with a friendly wave of the hand and paused for a moment to observe her in return. He wore a white flannel shirt open at the throat, a pair of blue jean overalls and high, heavy hobnailed hunting boots. He was bareheaded and the sun shone and glistened on his lustrous chestnut hair, damp from his efforts and curling about his temples. He looked, indeed, by reason of his depth of shoulder and breadth of chest, a sort of derrick of a man as first appearance had suggested.

"What are you doing?" Alison asked with a little frown.

"I'm building a stone house," he answered.

"Who gave you permission to do that and to cut down trees," Alison demanded.

"The owner," he answered briefly.

There did not seem to be much for Alison to say. She could not deny the truth of it and was forced to reflect that nobody would be apt to take the trouble to build single handed a stone house on an island from which there was a chance of his being dispossessed. Also the undertaking as such strongly appealed to her by virtue of its difficulties. Here was a builder living apparently alone upon the place, in an army tent she could see pitched back among the pines, and calmly constructing an edifice that from the low line of its ground plan appeared to promise considerable dimensions.

She let her canoe drift closer until the bow rubbed gently against a sheer kelp covered rock.

"Won't you land and inspect the work?" he asked politely.

Alison shook her head. "I'm forbidden to land," said she, "and I don't much like the idea of anybody building here. We thought it understood that this island was never to be disturbed."

"Well," said the young man, "let's call it being improved instead of being disturbed. Doesn't it strike you as not quite fair that a beauty spot like this with its size and splendid location should be monopolized by a single individual many years deceased?"

"I can't say that it does," Alison answered. "It seems to me rather a beautiful idea."

"If everybody was to follow the same beautiful idea and had the means of doing so," said the builder cheerfully, "the living might find themselves rather crowded off the earth by those departed to a better place of their own. There wouldn't be any islands left for us and not much of the mainland either. In the case of a whole cemetery, I must say it seems hardly right to interfere, but my socialistic ideas don't acknowledge the right of any one person, even a living one, to monopolize the whole of a charming region to the exclusion of his fellows."

"Does the present owner feel that way about it?" Alison asked.

"If I can finish my work here in a satisfactory manner within a year I may become the owner of this island myself," answered the young man.

Alison felt shocked, but her curiosity was whetted.

"What sort of an arrangement is that?" she asked, "and who are you anyhow?"

"Well, you might call it a bet," said the builder, "and my name is Richard Douglas, late of the U. S. Army Engineer Corps. I take it that you are my neighbor, Miss Alison MacNair, daughter of the distinguished astronomer, Angus MacNair."

Alison acknowledged this with a slight nod. "What are you going to do with your house when you get it built?" she asked.

"Live in it," said Richard, and added pensively, "I hope, with my wife."

For some curious reason this statement struck a sort of resentment through the girl. A young and cheerful hermit on Mary's island would not have seemed so bad, but a young married couple honeymooning there impressed her as being distinctly out of order.

"Where is your wife now?" she asked.

"In Boston," said Richard, "but she is not yet my wife. It is even possible that she may never be my wife. That depends on how I succeed with my work."

ALISON'S interest became immediately whetted again. "Does the owner know that you have come here and cut down trees and interfered with things?" she asked.

"Well," said Richard cheerfully, "to tell the truth, I slipped one over on him. My father was his brother and when I was in Yale I visited the island on a solitary cruise in a little boat and I fell in love with it. At that time I was a perfect stranger to any sort of work and Uncle Jonathan was grumblingly footing my bills against the time when work and I shook hands and got acquainted. But somehow in subsequent years we never seemed able to foregather, and not long ago he got very tired of my inability to accomplish anything of what he was pleased to consider a useful sort. So he gave me a small grub stake and told me to clear out and rustle for myself. 'If in a year's time,' said he, 'you cannot show me something accomplished through your own unaided effort, don't ever come near me again.'

"'And what if I can, sir?' I asked.

"'Well,' says he, 'if you can manage to convince me that you've got the ability and determination to establish yourself permanently in a home of your own creation and under wholesome and substantial conditions of life, I'll give you the home. But it's got to be such as I approve and, as I've said, the result of your own unaided efforts.' So I thought of Mary's island and what I'm doing now. So here I am."

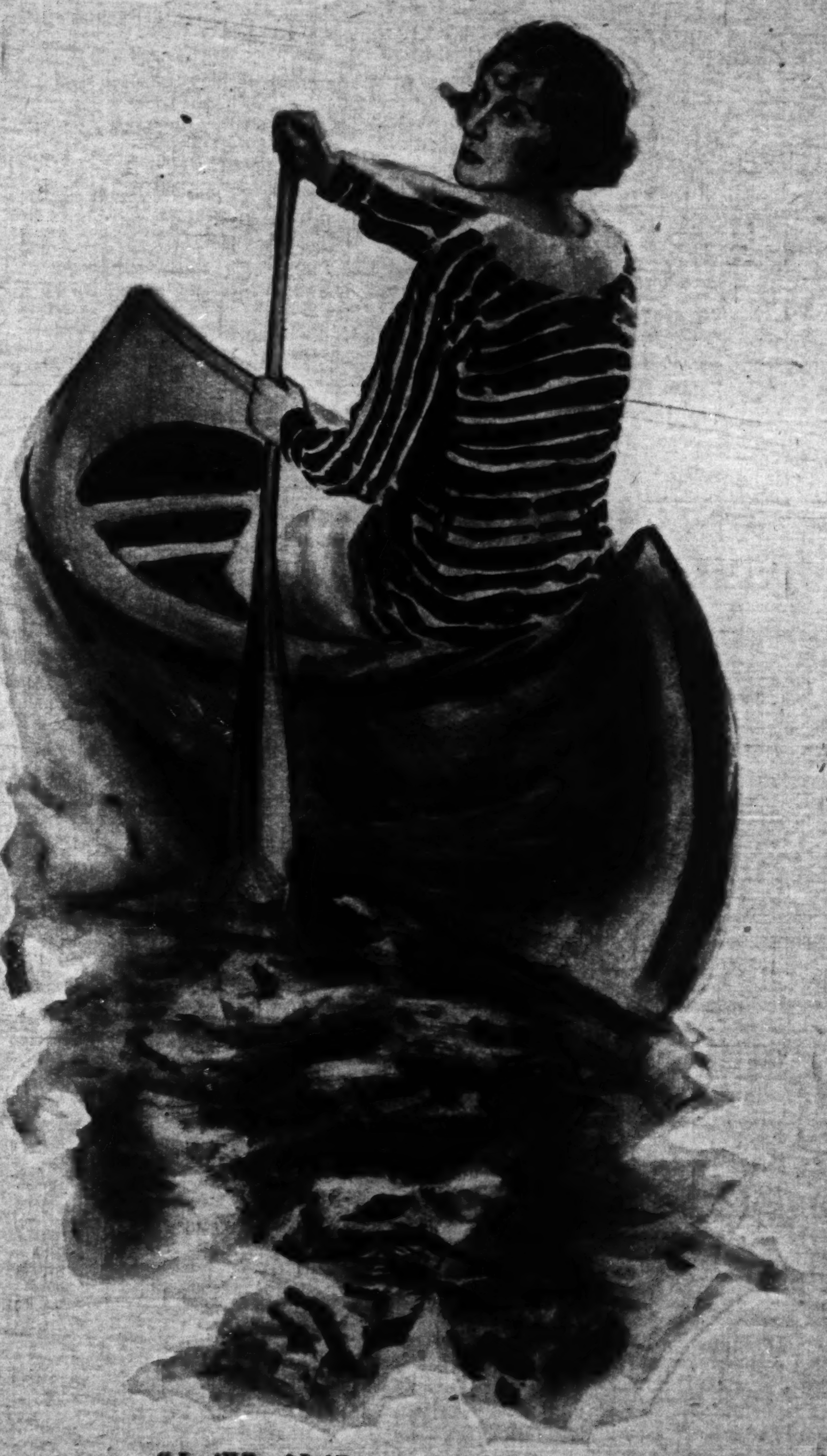
Alison listened to this information with astonishment.

"But what are you going to live on when you get it built?" she demanded.

"Ah," said Richard, "there was nothing said about that. You see, I'm trading on a careful study of my uncle's character. He is himself a builder and has a passion for solid and lasting things. He is convinced that there is nothing solid nor lasting nor persevering in my own cosmos and that I could not stick at any one line of effort, particularly if arduous, for more than a month at the outside. When he sees my house he may have a change of heart."

"But you have really no right here," protested Alison. "The very site of your house is not yours to build on."

"Not yet," Richard admitted, "but you see he promised to present me with my home if only I could manage to get it. He is a man of his word and he is now in Scotland on a visit to his own old home and by the time he returns I hope to have something to show him. Then I figure that by the terms of the agreement he will have to come across."



"I will," said Alison, and paddled away.

Alison stared at him, wondering if there was not a streak of insanity in the family.

"How about your fiancée?" she asked. "How do you know that she will want to live here?"

"Another study of personal traits," said Richard, placidly. "She is only my near fiancée. When I told her what my uncle had said she thoroughly agreed with the old man's decision and told me that if I could fulfill its condition and make myself a home she would consent to share it with me. You see neither of them took this creation of a solid and substantial home in its purely literal sense, but that is not my fault. Nothing could be solider nor more substantial than the home that I propose to build. And nobody can deny its being the result of my own unaided efforts. If you can get permission to come ashore, I'll show you the plans. They are for a two story house of Tudor architecture with modern comforts and conveniences. And the beauty of it is that in actual money it should cost me very little. The bulk of the material is supplied by the island itself. I am setting these stones in cement with oak floor beams, and I have a motor hoisting engine and saw on the way and there will be a tank to supply the house and electric lights and a natural stone pier with a float in this sheltered cove and, in fact, all the accessories of a really splendid island home, a sort of little kingdom."

"And then what?" Alison asked. "How about your living expenses?"

"Ah," said Richard, "that question has yet to be considered. But the main thing is to get the home, and once that's done a man should be able to manage somehow. Don't you think?"

"Well," said Alison reflectively, "I must say it all sounds pretty crazy to me. What if your uncle flies up in a rage at your having had the cheek to desecrate the island and tells you to clear out, and dynamites the house? Or your fiancée declines to go into exile? You might as well ask her to spend the winter in a lighthouse."

"I don't think she'd object to that," said Richard cheerfully. "She paints marines and loves the sea, and hates jazz and social bothers. Her family has never been cursed with riches and she's used to doing her bit and has inherited a great deal of colonial pioneer attributes."

"Is she pretty?" Alison asked.

"Until a short time ago," said Richard, "I thought she was the prettiest girl I had ever seen."

Alison felt the hot blood creeping up her throat, but the vagueness of this statement offered no room for resentment. Still she answered coldly:

"You'd better keep on thinking that way if you want to live happily with her here."

"Right," Richard agreed. "That idea has occurred to me. Such a place as this would be a paradise for two people who were enraptured with each other and possibly small others who were later to accrue. But lacking such a condition it would be the reverse of Paradise." He looked around reflectively at the rugged rocks and big spreading trees. "It would be hell," he said, as if to himself.

ALISON glanced at a great stone weighing half a ton perhaps and suspended from the tackle of the derrick, the running end of which ran to a heavy ship's windlass securely seated. "It seems to me like a tremendous undertaking," said she. "Do you really think that you can accomplish it alone?"

"I know I can," said Richard gravely. "I'm a natural builder with a good mechanical training."

"Don't you get lonely?" Alison asked.

"Well, I hadn't thought about it until just now," Richard answered, "but from the pleasure your visit has given me, I think I may have been so without knowing it. But to avoid possible annoyance, I must ask you not to repeat what I have told you. Some busybody might stir up trouble. The position of a squatter is always insecure until once firmly squatted."

"I shan't tell," said Alison, "and I must say I admire your pluck. I'm curious to see if you'll stick it out." She glanced down at a scow moored in the cove and the motor dory tied up to a rough jetty of poles. "How about going and coming in the winter?"

"I learn that the ice never forms here," said Richard. "There is an open patch on the south side where I am growing potatoes and cabbages and spinach and things. I might have a few chickens and perhaps some sheep and a pig or two, and there is a great abundance of fish and clams and lobsters. Once I get my hoist and saw the construction should move more rapidly. Over in the village they think that I'm a nut, and I want them to go on thinking so for awhile at least. I work from dawn to dark, and it is amazing how much a man can accomplish when he keeps at it."

Alison glanced toward the distant shore and saw from the corner of her pier a small flag fluttering. It was the recall signal. So she dipped her paddle and thrust the canoe out into the clear deep water.

"Thanks for coming," said Richard. "Do call again from time to time and try to get permission to land."

The LITTLE WIFE

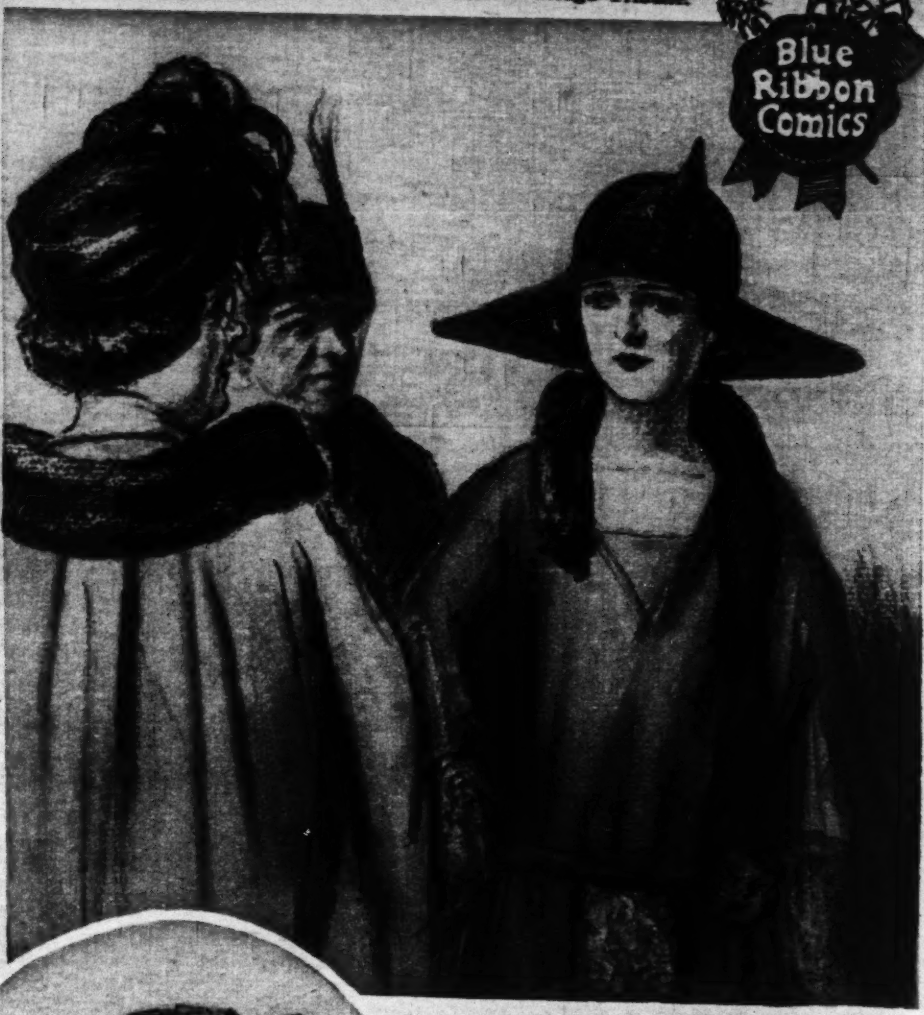
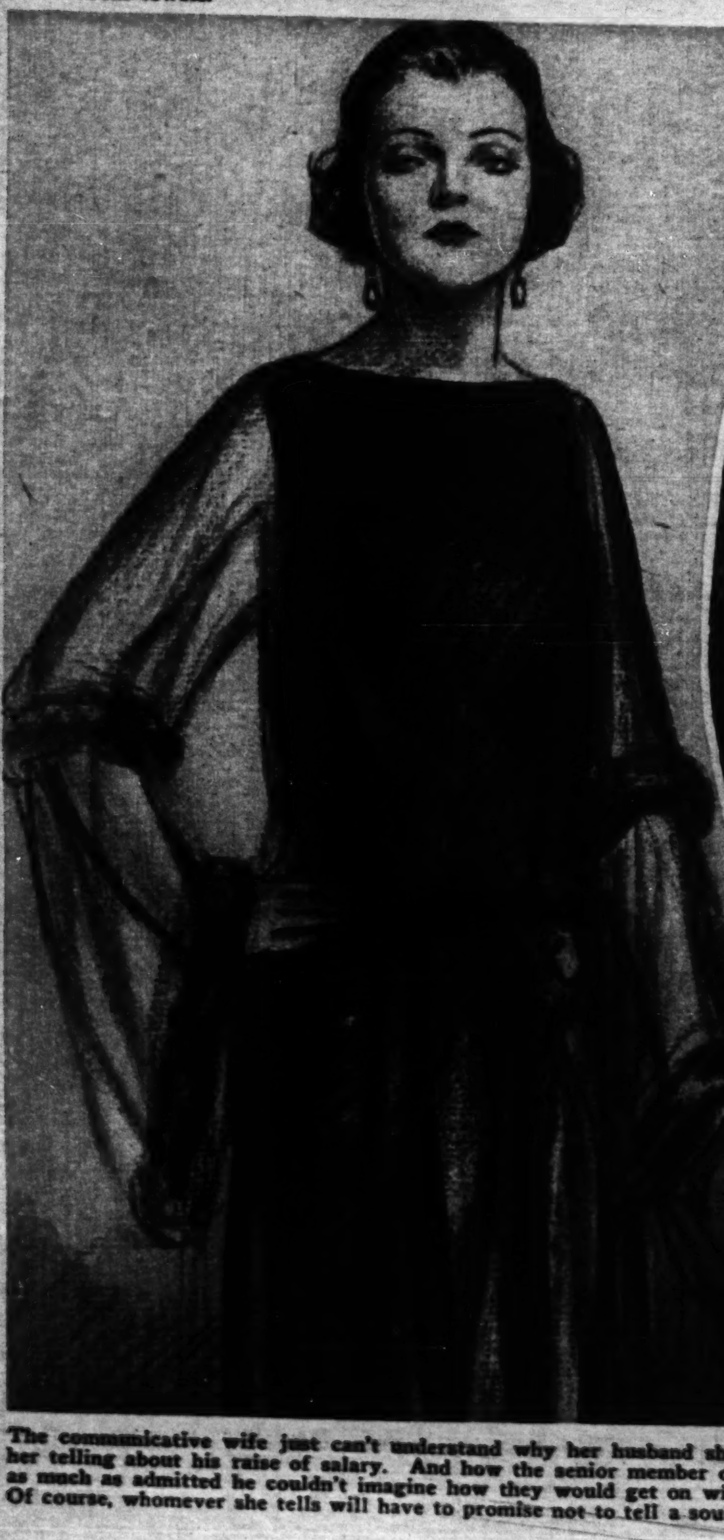
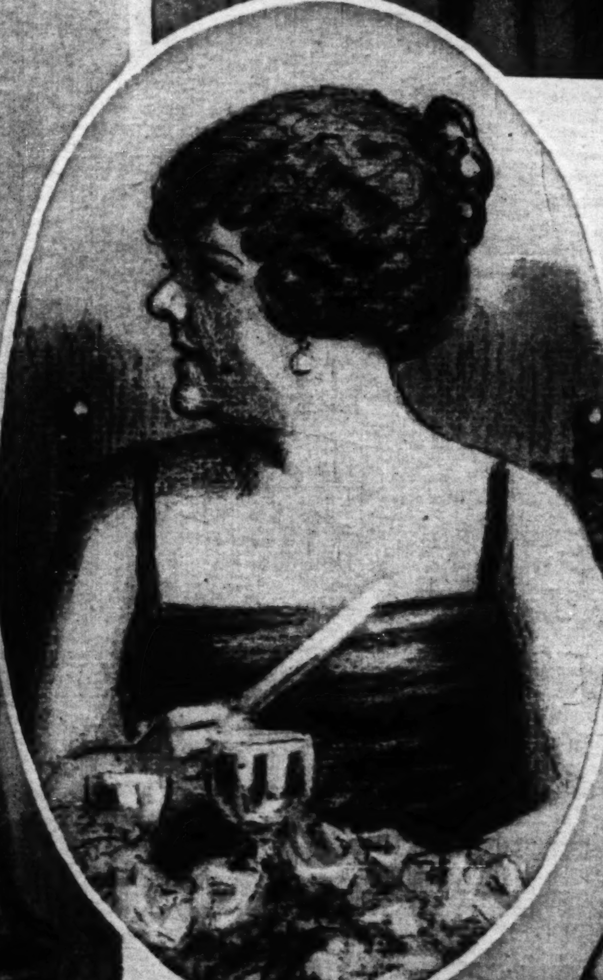
The home builder. The home builder loves her home. Her waking hours are spent sewing on lampshades and monogramming little guest room towels.



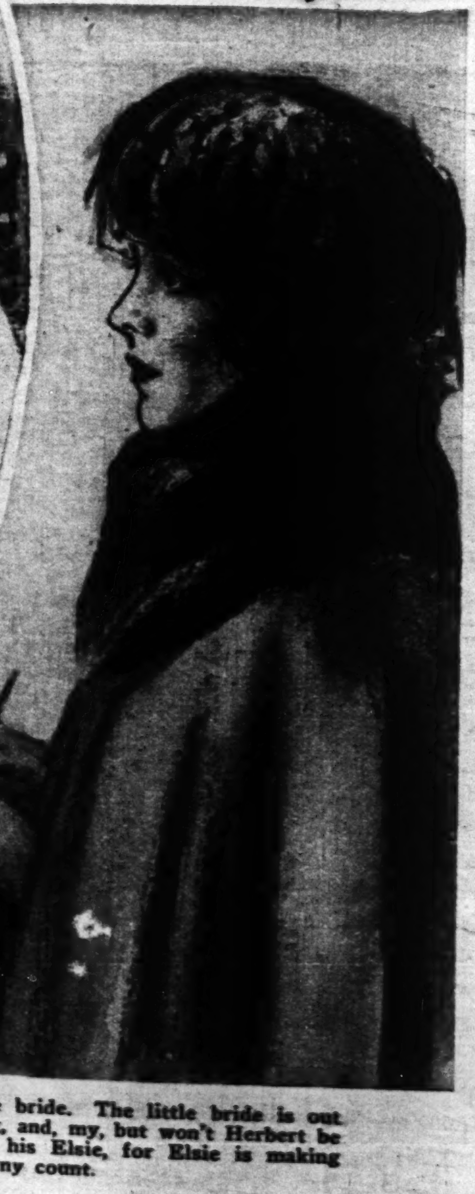
The doctor's wife. The wife of a successful doctor has to be oh, so nice and chatty with everybody. You never can tell who's going to be ill.



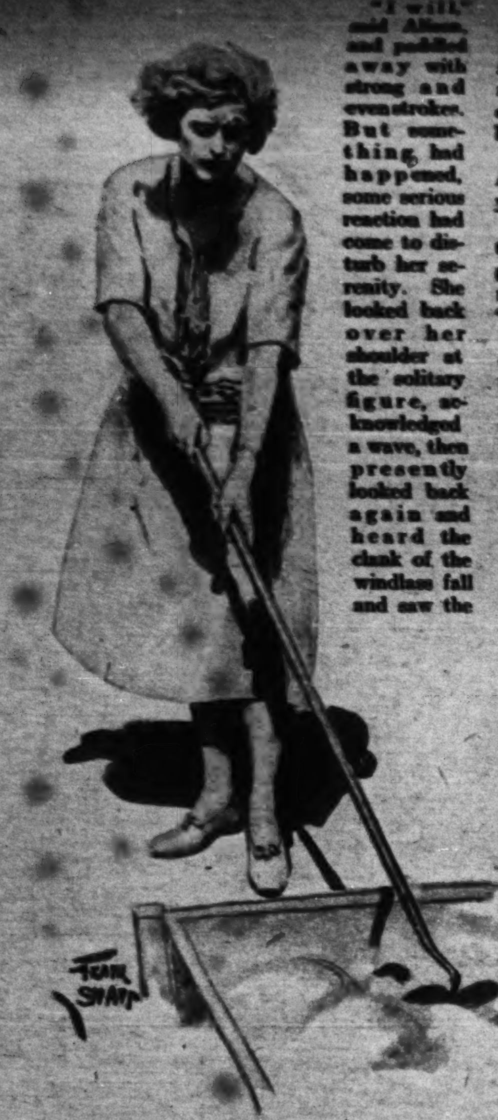
The communicative wife just can't understand why her husband should mind her telling about his raise of salary. And how the senior member of the firm as much as admitted he couldn't imagine how they would get on without Joe. Of course, whomever she tells will have to promise not to tell a soul.



The perfect hostess. Mr. Gestling is so proud of Mrs. Gestling. Doesn't she look nice sitting at the head of the table, entertaining the dinner guests! Mrs. Gestling has been feeling around under the table for the electric buzzer. Pretty soon she will tap the glass goblet with her knife to attract Inger's attention. And then, nothing happening, she will call loudly to Inger in the kitchen.



The little bride. The little bride is out marketing, and, my, but won't Herbert be proud of his Elsie, for Elsie is making every penny count.



Mixing his cement with a hoe.

"I will," said Alison, and paddled away with strong and even strokes. But something had happened, some serious reaction had come to disturb her serenity. She looked back over her shoulder at the solitary figure, acknowledged a wave, then presently looked back again and heard the clank of the windlass fall and saw the big stone mounting slowly to its resting place. Observing the rhythmic swing of the powerful figure at the windlass brake, her expression grew more thoughtful still. In a vague, unformulated way she was thinking that she had found a man, and that as often happens some other girl had found him first. And Alison being very young and a creature of strong instincts was dimly conscious of a hot antagonism for that other girl.

THE astronomer listened abstractedly to Alison's request for permission to land on Mary's island.

"There's a man building a stone house all by himself," she told him frankly, "and I want to see how he goes about it."

"All right, sweet," said the professor, to whom young men had not yet presented themselves as a possible menace to his daughter, whose emerging from infancy he had entirely overlooked. Like most astronomers, his vision was principally focused on infinity, so that a new star might catch his observation where a heavenly body beside him appeared to rotate in its habitual orbit. It did not occur to him that there could be any harm in his little girl watching a man lay stones, and in the present instance he was right enough so far as the young man was concerned. Also Alison pointed out that the site was in plain view from the corner of their porch.

Wherefore Alison's visits to the scene of construction became almost a part of her daily rounds, especially as she discovered her presence was a help rather than a hindrance. She was able to save Richard time by holding the turns of the tackle around a tree and slacking them at his direction, throwing sand upon the sifter or mixing his cement with a hoe and sometimes spreading it in the manner of making mud pies. There was a fascination in watching the speed with which the wall rose and climbed over the pointed frames of the Gothic windows to be held by a keystone, and when a few days later his hoisting motor arrived the work proceeded with astonishing rapidity. But still more fascinating, though less consciously so, was the personality of the builder with his cheerful, light hearted, and whimsical conversations, set as a sort of screen to mask the rugged purposeful persistency beneath.

"I don't see how anybody could ever think you vacillating, Richard," said she. "They wouldn't if they watched you building your house."

"Ah!" said Richard. "That's where I'm artful. I'm in hopes they may change their mind about me when they see the finished edifice. It is a 'by their works ye shall know them' idea."

"But the dreadful part about it is," said Alison, "that when the house is finished you'll have scarcely anything left to go on."

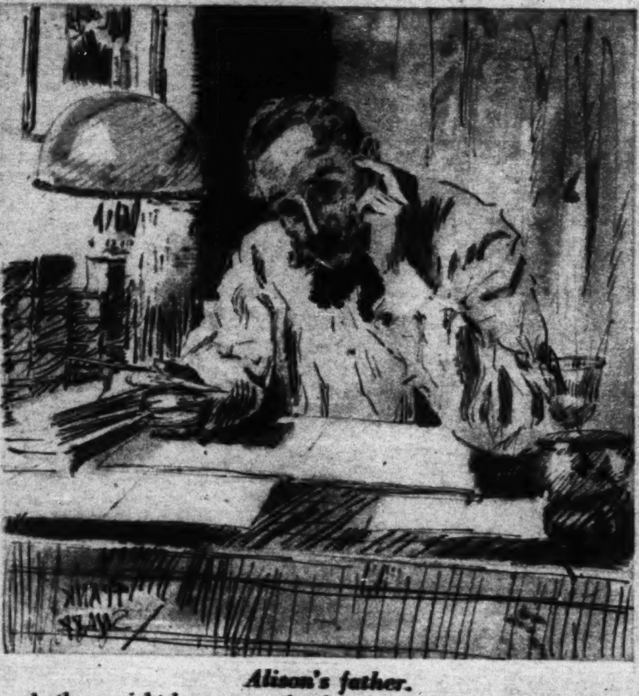
"I'll have a house," said Richard, "and that's more than I had before. But I'm beginning to feel that the house won't be all mine," and he looked at her thoughtfully. "It's getting to be partly yours," he said.

These words crystallized an unformed thought with which Alison's feelings were becoming saturated. She realized with a sudden shock that they were true, that she had begun to regard the house not as Richard's house but in the dual possessive sense. It was their house, and it swept over her suddenly that, like all artisans and their helpers, a part of the soul of the builders was being woven into the fabric, there to endure. And the absurd part of it was that she was helping to build for another woman. The idea was preposterous when concretely faced, almost as absurd as for a female eaves swallow to help plaster a nest with her beak, then flit off to leave it for the joint occupancy of another of her sex and species and the companion builder. Her violet eyes fastened on Richard's gray ones with the level gaze of a nature that never shirked an issue, however unpleasant.

"Yes," she said, "I'm beginning to feel as if it were partly mine. I think I'd better stop helping you. I might consider that I had a builder's lien."

Richard looked at her gloomily. "Perhaps you have," he said. "I'm afraid it's too late, isn't it? You've really helped me an awful lot. I'm not sure but that I might have got sick of it and chucked the job if it hadn't been for you. I'm not so constant as you seem to think."

Alison rose and looked at him with a troubled face. "Now, Richard," said she, "don't dare to hint at such a thing. What I most like about you is the daring of ever planning such a thing as this and the determination to go ahead and finish it no matter what may happen later."



Alison's father.

"Well," said Richard somberly, "you may have got me wrong. Anybody can start most anything, but everybody can't finish what they start."

"You can," said Alison a little breathlessly, "and you must. If you quit it now I don't think I could ever believe in any man again—except my father."

There were almost tears in her voice. She stood beautifully poised, the cement hoe in one hand and the other resting on her hip, of which the boyish contour had altered. She was breathing deeply, her red lips slightly parted and a high flush on her cheeks. To many people there might be nothing particularly emblematic about a young girl in a sailor suit gripping a cement hoe. But to Richard's vision her strong, supple figure became suddenly allegoric as it was outlined against the rough masonry of heavy stones. Up to this time he had thought of her in an elderly fraternal way as any honest mason might think of a child who found amusement and diversion in watching and helping him at his work.

But Alison now appeared suddenly and for the first time in a different and truer accent. He could not immediately define this, but he realized that there was something markedly out of joint in their relations. He needed to think this over. And so as Alison turned slowly and laid aside her hoe he made no effort to detain her.

"I think from now on you'll have to do without me," said she. "I'm getting too fond of this house and the first we know I may be filing some sort of claim to it."

"No fear but that it would be approved," muttered Richard, "but I see what you mean. After all, why should you waste your time helping to build a house for strangers?"

This was clumsily put, but the words acted as a splendid tonic on Alison.

"You're right," said she. "I'll quit the job. Good-by." And turning on her heel she walked down to the beach, got into her canoe, and shoved off. Then, as she dipped her paddle, turned back and called over her shoulder:

"Don't give it up, Richard. You've gone too far for that."

He did not answer, but stood looking after her with shoulders that were slightly bowed, as if for the first time he was feeling the reaction of the weeks of hard manual labor often carried to a point that might have done damage to a physique less powerful.

THEN as she started to paddle away Alison discovered approaching the island a large open launch that she recognized as a boat for hire in the village. It was coming directly toward her so as to pass her close aboard when she rounded the point over which the long, low swells were foaming. Some instinct told Alison that here was a disturbing factor to Richard's whimsical attempt, and she was glad that it would find her uninvolved. This presentiment became confirmed when, with the launch's rapid approach, she discovered a trim girlish figure and that of one more mature disposed on a stern thwart, both evidently staring at the island with curious eyes as they examined the sternly picturesque edifice that had by this time mounted well above the Gothic arches of the lower windows.

The launch passed so close that the considerate boatman slowed his motor to avoid giving the canoe too strong a wash. For the moment the attention of his passengers was directed toward Alison and she, returning it with even greater interest, discovered a very pretty girl smartly dressed and with features rather high and of no doubtful decision by the side of a woman of middle age and angular proportions. They both looked well bred, smartly but quietly dressed, but their faces at that close range showed a sort of puzzled disapproval.

Alison guessed immediately that here were the fiancée of Richard and probably her mother, who had heard some rumor of his occupation and come to find out what it was all about. She was possessed of a passionate eagerness to know what the result of the interview would be. What they would think and say of his fantastic undertaking. The launch swept past, its pilot, whom she knew, giving her a friendly wave, but with no sign of salutation from his fares. There was in fact no reason for there being any except that of friendly custom amongst summer people, even strangers, such as obtains in regions still uncongested.

But there was for Alison an ominous quality about the pair and for some reason she felt strangely glad of it. She would have preferred this girl to disapprove the house rather than that she be delighted with it.

If the professor observed anything hectic in the manner and appearance of his lovely daughter during the next few hours, he made no comment on it.

The chances are that he did not, being deeply immersed in the compiling of his new book on terrestrial magnetism.

Alison's frequent visits to the telescope on the porch passed also unobserved, as they were also unavailing. She could see the partly finished house that presented now the aspect of a ruin where a frame house by reason of its unweathered, unpainted material would have unmistakably proclaimed itself at the same stage of construction.

But the builder and his visitors had no doubt retreated under the trees while the waiting launch was hidden by the rocky point of the cove. At the end of about an hour Alison had seen the boat with its passengers returning to the village and a little later she saw Richard's motor dory emerge from the miniature haven and put off in the same direction, an unusual procedure with him in working hours.

Alison had not intended to visit the island again until just before the return of her father and herself to Washington, still about a month away. But there is one feminine emotion almost as strong as love and hate and often just as insistent for expression, and that is curiosity. The girl found it impossible to go on about her hitherto uncomplicated life until she knew the one focal point resulting from the visit of Richard's callers; whether they approved or disapproved his whimsical yet so tangibly forceful endeavor. She had rather hoped that he might come and tell her himself, though oddly enough he had not as yet so much as made the acquaintance of her father, declining her tentative invitations on the ground that all social recreations must attend the completion of his work.

One thing rather relieved her, this being that she saw him through the telescope hoisting stones again and laying them in place, but this did not answer the burning question. His undertaking might have been approved or disapproved or merely held in probation [illegible] determined by its result. In the second case sheer obstinacy might have held him. For the sake of her peace of mind Alison decided to follow her usual candid procedure and paddle over to ask.

SHE found a different Richard. All of his boyishness appeared to have departed even more abruptly than had her own in the last few weeks. He seemed suddenly to have matured. His face was hard and grim, but it softened at the sight of her and he gave a short bitter laugh.

"I came over to ask you what they thought of it all," said Alison, "but it seems hardly necessary to ask."

"Do I look as sore as that?" he answered.

"Worse," said Alison, "but you seem to be still at work."

"Yes," he answered, striking savagely at a projecting tip of rock with his sledge, then flinging the implement aside. "They seemed a good deal astonished at what I had done and gave me due credit for my obstinacy. But they said that it was absurd for me to count on Uncle Jonathan's making good on his part of the agreement. They said that he would be furious and consider that I had tried to trick him and they gave me the pleasing information that he had returned to America and learned from some gossiping source that I was up to something down here and called to ask if they knew anything about it. That was the first they had heard, so they ran down from Boston to find out what I was doing."

"O, dear!" cried Alison in a curious turmoil of relief and distress. "Of course, they'll tell him."

"Of course," growled Richard, "and then it's an even bet whether the old boy waits for me to finish, then dispossesses me, or whether he wires me to quit work and clear out."

"He may run down himself," said Alison.

Richard shook his head. "I don't think so. He's a hard, bitter old heathen, infidel and rank materialist, but with some vein of sentiment that led him to bury his wife here, consecrate the island as her tomb, then never visit it again. I'm rather afraid I've played a wrong bet. It was an appalling bit of cheek when you come to think of it."

"Perfectly outrageous," Alison agreed.

"You see," said Richard, "I had reckpened. Where had she seen this man before?

"Want any help?"

"Have you got some lemons?"

"A bag full." Lemons! she thought.

"Bring one in. I am going to make some tea."

"Tea——" began Jenny, but stopped, observing that Jeremiah was holding a finger to his lips. "All right."

She brought in the lemon. The stranger was sitting on the lounge, Ling Foo on his knees. He appeared to be in a dream; fondled the puppy's ears and stared dully at the far wall. This stranger was no ordinary guest. Was he the man in Jeremiah's story? If so, what in the world had happened to bring him here? Kennedy; now she remembered—the name on the doorplate. He was the man! Profoundly stirred, Jenny tried not to stare; but the pallor on the handsome face, the inertia of the body, the dullness of the eyes, fascinated her. This was the man who had stuck daggers into Jeremiah's doorjamb, and here were Nancy and Jeremiah fussing over him as though he were some long lost uncle, returned!

"I pass!" said Jenny, inwardly. Here, in Nancy's room, when he ought to be explaining to the police, on an abduction charge!

Then her gaze strayed to Bancroft, thence to Nancy; but their faces offered no key to the riddle. On the contrary, something on Bancroft's face, something on Nancy's, something in the way they were smiling at each other across the tea kettle, made plain to Jenny that there had been a double adventure; for these exchanges were patently adoration. All the hope she had had—and so long as Nancy did not love Jeremiah there would be hope in Jenny's breast—flickered and died. They had not even heard her enter; or if they had, considered the incident so ordinary that it wasn't worthy the turn of the head. Jenny Malloy wasn't wanted here.

Jenny had never heard of the Iron Virgin of Nuremberg; but for all that, she knew that dull iron spikes were being slowly pressed into her heart.

"Catch!" she called, and gaily. Bancroft turned, and Jenny tossed the lemon. "See y' later, Nancy. I'll leave th' door unlocked. But don't wake me up if you c'n help it."

Jenny went out, closing the door softly; not to mention another door, forever. Love! The poor kids; why, they fairly shouted it. Well, it was Nancy and Jeremiah, the two human beings she cared for. They would never know what a fool Jenny Malloy was. The rescue; hero stuff, and Nancy had fallen into Jeremiah's arms, and they were going to be happy ever after. Maybe. Tomorrow she would be all right; but tonight she wasn't properly keyed to listen. When Nancy came in she would pretend to be asleep; no confidences as to how it happened. Jenny was wild to hear all about the man Kennedy; but she didn't care to hear all about Jeremiah at the same time.

She paused before her mirror and offered her reflection a caustic smile, for Jenny had the virtue of sometimes seeing herself as others saw her.

"Y' poor nut!" she said. "You an' that kid in Sunday school are in th' same boat. Our golden text is: Them wot's got gits; an' them wot ain't got gits left."

Jenny undressed and went to bed, which is the one true compensation for all our petty ills. The only real magic in life is the pillow.

KENNEDY began to talk, but to no one in particular, ramblingly.

"He called you Jeremiah, after me. The innocent bystander again. I hated it."

"Why, it's a beautiful name!" said Nancy.

"Then the incident is closed. This used to be the nursery," went on Kennedy, dreamily. "Little dolls and cradles; Mary was just beginning to walk. The window with the stars, her mother used to call that one."

"The window with the stars," repeated Nancy. "What a poor thing I am, for I never saw anything out of that window but dingy yards and sodden clotheslines!"

Bancroft nudged her, and she understood that she was not to interpolate again. The casual tone in which Kennedy recalled the room was a good sign. They must let him run on as he pleased, any whither.

"The old roof; I was born under it. In those days it was quite fashionable down here. Mary, my wife, lived over in Washington place, and I used to go to her parties. I wore a white sailor collar, stiffly starched, and a blue polka dot tie. I met your father there, and we had a fight over Mary in the conservatory. I won. Your father had a bloody nose and I a black eye; but I was atop of him when they pulled us apart. Later, at college, he saved my life while we were in swimming. There's a queer phase in saving people's lives. You're bound to watch over them forever after, as your father watched over me. Banky, old Banky; and he used to call me Chuck; but when he wanted to get a rise out of me he'd call me Jeremiah." He paused. Ling Foo yawned.

The window with the stars! thought Nancy, throwing a glance over her shoulder. Had she ever noticed the stars particularly? She wondered. She could visualize the mother with the little child in her arms, crooning a lullaby and watching the stars grow crisper and brighter as the night deepened. What a handsome young man he must have been. Her heart was wrung again by the thought of what the man had gone through. The torturing memories of this moment; this house in which he had been born and known happiness! The mother and the child, here in this room. The tender ghosts that he must be seeing!

"So he bought the house, to hold it for me? And he did not have time to tell me. Your clerk was wrong. There were no high words. He put out his hands—to fend me off as I thought—and gave a great cry, and fell upon his desk. God should have struck me down also. But your father was fit to die, and I wasn't."

Kennedy let Ling Foo slide to the floor and began to move about, inspecting this object and that, to dike the crowding flood of memories. He was finally drawn to the Jaipur box, as he would have been drawn toward any thing of beauty. His interest was only casual. The box was not valuable as a curio; there were thousands of them in existence. He opened it and saw the gold chain and broken locket end. There were millions of such things. Suddenly his voice shot across the room electrically.

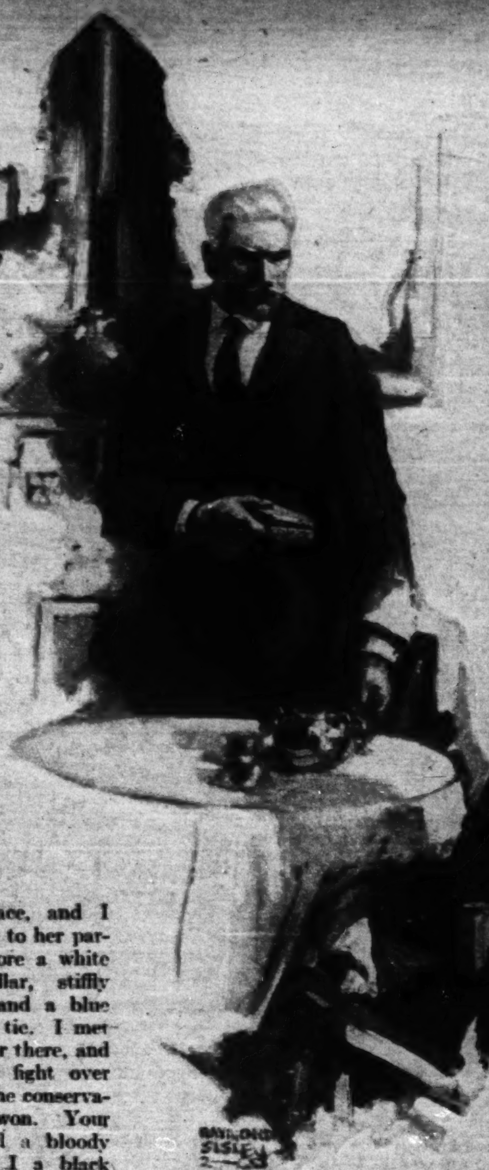
"WHERE did you get this Jaipur box?"

Tableau. Bancroft was stricken dumb by the pregnant suggestion in Kennedy's demand and the vigorous expression of it; while Nancy was hypnotized. The cup she was holding slipped from her hand and tinkled and retinkled as it shattered and rolled upon the door. It seemed to her that thought was suddenly suspended, no longer hers to command.

"Answer me! Whose is it?" Kennedy ceased to wear the aspect of the broken man; he was alive, terrifyingly alive.

"Patience, Mr. Kennedy," warned Bancroft, finding his voice.

"Patience? Well, yes, that is so." Some of the tenseness went out of Kennedy's body. "But I demand to know how this box came to be in the possession of Miss Bowman."



"Answer me! Whose is it?" Kennedy ceased to wear the aspect of a broken man; he was alive, terrifyingly alive.

"Why?" asked Bancroft, speaking for Nancy, who could not have uttered a word just then had her life depended upon it.

"Why? Because the box is mine, mine!"

"Nancy!" cried Bancroft, beginning to understand what was toward. He laid his hand on her arm.

The touch broke the spell. "It was with me when Daddy Bowman found me outside his door," she whispered, because even to whisper took all the strength she had.

"Don't you understand, Nancy?" said Bancroft, the blood thundering in his ears. "Mr. Kennedy is probably your father."

"Probably!" Kennedy let go the old ironic laughter, that came from behind walls or out of caverns. "And I thought God was done with me! My daughter? How do I know? How does she know?" He laughed again.

Nancy heard her voice; it said: "I don't know, I don't know. But if that box is yours, it is also mine."

"On the flange is graven 'C. J. K., Jaipur, 1900.' Mary bought it on our honeymoon, and used it as a jewel box. That is my proof. Where is yours?"

Phantasmagoria. To Bancroft's vision Kennedy became something unreal, terrifying. To judge, to question, to doubt, in a moment like this, when the man ought to be on his knees, grateful to God for this miracle!

"I haven't any," said Nancy. Was she real? Was anybody in this room real? Did the room itself exist?

"Sir," said Bancroft, breaking the pause, "wouldn't you like this lovely girl for a daughter? You quibble! Look at her! She is more lovely than any jewel that ever reposed in that box. What! Do you need lawyers and documents and courtrooms, when by a simple gesture God places her before you, your daughter? I believe in this miracle."

Kennedy's face softened and the mocking fire went out of his eyes. He laid aside the box and approached the bewildered Nancy, taking her face between his hands and conning the features, one by one. In the end he dropped his hands and shook his head.

"No. There is not one sign," he said, his voice less round and steady; "nothing that reminds me of my wife."

"But when she smiles, sir," said Bancroft, to whom there was no longer any puzzlement, "she reminds me of you. She puzzled me that first night. Do you remember when you smiled at the chair? Well, the smile she offered me was identical; but I did not know it then."

This rather staggered Kennedy. He sat down heavily. "You don't understand. It would be easy to put my arms around this girl—for she is lovely—and call her my daughter. But if she weren't; and then, just as my heart was full of her, to have her torn from me? You see, I'm a little suspicious of God, as yet." He hid his face in his hands. "A Jaipur box and a smile! I've got to know!"

"Go to him," whispered Bancroft to Nancy. "In God's name, go to him! He is your father."

She hesitated; but this hesitation was born of fear and unreality. This stranger, but lately a sinister shadow thrown across their lives—her father! He might be or he might not be. A Jaipur box and a smile! Where was that attribute men called instinct? Why didn't it tell her, one way or the other?

"You, too?" cried Bancroft, who could not understand why these two weren't in each other's arms. "Don't you want him?"

"But does he want me?"

"Go and find out."

Suddenly the confusion went out of her, and the weakness, and she comprehended what fate intended her to do. There was no blinding revelation, no sudden born love; but there was pity, and out of this pity grew a hunger and a yearning. No one else would ever claim the Jaipur box. This man, whom misfortune had hammered into brass, was probably her father, but never would either of them be able to prove it. The box might not be hers; she might have been abducted from another house. Another house! She had been born in this house—perhaps. She had played with dolls in this room, perhaps. Her mother had sung lullabys to her, by the window with the stars—perhaps. Always and ever perhaps! This man's god and hers were irony. She went over to Kennedy and knelt, with the sensation of going through a rehearsal, of entering into a theatricality.

"We don't know," she began, "and we shall never know, actually. But what other chance have you of finding your daughter? What other chance have I of finding my father? The box was found with me outside a good man's door. Abandoned by thieves, who were afraid to go on with their crime, for some reason. But did I come from the same house as the box? Only God can answer that question; and He never will. Perhaps in the days to come you may discover that I possess some little habits that were my mother's—your Mary's—since there is nothing in my face that stirs you. If I accept you as my father I shall never accept any other man. Do you want me?"

"Now I understand how Mary died. My God, always chance medley, chance medley! Careless thieves, taking her jewel box and her baby!"

"Do you want me?" repeated Nancy, forcing his hands from his eyes.

The music of her voice, her loveliness, the soft velvet of her eye. Suddenly Kennedy took her into his arms, crushing her into breathlessness. The miracle was revealed to them both in that embrace. Never any more doubt, wonder, question: father and daughter so long as life existed. Nancy knew now: her name was Mary Kennedy, and she had this minute come home. As for Kennedy, the marrow in his bones grew warm, and he knew that there was no more emptiness within him, but brimming life.

"Forgive me! I have doubted everything on earth, and God beside! My Mary's girl! To hold something sweet and living in these empty arms once more!"

With kindling eye Bancroft approached. This particular branch of The Innocent Bystanders, Unlimited, had liquidated its affairs; but the Great Adventure company would go on forever.

Presently Nancy's free arm reached out across her father's shoulder, toward Bancroft, who understood by this gesture that he, too, had come home.

oned a little on the soft stratum being washed out of him by the flight of time, just as it gets washed out of these rocks. But perhaps he's more oak than adamant and instead of getting petrified he may have got softer still in that one tender spot. If so, then there may be a picturesque ruin here to commemorate the vanity of human presumption."

"And all of this terrific work for nothing," Alison almost sobbed. "Why couldn't they have let you alone at any rate. It would have been better to have finished even if dispossessed afterward than to be driven off and leave the poor old house the way it stands."

"Why, that's precisely the way I feel about it," Richard answered. "I'd rather like for once in my life to finish something that I'd started even if the result wasn't a brilliant success so far as my efforts were concerned."

"Exactly," cried Alison with glowing eyes. "And perhaps you can. It's now three days since they were here, and it seems to me that since your uncle is in New York, you would have heard from him by this time if he meant to drive you away."

"That's what I think," said Richard, "but the indecision makes it pretty hard to carry on. However, I intend to stick until I know. It's like manning the pumps and heaving until you drop with the odds against you of ever reaching port. Anyhow, you can't tell much about that old bird. I played pretty stiff odds when I tackled this, but I played a hunch and, since my sober judgment never brought me much, I thought this might."

"HOW about your fiancée?" Alison could not help but ask.

Richard's face hardened again. "Well, let's say that our relations are slightly strained," said he.

Alison, closely watching his face, divined something that he was holding back. Perhaps it was purely feminine intuition, or perhaps something in the slumbrous burning of his eyes.

"Was it about the place, or was it—about the undertaking itself?" she asked with her characteristic directness; "or was it some gossip about my having been seen helping you here?"

Richard did not hesitate. "The latter," he said. "It was all my fault. I shouldn't have let you."

"O dear," cried Alison, "then she's jealous."

"Call it that," said Richard. "I told her that you were a little girl, the daughter of the distinguished astronomer who lived across on the mainland, and in your idle moments you often paddled over to see how I was getting on. But the trouble was that she had got a good close-up of you in the canoe, so that my 'little girl' description met with a silvery laugh. A bell scooped from a block of ice could not have been more coldly musical. You see, Alison, the trouble was that I'd always thought of you as the little girl that I'd described until you said good-by to me the other day. So my own words may have lacked conviction."

"Has she broken off with you?" Alison murmured.

"Not yet," said Richard. "She's waiting to see which way Uncle Jonathan jumps."

Alison turned this in her mind without comment. Then said, "Somehow I have hopes for Uncle Jonathan."

"So has my beautiful fiancee," Richard said dryly, "and so have I, in spite of the sneering whispers of old man Gloom who has sat here with me on the job since you quit. But the devil of it is that, finished or unfinished, I seem to have lost my interest in this castle by the sea. It is very far from Spain."

Alison cupped her resolute chin in the hollow of her hands and stared at him fixedly.

"Still you're going on with it," said she.

"Yes, I'm going on with it, but there's a momentary check for lack of cement. I was just about to start over with my scow to see if what I ordered had been left by the last boat when you came."

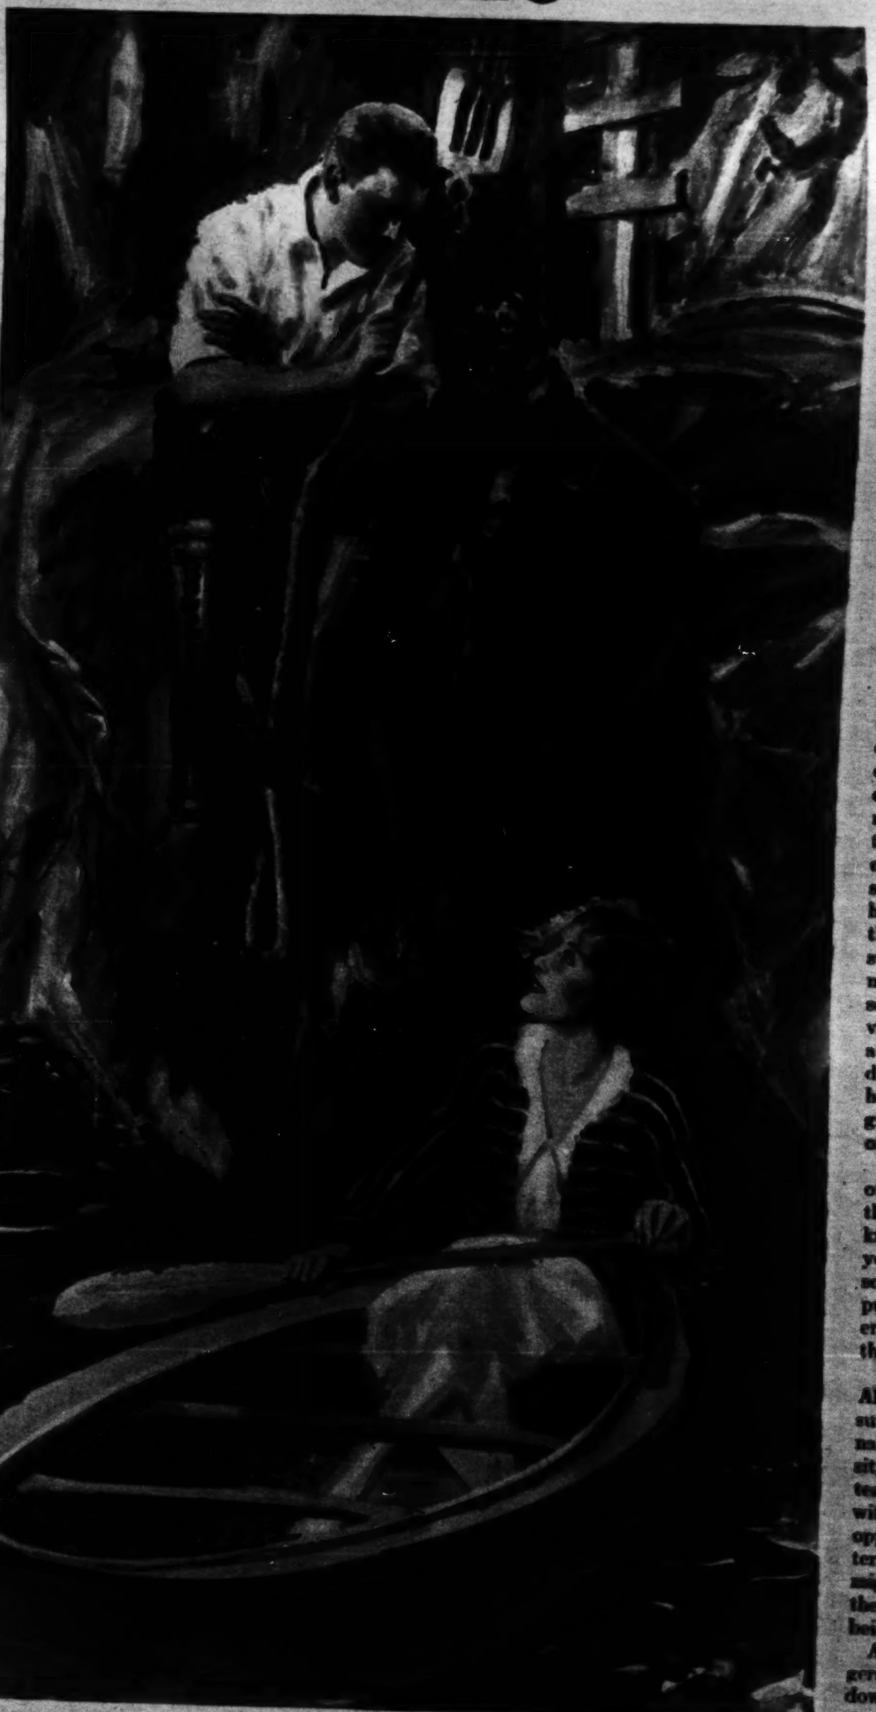
"It's there," said Alison. "I saw it on the wharf last night. You'd better go before it begins to get dark."

Richard decided to follow this suggestion. Alison watched him put off in the dory with the barge in tow, then, rather than return to a long evening with a book while her father worked in his study, walked over to the bold promontory on which was placed the cairn and cross. She was in a soft but melancholy mood and one requiring solitude and meditation. She seated herself in a little niche at the foot of the cairn, and scarcely had she done so when her eye was caught by a white speck far out in the mouth of the estuary, and evidently moving in from the open sea. Alison did not notice this particularly until presently, looking again, she was surprised to see from the lessened distance how rapidly it was approaching and now revealed as a trim white sea going speed launch or, rather, yacht of some 60 feet or more. It glowed a rosy white in the reflected rays of the setting sun, its bright work sparkling in points of flame. A band of white across its bows and long oily undulations in its wake.

Alison was admiring it abstractedly when suddenly her heart gave a suffocating leap, for the fast little cruiser rounded a buoy, then headed directly for Mary's island as though fixing its course by the granite cross at the foot of which she sat. And in that second the radio of her magnetic mood told Alison that here could be none other than Uncle Jonathan, retired millionaire, contractor, and builder of great dams and bridges, come to shatter to its solid foundation the little home at which she and Richard had toiled so patiently.

But had he really come to shatter it? Could any man, however much a crank, be so mean as to crush out the nascent life of that prospective island home because he had endowed it in perpetuity to the memory and mortal remains of the wife of his youth? What harm, what desecration, could be done to the pitiful bones immured in the cairn against the rough side of which she rested, by the presence on the island of life—pulsating and glowing and, as was to be hoped and trusted—loving? How could love hurt or profane the living or dead? And then it flashed into her mind that this saving grace, the quality of love, was by no means assured. There had been nothing loverlike in Richard's curt comments on the visit of his fiancee and their brief meeting after weeks of separation. Alison's own glimpse of her face had shown that her errand was to blame and not to praise, and while she might have been obliged to voice some words of credit for the extraordinary soundness and character of Richard's enormous efforts, she had still held her decision in abeyance.

The trim little yacht ran close into the cove, stopped, reversed, and lay motionless. Two sailors in snowy white dropped a cedar gig over the side and Alison saw a tall, gaunt figure in blue serge step down into it.



"Well," said Alison, "it all sounds pretty crazy to me."

She drew back out of sight behind the cairn. It struck her as a treacherous act of fate that this embittered old man should have come just at this moment of tender melancholy in the waning day and on one of Richard's rare absences from the island. Also when the work of construction was at its most uncouth stage. Roofless and with gaping windows and the four heavy walls rising in a litter of broken stone in a manner to suggest a ruin that had suffered bombardment. If only it could have been in the morning to find Richard engaged upon his Herculean task, resolute, cheerful, and admirable, the impression must have been far different.

PEEPING from behind the cairn, Alison saw Uncle Jonathan step out of the boat and mount the ladder of the temporary jetty. His harsh voice reached her through the perfect stillness.

"Go back alongside and come when I signal," and as the boat pulled off he started up the sloping rocks toward the rough walls that seemed to rise in unprotected but defiant fashion, passed round the corner of them, and was hid from Alison's view.

For several minutes Alison sat there trying to make up her mind what she had better do. She did not believe that he would discover her canoe left in a niche of the cliffs fringed with dwarfed spruces. It occurred to Alison that it would be an added misfortune were he to discover her presence there, as this must destroy the impression of Richard's working in lonely solitude, consigning himself to a voluntary exile until his bold purpose might be achieved. Worse than that, there was no telling what construction a harsh and embittered old man might put on her being there at all. Alison's sense of proportion told her that the mental visualization of a young man working day after day companionless presented quite a different picture to that of one cheered at his labor by the visits of a young and pretty girl. The latter seemed to rob the situation of much that was onerous.

She decided that she had better keep out of sight. The chances were, she thought, that since Uncle Jonathan had never been known to visit the last resting place of his young wife he would not be inclined to do so now and that he had come for the sole purpose of denouncing his nephew for trickery and presumption and to expel him from the island with anger and abuse.

But as this conclusion became fixed in Alison's mind, the impulse to dispute it surged up within her. The girl's combative nature, hitherto latent for lack of the necessity for its expression, now flamed its protest at Richard's being tried and condemned without even so much as a hearing or any opportunity to defend his position. She determined to defend it for him come what might of it. Her pride forbade her cringing there behind the cairn while her friend was being silently condemned.

Alison drew a deep breath, ran her fingers through her thick, lustrous hair, drew down her blouse, then sprang up and stepped out from behind the cairn to confront a grim, craggy figure whose presence there was entirely outside her calculations. Evidently Uncle Jonathan had passed round the house and made his way directly to the cairn, his rubber shod deck shoes making no sound upon the age worn rampart of quartz and granite.

Alison stifled a little gasp. She found herself facing a good deal such a personality as Richard's brief descriptions of his uncle had led her to expect, except that Uncle Jonathan looked younger and of more massive frame and physiognomy than she had visualized. He was almost a giant in fact, with thick, grizzled hair that curled about his ears, square jawed with high prominent cheekbones and a predatory nose. He made a rather terrifying figure for a young and beautiful girl to confront in so desolate a place. For some reason Alison had thought of him as a carping, hectoring, eccentric semi-invalid perhaps and of high nervous irritability. But now as she surveyed him it flashed across her mind that if his immaculate costume were changed for flaming blouse and silver buckled breeches and a red bandana to replace the broad brimmed panama of finest texture, he might have reproduced the perfect image of Sir Henry Morgan or Captain Kirby or any other gory pirate.

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

Home!

NANCY was full of pity and tenderness as Jerry told Kennedy's story; she would always be so for the unfortunate. To her, as to Bancroft, there was nothing repellent in the fact that Kennedy had killed a man and had spent years in prison for the deed. Tortured by the stupendousness of the calamity which had befallen him, he was not to be held strictly accountable for his immediate acts.

"We ought not to leave him alone tonight, Jerry. He might——"

"I am taking him home with us."

"The house we live in, that was once his; how dreadful!"

"Will you marry me, Nancy?"

"I rather expect to, after having put my arms around your neck and invited you to kiss me."

Find the woman who does not, even in the great moment, rise superior over the man; who does not first recover poise and wit! With man it is a stunning incident in life; he is astounded at his temerity, astonished at his success. With a woman it is an inevitable sequence, bound to happen sooner or later; so she is more or less prepared. But for all that, it seemed to Nancy that her heart was filled with little singing birds. She was going to belong.

"But we'll have to wait a little while, Jerry. Mr. Mannheim has been very kind to me, and I can't leave him until May, when my contract expires. And so I'm going to follow the footsteps of the Follies girls—marry a millionaire!"

"I didn't want any false friends, Nancy. I'll wait. You shall go to Italy, and study all you want to."

"No, Jerry. Never any more of that nonsense. I want a home—that old house of yours in the village, the room with all those beautiful books and vases your father saved for his friend. I want to read that splendid letter. May I?"

"The moment we return."

"Have him in my room first. I'll get some tea for him. I'll play and sing from the opera; anything to keep his mind off himself. The poor unhappy man, through no fault of his own! But bear with me, Jerry, in the days to come. I'm often moody and crotchety. I am a foundling; I don't know who my people are; and never will; and that makes me want to weep for this man who has lost everything on earth. I have brooded over my own story too much. Remember Thanksgiving? That night I told Mr. Craig I'd marry him; and then I backed out. I told him that all I wanted was his money. I hurt him, who had been kind to me. That's the kind of a girl I am. I'm not half as good as Jenny. When did you learn that you loved me?" For sooner or later this question has to be asked.

In the daylight he would have had to lie, invent; but in the dark, how easy it was to tell the truth! "It will sound idiotic; maybe it is; but I loved you the night I kissed Jenny."

"Well, of all——"

"The poor devil!"

"What!—Jenny?"

"No, no; Craig."

"I like the way you take it, Jerry. It was hard to confess, even in the dark. But it's all I have to confess."

The man downstairs could wait; everything could wait; this hour would never be repeated. The crest of such a wave hangs but for a little; then lurches back to ordinary levels.

"The celebrated Nancy Bowman!" he said.

"Nonsense! I am like Koko in 'The Mikado.'

Wafted by a favoring gale,
  As sometimes one is in trances,
To a height that few can scale
  Save by long and weary dances.

There again, I am queer. I should be mad with joy; and I hate the whole business. What fun—talking in the dark like this!"

He began to wonder, and to worry a little, too. All this in the dark. What would be their sensations when they faced each other in the light? Wouldn't she become critical? Wouldn't she observe flaws in him she could not now discern?

"What is the matter?" she asked, as though his hand had translated his thought.

"Nothing."

"Tell me; what is it?"

"You won't change your mind in the light?"

"Poor boy! Of course not. I love you, Jerry; and I didn't love Mr. Craig. I wanted to get away from dreary back yards and clothes lines and the theater. I'll go with Jenny, and Mr. Kennedy may have my room. Yours is rather forlorn. That doorplate! And you must have believed your father a hypocrite! But I must read that letter. He didn't have anything to do with those scoundrels in the alley. He told me so. What a dear, lovable boy you are! Would you like to kiss me again? It's still quite dark."

It was not two flights of stairs that he led her down. He stepped from mountain peak to mountain peak, with all the clear winds of earth and sea blowing into his face. Nancy loved him!

THE taxicab was at the curb, Kennedy waiting patiently inside.

"I'll have to put out the lights and lock up," he said. "It's a house I bought recently."

"Give me the key," said Bancroft, who was still a little doubtful. "I'll take care of everything."

"Very well," Kennedy agreed. Alone with Nancy he said: "I'm sorry for my roughness to you. Will you forgive me?"

"To be sure I will. Jerry told me everything."

"He will always tell you everything," said Kennedy; "for he is the one human being I have ever known who has nothing to conceal. Never permit any blemish to fall upon the mirror of his heart. You love him?"

"Yes." It was strange; but the question did not embarrass her.

"I am glad. For some time I have known that he loved you. A little while gone I thought of dying; but no. The boy wants me, he says. I am bewildered. For years there has been in my heart nothing but venom; and now it is empty, of everything. I can't hate and I can't love. I have emerged from my madness; but I am nothing. Perhaps you and the boy——"

"We will try with all our hearts."

"He told you that I have been in prison, that I have killed a man?"

"Yes. But you did not mean to. You were mad with grief; you weren't accountable for what you did. You wouldn't have gone to prison at all if you had told everything. Why did you keep silent?"

"I was mad, quite mad, and did not know it. I had only one idea: to get my hands around Silas Bancroft's throat. I suddenly became possessed of a profound patience, an infernal cunning. Nobody knew me. I wore a beard. I was going to play a trick on Mary, my wife. The court had to appoint a lawyer to defend me, which he could not do because I offered him no help. My sullen attitude impressed the jury unfavorably. I expected the sentence in the second degree; but they found me guilty in the first. I had struck the victim in anger. I was stupified for a few days. Fourteen years among the dregs! And all the while I was quite mad. Well, perhaps God will let me be now."

The quiet despair of the tone wrung Nancy's heart. "Please! You mustn't brood. There will be tomorrow."

"Ay, for you two; but for me there never will be anything but yesterday. I am old and empty. But, no more; here comes the boy."

They heard Bancroft give directions to the taxi driver.

"To sleep under the old roof again! I wonder," mused Kennedy. "Ghosts everywhere; ghosts of faces, of music, and laughter. Perhaps they will be kindly ghosts."

BANCROFT got in, making Nancy sit between. He was transcendentally happy, and he had to express aloud this happiness to keep his body from flying up through the roof of the taxi and vanishing into the ether. He said so. But underneath his bubbling nonsense was a serious purpose. For a long time to come Kennedy would brood over the death of Silas Bancroft. He would be eternally seeing Silas reach out toward him and die, himself a passive murderer. He had shocked Silas Bancroft to death; but any one of a thousand surprises would have shocked Silas Bancroft to death. The point was to make Kennedy accept this fact. Kennedy had brooded himself into one madness; he might easily brood himself into another—suicidal. Besides, he would now be drawing comparisons—Bancroft's loyalty as against his own, and finding his a flabby thing indeed. So young Bancroft was determined to keep by the man. If he saw that the son rejected the idea that murder had been done, eventually Kennedy might be made to do so.

Bancroft analyzed his thoughts carefully and found that there was no emotion other than profound pity for the man his father had so loved. The hell through which the man had passed! A weak man might have whimpered and gone on; but a strong man, vital in brain and body! Something had twisted in Kennedy's brain, under the terrific impact of his misfortunes, and only tonight had this kink straightened out. The letter had said that there were high and worthy qualities to love in this man; and these might be uncovered and their luster renewed by the process of time. So then, to keep close by, until Kennedy had got some perspectives. What a companion he would be! The Great Adventure company!

"Will you be wanting those books, sir?" he asked.

"No. They are yours. They mean a good deal more to you now than they do to me. But what became of your father's things?"

"Don't you remember? He said in the letter that he had to sell everything to make a new start."

"A new start."

There was a lull. Bancroft searched for Nancy's hand and found it. Then he fell to describing the adventure of the ambassador's suite, of his majestic sensations, of renting his first dress suit, of discovering Nancy's photograph, all interpolated by shrewd commentaries.

Strange to state, Kennedy found this chatter amusing. The boy had the gift of describing things as they were, of tearing off the motley and revealing the bones, but without the bitterness of the matured philosopher. Kennedy felt himself amused; and from this basis a thought began to work outward. If the boy could amuse him in this black hour, it might be that contact with the youngster would stir into life again all those attributes so long atrophied for want of usage. Of course, this inconsequent chatter was uttered purposely to divert a brooding mind; but the point was, the ruse succeeded. Kennedy found himself amused.

"Jerry," said Nancy, "what's Jeremiah mean?"

"Hanged if I know."

"It means the Lord's exalted—in his case," said Kennedy. "What it means in my case, only God knows."

"Nancy, what am I going to do? My father's letter—which is really the true will—orders that I pay over to Mr. Kennedy half of what I have, and he refuses it."

"And always will. I am no longer troubled by an obsession; I am troubled only by regret. When I came out of prison it was too late to pick up the truth; and such was the power of my obsession I shouldn't have recognized the truth had I seen it. A little patience in the beginning, and Silas and I might have worked together to retrieve our fortunes. But no. Battle, murder, and sudden death! But always remember, I went to prison for an act of my own. We shall not relate it to the original catastrophe."

"Sir, they are inseparable. On board the ship, before you put in, you were tremendously happy. You were, according to the market reports, a rich man; the years of bondage were over. From the peak of happiness to the bottom of despair, all in an hour or two, is more than any human brain can stand. Something became twisted in your poor head and only this night readjusted itself."

"But what confuses me is your attitude. You should hold me in horror."

"But there is always my father's letter, sir; his will that I should find you and help you if I could. That was enough for me. Besides, you were coming back on your own. Your original notion was to do away with me; in the end you demanded only what you considered legally yours. The past was coming back. You began, perhaps subconsciously, to see my father in me, when you were young. After all—ran your thought—I was guilty of nothing. So you would take what you considered yours, and vanish. The Great Adventure company! Don't you see, sir, that I am greatly indebted to you? You have indirectly given me more than I ever dreamed of having. If you had not lured me out of it I might still be in that village; whereas I came to the great city and found adventure and love."

NANCY, with passionate tenderness, pressed his hand. It came to her that she would always be two things in this boy's life—his mother and his sweetheart.

"Innocent bystanders," mused Kennedy.

"All of us, every human being that lives, passively or actively, innocent bystanders, paying the price of another man's roguery, half the time a man we never heard of."

"Do with me as you will," said Kennedy, in complete surrender. "The Shadow was right."

"The Shadow?"

"For several days you were under constant surveillance. He warned me that I was underestimating you. And I told him not to think, thinking being my part. He was right. What a wild night that was! I stood outside your window, watching you, weighing you."

"And I walked five miles through that storm," broke in Nancy; "through the mud and the rain, to Jerry's door."

"For a dog!"

"The old roof," said Kennedy. "I wonder what will happen to me?"

The taxicab came to a halt.

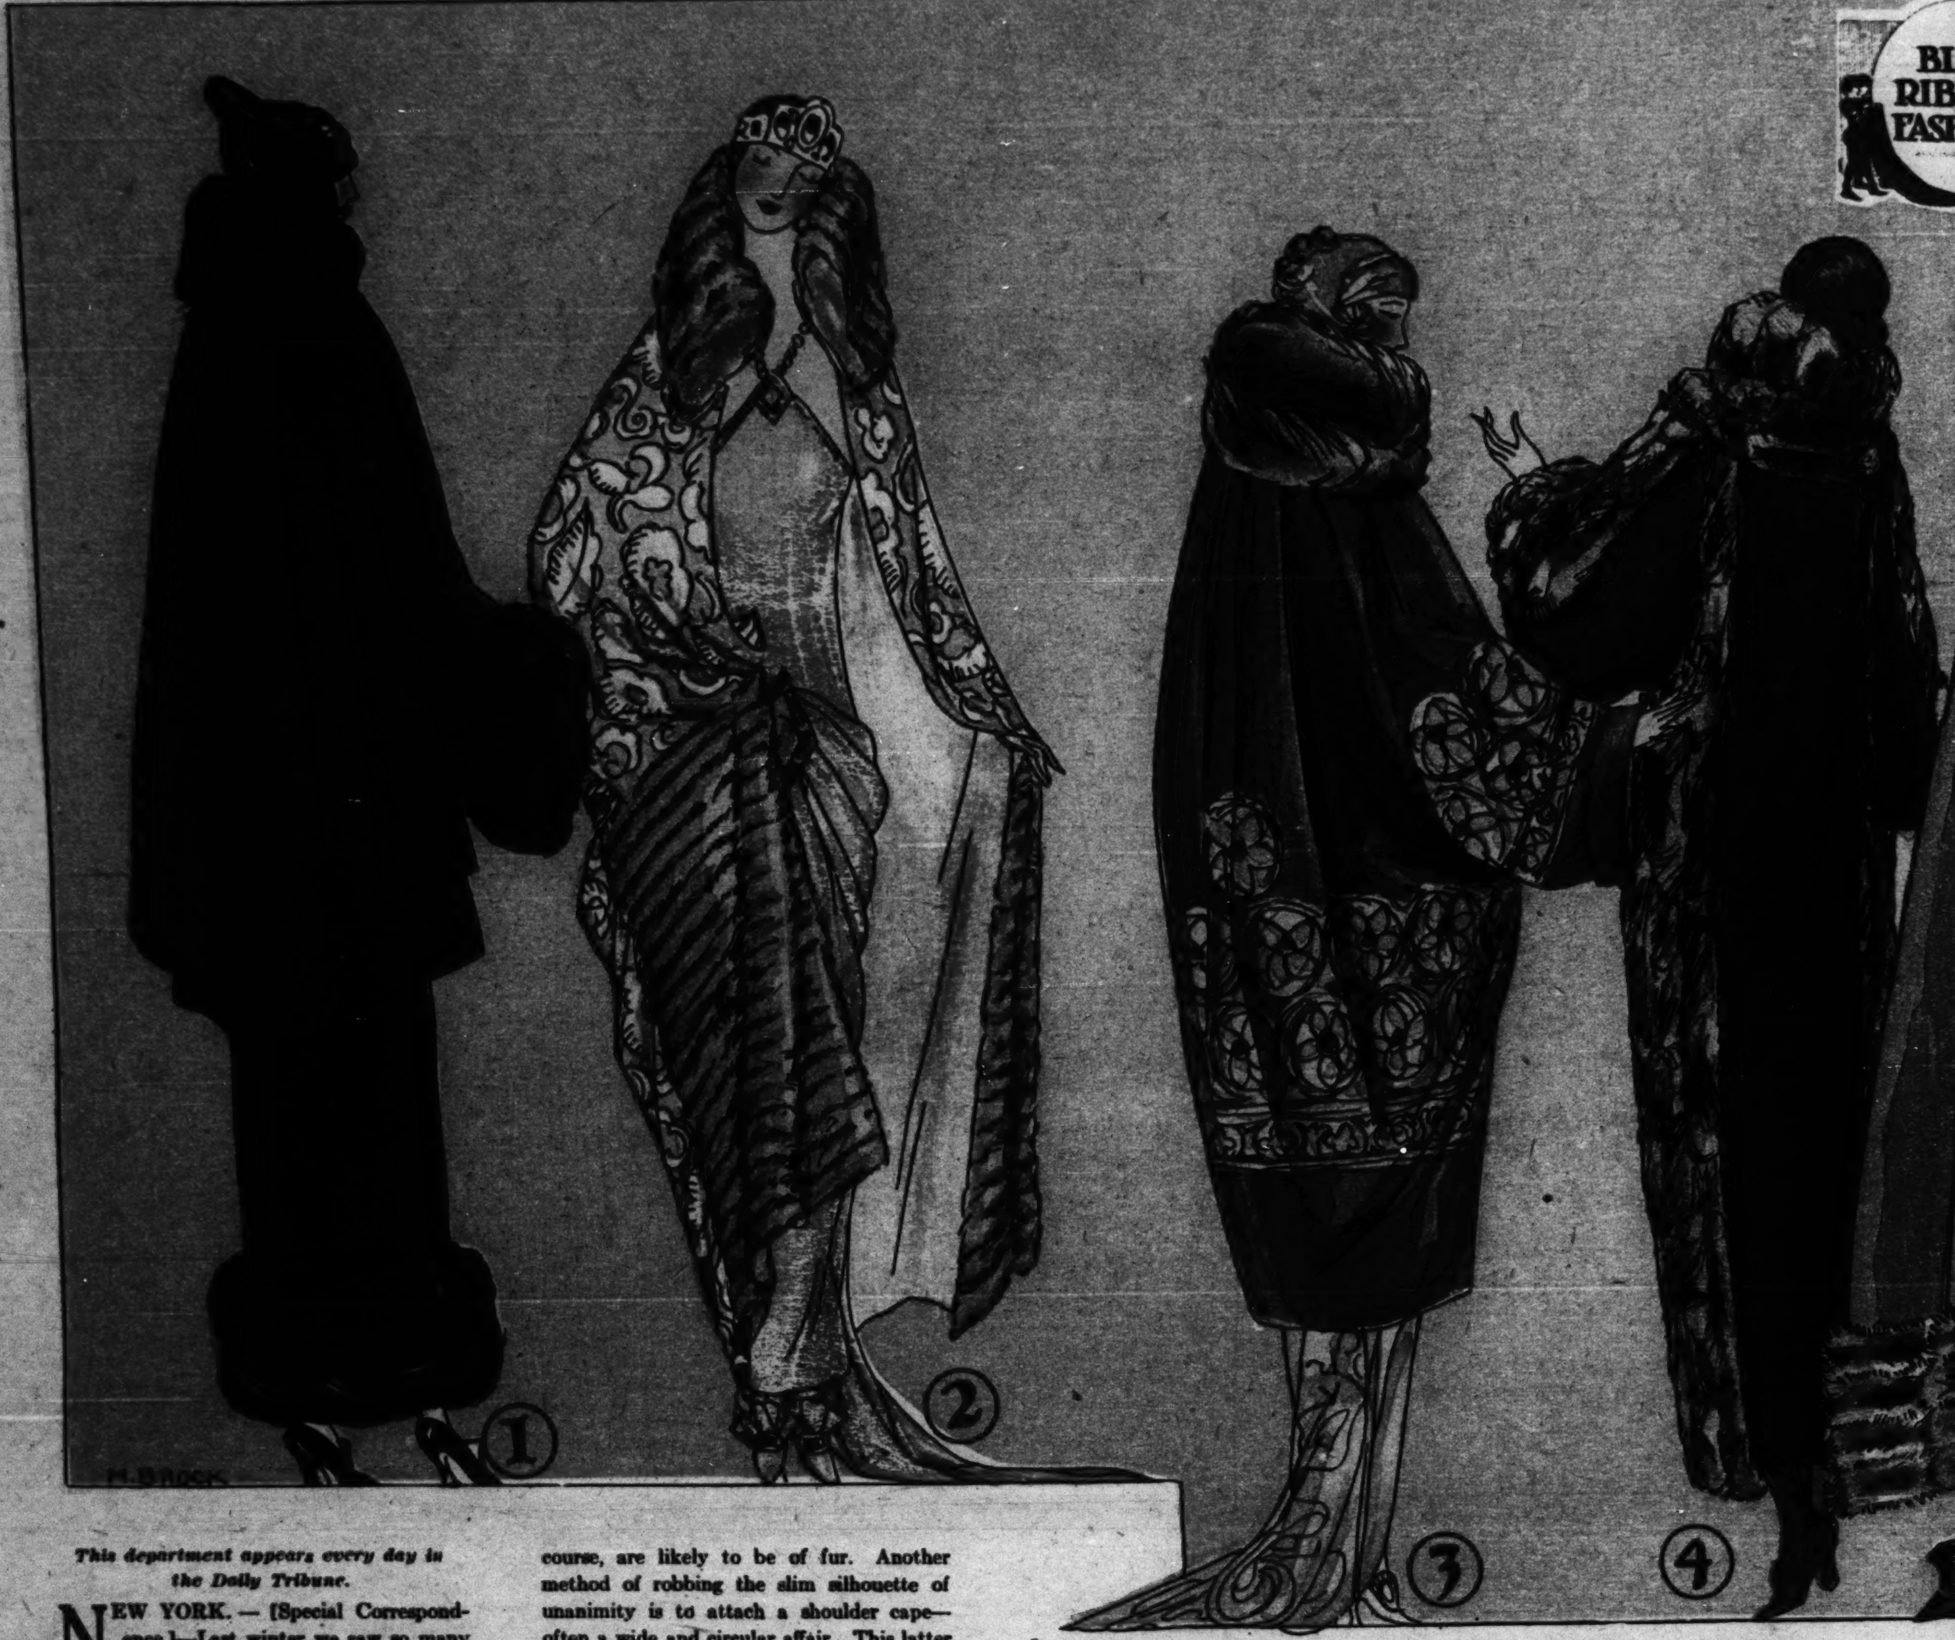
Jenny heard their entrance and subsequent mounting of the stairs, and guessed at their identity. She rushed into the hall. Jeremiah's clothes were considerably disordered and streaked with dust, and Nancy's, too, her hat at a precarious angle; otherwise there was nothing to suggest a hazardous adventure in the night. Jenny, however, was somewhat puzzled over the pale, handsome stranger, who apparently took but little note of his surroundings, and stood waiting for either Nancy or Jeremiah to direct him. What was he doing in the picture? She embraced Nancy.

"Have they hurt y', kid? Are y' all right?"

"We're all right, Jenny, but a little tired," said Nancy. "Will you let me share your bed tonight? This is Mr. Kennedy, who once owned this house. He is going to take my room for the night."

Jenny bobbed her head; but Kennedy did not seem aware that an introduction had been made. A thousand questions bubbled into her throat, but Jenny did not voice one of them, comprehending that at this moment questions were not in order and that some extraordinary event had hap-

Brilliant Embroidery, Vivid Colors and Much Fur M



This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—Last winter we saw so many fabric coats with a solid front of fur that we commenced to believe we should never encounter again a real open face model. One might have thought that after such excessive use of peltry our mood would have exhausted itself. Not so. This winter the passion for fabric wraps which are not only trimmed but partially composed of fur is more evident than ever.

Often your long coat of today is really a fifty-fifty proposition. For the foundation of velvet or silk or pile fabric is so overgrown with fur that one has just as much license to call it a fur garment trimmed with cloth as by the vice versa term. The sleeves and the panels may be achieved of pelt. Fur capes attached to fabric coats are a frequent manifestation and we meet often nowadays an upper section so heavily crusted with fur that it produces the effect of solidity.

The handsome afternoon coat of this winter usually espouses the cause of the narrow silhouette. But, as is the case with frocks, it frequently repents of this conviction by adding circular side panels. These, of course, are likely to be of fur. Another method of robbing the slim silhouette of unanimity is to attach a shoulder cape—often a wide and circular affair. This latter treatment is the one chosen in the beautiful afternoon coat of gray velours shown at the extreme left. Here the cape might plausibly be of the same blue fox which forms the high collar and the cuffs. However, it is abstemious and achieves this detail with the velours. A charming model for the slim woman—as are, indeed, all the be-caped models—but the more billowy sister should stick to the perfectly straight silhouette.

One of the high notes in our winter fashion theme is the use of narrow strips of ermine. This snowy pelt of kings and queens often bands the elegant afternoon frock of chiffon velvet, and it is also a favorite resource in the season's millinery. Ermine makes its appearance in jacquette form, too, and a delightful little coat of tailless variety accompanies an afternoon frock of red velvet shown by one of our most fashionable shops.

On the evening wraps ermine enjoys of course a permanent address. I show it on the second model here applied at the sides of a gorgeous evening wrap of green and silver brocade which is lined with silver cloth and which matches in its color the mediaeval gown of green velvet. This harmony between evening gown and evening wrap is not, of course, a new thought, but it is one which seems to become more authoritative with each succeeding winter.

All the wraps this season show an infinite variety of collar moods. On this particular model the detail is worked out with a sort of large tube made of the same narrow cloth and with bands which compose the side trimming. Rather extreme, isn't it? In fact, one of my friends who looked at this wrap remarked neatly, "There's many a bolster slip twixt the cape and the lip."

The yoke is a persistent feature in wrap models this year, and this is true of both afternoon and evening types. Although I have not indicated this preference in the illustrations, it is well to bear it in mind. Indeed, some of the most stunning foreign wraps show sometimes a yoke which is developed into a collar.

In both evening wraps and gowns there is a decided bias at present in favor of that brilliant tint known as flame red. I show this third on the page in a charming design collared in blue fox and embroidered brilliantly in gold.

There are some of us who must make one wrap fit into both the afternoon and evening occasion. With these particular women in view I am suggesting the fourth design, one achieved of wine colored velours de laine administered with a great deal of moleskin. This wrap, ideal for the afternoon affair of formal character, need not bring any anxiety to the wearer when its time is extended beyond 6 o'clock.

I draw attention to the lavish side panels and also to the fur running down the sleeve. The favored greeting of the coat designer this year seems, in fact, to be, "The top of the sleeve to you." For again and again we see this portion of the coat invaded by bands of fur or brilliant embroidery. Sometimes too, the familiar lattice work effect achieves this result and there is a number of foreign models exploiting a ladder of braid down the upper section of the arm. Self folds and tucks are another resource to brighten up this corner of the costume, and I have seen also mobs of the self fabric trims of which Renee is so fond besieging the top of the sleeve

Capes after the fashion of the center model are in good standing this year. Often they are interpreted with a yoke. At other times they vest the entire authority for the neckline in a standing collar such as is added to this model. Here the fur used is chinchilla, the lining is a silver and green brocade, and the cape proper jade green chiffon velvet. A really ravishing combination of color!

There is in our more gorgeous wraps and suits of today a mixed impulse towards Persian, Chinese, and Russian designs. The beautiful black velvet model marked VI. belongs more to the first of these persuasions, for those wide sleeves, with their lower section embroidered heavily in green, Persian blue, red, and orange, look exactly as if they had come to us out of the Arabian Nights. One might call it the Fur East, too, for kolinsky plays a large part in the development of this wrap. The final touch is an ornament of chased gold holding the garment slightly at one side.

One must remark here upon the extent to which the drape has invaded our wraps of today. Some of the most stunning of our evening conceits obey that impulse, and even the sports coat occasionally yields to the prevailing mode. For example, I saw not long ago a long coat of camel's hair with a bloused back draped perceptibly at one side. Yet this was destined for country wear for the outdoor sports occasion of autumn. All sports coats are not, of course equally docile. Indeed, the favored type is still the good old loose model with the raglan sleeve.

The beauty of this winter's fabrics—the frosty and colorful brocades, the velvets de luxe, the shimmering metal clothes—makes our evening wrap almost independent of trimming. At least, one can spare the fur and not spoil the wrap. This is indicated by the simple and effective cape of blue and gold brocade shown next to the right, for only a temperate portion of gray squirrel is allotted to the model and the distinction rests mainly with the sapphire velvet bordering the garment.

Many of the short coats of today are treated to all over tracery of braid or to embroidery. One sees such coats worn today by the most fashionable women, and at the Bryn Mawr horse show last month one of the most effectively dressed members of the audience wore a black cloth skirt with a black cloth coat which was treated to an all over pattern of white soutache.

The last model is a brilliant affair which is entirely covered with embroidery in black, green, red, blue, brown, and old rose. This is trimmed with flying squirrel, which appears finally as the facing for the front of the garment.

CHESTER- THERE ARE MICE AROUND THIS HOUSE- THEY KEPT ME AWAKE ALL LAST NIGHT GNAWING AND RUNNING AROUND-
NOW YOU WATCH CAREFULLY HOW YOUR FATHER BAITS THIS TRAP- YOU GET A PIECE OF CHEESE AND BURN IT WITH A MATCH TO MAKE IT SMELL STRONG- HOW MICE LOVE BURNT CHEESE-
I TELL YOU WHAT I'LL DO- I'LL CATCH THE FIRST ONE- I NEVER MISSED ONE YET- THEN FOR EVERY ONE YOU GET I'LL GIVE YOU A DIME- YOU KNOW YOU ONLY NEED $19.35 MORE AND YOU'LL HAVE ENOUGH TO BUY THAT PONY AND CART-
OH, I KNOW HOW TO SET THIS TRAP- I CAN DO IT NOW- LET ME CATCH THE FIRST ONE-
LOOK OUT THERE- THAT SPRING'S AWFULLY STIFF- IT WILL JUST NIP YOUR FINGER RIGHT OFF IF YOU AREN'T CAREFUL-
YOU'VE GOT TO BE STEADY AND CAREFUL- ESPECIALLY WITH A MOUSE TRAP- THEY SPRING SO EASILY THAT IF A MOUSE JUST TOUCHES THE CHEESE WITH ONE OF HIS WHISKERS HE'S GONE-
WHEN I WAS A LITTLE BOY I USED TO MAKE A LOT OF MONEY TRAPPING MUSK RATS AND SELLING THEIR SKINS- I WAS SUCH AN EXPERT AND BAITED THAT TRAP SO APPETIZINGLY THAT THEY COULDN'T RESIST IT- I KNEW ALL THE FOOD THEY LIKED BEST-
THERE- IT'S ALL SET AND READY NOW- WE'LL PLACE IT IN A NICE CONVENIENT PLACE RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF MOUSE BOULEVARD-
THEY'LL THINK IT'S A LITTLE MOUSE DINING TABLE ALL SET FOR THE BANQUET- BUT THE MOMENT ONE OF THEM STICKS HIS SNOOT ON THAT CHEESE MR. MOUSE WILL THINK HE'S BEEN HIT BY A---

Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

FLARES ARE RAGING.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—This charming little tailored dress is successful in its incorporation of this season's rage for flares. The sleeves are miniature skirts, cut in exactly the same pattern of the one accompanying and departing from the elbow in just the movement with which it descends from the bodice. I do not remember seeing another instance of flares used so easily—as if they had "come natural," without any effort to incorporate them out of respect for the mode. The ripple gives a great charm to the hand. The dress is in dark blue broadcloth and it is piped round the flares with satin in a lighter shade of blue.

Of all the shades there are of green, one is not smart, but by that token many think it the prettiest. You remember our old recipe for chic. Get something hard, assured, perhaps even (on the side of color) a little turned toward sour, and you stand a show to have something smart. Sage green fulfills none of these qualifications, and yet some of the dresses made after this model have been piped with it in crepe de chine. In such cases the material is usually black broadcloth.

Another model is made in black, smooth material, and has a sash, long and low and fringed, which ties on one side. It is in sage green and it comes very nearly being both pretty and chic.

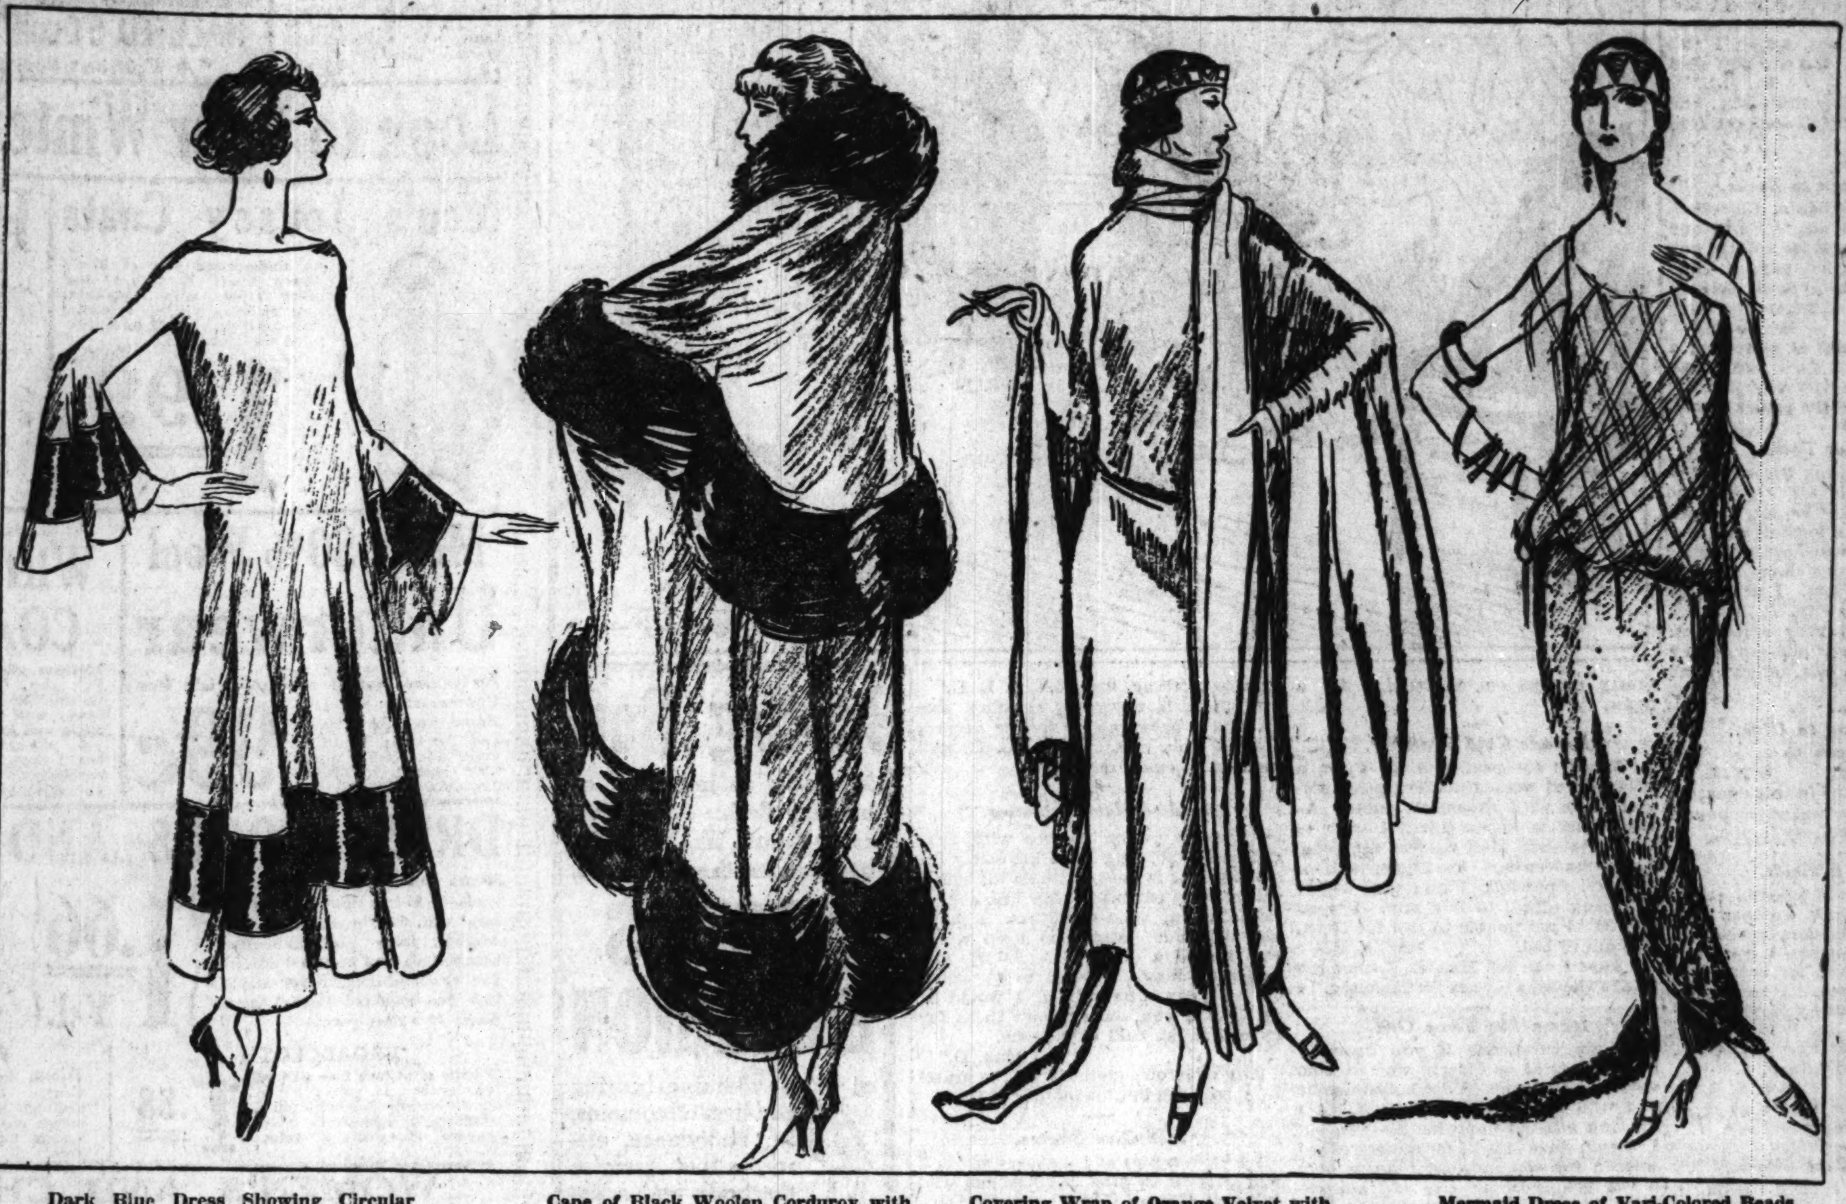
And all of this is by way of saying that the combination of black and sage green is one of the approved and extremely pretty color schemes for fall.

Brown is a sad color, and it, above all others, is the rage of the day. Girls with pink cheeks look drained sometimes when they wear it. I mentioned this to the artist, and he said that brown was only for extremely pale women who rouge their lips. Gray is like a charming person that you don't mind having round always—like some one who has a gracious personality which puts every one else at ease and gives the world a sense of being pleased with themselves.

Note the coat—the swing of it is full of Poiret. Nobody else so adores to take yards of material and twirl it and sling it and play with it. Yes: I have said it before, but Poiret has done it more than once previously. What I like about this coat that is not true of everything coming out of Paris is that you can wear it in the daytime and at night, too. That is to say, it is not a highly specialized coat, and unless you are a specialized person, going in for deadlines in dress, it can appear past 6 o'clock and before 11.

It is of black corduroy cashmere. Have you begun wearing any of those woolen corduroys yet? I don't know when I have ever liked a material so much. It has all of the softness of that old friend, cashmere, and is more interesting. This cape has a lot of character given to it by the wide bands of black fox fur. Nothing is more smart, I think, than a flat surface of material with fur trimmings thrown up high and shaggy in pronounced relief.

The funny thing about the third coat is that, whereas the mantle preceding looked like one exclusively for evening, this wrap with the look about it of being for just any time—or never—is not supposed to appear before 6 o'clock. It is an awfully sophisticated garment, and should never be essayed by the ingenue. You have to know a lot about life and dining out to get away with it and not allow it an awfully smart thing. Even a flapper could borrow the idea of that scarf motif which descends into a train.



Dark Blue Dress Showing Circular Movement Which Is Popular.

Cape of Black Woolen Corduroy with Bands of Black Fox.

Covering Wrap of Orange Velvet with Gray Velvet Scarf.

Mermaid Dress of Vari-Colored Beads.

The foundation of this wrap is of orange velvet, and the fullness of the gathered sleeves is a feature. You see they are shirred close along the line of the arm, and have hanging lengths of material falling from them like a cape. The scarf is in gray velvet. It wraps round the neck, falling to the hem in front and dragging along the floor behind. It gives a sumptuous look to the costume. And it is in just the right gray to give balance to the gorgeous orange.

The fourth woman has the silhouette of a mermaid—and the coloring as well. Her dress is like sea shells, with the blue of the sky and the air round them. The beautiful gown is of blue beads graduated in shading from palest blue to a darker color in the train. The bodice is hung with wisps of gold gauze, like seaweed. It seems strange that anything so dainty and imaginative should conform to the fashion—still it incorporates all of the little seasonal fancies. The bodice blouses, and yet why not? I suppose even the mermaids out in the sea turn to Paris for their fashions. Maybe Paris turned to them for that fishtail skirt that is so popular. At least the present model incorporates it. This dress is an excellent one for displaying a heavy barrage of jewels.

We saw such a pretty evening cape the other day lined with lace. An American woman with some ancestral Chantilly used it that way. We remarked at the time that it was a good suggestion to make to you, for I have certainly seen a lot of good looking lace in and round Chicago.

This cape was blue with a lining of the black lace. It made really a lovely, airy thing. Doucillet designed it.

We were counting up what some of the characteristics of this season were, and we mentioned first of all the yards and miles of braiding. Then there are the skirts with the three little plaits on either side. Skirts plaited any way at all are fashionable. A plaited skirt with a blouse is almost smarter now than a one piece dress.

There is, further, that Spanish dancer feeling in afternoon and evening dresses which is obtained by putting a ruffle round the skirt. Greek designs in printed effects and in embroidery are good. Renee is perhaps the leading advocate of fullness obtained by plaiting of the flare on the side and of the awfully low belt, still—although most of us are lifting it. And the "wrapped" feeling is prevalent everywhere.

COMPLETING THE CIRCLE.

Do you want to put a real thrill of thankfulness into your Thanksgiving, two weeks from next Thursday? Do you want to feel happier than you have in many a day on that occasion?

If you do, consider the following question, being asked right now in thousands of homes in Chicago:

"Mamma, can't we have a turkey for Thanksgiving—just a little one?"

Then consider the anguish such a question, innocently asked by a little girl, say, of 6, must bring to many a struggling father and mother in Chicago. Can they say to that child, "No, we can't afford it?" and expect the child to understand? Ordinarily, yes—but Thanksgiving. The child hears the story of Thanksgiving perhaps in kindergarten; sees it in the stores; hears it from the neighbor children! Surely papa or mamma can stretch a point that day—and what it must cost the parent to disillusion the child, to strike a blow at its faith in papa or mamma as the great protector and provider!

There is your chance to give yourself a happiness you may not have felt for many and many a Thanksgiving! You know yourself that you feel happiest when you've done something big, something worth while. What bigger thing can you do than set the world right for such a child, and restore faith in the justice of things to parents who otherwise would have to deny their children a child's birthright? What greater happiness can you get than the happiness of knowing you have done something so magnificent in the eyes of those you help?

If you want to sit down to your Thanksgiving dinner with the feeling that somewhere in the city someone is looking up to you as one of the greatest and kindest of beings, write in to us and say you will help! We have the families on record—families where only your kindness and that of others like you can make Thanksgiving anything but a day of cruel despair. We'll put you in touch with one, of a size suited to what you feel you can do—and then see the happiness you create! Happiness for the family you help—happiness even greater for yourself—could any arangement be happier all around?

Write us today and say you'll be "among those present" in this circle of happiness!

Various and Sundry.

"I would be glad to pass on to some of your many readers a sanitary cot with pad to be used as full size bed, two separate cots, a truss, cyclopedia of applied electricity [set of five volumes], and some household magazines.

"G. M. K."

We thank you, G. M. K., for a generous donation.

Offer of Washing Machine.

"I have a handpower washing machine that I will give to any one willing to call for it. Mrs E. J. N."

Thank you. Some busy mother's burden will be lightened to a great extent by your kind offering.

Overcoat to Give Away.

"Enclosed find stamp to notify W. R. C. that I have an overcoat in good condition to give the ex-soldier or if he has been supplied please offer it through your corner to some one else.

"H. H."

Yes, thank you; W. R. C. has been supplied. I print your kind offer so some other may make application for the warm overcoat. The size is 40.

Furniture Needed Here..

"Because of my oldest daughter's serious illness of seven weeks and my husband's not having steady work, we were not able to meet our payments on furniture and they came and took what we had—even the stove with a fire in it. The bed was taken, too. Anything in the line of furniture we will be glad to get—carpet, table, bed, or rockers—as we are left without anything and are not able to buy.

"Mrs. B. L."

This appeal carries its own story. Who will help?

Hotel Training Lessons Offered.

"I have a complete set of hotel training lessons, all in best condition, many of them never opened, which I will gladly give any one who will pay postage on them. E. N. B."

I register your offer gratefully, and shall forward any applications received to you.

Eleven Children to Dress.

"I have eleven children, the eldest 13 and the baby 1 month. My husband has been without work for months and has just got a job that pays a small amount. My children need clothing badly. I can sew and make over anything sent. Mrs. J. M."

Caring for a family of eleven on a modest salary is a task Herculean these days. Have you any wearing apparel not in use at the present time?

Request for Tools.

"I am writing asking through your paper for some tools which are of no use to the owner any longer. I need one coping saw and a keyhole saw, and if some one has a few old paint brushes I should be glad to get them. I am a patient in a sanitarium. I will gladly call anywhere in the city. A. K."

I have registered your request, A. K., and will send your address to any one who writes he can supply what you ask for.

Orchestrations to Give.

"Have orchestrations to give. Will mail if postage is sent. G. F. E."

If you are interested in this donation send a stamped, addressed envelope and I'll send G. F. E.'s address to you.

Finding It Difficult.

"I have seven children—the eldest 14—and am expecting another one soon. If some kind mother has clothes her baby no longer needs, I would be thankful for them and for something for the other children. I can make things over if necessary. My husband gets a small salary, and it is hard for us to get along. The ages are: Girls, 14, 13, 11, 6, 4, and 1½; boy, 8.

"Mrs. S. B."

Mrs. S. B. and her family need assistance. Can you help a bit?

Have Never Been Worn.

"If you know of a child needing a pair of brown leather shoes, with rubber heels, size 13, I will send them at once. They were bought for my sister, but are too large. F. M. B."

Where is the little girl who can wear size 13? A pair of good brown shoes is waiting for her.

She's Here Somewhere.

"I have a ukulele to give to some little girl. If you can find her among your readers, please ask her to come and get it. I. L. M."

Do not delay, little girl, if you are interested in the sweet toned ukulele which I. L. M. has to give.

Help Her Over This.

"I wonder if any of your readers could help me out by sending some infant clothing. I am expecting a little one soon. I regret having to ask for help, but my husband is out of work and has been for some time, and I have no way of earning money. I have made a few articles, but my two babies and housework take up most of my strength and time. If any one can help me over this difficulty, I will greatly appreciate it.

"Mrs. S. H."

I sincerely hope you will be supplied with the tiny clothes you need. Perhaps some mother whose baby has outgrown the infant clothing will send to me for your address.

Who Wants Orange Kitten?

"I have a part Angora kitten, orange color, female. Won't some one give her a good home? She is exceptionally pretty. Mrs. R. M. P."

There is sure to be an enthusiastic response to the announcement that a pretty orange cat is looking for a home.

Dreads Cold Weather.

"Thanks for past favors! I am a middle aged woman, suffering for several years with rheumatic pains. As the winter is approaching, I wish to appeal to your kind readers for some warm underwear, stockings, and a sweater, if possible. I am a poor widow and can't afford to buy any. I wear size 35. I am unable to call for them, as I am in bed. Mrs. E. R."

I hope I can tell Mrs. E. R. that the things she asks for are forthcoming.

Home for Some One.

"I am wondering if you know of a middle aged or elderly woman who would like a home. I don't mean some one who is entirely dependent, as I couldn't afford to buy her clothes, but I would love to have some refined woman for company as I know only a few people in the city and get awfully lonely. There surely are lots of elderly women who would be glad to get an offer of a home if I knew where to find them. If you could help me find one I surely would appreciate it. Mrs. W. W. C."

Your kindly offer will, no doubt, interest some woman who, too, is anxious to have a home and a congenial companion. Any application received shall be sent to wou.

Husband Deserted Her.

"Some time ago I wrote you telling you I needed clothes for myself and baby. My husband deserted me eight months ago, and I am soon going to be a mother again. The baby is 14 months old and I am 19 years. I am living with my mother. My father is dead. I have four brothers going to school. If you would find some clothes for them we would appreciate it. Thank you. Mrs. M. F."

Who has clothing that they would be willing to give to this young mother?

Student Asks Books.

"Is there any one who has books or material on the civil war and reconstruction after the civil war? I'm a senior in high school, and as this is one of my semester topics I'm trying to gather as much on this subject as possible. I will be glad to receive books on it and will pay postage.

"Julia H."

We'll ask, Julia, and see.

Offering Is Generous.

"Please give my address to people who can use an infant's folding crib, a folding cart, woman's suit [black, size 44], girl's riding suit [14 year size], 2 year old child's overcoat, and a number of things for children.

"Mrs. M. M."

Thank you, Mrs. M. M., for your generous offering.

Needs of a Mother.

"The writer is in touch with a mother who needs a baby cart of some sort. She is in straitened circumstances and has been ill for some time. If any of your readers has such an article to give I will be glad to call for it and see that this woman gets it; also clothing, size 36. O. L. H."

If there is outgrown clothing, size 36, and a baby cab no longer needed, I know this plea from O. L. H. will meet with ready response.

Hard to Meet Expenses.

"I am a young mother with four children depending upon me solely for a living. It is hard to make my small salary meet expenses. My litle son, 5, needs warm winter clothes. I have not sufficient clothing to keep working; I need a dress, waist, skirt, and under clothing. Size 42 to 44 would do, as I can alter things. I would be grateful if you could secure these for us before the cold days come.

"Mrs. D."

Any outgrown clothing will be gratefully received by this mother of four.

Will Give Skates.

"I have a pair of ice skates which I will be glad to give to some one who can use them. They are women's skates and would fit a 4½ shoe.

"Mrs. S. W."

The skating season is almost here. Is yours a 4½ shoe? Make haste and make application for the skates if it is.

Would You Wear Steel Shoes?

In ordinary shoes, a rigid strip of steel concealed between soles makes every arch stiff, inflexible, and cruelly heedless of the flexibility of your own arch.

In the Cantilever Shoe you find an arch flexible like your own. A flexible arch bends in harmony with every step you take. It curves up snugly, when you lace up Cantilevers, to provide precisely the degree of support each one of your arches yearns for. And flexible-shanked Cantilevers agree to that strengthening exercise of your arch muscles which corrects and prevents arch troubles, improves your circulation and helps increase your vigor, endurance and good spirits.

Comfort Is Fashionable

Would you wear inflexible, steel-shanked shoes when flexible Cantilevers are made with the low heels and stylishly rounded toes in vogue today?

Cantilever Shoes are good-looking shoes, finely made of choice materials, and reasonably priced. But the basic idea back of every one of the many Cantilever designs is comfort—the comfort that adds immeasurably to a woman's good health and spirits.

The Ear as an Indicator of Character

By Doris Blake

ONLY when fashion decrees that feminine ears be revealed, which is but intermittently and not of general adoption, have we an opportunity to read character by them. The male ear, however, has no way of concealing its character. And students of physiognomy tell us that while ears play little or no part in the facial expression, they are quite as indicative of character as the eyes, nose, and mouth.

The characteristic peculiarities of the ear correspond with the individuality and disposition of the person and require careful examination, they tell us.

As great variety in form, size and position is found in ears, as in noses, M. Bertillon, in his method of identification, considers the ear the feature by which it is easiest to establish a man or a woman's identity. One case is recorded of a man's innocence being proven by the shape of his ears, when his other features were identical with those of a criminal. Detectives know that the ear and nose are the two features most difficult to disguise.

The second of the series of articles by Antoinette Donnelly on "The Twelve Most Beautiful Women in America," will be found in the Coloroto section of The Sunday Tribune today.

Ears vary in size from the small, well formed, finely cut design to the huge, coarse ones of the lower races. The more uncivilized and savage the race, the larger the ears.

The smallest ears are found among the Latin races. Intellect and morality cannot be judged by the size of the ear alone, however. There is an enormous difference between the large ear of savage races and that of a cultured white man. The convolutions and angles are different.

Large ears on persons of large frame indicate commercial capacity. Men of great financial ability usually have ears of large size. A certain degree of obstinacy is characterized by large ears.

An unusually small ear indicates refinement and extreme sensitiveness on a woman. In a man to these qualities are added a lack of force. A small ear is never associated with a strong and powerful face.

The angular pointed ear shows a lack of quick hearing and indicates a low moral tone. A well rounded ear indicates an even and harmonious temperament.

A materialistic nature is indicated by a thick fold on the upper part of the ear. A thin upper fold suggests caution, acquisitiveness, love of money. If this fold is fleshy at its commencement, pointed at top, and narrowing as it descends, it indicates great financial shrewdness.

If the lobe is set flatly into the cheek, low vitality and energy are indicated.

A deep broad lobe is a sign of commercialism. A large long lobe indicates perseverance and self-reliance. If the lobe joins with the cheek in a continuous line, a poor judgment is indicated and a lack of keen perception.

The position of the ear in the head is signficant. Ears set low have a hardness of nature; ears set high, a secretive and cautious one. Ears placed far back indicate weakness and no self-reliance.

Large ears that stand out from the head indicate an easy going disposition. An ear sloping backward denotes ingenuity.

A red color indicates strong hearing capacity, whereas weakness of hearing accompanies a white, thin ear. An ear narrow and set close to the head, white, indicates timidity and a nervous temperament.

Vitality and energy are indicated by a pink color and a good texture of skin.

To find the right position for the ear, draw an equilateral triangle between the extreme tip of the lobe, the inner angle of the eye, and the chin point of the jawbone.

A broad, well shaped ear is indicative of a long life.

A taste for music is indicated by large ears.

A combination of a small ear and a small, straight nose indicates poverty.

Long, thin ears are ears in which to confide, for they can keep secrets.

When hair grows in the ears it indicates an ill natured, treacherous person.

A small hole or hollow behind the right ear—and you will have great luck and riches.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscript returned.

BUT NEVER POSTED.

DEAR, unapproachable, baffling Man-of-a-Moment. You came and passed and for a few brief hours, scarcely longer than the life of a butterfly, you held me close to you and, dear, ignorant, blind boy, did not know that my soul knelt, humbly silent, at the joy of finding you!

Why should the love of a day be less true and beautiful than the love of a lifetime? Why? Because it is transient. Should a sunlit dewdrop be less reverenced than the eternal ocean? Is it not as sublime, as perfect? Are its elements not as mysterious and everlasting, as breath takingly complex as those of the ever enduring sea? Ah, more, is not its transiency, its delicacy, its elusiveness something that lifts it forever above the harder material of every day life and love?

Two days we met, and twice we kissed—and you? I never knew what I was to you—perhaps no more than a passing fancy that flitted like a bird's wing shadow, across the fields of your imagination! But you—dear vagabond! You wandered by, and, stopping, flung into my brimming cup a single rosy drop of dream kissed dew, a tiny golden sphere, which yet held within its crystal heart reflected lights and shadows of eternity!

You will forget or momentarily recall dispassionately. Yet you shall pain me not a bit by your forgetfulness—for we made no vows, and said no prayers—and the sweetness of your memory would bide no touch of bitterness.

But I shall not forget—not I! And, perhaps, some time, on the mountain tops, as I look down upon the stars, as we once did together, I'll burn a little taper to your memory! L. D.

FLAT-O-FORM
GIVES YOU A FLATTER FORM

A New Brassiere
(Patent Pending)

$1.50 to $5.00

The Charm of a Graceful Figure

Dance frocks, sports wear, tailored suits—whether or not they cling closely—depend for style and trimness upon a proper figure foundation—and what wonderfully straight, graceful lines you can have with the aid of the Flat-O-Form—the daintiest of brassieres, which gives you a flat form from bust to waistline. The length of the garment is sufficient to fasten below the top of the low bust, topless corset, and instantly adjusted to any waistline size or made to fit tighter or looser, as occasion may require.

Flat-O-Form allows you to successfully accomplish the present styles—and you pay very little for your accomplishment.

All dry goods and corset stores will gladly show you this latest achievement of the Nature's Rival Company.

WINTER FAT FOODS.

IS there any new way of stating the fact that we must have fats in good quantities in our winter diet? Perhaps not, yet possibly some newly convincing phase of the subject may be presented.

Fats, as almost everybody knows, are the best standbys of the energy foods, and energy is rapidly consumed by just living in cold weather. Much more heat escapes from the body and more rapidly than in summer. The fats are equal to hard coal as human heating stuffs, and there is a distinct advantage in the fact that they are more slowly digested and made over into us than any of the other foods.

We could feel fresh energy fifteen minutes after taking a lump of sugar, if we were very cold, but if we had eaten a good supply of fat foods we would not be in so great need of any such quick renewal of energy. A fire of kindling wood is strictly an emergency fire and energy acquired from pure sugar may be compared to it.

We cannot place too much emphasis on the fact that we need milk, and the bulk, water, and other contributions fruit and vegetables make if we are to have continuous health. These foods, with much drinking water, also prevent or ameliorate that commonest of scourges, constipation.

Fats High in Calories.

But for hourly and daily health we must have energy foods in abundance. The pure fats lead in energy returns, since they yield the highest number of calories, 4,000 per pound, if pure. Meats, milk, cheese and nuts all have low and high percentages of pure fat. They give us needed calories, and have other values as well. Butter yields a health or growth element quite independent of its calories, and undoubtedly all fats have a certain lubricant value in the alimentary canal, and in the body that is not often taken into consideration. What would our skin be like without the fat? Our hair might break off and blow away.

Our bodies can undoubtedly make their fats without the contribution of fat foods, but the plain mechanical work of fat foods in our alimentary canal, in preventing constipation or ameliorating its effects, is something I do not believe we take into consideration as often as we ought, because the evil after effects of constipation or its far reaching effects do not get enough attention from the cause standpoint.

Making Them Palatable.

In discussing fats it is necessary to remember that too great emphasis is always getting placed on one food as a sort of cure all and not enough on each of the "dietary factors," in their proper proportions, and, therefore, as eaters, we lose our physiological balance, as shown in a hundred ways if we will learn to recognize them, but in no way more commonly than by intestinal stasis or constipation.

We need a liberal supply of each of the dietary factors, and it would be easy to show that there have been the most absurd notions prevalent among us to hinder us from getting a liberal supply of fat. I long suffered the most of them, so know whereof I speak. Yes indeed, seventy-five years ago and much later it was not considered lady like to eat fat foods.

Then again, it has not been possible in many cases to eat enough fat foods because those requiring cooking were so wretchedly prepared. "Greasy food" is an abomination, but fats may be so prepared as to be as dainty and palatable and as fine appearing as whipped cream.

Right Food Prevents.

It is possible to season and whip up ham and bacon fats until they make as an agreeable spread for dark breads as butter. Yet hundreds of pounds of these fats and the marrow bone fat as well go to waste in our midst while children are skinny or anemic, men become diabetic, and women suffer from constipation, with no end of beauty troubles, because they are not well lubricated by liberal quantities of fat in the diet. And all these troubles, which begin as minor ones, may be followed by major afflictions which had their real beginning from a diet too scanty in fats. Here is a modern recipe for health contributed by the author of "The Newer Nutrition."

"Liberal consumption of all the essential constituents of a normal diet, prompt digestion and absorption, and prompt evacuation of the undigested residue from the intestine before extensive absorption of products of bacterial decomposition of proteins takes place are the optimum conditions for the maintenance of vigor and the characteristics of youth."

These absorption products are most irritating things. Most people call in the doctor by the time these products get well under way in their work and show up under all sorts of impressive names. We have to be quite ill before we can have the doctor three times a day yet willy nilly we have to take the medicine the cook prepares that often. Right food prevents. It cures. It gives an energy supply with which to build back from illness, and there are reasons why the right supply of fat furnishes some of the most comforting energy we get, whether we are sick or whether we are well.

Wasting Pork Fat.

In some way, by some means, we must bring home to the people who prepare food a feeling of how great is their responsibility. Take the food pork alone. More of it is wasted in one way or another by poor cooking than of any other meat, without doubt, and only one or two other foods are wasted in greater bulk. Counted by calories, twice as much food is wasted when a pound of fat pork goes to waste as when a pound of flour does.

Of late years the number of smoked pork products have increased and only a small per cent of the fat in these gets consumed as food. Bacon fat is often burned in the broiling or frying so that the liquid or tried out part is thrown away, and the slice or rasher does as much personal injury to the one who consumes it as though he had been scratched in some tender place so as to expose the tender under skin.

Fats and Cleanliness.

The beginning of rightness in fat cookery is cleanliness. An eater who might finish up a piece of squab turkey which was quite highly flavored with dirt and call it good would not eat some ham fat that had the same amount of unclean flavor, although unable to tell why, yet he might eat breakfast bacon that was far more highly flavored with dirt than it ought to be. Nearly all of us do. Even the most highly sanitary methods we have of handling sliced bacon in vogue today do not give us a meat as clean as a rose. An expensive club sandwich is often a poor thing because of dirty bacon in it.

Preparing Ham and Bacon for Boiling.

These meats should truly be as clean as a rose before they are boiled. You may add all sorts of seasonings to make the fat savory, and the lean delicate, but if there is dirt behind them all you cannot get fats that are as good in sandwiches as butter or far more likely to make an eater pleasedly quizzical. Washing and scrubbing and trimming are the methods by which this cleanliness is secured.

Boiled Bacon.

It is the fat on a thick square of bacon or a strip of brisket bacon that makes it worth while to cook this meat in an elegant way, cleaning the piece perfectly, adding savory seasoning to the boiling water, adding piquancies or spices in the baking to finish. The lean part may be stringy unless the cooking has been exceptional, but with perfect cleanliness and seasoning the fat will make delicious sandwich fillings alone or with thin slices of ginger or with mayonnaise, etc., as well as take the place of other meat when hot.

Some people take no pains to get off the purple mark. They think it has no effect on the flavor. It may not be apparent, except in some indescribable way, but its flavor is there, just as the fine flavoring materials are individually indistinguishable. In boiling ham or bacon we may add onions, carrots, green sweet pepper, orange skin, candied ginger, or other seasoning like celery, and not be able to distinguish the flavor of any of them in the meat, but they have made for its perfection. The dirts on the surface are much diluted by the cooking water, but they have their influence, too.

Before boiling a large piece of smoked pork of any sort it may be best to cut off a slice and fry it to discover whether it is too salty, but today our hams and bacon are kept in cold storage, I think, like other meats, and are not as heavily salted as formerly, so need neither soaking before boiling nor parboiling before baking. A salty piece of bacon, after having been thoroughly cleaned and rinsed off with hot water, may be covered with boiling water and allowed to soak three or four hours before it is boiled. A ham being larger, needs the longer time. All boiled meats should be cooked over the tiniest amount of fire, just enough to keep the surface slightly alive or disturbed.

Baking Bacon.

After bacon is boiled it may be finished just as ham is finished, by baking in the oven. This dries out the fat but solidifies the meat. The meat is first skinned or peeled by dipping the hands in cold water and then pulling off the hot skin. What you may do after that in the way of seasoning depends on your training and experience mostly, but there are many things that may be done. For a fine appearance stick whole cloves into the fat and then wash over with beaten egg. This gives a beautiful brown, crackly surface to the fat and protects it somewhat from the heat.

Pot Liquor.

First the pot liquor from boiling ham or bacon has on it when cold a thick layer of savory fat which may be clarified by adding it to boiling water and then cooking it for ten minutes. This is so soft that it may be whipped even after it is cold, and when whipped well will be as white as the whitest lard, even though many seasonings containing coloring matter have gone into it. It will surprise you to whip part and compare it with the other part.

It is a long story to tell all that may be done with this fat. The skimmed liquid should be strained and may be used for split pea soup or in bean soup. One-half cup of big hominy, picked over, washed, and covered with four cups of this liquor and simmered three or four hours, makes an excellent vegetable.

The Creoles add shrimps and no end of seasonings and ingredients with thickenings to such pot liquors for thick soups.

When we pay more we shall be obliged to ask more, so we advise—in fact, urge you to lay in your winter's supply now, while the present low prices prevail. Sampling will be in order at various booths, and any can or carton will be opened upon request. You are invited to come tomorrow to see with your own eyes what we believe to be "The World's Greatest Market and Grocery."

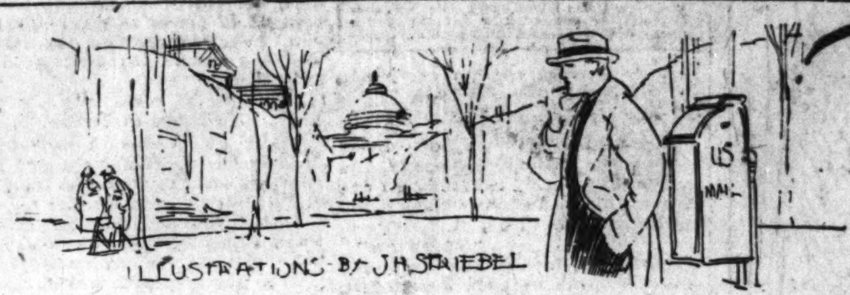
THE POTTERS

by J. P. McEvoy

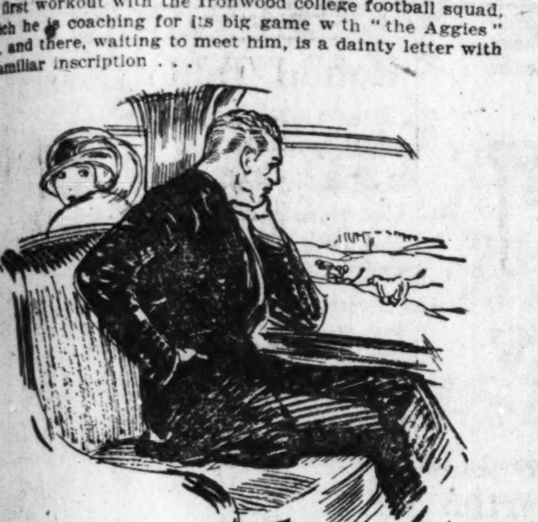


PROLOGUE.

Ancestors are a selfish lot, and posterity's debt to them is grossly exaggerated . . . true it is that ancestors have the droll habit of saying with that witty Irishman, "What's all this talk about doing something for posterity? What has posterity ever done for us?" . . . but the least ancestors might do is leave a few snappy remarks unsaid . . . how aggravating for one of us to click off a bon mot, believing it to be a legitimate issue of our own, only to learn it is the senile, doddering offspring of an ancestor long deceased . . . "There, that's a nifty," you gurgle, and some one like Pernin takes his long, pale nose out of a musty tome and moans, "Yes, Terence said it centuries ago: sed qui mihi hoc dixit, te fide dignior est" . . . but probably the most successful of all the ancient wow-lines, as the popular song plugger so delicately calls them, is that excruciatingly funny observation that "all the world loves a lover" . . . why couldn't that darn ancestor have left that one unsaid? How I would love to have said that first!

Scene I—Red Gets a Shock.

Red Miller, as you may recall, has just returned from his first workout with the Ironwood college football squad, which he is coaching for its big game with "the Aggies" . . . and there, waiting to meet him, is a dainty letter with a familiar inscription . . .



"Maybe she won't see me."

RED (trying to pry envelope open with blunt forefinger . . . imminent developments in man's evolution to meet the growing complexities of life will be a forefinger shaped like a letter opener, a hand specially adapted to getting mail out of apartment house letter boxes after you have lost the key, which is right after you move in, and mouths pursed and projecting like a pelican's, so that one can drink from bubbling fountains without getting one's ears wet . . .):

From Mamie! Well . . . well . . . well! God bless the little scamp . . . wonder what she's got to say for herself . . . well, well, well . . . (Finally succeeds in getting letter open; begins reading): Dear Mr. Miller——

RED: What tha . . . ? Mister?????? (Reads): I am returning your ring to you in this mail. I am glad I found you out before it was too late. You probably know why I am taking this step just as well as I do, and probably better. Oh, to think that I trusted you so! And the way I loved you, and then for you—but no, I won't write it! Why did you do it? You needn't write or call me up. It's all over, it's all over now." The girl who was once yours, MAMIE.

RED (utterly bewildered):

Say, what tha . . . say, what's the matter with her? (Reads letter over more carefully.) "I am glad I found you out before it was too late." . . . found me out? . . . what's she talking about? I haven't done anything? . . . "It's all over, it's all over now"? . . . "I am returning your ring" . . . "I trusted you so" . . . "The girl who was once yours" . . . "it's all over, it's all over now" . . . (Enraged) Oh, it is, is it? Very well, then. (Storms up and down room.) For what? for why? what have I done? Nothing! Some silly gossip, I suppose. And she throws me down without any explanation or giving me any chance to—— Say! you can't do that to me! (Points finger at imaginary Mamie and harangues her.) Do you hear me? Where d'ye get that stuff? Who do you think I am? . . . "I found you out," eh? . . . well, you just think you have . . . you're gonna find me out right now . . . I'll show you . . .

(Sits down at desk in frenzy of rage and dashes off scorching note . . . reads it, hesitates, then tears it up . . . isn't strong enough . . . writes another, more deliberately . . . a trifle more callous and acidulous . . . better calculated to enrage Mamie and at the same time give her to understand she can't trifle with his affections like this . . . reads it over, nods to himself with satisfaction . . . there, that'll hold her . . . little spitfire! . . . seals letter and rushes out to drop it in box . . . wait till she reads that letter! . . . Wow!)

Scene II—One Hour Later.

(Red has had time to cool off a bit, and now he is sorry he wrote such a nasty letter . . . wishes he could head it off . . . ah! maybe it hasn't gone yet . . . rushes out to letter box and waits for postman.)

RED (thinking):

. . . that looks like him . . . I could smooth her off maybe if she didn't get this letter . . . gets this, it'll be all off . . . worn place in the lawn, why don't the students use the walks . . . never learn sense . . . that isn't him . . . how often does he come here . . . what's the matter with her, anyway . . . what does she mean . . . "found you out" . . . I didn't do anything . . . "dear Mister Miller" . . . there he comes . . . I'll say, hello, I dropped a letter in here I want to get out . . . well, I can identify myself . . . he'll let me have it . . . then I'll tear it up and call her . . . always do better when you can talk to them . . . no, that isn't him . . . when does he come here, anyway? My, they walk a lot, don't they . . . (Sees time table on box, reads it.) Four thirty . . . six o'clock . . . (looks at watch) six ten . . . it's gone . . . gone . . . wattle I do, wattle I do? (Blur of thoughts): Catch train, can't leave, cost money, what's the matter with her, call her up long distance, good . . . do it right away . . . right away . . . (Rushes back to room.)

Scene III—On the Phone.

CENTRAL (with that peculiarly irritating calmness which they seem to affect when you are in the most desperate hurry):

I'm trying to get your party . . .

RED (nervously):

Hurry up . . . hurry up . . .

CENTRAL (evenly):

Please hang up. We'll call you . . .

(Red hangs up and paces the room . . . rehearses coming conversation in his mind . . . why did you write that letter?—you know why—no, I don't—yes, you do—no, honestly I don't, dear; please tell me—well, because . . .) (Bell rings.)

RED (rushing to phone):

Yes . . . yes . . .

CENTRAL (calmly):

On that long distance call the line is busy now . . . we'll call you.

RED (banging up receiver):

Bluh! bluh! bluh! (In his mind): Maybe she isn't home . . . but it's dinner time, she'll be there . . . I'll say, I want to talk to Miss Potter . . . will I tell them it's me? . . . No; maybe she wouldn't come to the phone . . . Hello, Mamie; this is Red speaking . . . no; listen, what's the matter? . . . and then she'll say—— (Brrrr-ring!)

RED (grabbing up receiver):

Hello, hello, hello . . .

CENTRAL:

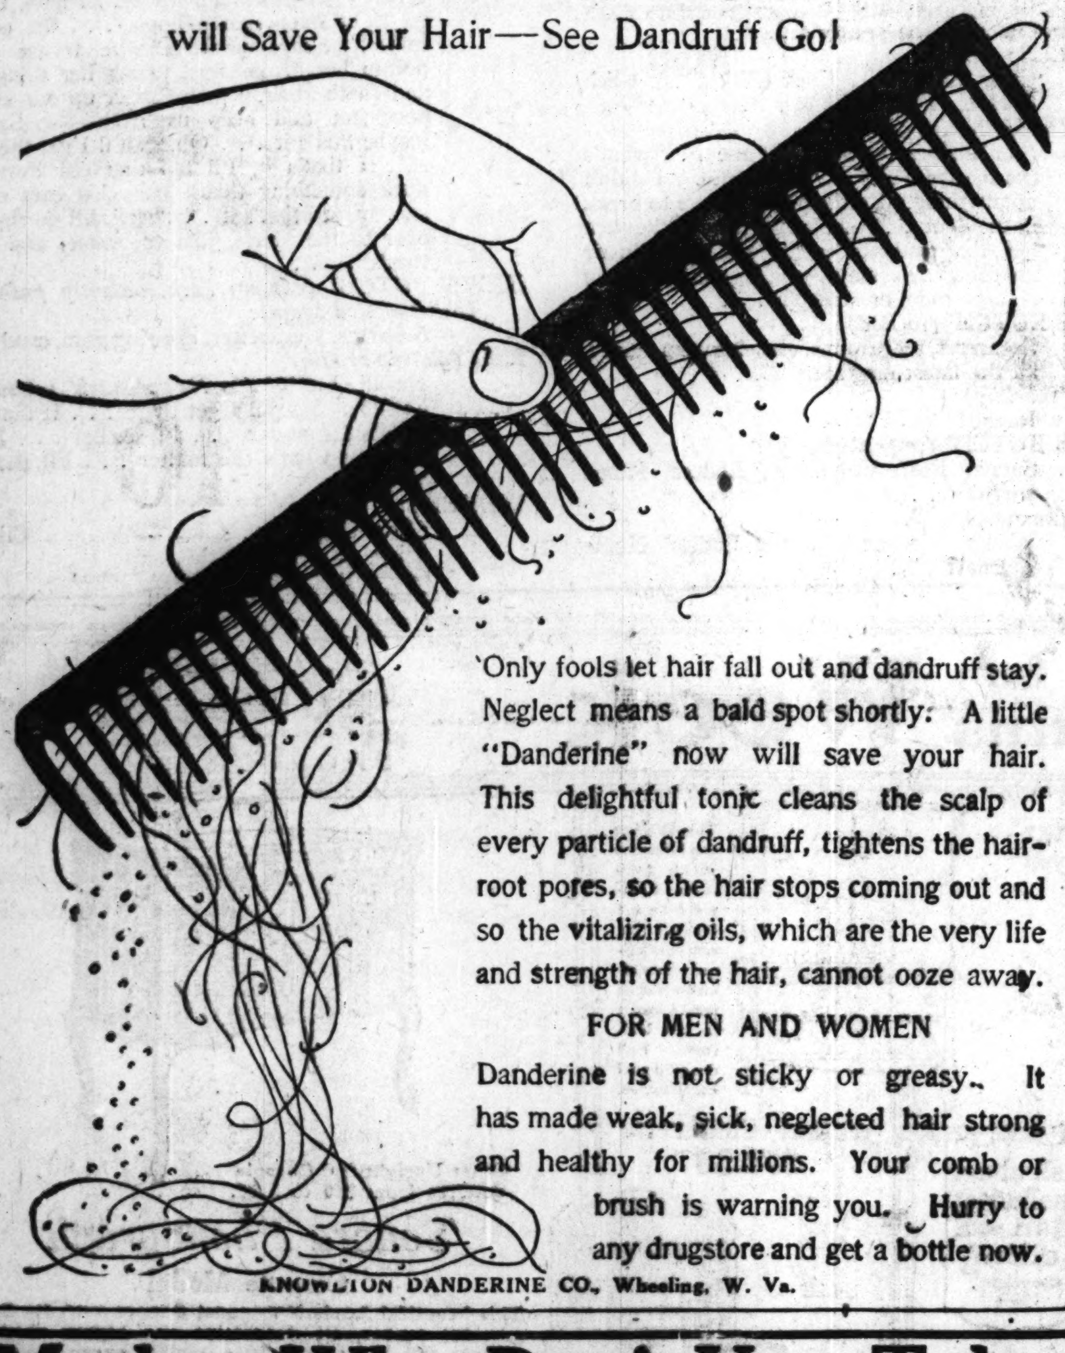
Sin to Lose Hair!

Stop Hair Falling! A 35c bottle of delightful "Danderine" will Save Your Hair—See Dandruff Go!



'Only fools let hair fall out and dandruff stay. Neglect means a bald spot shortly. A little "Danderine" now will save your hair. This delightful tonic cleans the scalp of every particle of dandruff, tightens the hair-root pores, so the hair stops coming out and so the vitalizing oils, which are the very life and strength of the hair, cannot ooze away.

FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Danderine is not sticky or greasy. It has made weak, sick, neglected hair strong and healthy for millions. Your comb or brush is warning you. Hurry to any drugstore and get a bottle now.

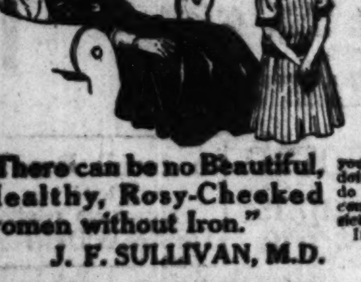
Mother Why Don't You Take The Newer Form of Iron?

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?—The Doctor Gave Some to Susie Smith's Mother and She Was Worse Off Than You Are and Now She Looks Just Fine.

THE CHILD'S APPEAL



"There can be no Beautiful, Healthy, Rosy-Cheeked women without Iron."

J. F. SULLIVAN, M.D.

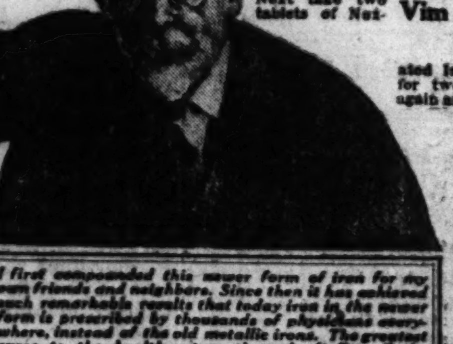
"Nine out of every ten women who are weak, sickly, nervous and run-down, could increase their health, strength and energy, and feel and look years younger, in many instances in ten days' time, if they would only get a little more iron in their blood," was the startling statement made by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Department), New York, and Westchester County Hospital. "Since the discovery of the newer form of iron, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe it for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. It is iron in your blood that enables you to get the good out of your food. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks. The anaemic woman has pale skin, flabby flesh and often becomes weak, nervous and irritable. In many cases she suffers from symptoms of kidney, heart or liver trouble; has indigestion, headaches and dizzy spells. Such women often become moody and have moments of despondency and melancholy. For years physicians struggled with this problem.

"At last this newer form of iron was discovered and was immediately adopted by thousands of physicians with wonderful results. It is an iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Physicians found that in this form it was quickly assimilated by the blood and the anaemic patient in almost every case gained new strength, health and energy within two weeks' time.

"In my own practice I have used the newer form of iron, which can be obtained from any druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron, with unfailing results."

Dr. E. Sauer, a prominent New England physician says: "The most astounding thing in the practice of medicine is to see how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without iron, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you the proper amount of good. You do not get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking."

If you are not strong and well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.



I first compounded this newer form of iron for my own friends and neighbors. Since then it has achieved such remarkable results that today iron in the newer form is prescribed by thousands of physicians everywhere, instead of the old metallic irons. The greatest curse to the health, strength and vitality of the American woman of today is anaemia—iron deficiency. Every woman who is weak, nervous or run-down, owes it to herself to take Nuxated Iron.

"You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women full of Life, Vim and Vitality."

EMIL SAUER, M.D.

NOTE—This newer form of iron, known as Nuxated Iron, which is recommended by Dr. Sullivan, Dr. Sauer, and other physicians, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. For the protection of physicians and the public against inferior substitutes Nuxated Iron is put up in tablet form only, with the letters N. I. on every tablet and the words "Nuxated Iron" stamped into each bottle. The publishers of American newspapers who guarantee their advertisements are able to assure you that the manufacturers of Nuxated Iron are so reliable that they will refund the purchase price to any purchaser merely on his own statement that he is not satisfied with the results. You cannot afford not to give it a trial. Sold by all good druggists, including: Buck & Rayner, Inc.; Walgreen Co., Inc.; Economical Drug Co.; Bloch & Weiner; Owl Drug Co.; Hillman's, Inc.; Public Drug Co.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

It Requires Tact.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have a boy friend whom I admire immensely. As he is bashful, kindly tell me how I can encourage his attentions without seeming too forward. I am 19.

"TROUBLED."

Handling a bashful boy requires a skill peculiarly its own, does it not, Troubled? But you must be sure it is bashfulness before you proceed. Sometimes we women read diffidence in place of an interest not as keen as our own, mayhap. But if it is bashfulness, you can with an easy manner and an unmistakable interest shorten the distance between you, remembering that even bashful boys like to feel they are making the advances. That's where the cleverness of woman enters. If she takes the initiative she must allow him to believe he is doing it; by a subtle hint or suggestion now and then as to places to go, letting him extend the invitation spontaneously; a confiding remark that he is good fun to be with.

No Harm in Trying.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have had a little trouble, and I thought that probably you could print this in the paper so that I would know what to do.

"I went with a girl about a year ago, when I was bashful. She told me I better not see her any more. I suppose it was because I was so bashful that she told me that.

"Now, I am much in love with this girl and would like to know if it would be all right if I wrote and asked her if I could call, as I am over my bashfulness now. Please advise me, Miss Blake, as I love her so. JOHNNY."

Yes, Johnny, write to her. There's no harm in doing it anyway. Better decide your fate right off. If she does not answer you will have to accept her decision as final. Why not ask her to a show or a dance or something like that, by way of establishing your new found self-possession? Here's hoping you win her.

All a Poor Girl Can Do.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow dearly, but he does not seem to notice it. How can I show him I love him? And how can I find out if her loves me? Please, dear Miss Blake, answer me. M. M."

He is the only one who can make you believe he loves you, dear. Perhaps if you made him acquainted with your deep feelings for him, it would do you an ill turn. It often does work out that way. About all a poor girl can do when she loves like that is to hope. O, yes, and keep herself looking her prettiest and acting her best when he is about and slipping him a word now and then about what a wonderful chap he is; not too brazenly, although men appear to withstand a powerfully big dose of flattery coming from worshipful lips.

The Barber's Guarantee

WE RECEIVED a letter from a barber in North Dakota who makes a cash guarantee to stop falling hair. The letter states that he has treated many cases with Sergeant's Mange Medicine and has been successful in every case.

For 41 years Sergeant's has been relieving hair troubles by relieving scalp troubles. Sergeant's is a scientific combination of sulphuretted pure natural oils which promotes scalp health and stops itching. It not only heals the scalp tissues and helps to overcome the microbes that prey on the hair bulbs and cause the hair to fall out, but also stimulates the hair roots. Then the hair stops falling out and usually grows long, thick and lustrous. Take a bottle of Sergeant's home today—satisfaction guaranteed or money back. Doctors recommend Sergeant's. Barbers apply it.

The GENERAL FURNITURE COMPANY enjoys the good will and patronage of over a half million satisfied customers

4-Burner Combination Range. Sold on approval; guaranteed to give complete satisfaction under all circumstances; an excellent baker; burns either coal or gas.

$88.75

The name GENERAL FURNITURE CO. is known to every man, woman and child in Chicago. The heads of the majority of the city's families either now are or have at some time or other been patrons of the General's stores. If the shoppers that daily visit the different branches of the General were to confine their buying to one house, it would require a building two blocks square and eight stories high to accommodate them. The next time you need furniture it will pay you to drop in at some one of the General's ten big stores and have a salesman quote you prices. If you have never been in a General Furniture Co. store before you will meet with a real surprise; you will find a better grade of merchandise than you have been accustomed to seeing in ordinary furniture houses, and the prices will be much more reasonable because of the great quantities needed to supply the General's enormous patronage—quantity buying means lower wholesale costs to us, which, in turn, spells lower retail prices to you.

POPULAR OVERCOAT STYLES.

NEW YORK. — Special Correspondence.]—The only difference between the topcoat of the fall and the overcoat of winter is the greater weight of the latter and greater tendency towards looseness. For although most fall models were of straight full lines, there were a number of fitted or semi-fitted styles. When it becomes cold a fitted coat not only does not look as warm as a big loose one, but it actually is not. Even the conservative standard Chesterfield, of which there are always a certain number, is built in the winter upon generous proportions, and is more of a box coat than fitted.

Overcoats have changed but little from last season. Possibly there are even more of the soft fabrics to be seen and colors may be lighter, but the general run towards easy and big lines is the same. The greatcoat, or ulster, is not as often seen as in the past. Men have found that this coat cannot be a successful only coat for the season, as it is too informal and stormlike a garment for an all around purpose.

But for a man who has a dressy overcoat and wants one for blustery days or for motoring, or for the man who is going to invest in two coats, the greatcoat is recommended, as it is a little longer around the legs and sometimes comes, as I saw it the other day, with an extra quilted silk yoke lining. This same coat, which was with half belt, as are the ultsers worn by the majority of best dressed men, had besides the quilted lining added protection in the sleeves, in the form of wind shields, an arrangement which fits tight about the wrist. Everything about the coat was big—big collar, big lapels, etc.

Practically every heavy overcoat is double breasted. However, the short stout man who doesn't want to look any stouter and who doesn't feel the necessity for the added warmth of the double breasted model can find what he wants in a single breasted. The Chesterfields are generally of the single breasted cut.

The left hand figure in the illustration is wearing one of the most favored coats of the well dressed man. It is the plain box model, with plenty of room, yet neat looking. It has flap pockets with large flaps, and in this particular coat there is an extra pocket on one side for change. There is no belt on this coat.

Another style of overcoat popular with the man who wants a coat he can wear for any occasion is one similar to the second figure from the left. This coat has a half belt and patch pockets, plenty of room, and is shorter than an ulster.

The third coat is a great favorite of the majority still—the all round belt and kimono sleeve. This sleeve, along with the raglan, has not left us yet, and, while it is not considered as dressy as the set in sleeve, which is seen on the other coats in the drawing, it has just as good a chance as any to hold its own in men's fashions.

Although the tendency this winter is towards light colors in overcoats, there will always be a great number of men who will wear dark grays and dark blues and browns, which are more becoming to them, or whose quietness they prefer. The softer the material the more expensive the coat is apt to be, as the softest fabrics are the importations from the other side, where they excel in the making of overcoatings. At least, one has always been led to believe that the English coats are more expensive, although the experience of a friend of mine not long ago contradicts the belief in one instance.

This man, after finding a coat in a certain store which fitted his person and his taste, found that it did not fit his pocketbook, the explanation from the salesman being that the coat was expensive because it was English made. Moving on to another store, my friend again found a coat which was just what he wanted, and discovered the price to be well within his means. Because, the salesman explained, the coat was made in England. And so there are two sides to this question, too.

At any rate, soft fabrics are the most in fashion, for the loose boxy coats. The Chesterfields, of course, are made from the same harder goods they have been made from for past years. Fancy plaid backs are exceedingly popular, and take the place of a lining. The plaid back was also originally an English or a Scottish importation. It came over first in the form of blankets, which were a plain color on one side and plaid on the other. After a while these blankets were made into coats, and were called "blanket coats." Thence the plaid back overcoat of today.

There is also a growing demand for all over plaid designs on the business side of the overcoat. But such patterns should be avoided by large men or men who want to look slender, as a plaid or check design does not by any means make one look smaller.

In buying one of the soft finished overcoats one must bear in mind that the material does not always stand as hard wear as the harder goods. The nap wears down and off, and sometimes only down. A suggestion to remedy this is a brush on the market which it is claimed will resurface the worn fabric.

How Miss Jackson secured a better position—

I met her coming home one night on the car.

"What makes you so happy, Mary?" I asked. "Why, you seem like an altogether different girl."

Mary smiled. "I really believe that I am. For once in my life I am gloriously happy with my work.

"One year ago I was just one of a dozen girls in the office. I did one thing one day and another the next. I didn't seem to be getting anywhere. I was drifting.

"Then one day I got interested in a book on filing. It was a revelation. I had never realized before that filing is such an important part of business.

"I wanted to learn more about it, so I wrote to Miss Gladys C. Bridges, the principal of the Illinois School of Filing.

"Two or three days before I finished the course, Miss Gladys C. Bridges came to me and said she already had a position for me. It is a real position, too."

Mary stopped a minute to arrange her new and very becoming hat. Then she asked me if I had ever read the book called "Finding a profession instead of a job."

I said I had not.

Mary wrote the address of the Illinois School of Filing on a piece of paper and handed it to me.

"Write for it today," she said earnestly, "and see if it doesn't appeal to you. Or, if you get a chance, drop in to see Miss Gladys C. Bridges personally at 116 So. Michigan Ave. She will be glad to tell you about the work and its opportunities."

Have Color in Cheeks

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets.

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

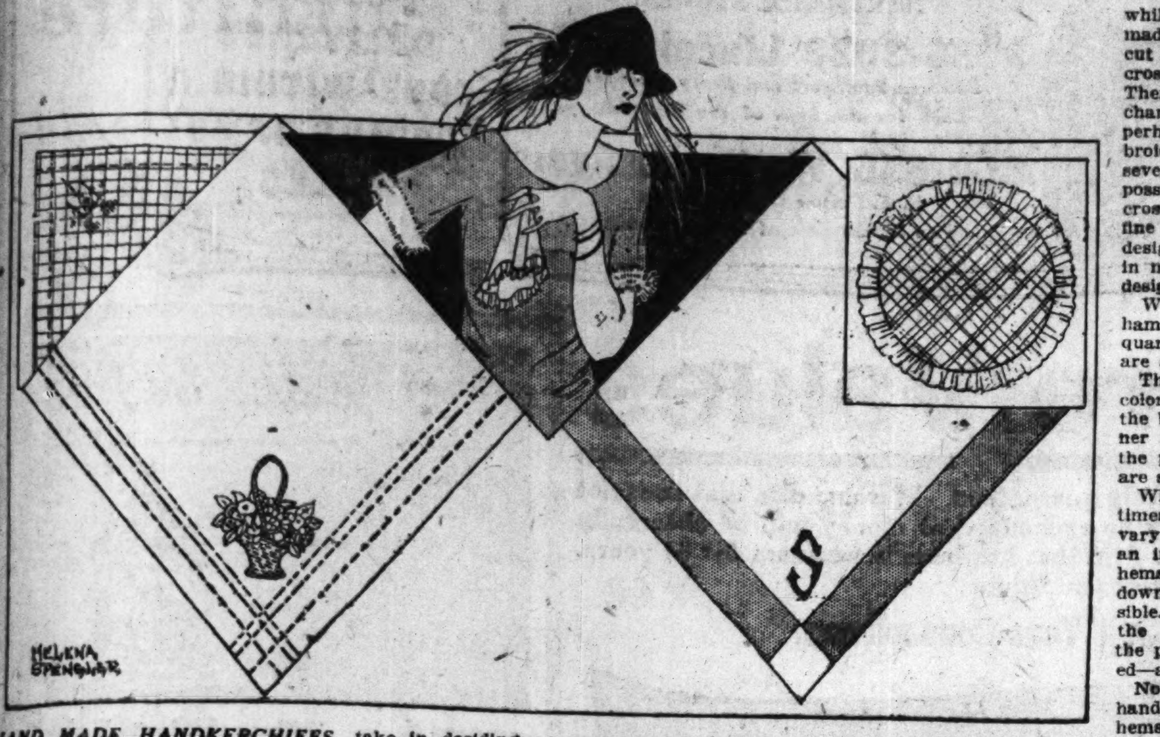
PRACTICAL AND FANCY NEEDLEWORK

BY CLOTILDE



HAND MADE HANDKERCHIEFS.

FANCY handkerchiefs seem to be more popular than ever, and wonderfully attractive ways of making them are seen everywhere. For a gift at Christmas or any other time, nothing is much more acceptable than handkerchiefs, and there is hardly a chance of making a mistake in deciding on one or several, as the case may be.

One of the newest is made of cross barred organdie—this cross bar comes in several sizes, the design varying a little in each one. The handkerchiefs are cut perfectly round, about nine inches in diameter. The edge is rolled, as narrowly as possible; and to this is whipped an inch wide footing, in the same or a contrasting color.

One sees many of these organdie handkerchiefs in white, with rose, pale green, light or dark blue, or tan ruffles; sometimes a delicate buff, apricot or gray is used for the handkerchief instead of white, and the ruffle will match the handkerchief in color.

The finest French ginghams in tiny checks are used a great deal, and while there are circular handkerchiefs made of ginghams, most of them are cut square. The edges are rolled and cross stitched in any desired color. Then in one corner one sees the most charming tiny baskets of flowers, or perhaps some conventional design embroidered in cross stitch—as a rule several colors being employed. It is possible to buy transfer designs in cross stitch, although if one can buy fine enough canvas one can copy any design—and charming ones are shown in many of the books of cross stitch designs.

While the tiniest pin checked gingham seems especially appropriate, the quarter and half inch wide checks are also shown.

Then there are colored linens with colored threads drawn in—perhaps as the base of a half inch hem; one corner may be fancifully decorated. In the picture accompanying this article are some good ideas.

White linen handkerchiefs sometimes have colored hems, and these vary in width from three-quarters of an inch to an inch in width. These hems are run on by hand, and hemmed down, with as small stitches as possible. Usually these colored hems have the corners set in of the white—the picture will show what is intended—and they are most attractive.

Nothing is lovelier than an all white handkerchief of the finest linen with hemstitched hem and either a single letter beautifully embroidered or a monogram—or perhaps some small design instead of an initial.

The Queerest Boss I Ever Had

> There are good bosses and bad bosses, and then again there are bosses who are just queer. Will you ever be able to forget the queerest boss you ever had? The perplexities, and the frowns, and the laughs he caused you? Was it his attire that yielded the comedy? Some odd personal habit? Some eccentricity that reduced you to despair? Write out your story, using one side of the paper only and telling it as briefly as possible and send it to the Queerest Boss Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter published.

As if She Didn't Know.

My boss used to tell me the punctuation of the letters which he dictated. After every paragraph he would, without fail, open the top drawer of his desk, take out the always present package of tobacco, make a cigaret, smoke exactly three puffs, and away went the cigaret. Then he'd jump up from his chair, walk to the window, and, after staring out for a few seconds, turn around with such speed as to make me jump, and fiercely begin dictating the next paragraph. As soon as he finished, he would start the above procedure all over again. He usually threw away about fifty or sixty home made cigarets each time he dictated, which, thank goodness, was only once a day. S. D.

She Stayed Nine Days.

The queerest boss I ever had possessed many peculiarities. For about eight years I passed this man's place of business, and there seemed to be a perpetual sign in the window, "Female Stenographer Wanted." This caused much comment in the neighborhood and my curiosity finally led me to apply for the position. I stayed there nine days, during which time I learned many things. At first I was amused, but later became like the rest of the clerks—filled with contempt for the boss.

We were all at our desks before 8 in the morning, and when 5 p. m., the quitting hour, arrived, the boss would come leisurely upstairs to sign the mail, and kept the force there correcting what he considered errors. Every one stood around waiting. He was not educated, but he managed to find what he insisted were mistakes, and he exercised his lungs in telling us all about them. He acted like an infuriated person all the time he was in the office and the only time I ever heard him laugh was when he could do so at some one else's expense.

In the morning he watched us hang up our wraps in the wardrobe, and waited to see that we closed the door. He watched us approach our desks and one morning glared at me while I tugged at mine, for the lock would invariably catch and it was troublesome. After a few moments he strode over angrily and told me I was the most incompetent person he had ever seen and told me to watch him open the desk.

He tugged and tugged and finally broke the lock, and then he exploded wrathfully, "Now see what you've done," to me, the innocent bystander.

I told him I would not work for a man like him and said I wanted to quit at once. He calmed down and told me the less I said around that place the better off I would be.

One day one girl left her tennis shoes at the office and hurried back for them, but she fled without them, for prowling around the waste paper baskets, she spied the boss. All clerks folded waste paper and carried it home in their pockets. The boss liked to see empty baskets.

He growled if we turned on lights, even when we needed them. On one occasion the bookkeeper turned on the big light in the center of the room and later when the boss came in he thought we did not need it and told the bookkeeper he would compel him to pay the light bills if he could not be more economical.

Another time he noticed me working with my notes at my left. He reached over and banged my book on the right hand side of the desk, saying, "Keep your work on this side so I can see what you're doing."

When I went into his private office immediately afterward to tell him I would not work there any longer he tried to hold my hand while he explained that if he did not scold me once in a while the rest of the force would resent it. I tried to tell him I thought he would get better results from every one if he acted more like a gentleman, but he would allow no one to talk to him—he did all the talking.

Another trait he had was that he would not say how much he would pay any one. I wondered for nine days how much I would receive for my service, and when he presented me with my check he glared at me and asked if I thought I would be satisfied. I told him I would not be down in the morning—that it was more economical for me to stay at home. C. S.

Strange and Unusual.

The queerest boss I ever had was one who always figured out strange and unusual ways of traveling, but never used them. One time he had to go to Cincinnati, and spent days planning to go first to St. Louis, and then by steamboat down the Mississippi river to Cairo; then by another boat up the Ohio to Cincinnati. He spent so much time figuring that he had finally to travel direct on a fast train. Another time he had to go to Indianapolis and he planned to go by lake steamer to St. Joseph, thence by trolley to Goshen, by another trolley to Peru, by another trolley to Kokomo, and by a fourth trolley to Indianapolis. Of course he ended up by traveling by railroad. M. E.

Beauty Answers by Antoinette Donnelly

> What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

CAROL G.: THESE EXERCISES I recommend either for developing or reducing the bust. Stand with feet about eighteen inches apart, arms extended full length. Begin to describe circles with the hands, moving from the shoulder muscles. Start with small circles, then increase to ones of great circumference. First, do ten times with hands starting forward, then ten times with hands starting circle on backward movement of the hands. Another: Take same standing position. Bring hands up until the finger points almost meet over the chest and shoulder to elbows are in almost straight line. Then fling arms wide with quick, sharp movement. Repeat ten times. I have several other particularly good exercises for the bust which I think you need. Send s. a. e., please.

EVELYN: THE TROUBLE WITH you, Evelyn, is your gross indulgence in self-pity—a real crime, too, when you think how miserable it makes you and how unhappy it must make your family and friends to have to listen to your complaints. There is one thing about this business of being beautiful which daily impresses me more forcefully. The great art is not in bemoaning what you haven't but praising Allah for what you have and setting about to make them an offering on his altar. Women who are physically perfect, absolutely perfect, are rare, very, very rare. Yet the world seems peopled with lovely women, because the majority of them make the best of what they have and spend no foolish hours reddening the nose and eyelids with salty tears because they are not like magazine covers.

Corns
Lift Right Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Be Sure to Eat Plenty

If Troubled With Sour, Gassy Stomach Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets After Eating.

Just because the stomach gets sour after eating don't scare yourself into starving. Sweeten your stomach with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and tackle the next meal without fear. The average person needs a lot of good food to supply his bulk with sufficient nourishment. And if the food sours from indigestion, give the stomach the alkaline effect it needs and you then keep up your strength. The big, sturdy fellows who tackle the big jobs of life are no stronger than their stomachs, hence Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are really invaluable to anyone inclined to indigestion. Eat what you like, pie, cheese, sausage, pickles, fried eggs or baked beans and let these tablets keep your stomach sweet and comfortable. You can get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets of any druggist.

(A Business Editorial)

WHAT IS FAIR?

Once more we quote Andrew Carnegie:

"A great business is seldom if ever built up, except on the lines of the strictest integrity. A reputation for 'cuteness' and sharp dealing is fatal in large affairs. Not the letter of the law, but the spirit, must be the rule. The standard of commercial morality is now very high. A mistake made by any one in favor of the firm is corrected as promptly as if the error were in favor of the other party.

"It is essential to permanent success that a house should obtain a reputation for being governed by what is fair rather than what is merely legal. A rule which we adopted and adhered to has given greater returns than one would believe possible, namely: 'Always give the other party the benefit of the doubt.'"

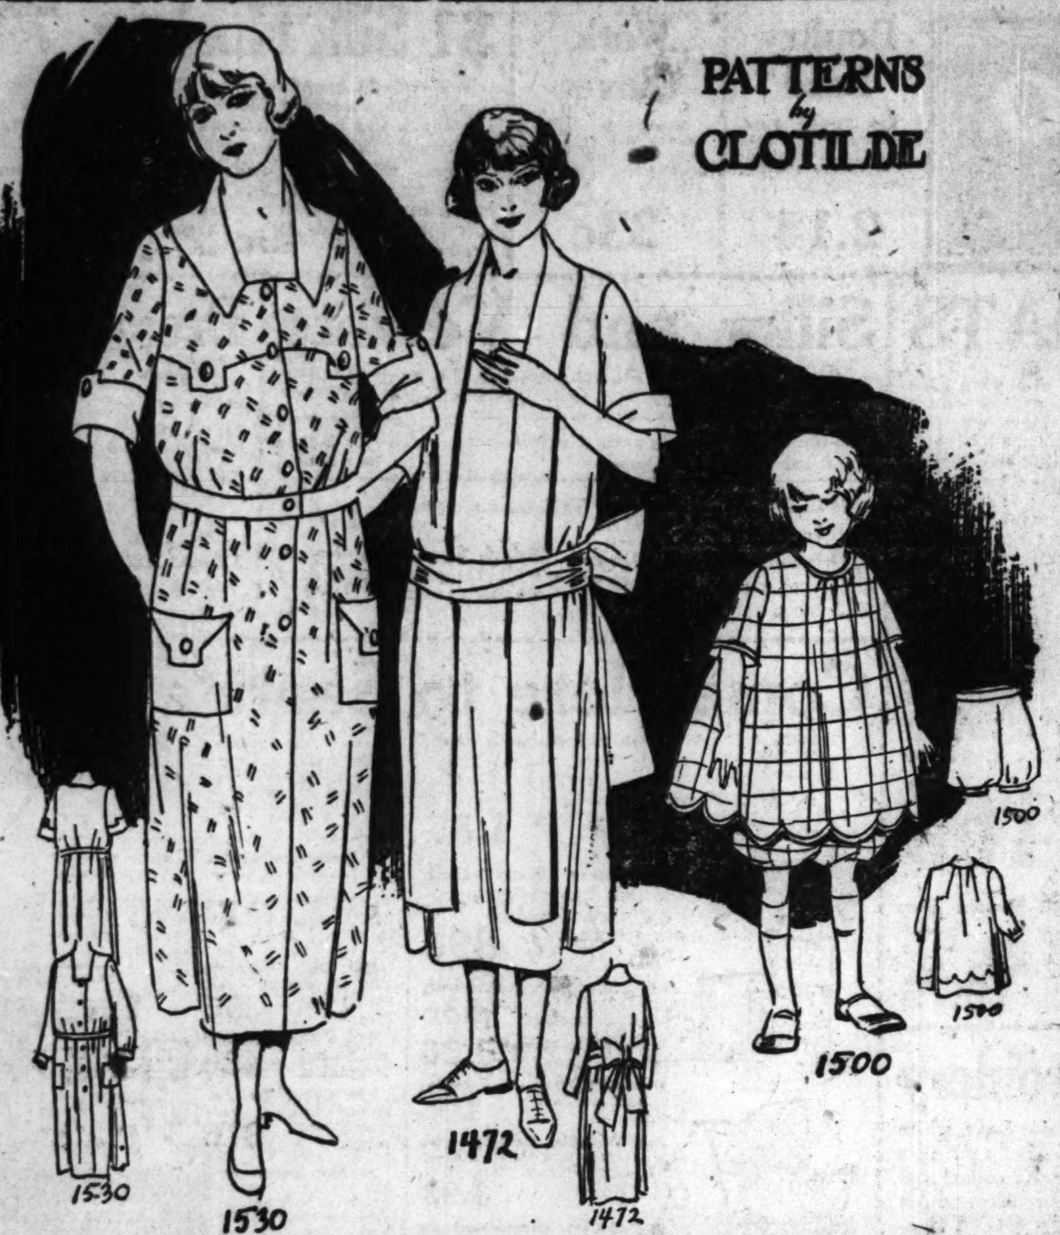
PATTERNS by CLOTILDE



1530—Woman's house dress. Sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material.

1472—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch, or 3¼ yards of 44 inch material.

1500—Child's dress with bloomers. Sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THERE are the two front pieces and one back piece, each cut in one length from neck to hem, to pattern No. 1530. It is a useful one to own, for it can be used for attractive morning or house dresses; while with slight changes in trimming and material will be equally good looking for afternoons. If a light weight material is chosen, French seams will be the best finish. If heavy linen, pongee, velveteen, or some woolen material is chosen, the seams should be bound separately and pressed open.

Percale, gingham, or something similar will make charming morning dresses. A contrasting color could be used for the collar, front yoke, belt, pocket tops, and cuffs. Then, with good pearl buttons, nothing more will be needed to make it attractive.

For a simple dress to wear at home afternoons, linen, taffeta, or any preferred material would look well made by this design. Organdie or georgette could be used for the trimming, and the pockets could be omitted if one chose.

Whether or not the dress is to be made of wash material the finishing of it will be the same.

Buttonholes should be worked on the right side of the dress and eyelets on the left to receive the shank buttons. For a wash dress shank buttons are by far the best to use, for they may be taken out easily when the dress is to be laundered and in that way one avoids having them broken; nor will they lose their luster. For a silk or woolen dress they are fine also. Lovely ones are to be found in a great variety of designs and sizes. Buy small rings to hold the buttons in place, and in working the eyelets, overhand all around, taking shallow stitches close together. Shank buttons put on this way look much better than when sewed on.

Pattern No. 1500 is unusually attractive for a small child. It includes a dress and bloomers that are set into a band at the lower edge of each leg.

Bloomers and dress should be of the same material. If something washable is chosen, there is nothing prettier than chambray. Mercerized poplin is also good looking and satisfactory in every way. It doesn't shrink much, comes in all the lovely shades, and the weight is just right. It should never be starched.

Pongee is a good material; and sometimes one sees these little dresses made of black taffeta, with some bits of embroidery in gay colors judiciously used. Or if the scalloped edge of the skirt is bound in a contrasting color, no embroidery will be necessary.

If pongee and taffeta are not warm enough, wool challis will be a good substitute. It washes well.

The pattern is cut in two pieces—front and back. The pieces gore out towards the bottom quite sharply, giving a decidedly smart flare at the bottom of the skirt. The dress opens on the shoulders and is gathered at the neck edge and set into a band.

The long lines of pattern No. 1472 seem especially well suited to a full figure. However, a slender one will look well in the design.

It is smart, and will make up well in one of the lovely new woolens, crêpes, or satins, depending largely upon when the dress is to be worn. It should not be difficult to make. Be sure to apply your length and width measures to the pattern before laying it on the material. Many women may take the same bust measure, but all other measures will not correspond to the pattern, and it will be far easier and less discouraging to make the alterations on the pattern, than later on, on the dress. The skirt is in one piece, straight and gathered at the waist line. There is a separate waist, with collar and vest, closing on the left side. The sleeves may be long and dart fitted, or short and finished with cuffs. The skirt is joined to the lower edge of the waist and the panel each side of the front of the skirt emphasize the length of line—really looking like a continuation of the collar.

The dress panels will look well if lined with some contrasting color, and that same color and material may be used for trimming elsewhere.

Spoonful for a Penny Brings Quick Relief

Prove splendid laxative properties of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by test

A SCIENTIFIC test has now proven what Dr. Caldwell of Monticello asserted many years ago, that constipation will slow you up fully 25 per cent. The test was made by Dr. Donaldson of Loma Linda upon four men in the prime of life who deliberately went without a bowel movement for four days. Within 48 hours the men had coated tongue and foul breath, cankers in the mouth, no appetite, restless sleep, indigestion, headache, depression, nervousness, cramps. The blood pressure was up 28 per cent. It is just this that Dr. Caldwell has preached to his patients in private and to the public through the printed word ever since he began the practice of his specialty, diseases of the stomach and bowels, back in 1875.

After observing for years the satisfactory effect of his prescription for constipation, he placed it in drug stores in 1892, a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. That was 30 years ago, and today over 10 million bottles are bought annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. You will find it in any drug store you enter, a generous-size bottle costing you less than a cent a dose.

Every member of the family from the infants to the grandparents can use it with safety. It is gentle and mild. The formula is on the package. Mrs. Roy Cook of Bellefontaine, O., has been giving it to her 5-months old baby, who now weighs 19 pounds; and Mr. J. B. Dawson of Brinson, Ga., declares it the best laxative his family has ever found. Try a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for constipation or any of its symptoms. The results will delight you. And the cost is only one cent a dose.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Where Millions of Irons Have Been Built

There the amazing new Dover-DOMANCO—the iron that will not burn out—was created

For twenty-nine years we have been building good irons—in the world's largest exclusive iron manufacturing plant. Thousands of women know that.

Now we offer you the finest iron we have ever created. An iron built on an entirely new principle. An iron in which we have finally succeeded in accomplishing that which every woman has sought in an iron.

An electric iron that will not burn out! This iron is known as the Dover-DOMANCO.

Dover-DOMANCO has five factors of superiority over all other irons ever built. But the greatest of these is the exclusive patented "no-burn-out" Vea heating element. If by any chance your Dover-DOMANCO ever should burn out we authorize any dealer to give you, without charge, a complete new 5-lb. heating unit.

Study the five factors of superiority, then go to your dealer. He will gladly demonstrate these points. Compare the Dover-DOMANCO with any other iron in the world. Consider the value at $5.00—including double-deck stand with curling-iron feature. You will wonder how it is possible to build so good an iron at so low a price.

Your dealer has the answer. Let him tell you.

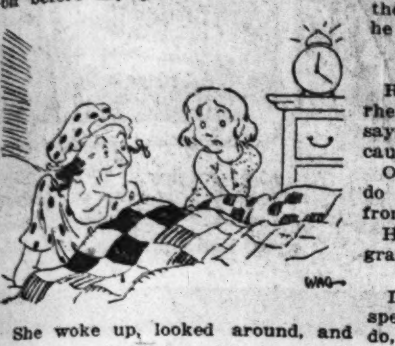
Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Martha went out in the country to visit grandmother, and the alarm went off before daylight.



She woke up, looked around, and said, "Grandmother, what are you celebrating?" L. K. W.

Barbara Rose had been reprimanded and after a few moments' extreme quiet, sighed and earnestly exclaimed, "O, I'll be glad when I is a woman and can boss peoples!" V. M. B.

John saw his father officiate as marshal of his society at some special function in church.

At dinner he said: "Mother, did you know dad has a new job? He is traffic cop in church." C. K.

Charles had partaken so heartily of the evening meal that he felt rather uncomfortable.

After he was ready for bed he said, "I thought it was my clothes that were so tight but I guess it was my skin." D. T.

Willamen's father bought some chickens. The word "leghorn" was repeated so often I thought the child would remember it.

But when a neighbor asked what kind of chickens they were Willamen said, "O, I forget the name, but they're hat chickens." C. C.

Ernest, a spendthrift, borrowed 15 cents from his thrifty sister and was having hard work meeting the payment.

After a particularly unpleasant dunning he managed to pay the last penny, then, drawing a sigh of relief, remarked: "Gee, this is the last time I'll ever get in your owe." O. D.

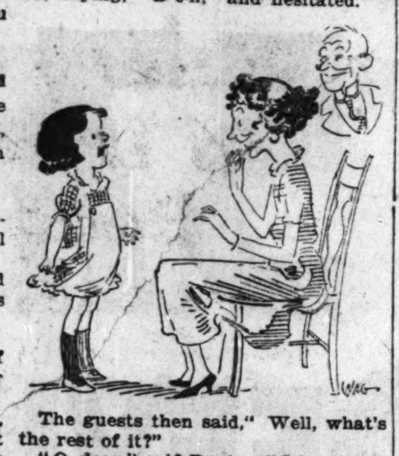
My friend promised her son a brother if he would be a good boy. When the stork arrived he left twin boys, and the youngster announced he guessed he had been too darned good. C. L. W.

Richard's grandmother is subject to rheumatism on cloudy days and often says she thinks it is going to rain, because it is "in her bones."

One day a friend asked, "Richard, do you know where the rain comes from?"

He replied, "O, yes. It comes from grandmother's bones!" E. P.

Denise was asked by some guests to spell her name, which she started to do, saying, "D-e-n," and hesitated.



The guests then said, "Well, what's the rest of it?"

"O, dear," said Denise, "I just can't say the second layer." M. J. M.

Bernadette was visiting at grandma's. When grandma was taking her home, she went down a street that was unfamiliar to the child. Grandma was told she was going the wrong way, but kept right on.

Finally Bernadette said, "All right, grandma, now if you get lost, it is not my blame." B. C.

She Only Turned and Fled.

The only girl in a family of boys is naturally more or les of a tomboy. I played with my brothers continually and indulged in every form of labor connected with farm life despite the efforts of my mother to cultivate in me those so-called ladylike attributes.

One day my brothers were engaged in the absorbing occupation of teasing a cross ram. In turn they stood on the edge of a bank above a deep crank, and by throwing their bodies in various contortions and emitting a series of throaty vowels meant to be war whoops so infuriated the animal that he charged straight at the offender, determined to hurl him over the bank. At the crucial moment the teaser would jump aside and the poor old sheep would splash into the water below.

When the boys dared me to imitate their actions I didn't hesitate but grasped my gingham skirts determinedly and sought to surpass my predecessors in variety and volume of sound. Either I miscalculated distance or sheepie was getting wiser, for after violent contact with an extremely hard object I found myself struggling in the water, amid the delighted shouts of my unsympathetic brothers.

But another punishment was held in trust for me. While attempting to creep into the house unseen I came face to face with some callers from town. Among them was the girl whose name had always been held before me as a paragon—the graceful, ladylike creature I should aspire to be. The tomboy knew no way to get out of an embarrassing situation; she merely turned and fled. W. A. M.

Checking Up on Him.

I invited my brother, his wife and son to visit us. Wilbur, the son, was about 8 years of age, and, like most boys, his capacity for food was unlimited. He would often ask for a third serving, and his parents, feeling that some time he would embarrass them by this, tried to teach him to curb his appetite.

His mother was not quite sure just how much of an impression the talks were making on the young man, but she was soon to know.

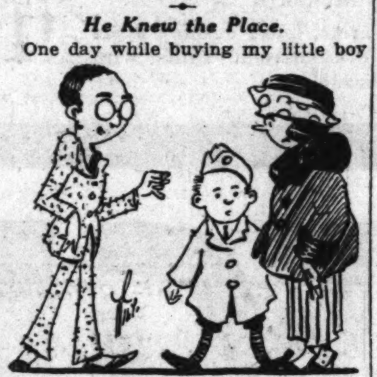
While they were with us a tennis tournament was in progress, and a friend of theirs was one of the contestants. I asked him to dinner one evening, and he said he would be pleased to accept, but was trying to live up to the strict regulations to eat but one full meal a day, which was after the game, and he was usually exceedingly hungry by that time. I assured him that would be quite all right.

At dinner brother passed the rolls a third time, the guest taking one. Wilbur opened his eyes.

"Why, dad," he said, "what do you know about that? That's the third time he has taken rolls." I. D.

He Knew the Place.

One day while buying my little boy an overcoat he tried to persuade me to get him some overalls.



"Why you don't want overalls, son," I said. "You have no work to do. What would you do to soil them?"

"Well, I could put them on and go under our couch!" he said.

Several people in the store began to laugh. M. R.

Walked Right Out Again.

While I was walking home one evening I suddenly became desirous of a smoke. I reached into my pocket for a 5 cent piece, which was all I had. I went into a cigar store.

"Well, what shall it be?" asked the fat, smiling man behind the counter.

"Give me a good 5 cent cigar," said I.

Thereupon the clerk smiled and said, "The cheapest cigar we have is 7 cents." C. O. B.

My Nicest Compliment

What was the nicest compliment you ever received? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Where She Towered.

Jerry and I had known each other for a long time. We had shared many joys, a few sorrows, and exchanged almost all our ideas and confidences. We were not sweethearts, but the best of pals, and of all my boy friends I felt he knew me best.

One day we were passing by many trees, each of which seemed bigger than the previous one. Finally we came to the tallest and straightest tree I'd ever seen.

I stood close to it, looking up, and shortly Jerry, who'd been quietly gazing at me, said, "Betty, did you ever realize that while your stature seems small beside that tree, when it comes to honor, justice, and loyalty, you are big enough to look down at the tallest twig of it?" B. B.

Please Step Forward.

Remember some time ago when a certain actress was proclaimed the most beautiful woman in Movieland?

I said to Friend Husband, "I don't think she's the most beautiful woman, do you?"

His answer came promptly: "No, I think you are!"

Think of that, after thirteen years of married life! Who said marriage is a failure? G. P.

The Reason Why.

I was a sophomore at high school when my brother was a senior. Like many a little sister I was proud of him, as he was good looking and a star on the football team.

One night I came in and sat in the dining room because I knew my brother and a bunch of the boys were in the music room. I heard them laughing and teasing him about not having a girl—as he was the only one on the team not having one. They kept this up for quite a while, and I sat there quietly listening. Then I heard brother say, "Well, it may be the thing for you fellows——" and here a little note of pride crept into his voice—"but what do I want a girl for, when I have the most wonderful little sister in the world for an inspiration." F. G.

Better Late than Never.

After working eight years as secretary to a veritable crab, who had tried eighteen stenographers the year before I came, I announced my intention to leave, as I was about to be married, but he went into such a fit of rage I thought it was the end of both of us. However, the new girl came and I remained two weeks longer than I had planned to train her satisfactorily. To my surprise the day before the wedding I received a gift with note attached.

"You are about to embark on a great adventure. The greatest of your life. Whether you sail smooth seas and drop anchor at some isle of sunshine, or whether you steer in stormy waters and are shipwrecked on the isle of desolation, depends on you and the other fellow. Knowing your good judgment, I feel your life will be one of happiness. It was splendid of you to have sacrificed those last two weeks of your single life for an old crab like me. You were an excellent employé. We will be unable to replace you for some time. When I went off on a tangent and made life miserable around the office you maintained your equilibrium splendidly. I liked you for that. You have my best wishes for the happiness I know will be yours." C. J. M.

Fond of Mother-in-Law.

I feel my nicest compliment came from my daughter-in-law. After a rather protracted visit with my son and his wife, the latter on my departure said, "Oh, I hate to see you go. The longer you stay the harder it is to have you leave. J. P.

MOTHER! BREAK CHILD'S COLD WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Hurry! Move Little Bowels with this Harmless Laxative

Whatever else you give your child to relieve a bad cold, sore throat or congestion, be sure to first open the little one's bowels with "California Fig Syrup" to get rid of the poisons and waste which are causing the cold and congestion. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works the constipation poison, sour bile and waste right out.

Even if you call your family physician he will praise you for having given "California Fig Syrup" as the laxative because it never fails, never cramps or overacts, and even sick children love its pleasant taste.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

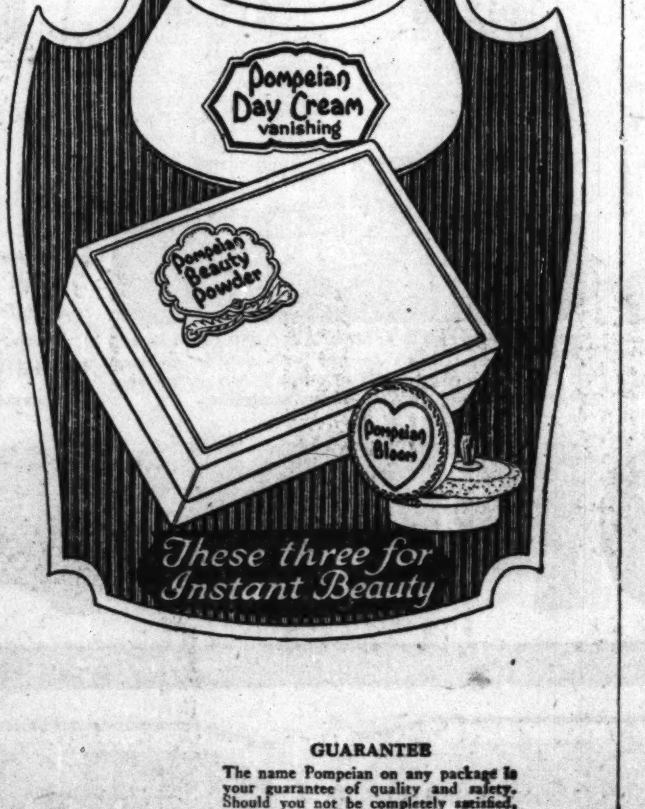
Pompeian Beauty Powder

Why is he fascinated?



SUCH bewitching loveliness, such glorious beauty—no wonder he is fascinated. The rich, youthful color of her radiant skin but emphasizes the tenderness her eyes betray. You, too, should learn her secret of girlish charm and lasting beauty—she uses the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette."

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly. Then apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance. Now a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty? Lastly, dust over again with the powder, in order to subdue the Bloom. Presto! The face is beautified and youth-i-fied in an instant! (Above 3 preparations may be used separately or together. At all druggists, 60c each.)

TRY NEW POWDER SHADES. The correct powder shade is more important than the color of dress you wear. Our new NATURELLE shade is a more delicate tone than our Flesh shade, and blends exquisitely with a medium complexion. Our new RACHEL shade is a rich cream tone for brunettes.

Safeguard Their Health By Electric Cleaning!

Electrical outlets mean convenience and economy; convenience because with one or more outlets in each room in your house you can utilize an electric cleaner or other electrical appliance, to the greatest possible advantage; economy because electrical energy properly applied eliminates work, worry, dust and dirt, conserving human strength and the freshness and beauty of furniture, rugs, carpets and tapestries.

It is only possible by the development of your electric light and power company which in turn makes possible the proper development of your community.

IF every Mother knew the danger to her children that lurks in dirt infested rugs and floor coverings, she'd not sleep until they were as clean as only the electric vacuum cleaner can clean them.

Dirt has no place in the home, no more than disease and sickness. Where there are youngsters it must be fought as a pernicious evil! But because it is not always visible, many housewives believe themselves free from it. Nevertheless, it is present, lurking in floor coverings, hiding in hidden corners, cracks and crevices, breeding disease, vermin and contagion.

The floor is the natural indoor playground for the kiddies and their household pets. Rugs and carpets collect all the hairs, lint and litter, as well as the tracked-in grit. This is ground under foot, deep into the web, along with the germs that thrive on foreign matter. Sweeping, beating, shaking the old way, only dislodges surface dirt, scattering it about the house, while driving the fine minute particles of grit and grime still deeper into the fabric.

Only the electric vacuum cleaner removes this embedded germ infested dirt, without injury to the nap or fabric. Only the electric cleaner cleans away all foreign matter without raising dirt storms. Only electric vacuum cleaning brightens and renews coverings, upholsterings and furnishings, while prolonging their life, enhancing their beauty, safeguarding precious young lives by making the home hygienically clean. Considered from every viewpoint, no other method of cleaning ever devised is so easy, simple, thorough and economical.

Any dealer or lighting company will gladly prove all this to you, without obligation, if you'll telephone or call.

There is an attachment for your electric vacuum cleaner which removes all germ-laden dust, and keeps your library fresh and clean!

Convenient Four Room Model for Those Who Want a Small House

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By Anita de Campi.

ALTHOUGH fall days are now upon us, there is no need to postpone until next year the construction of the new home which has been contemplated. On the contrary, there are many reasons why it is better for the prospective home owner to go ahead with his plans at once, before heavy and penetrating frosts set in.

In the first place, the rush to complete buildings for October leases is over; builders are less busy; there are more to select from, and their bids show the effect of competition. They also are able to give contracts more individual attention. It is quite probable that the construction will take less time than it would in the spring or early summer when contractors are usually overwhelmed with orders. Instead of scattering their forces on a great many houses [because of the clamor for action] they can concentrate a full quota of men on each job, give each closer supervision, and expedite the work.

Then again, when work is slack, they are more inclined to take orders for new buildings at a lower figure, in order to keep the select men in their organization together as long as possible.

Building should not be left till next year with the expectation that prices of building materials will be lower. On the contrary, the boosting of coal prices, due to the recent strike, is now felt all along the line, and prices of all materials of construction are already on the rise, to absorb the increased cost of production.

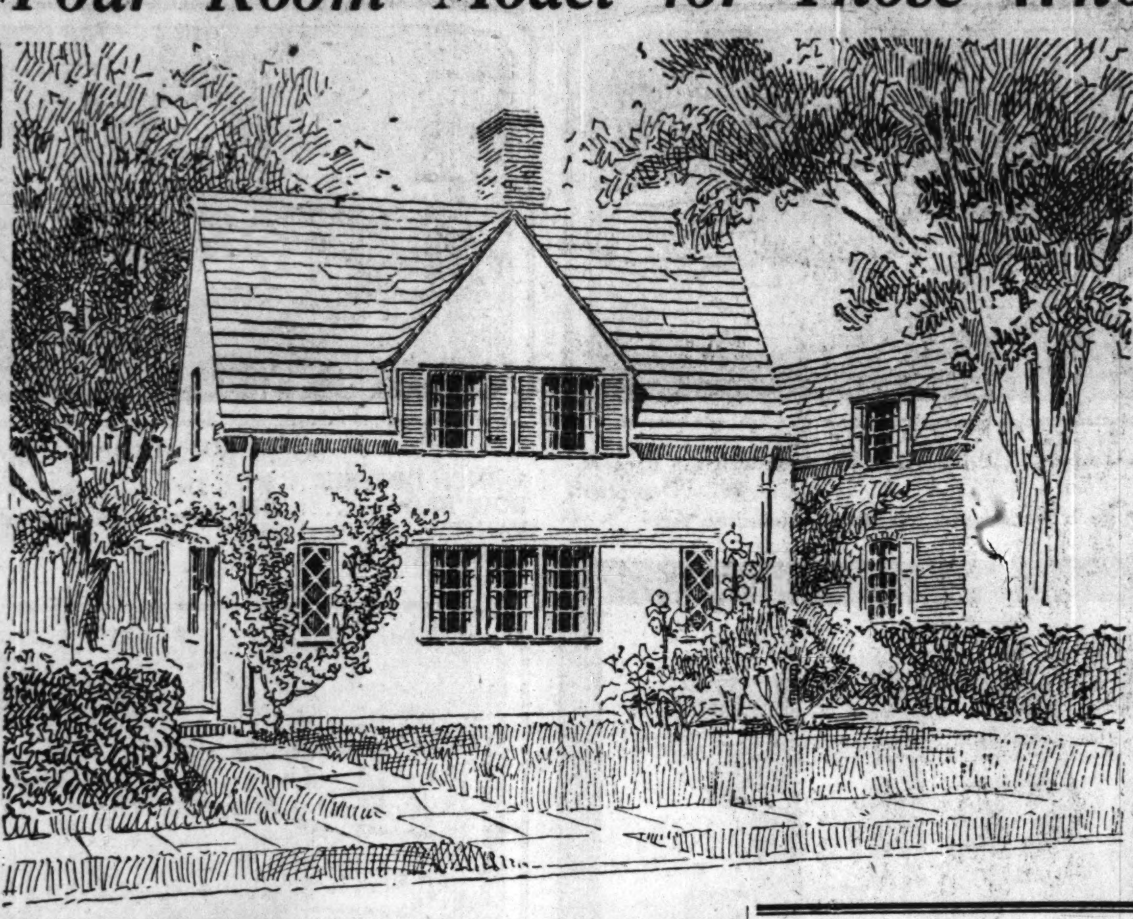
Cold weather is only a slight physical handicap to construction nowadays. In concrete and stucco work (which is affected most by low temperature) materials such as sand, stone, and water are heated so that the concrete will harden before freezing. Subsequent freezing weather will do no harm. Further protection is given new concrete work by canvas covers and portable heaters.

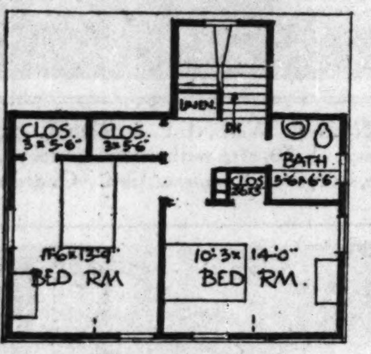
Although foundation walls of concrete can be poured in below zero weather, with the above precautions, it is not advisable to apply cement stucco exteriors under these conditions, and these should, therefore, be rushed to completion before that time. Cement stuccoing should be done only when it is known beforehand that the temperature will not likely drop below freezing. When there is even the slightest chance of a drop in temperature the work must be covered and kept warm. By all odds, the best thing to do then is to wait for warmer weather.

With the walls up and the roof over, it is a simple matter for the windows to be temporarily boarded up and made tight with building paper. Then, by the aid of stoves or portable heaters, enough heat is available for comfortable working, and for preventing frost damage to plastered walls or tile floors. These will take a little longer to dry out than in warm weather, but once dry, all of the inside trim and decorating can be rushed to completion.

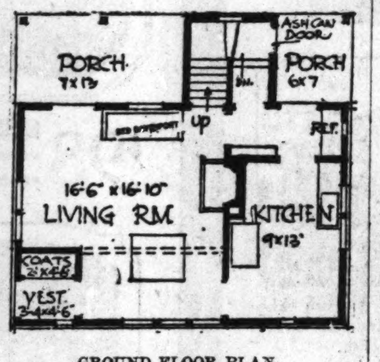
The small four room house illustrated today, has various unique design features which will interest the plan seeker. It is really small, being only 18x27 feet in plan, and being two story, is most economically constructed.

An unbroken full expanse of the front of the house greets the eye, as the entrance is at the side. This arrangement is advisable for the small home. It leaves an impression of greater width than if it be cut up by a front porch and entrance.





SECOND FLOOR PLAN.



GROUND FLOOR PLAN.

Just inside the doorway is a convenient coat closet. From the vestibule one steps into a combination living and dining room, with a wide cased opening. The dining table and chairs are ordinarily placed at one side, except when guests are expected. This provides a living room considerably larger than those in average apartments. A generous fireplace, with a raised hearth, is the center of attraction for the room. On a chilly evening its radiant heat sends a glow of comfort, making the home cheery indeed.

Convention is discarded in placing the dining table close to the entrance. However, when placed there, it is most handily served from the kitchen, and does not disturb the arrangement of furniture in the living room proper. The living room has a hardwood floor, mahogany stained trim, and handsome casement windows.

The kitchen is comfortably large, so that there is room for a breakfast table and chairs or benches. It is not over large, however, and does not impose needless work on the housewife. Besides being conveniently accessible to both front and rear doors, it has a small service room, or pantry, adjoining. Here there are pantry shelves and an outside iced refrigerator.

Upstairs there are two bedrooms and a bath, three clothes closets, and a linen closet. Each bedroom has plenty of light and is well ventilated.

The basement is rather small but, despite this fact, there is space for the furnace room and a separate fuel room, for vegetable storage, and for a laundry with a three piece wash tub. Each of these rooms is separately inclosed, by dust tight partitions up to the ceiling, and the whole basement ceiling over the furnace and fuel rooms is plastered on metal lath, to insure fire safety.

As respects the exterior Architect Olaf W. Shelgren of Buffalo has specified rough cast warm gray stucco, with exterior woodwork stained a cypress, dull green. A small stucco house such as this is economically constructed of concrete block, back plastered metal lath, or hollow clay tile. Undoubtedly an interesting feature is the absence of wasteful hallways. This affords a compact and useful arrangement of rooms, with all of the convenient, small housekeeping details, as well as the important larger ones.

Answers to Queries.

L. P.: A four poster bed, lowboy with suspended mirror, a commode, a slipper chair, and a colonial wing chair would furnish your bedroom. Peony rep can be had at almost any department store.

M. M. R.: Have ecru voile glass curtains with bright, flowered glazed chintz for over drapes in both living rooms. Use parchment lamp shades, with bands of colors corresponding to those in the chintz at top and bottom. Use ecru curtains, gathered on rods at top and bottom, at the window in the door and the one on the landing in your hall. A pair of good looking electric candlesticks with parchment shields would be nice on the console table. Not knowing the color of the trim on your house it would be difficult for me to advise color for shades.

* *

J. C. C.: Use deep taupe chenille rugs in your living and dining rooms. Have the drapes in the dining room match the rose color of those in the living room.

* *

A. P.: With the drapes and furnishings that you have, two toned ecru wallpaper and a taupe chenille rug would be nice. Overstuffed furniture in striped velour, combining taupe and mulberry, would harmonize. Have old gold lamp shades.

* *

O. C. K.: Wicker, fiber, or painted furniture is quite suitable for a sun porch. With the things you have, Delft blue would be attractive. An ecru and black fiber rug, in large alternating squares, would be appropriate. Use jade pink for drapes and spread in your bedroom. Have damson silk lamp shades. Have a taupe rug in the northwest room.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How to Get Relief When Head and Nose Are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Relief is sure.

Makes pancakes much more of a treat

AN ADDED air of expectancy hovers over the preparations for a pancake breakfast in homes where Mayflower Syrup is used. Once you've tasted it you'll know why.

Mayflower Syrup isn't merely sweet. It is rich with the flavor of real Vermont Maple. The fullest flavored product is gathered for it from the sugar camps right nearby where it is made. Vermonters who have had long experience in making maple-syrup devote all their skill to its blending.

By the addition of refined granulated sugar Mayflower Syrup is made a trifle more syrupy, but it is very carefully measured, so as not to risk losing the true flavor of the maple.

Mayflower Syrup comes in either cans or bottles in pint and quart sizes. Half-gallons, gallons and five gallons are put up in cans only, the gallon holding a full eleven pounds. This means that a pint is a lot more than a pound, and it is very reasonably priced. To be sure of getting full measure, buy Mayflower.

Buy just a pint or a quart of Mayflower Syrup, to try. In those sizes it comes either in cans or bottles. That will be enough to show you it really does make pancakes taste better than ever. But afterwards you'll want one of the larger cans so that you can use it often for desserts, as well as on pancakes and waffles. Your grocer has it or can get it for you.

Green Mountain Boy

PERHAPS you have thought it no longer possible to procure pure maple sap syrup, or maple sugar. It is rarely to be found, but if you ask for the Green Mountain Boy Brand you'll get the real old-fashioned kind — entirely the product of Vermont maples.

Soft maple sugar is also put up in cans under this name and a wonderful delicacy called Maple Sugar Cream, made exclusively by the Welch Bros. Maple Co. It is in the form of a smooth paste, with the "grain," which is characteristic of maple sugar, removed—perfect for fillings, icings and candy.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

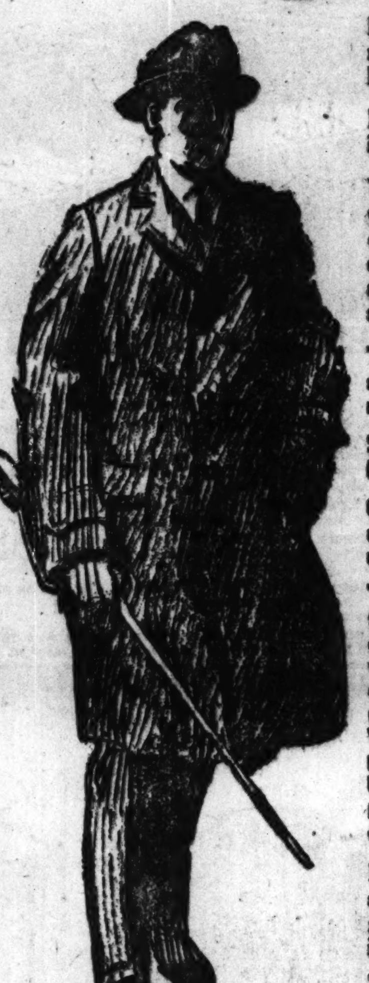
MEN'S ALL WOOL OVERCOATS

$5.90 $6.90 $7.90



Hundreds of customers have remarked that they don't see how we can do it!

It does seem impossible, but it's true!

You can secure here an all wool Overcoat for $5.90, $6.90 or $7.90 that we know is the equal of any $25.00 Overcoat, and not surpassed by those selling at $35.00 and up.

They're up to the minute in style, fit, length, quality, and material.

Styles for young and old—for you and me—

Good enough for anybody, and priced so that the poorest need not go without.

The business man as well as the laborer, the salesman, the office man, the out-door man, will find here a style in an overcoat to suit him—they're made of Government ALL WOOL material and tested by the Bureau of Standards, United States Appraiser's Office, as being over 96% pure wool.

It's, in our opinion, the most sensational offering of high grade Overcoats ever shown in Chicago.

We suggest that even out of curiosity you come in and at least look at them.

GOOD morning!

Ever been present at a sin flood? You don't know what you've missed. And you will have missed something else that you really shouldn't, if you don't manage by hook or crook to see this picture of a most peculiar title that was gathering in the idle and the curious at the Rose last week.

"Now just WHAT," thought everybody, "IS a sin flood?"

It only costing 28 cents to find out, practically every eager inquirer fished out the wherewithal and went in to become wise. (If the review is funny or anything today blame it on the typewriter. Something's wrong with mine, and I'm using one that belongs to a rewrite man. It's cross-eyed—that is, the letters are turned every which way. The keyboard looks like the Greek alphabet—SO—blame the typewriter if you have any stones to throw.)

RICHARD DIX.

To go back to the original subject—"sin floods" are unusual, improbable, but not at all impossible. All of which means nothing in your young lives at the present moment, but will after I have told you the story.

Cottonia, where the scenes of the picture are laid, was a vurr' wicked town down south. The bulls and bears in the stock exchange were always double crossing each other; brokers' clerks went out with ladies of the chorus; crooked contractors bribed office holders to put an O. K. on levees that weren't safe; barkeepers refused free lunch to bar flies. Down-and-outers followed a poor but earnest street preacher, and, after he had finished his talks, took up a collection—for themselves.

A perfectly TERRIBLE town was Cottonia!

Voice of One Crying in Vain.

HELENE CHADWICK.

The preacher mentioned was a pathetic soul, whose love for liquor had cost him his pulpit and the respect of fellow humans. But he could not forget that he had a message, and on the street corners he cried to the people of their sins and warned them of a deluge that would certainly overtake them unless they repented.

A devastating storm came. Word was flashed down from hill construction camps that the levees were giving way. Telephone girls worked frantically warning the people of Cottonia to run for their lives.

To get out of the fierce rain certain persons dashed into a popular saloon with a "Ladies' Entrance." They included well known brokers who were business enemies, a young broker who, after acquiring wealth, had left a girl of the stage when she most needed him to become the fiancé of the daughter of his partner; the down-and-outers who had cashed in on the teachings of the preacher; the

Chicago Opera Goes Into New Era Amid High Hopes and Expectations

By Edward Moore.

OPERA in its new or civic manifestation is, it would seem, to be introduced next week with the last degree of high tension that exists in the company as it is now organized. One reads of works that have taken a high place in the esteem of the public; of a novelty; of the debuts of such artists as Ina Bourskaya, Cesare Formichi, and Angelo Minghetti; of the return of singers with established, brilliant reputations, like Mary Garden, Rosa Raisa, and Edith Mason; of Giorgio Polacco, famous as a mighty man of the baton; of Richard Hageman and Ettore Panizza, who approach the conductor's stand amid high expectations.

MARY GARDEN.
Appearing in "Carmen" on Tuesday night.
[Moffett photo.]

All this is to happen in the first week. Later there will be other announcements calculated to arouse public interest, but the first six performances of the season are enough to make one believe in advance that the new system of giving opera bids fair to attract considerable attention.

It has been told times without mention how operatic reorganization has been put upon a civic basis, how 2,200 citizens of Chicago registered their belief that opera was a good thing for the city, and did it in the highly practical form of putting their names opposite guaranty obligations of varying amounts so that the company could safely operate for the next five years. This was a splendid thing, the only possible solution of a difficult problem. Not that the guaranty fund in itself was enough. The directors of the new company quickly realized that the only way to make opera permanent was to make it popular, to present opera in a manner to make the public desirous of hearing it. Time will tell whether they have reached their mark. In advance, and from this point of view, there are several indications that they are reasonably close to it. At any rate, when the curtain goes up on "Aida" tomorrow night it will mark the culmination of months of planning, preparation, hard work, and hopes.

Polacco Thinks "Aida" Perfect.

There were many reasons why "Aida" was chosen to inaugurate the new régime. Perhaps the most important is the fact, as expressed in the words of Mr. Polacco, that it is a perfect opera. It has every element in it that makes people want to attend opera—the decorative, the lyric, the musical, and the dramatic. It is gorgeous to the eye and to the ear, and as many times as it has been given, there is so much in it that its interest is never exhausted, not even after repeated hearings.

ROSA RAISA.
Opening the season tomorrow night in "Aida."

Mr. Polacco has undying enthusiasm over "Aida" as a high type of art. To him the first notes of "Aida" take rank with the prelude to "Lohengrin," just as Verdi's later work, "Falstaff," reached over and shook hands with "Die Meistersinger."

Verdi was not Wagner; he was not even a Wagnerian. Yet the beginning of "Aida," its orchestral prelude, takes up the leit-motif idea and carries it through pretty well to the end. The first melody is the theme of Aida herself, heard over and over again in the opera, and followed almost immediately by the theme of the high priest, which is presented in many guises, from its liturgical treatment here to the savage brutality with which it is hurled out in the judgment scene.

Verdi, says Mr. Polacco, effected an archæological reconstruction when he wrote this score. It is a legendary tale of a people long perished from the earth. Yet, because human passions are always the same in all ages, and because Verdi wrote complete sincerity into his work, with no lost motion and no padding, it remains a vital thing. Certainly it would be difficult to imagine lovelier song music than Radames' "Celeste Aida" or Aida's "Ritor-

Drawing the Knife of Sat're to Stab the Spir.t of Blah

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is a double kick in the opening exercises of the "49ers Revue" at the Punch and Judy theater—"49ers," incidentally, for no other reason than that the theater is situated on 49th street.

May Irwin, shanghaied for the job of announcer, à la Balieff of the "Chauve Souris," sidles out between the curtains and greets the assembled friends with the statement that in this most Russian of Russian cities it has been thought an American revue might have a chance. It may be a little difficult, she admitted, for the audience to understand the language employed, which will be English, but much of the entertainment will be given in pantomime and there will be the usual song and dance numbers to relieve the tedium.

MAY IRWIN.
[Bangs Photo.]

After which she introduces the first number on the bill as a typical American allegorical opening. In this we are presented to the "Good Fairy," carrying a football under her arm and an umbrella in her hand; "Capital and Labor," in fleshings and a raincoat; "Youth," with a toga and a stepladder, and the "Spirit of Public School No. 118" surrounded by an inner tube.

Thus, in the gay satirical spirit of the entertainer, we chide the invading Russians for taking first our city and then our entertainment away from us, and then we spoof the town for tolerating the sort of entertainment the more important American revue producers offer in competition.

Five-fifty Sounds Prohibitive.

This "49ers Revue" is an attempt on the part of the wits of the community and the brains of that section particularly interested in the theater to provide an intelligent entertainment, adult, humorous, subtle, and satirical, for the thinking few; something the better minds will be willing to pay five-fifty a seat to see and hear; something that will stab the Spirit of Blah to the heart and make a jest of the hokum the common people are supposed to love.

Being in closer touch with the people than we are with the better minds, we fear for the success of the experiment, particularly at the five-fifty schedule. So few of the better minds can afford it. Or when they can afford it, so few of them are keen enough to appreciate it. But if they want it, here it is.

ROLAND YOUNG.
[Maizene Photo.]

The burlesque includes a clever domestic skit by George Kaufman, in which every member of the family speaks and poses after the fashion of the characters in the back pages of the magazines, every line a slogan and every pose a picture. Father, the man with the $50 raise after a session with the correspondence school; Mother, the lady who might be 18 or 40; Daughter, a student of the acquire-a-pleasing personality school; the Caller, the man who always feels embarrassed in the society of clever people, and the Lover, the lad who walks right into the President's office and sells himself for a $100,000 a year.

There is a bit from the Russian entitled "The Power of Light," in which the coming of the dawn presages another bright day, and everybody is depressed; even Peter, the half-wit, finds it difficult to play contentedly with his blocks, and Alexis, dying of consumption, hopes Olga Babushka will marry him before things get too cheerful, and start her sorrowing under the most favorable conditions. "There is always gloom for one more in Russia," observes Peter. But the sun appears and with it Dr. Kolkoff with cough drops from America for Alexis and it is a sad day for Stepfather Michael and all his family.

There are two hilarious "American Folklore Dances," one "The Spring

Mr. Craven Confronts the Handicap of Fame

By Sheppard Butler.

IF ever a play had greatness thrust upon it Frank Craven's "The First Year" has experienced that dubious elevation. Our fathers' solemn search for "the great American novel" has long ago been laughed out of countenance, but it is different, it seems, in the theater. Reams have been written about "The First Year." Profound persons have referred to it enthusiastically as "literature" and many a writer has dubbed it, without qualification, "the best of all American comedies."

So, when the dour first-nighters gathered at the Woods last week, it was more or less with the grim feeling that this had better be good. No hostility, of course, but high expectations. The committee and the band were out to meet "The First Year," and we expected some pretty fancy behavior.

NANCE O'NEIL
at Powers' tomorrow in a Benavente comedy, "Field of Ermine."
[Moffett Photo.]

That sort of thing might do for some poignant tragedy, but it is a handicap, I should think, for any such simple and unassuming little piece as Frank Craven has written. Greatness, rightly or not, implies austerity, and there is nothing austere about the story of Tommy Tucker, the real estate man, and how his wife went home to mother. Seen for the first time, it seemed a straightforward, honest tale, rich in native humor and cunningly devised, not so much for artistic achievement as for the sound and profitable business of making folks laugh.

In this it succeeds admirably. There are no happier audiences in town than those who live their own tribulations over again at the Woods. And Craven, puffing at a battered pipe in the lobby before the show begins, would be the last, I suspect, to ask that his play be accepted as a masterpiece. His chief concerns are his enforced exile from home, the distance between him and his golf club, the grind of playing nine times a week, and the burden of Sunday performances. He wants to retire and take it easy, and he is not worrying about his niche in the hall of fame.

Little Tragedies in Comic Succession.

Still, one wonders if "The First Year" is not, after all, something rather uncommon. At first glance it seems airy and farcical enough, but there is a lingering, pervasive aftertaste (if you will permit the mixed metaphors) that suggests a deeper current. Mark Twain might have written so for the theater; he, too, gave you blithe nonsense to chuckle over before, pondering the matter, you realized his penetrating knowledge of life.

FLORENCE MOORE
in the "Music Box Revue," coming Tuesday to the Colonial.

You will not encounter many stage pictures more amusingly real than those Craven evokes of two American homes—that from which Tommy Tucker takes his bride and that in which he establishes her. Reading, Ill., and Joplin, Mo., says the playbill; they might be any two towns within striking distance of the Mississippi river.

This is "Main Street" with the sting taken out and peopled with the neighbors you knew. Worriment because the Sunday paper hasn't come; perturbation because father isn't ready for church; the pestiferous telephone call that interrupts the rubber at bridge. Tommy courting his girl, and too agonizingly bashful to kiss her when she says yes. Tommy doing his darndest to be the suave host at dinner, and scared perfectly voiceless. Tommy the teetotaler growing boastful and defiant on a pitcher of cocktails. Little tragedies in succession, and all infinitely comic.

All acted out to the life, too, by players with a keen sense of quiet fun and no delusions of grandeur. They know the value of a pause; the art of letting a thing sink in. James Bradbury, as a fussy old paterfamilias, sits silent most of the time, reading and emitting clouds of smoke. Miss Leila Bennett, as a

The New Plays

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"Field of Ermine" [Powers']—Miss Nance O'Neil in a comedy, new to this country, by the Spanish playright, Jacinto Benavente, whose peasant tragedy, "The Passion Flower," she acted here two years ago. As in the case of the former play, this one has been translated for Miss O'Neil by John Garrett Underhill. The cast includes Lumsden Hare, Alfred Hickman, Marie Shotwell, Grant Stewart, and many others.

RUTH WALKER

In "Shuffle Along," at the Olympic.

[White Photo.]

"Kempy" [Selwyn.]—This is the amusing comedy with which J. C. and Elliott Nugent, father and son, seem to have made their mark as playwrights. The former has long been a familiar figure in the varieties; the latter appeared here in "Dulcy." They act in their play themselves, though the rôle of first importance is assigned to Grant Mitchell, and there are also present Isabel Withers, Ruth Nugent [another of the family], Jessie Crommette, Helen Carew, and Robert Lee Allen.

"Shuffle Along" [Olympic.] — The amazingly successful musical show by colored performers which has broken all long run records for entertainments of its kind in the east. Chief among the entertainers are Miller and Lyles, Sissle and Blake, Lottie Gee, Edith Spencer, and Mattie Wilkes.

OPENING TUESDAY NIGHT.

"Music Box Revue" [Colonial.] — A stately pageant of song, dance and spectacle, devised mostly by Irving Berlin and distinguished by a career of fifty-three weeks [which is a long time] in New York. Many persons of importance are in the cast, among them William Collier, Florence Moore, Joseph Santley, Ivy Sawyer, Ethelind Terry, Solly Ward, Hugh Cameron, Paul Frawley, and Mlle. Marguerite.

The Handicap of Fame

witless hired girl, just stands and stares. Craven, as Tommy Tucker, paces to and fro, letting you share his agitation about the affairs that trouble him.

Craven's courtship in the first act is one of the funniest things I ever saw. His bout with the cocktails, later on, is a classic among scenes of inebriation. These are the high spots of the show and are worth watching for.

But the play's greatest charm is its unswerving reality. It doesn't need to be a masterpiece. You will find it better entertainment, I think, if you don't call it that.

Gossip of Plays and Players.

John Garrett Underhill, translator of Jacinto Benavente's "The Passion Flower" and "Field of Ermine," submits this note on the play in which Miss Nance O'Neil will be seen tomorrow night at Powers':

"'Field of Ermine' is one of the most remarkable and unusual of the Benaventian dramas, all of which are remarkable and unusual. Benavente is celebrated for never doing the same thing twice, and for never doing different things in the same way—a most unusual distinction in the theater. 'Field of Ermine' was written two years after 'The Passion Flower,' only one play intervening. A high, brilliant, aristocratic comedy, perfectly finished, it offers no points of resemblance to the stark peasant tragedy so well known to theater goers.

"The first act is conspicuously effective from the theatrical point of view, sketched in swift outline, while the remainder of the play is an emotional and spiritual drama of absorbingly intricate texture, written upon principles and with a dramatic technique similar to that of Benavente's 'Bonds of Interest,' and original with Benavente. 'Field of Ermine' was originally produced at the Teatro de la Princesa, Madrid, and is being presented during the current season by a special company under the direction of the author at the Teatro de la Avenida, Buenos Aires, and throughout South America."

Wearied by more than four years of virtually continuously acting in the same play, Frank Bacon and his company have declared a friendly strike. They demand a vacation and will get it in December. After they leave Chicago on Dec. 9, "Lightnin'" will be shelved as far as they are concerned for two weeks and such profits as might accrue from an immediate opening elsewhere will be sacrificed. On Christmas night the company will reassemble for some performances in Boston.

Lyn Harding, one hears, seeks "The Hairy Ape" for acting in London and would play himself the part taken here by Louis Wolheim. Harding is the sturdy Englishman whose portrait as Henry VIII. is now visible in these parts in the screen version of "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

Several plays hitherto unknown to Chicago are being presented by the resident stock companies now holding forth on the north and south sides. A recent venture of the Victoria players on Sheffield avenue was the stage version of Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street," which never reached this frontier in the downtown theaters. Another unfamiliar opus, the comedy called "Cornered," will be acted at the Victoria this week. This served Miss Madge Kennedy as a vehicle recently along the Atlantic seaboard.

Though she is not to appear in A. A. Milne's "The Romantic Age," as she expected, Miss Patricia Collinge still plans to emerge from her retirement in Chicago. She has been invited to assume the leading rôle in a new comedy by Guy Bolton, called "Polly Preferred," and has been observing some trial performances of the piece in Cleveland.

Because of the invasion of pictures at the Illinois, Prof. S. H. Clark's dramatic readings for the remainder of his course will be given at the Blackstone. Four Sunday afternoon programs remain, with "Hamlet" scheduled for this afternoon.

Speaking of the movieites—it's often done—they do say that Rudolf Valentino plans to confer his presence on the varieties.

In "Kempy"

MISS ISABEL WITHERS.
[White Photo.]

She comes to the Selwyn tomorrow night with Grant Mitchell and the playwriting Nugents to act in the latters' droll comedy called "Kempy"—something about a too ambitious plumber.

"So This Is London!" [Cohan's Grand, Nov. 19.]—A comedy of Anglo-American atmosphere by Arthur Goodrich, to be acted here by a special company headed by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn.

"For All of Us" [La Salle, Nov. 19.]—William Hodge in something new, written by himself.

"At the End of the World" [Playhouse, Nov. 20.]—An adaptation by Edward Delaney Dunn of a play by Ernest Klein, with Alexandra Carlisle, William Morris, Vincent Serano, and Alphonz Ethier in its leading rôles.

"Spice of 1922" [Great Northern, Nov. 26.]—Musical diversion from the New York Winter Garden. Jack Lait is the author and Valeska Suratt, James Watts, and many others do the entertaining.

"The Czarina" [Powers', Nov. 27.]—Miss Doris Keane in Melchior Lengyel and Lajos Biro's comedy about Catherine II. of Russia.

Harry Lauder [Studebaker, Nov. 27.]—The great Scotchman, coming for his usual week in Chicago with songs new and old.

"La Tendresse" [Blackstone, Dec. 11.]—Henry Miller and Miss Ruth Chatterton in a play from the French of Henry Bataille.

"Kiki" [Powers', probably Dec. 11.]—Miss Lenore Ulric at her best, they say, in a French "character study" by Andre Picard.

"Partners Again" [Selwyn, Dec. 25.]—Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr in a new Potash and Perlmutter comedy.

"Sally" [Colonial, Jan. 7.]—The aristocrat of the musical comedies, with Leon Errol and Marilyn Miller prominently among those present.

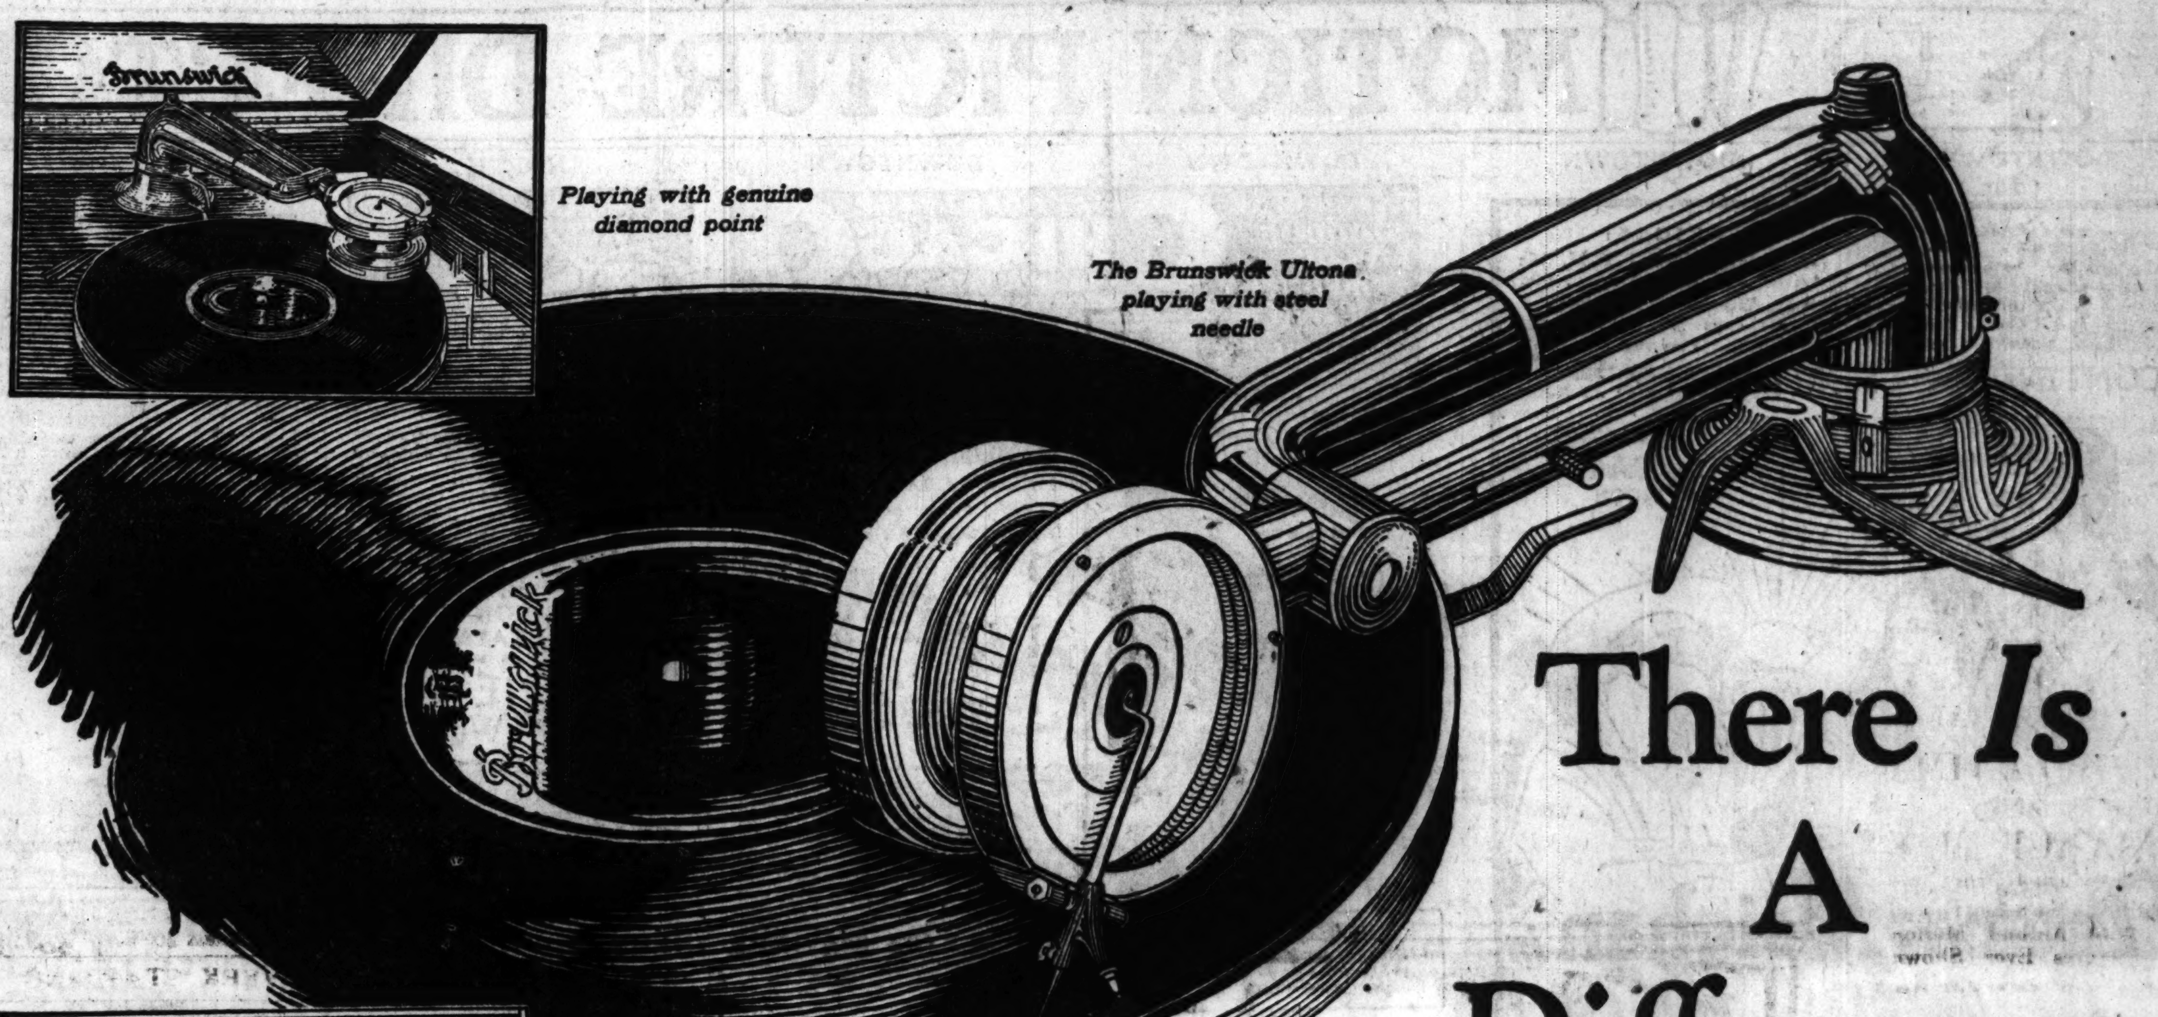
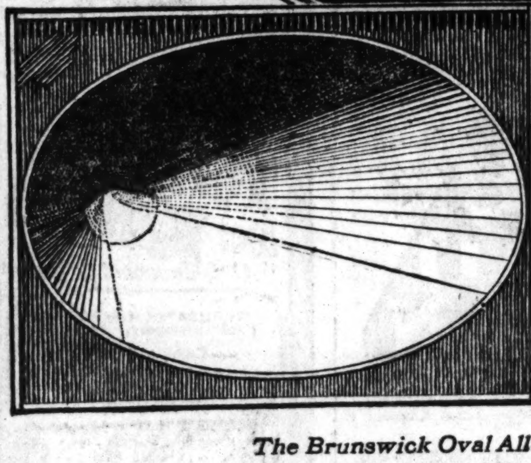
PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS



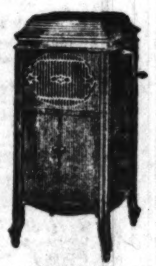
Playing with genuine diamond point

The Brunswick Ultona playing with steel needle

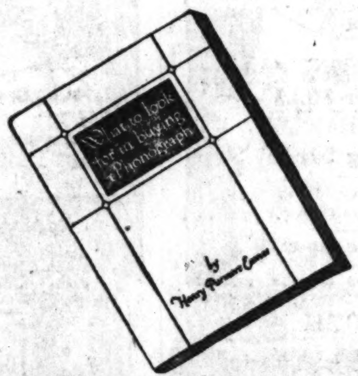
There Is A Difference In Phonographs



The Brunswick Oval All-Wood Tone Amplifier



Model "212"



What to look for in buying a Phonograph
by Henry Purmort Eames

Any Brunswick dealer will give you, or send you a free copy of this interesting little booklet "What to Look for in Buying a Phonograph."
It was written by Prof. Henry Purmort Eames, himself a noted musician, critic and musical authority of the highest rank. Get a copy of it today. You ought to read it, if only for its educational interest. It is written in plain and simple language, and reveals the musico-scientific marvels of the modern phonograph.

The differences are more important to the buyer than most people imagine.
With prices and terms about equal, you owe it to yourself to get the best in tone, in appearance, in modern improvements, in refinements and conveniences.
Hear The Brunswick before you decide. It will save many regrets later on.

Exclusive Betterments

The Brunswick plays any make of record without the use of bothersome attachments. It has separate mountings for each of the three types of playing points required to play all makes of records. Nothing to take off or put on. This is made possible by the Brunswick Ultona, exclusively Brunswick. Another important improvement is the Brunswick Oval Tone Amplifier, a tone chamber made entirely of seasoned holly-wood, eliminating the old metallic accompaniment. It gives the clear, natural tone for which The Brunswick is famous.
There are other advantages: The Brunswick Positive Automatic Stop; the Brunswick (natural-way) Tone Modifier; the Balanced Tone Arm; the Automatically Balanced Top.
Any Brunswick dealer will be glad to give you a complete understanding of The Brunswick, without obligation.

It's Unusual and Improbable, but Not Impossible

preacher himself; the lady of the stage; the crooked levee builder; and the bar fly. Also there, of course, were the proprietor and Charley the barkeeper.

The telephone rang. Charley answered. What he heard wiped the smile from his tough, beaming mug. What he told those present made them forget their little mortal worries.

"The levee has given way," said Charley.

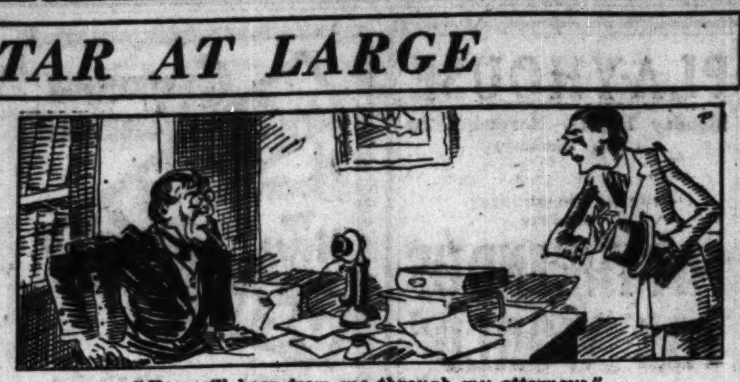
"Quick! Shut the flood doors!" called the proprietor. In a moment they were safe—for as many hours as oxygen should last. All of them face to face with the deluge—and the hereafter.

From here on the story of "The Sin Flood" must remain a secret to you who have not seen it. I just wish to go on record as saying that it is one of the most unusual and dramatic program pictures that has ever been issued.

It is adapted from a Swedish story, "Syndafloden" [I think that's the way you spell it], by Henning Berger. The direction is above reproach in every particular, and everything else that goes with the film is O. K., INCLUDING the acting. If ever there was a cast composed of persons on the head of each and every one of whom a laurel wreath should be placed—here you have it!

"The Sin Flood"—DON'T forget the name.

A STAR AT LARGE



"You will hear from me through my attorneys."

INSTALLMENT VIII.

[Unless thoroughly appreciated every installment threatens to be the last.]

By Mae Tinee.

A MYSTERIOUS note brought Godfrey Goofus to the shabby office of a fly by night lawyer, who smelled to high heaven of moonshine and looked as if he should be sent to the dry cleaners'.

Rocking back and forth in a creaking swivel chair, with grimy finger tips pressed together, the fellow delivered himself of a lengthy and wandering monologue. Godfrey, staring at him across the dusty, paper-laden table, gathered during its course that for some reason or other Maria and the twins had a grievance, and that the least they would accept would be freedom and much money.

The weeks spent at the Gilwater studios had done much for Godfrey. He had developed poise and canniness. As he listened to the harrangue of Maria's attorney, his mind worked fast and conviction settled firmly on two points:

1. He must say nothing to this man.
2. He must immediately apprise Barkis, the director, of this new problem that had entered his scheme of things.

At last Harris, the lawyer, paused. He re-lit a vile smelling cigar that, hanging from the corner of his mouth, had gone out during his discourse. He eyed his proposed victim with a sly and bleary eye.

Godfrey rose. With admirable nonchalance he flicked an invisible something from his hat in the unmistakable Petunia fashion.

"You will hear from me through my attorneys, Mr. Harris," he said. "I have the honor of bidding you good morning." He bowed a slight ironic bow, and left the room.

Harris, in his swivel chair, came with a bang to attention. The vile cigar fell to the floor, and he crushed it with an angry foot.

"I'll be damned!" said Harris.

Later in the day he found himself confronted by a suave and apparently quietly amused gentleman, well known in the courts as a Giltwater representative of the law.

The amused gentleman remarked that he had just dropped in to say that Mr. Goofus was quite willing to be divorced; that a reasonable settlement would be made—out of court; but that Mr. Goofus, being merely employed as an "extra," could be spared at any moment and would most certainly BE spared should there be any publicity whatsoever regarding him. If matters were arranged with becoming quietness—Mrs. Goofus could have her divorce, her twins, and a lump sum to be decided on later. Otherwise—the amused gentleman shrugged. Really, the Giltwater studios weren't interested.

Harris knew when he was beaten. He eagerly agreed to see that his client disposed of her case as was suggested.

"Probably," said the Giltwater attorney, stifling a yawn, "Mrs. Goofus will wish to withdraw her suit."

"She won't do that," Harris assured. He might have been gyped out of publicity, but he meant to see that the divorce went through and rescue his fees from the débris of former hopes.

The Gilwater lawyer condescended to apply a little salve. Since they were planning to use Godfrey, how much better for them to have him unattached!

"I am sure, Mr. Harris, you will use your well known diplomacy to the best advantage in this case," he said, cordially. He added out of the corner of his mouth, "If the case is pulled off quietly, we will see that an extra $500 is tacked on to your fees."

Harris stretched forth a grimy hand, which was touched warily by the other lawyer.

"You're on!" he said.

ASK ME! ASK ME! ASK ME!

DICK: So glad you like the corner—but gladder that you like it well enough to take the time to tell me so. Address Gladden James at 1767 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Yes, I thought him a good actor. Bryant Washburn appeared in "White Shoulders" with Katherine MacDonald. Your first letter—yes! Please do not let it be your last. Yes, Mahlon Hamilton is married, according to reports. He appears in pictures every so often.

A MULE: You mean "A MALE," don't you? You know, I told you you were all jealous. I sure do hope you meet "a real girl" some time. But, begging thy pardon, if thy disposition dost not change, I hast a great sympathy for the girl.

FANCY J.: Gareth Hughes was born in Llanelly, Wales, in 1897. He is 5 feet, 5 inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, and has brown hair and blue eyes. Address him care of Metro, Hollywood, Cal. Y'wekkum.

C. K.: You bet I will! Thomas Meighan is married. His wife is an actress—Frances Ring. Address him care of Paramount, Hollywood. Rodolf may be reached at 7139 Hollywood boulevard. I don't know whether the latter would answer your letter or not. He ought to be interested in a high school student who so admires his work. Thanks, ever so much!

F. P. S.: If contemplating writing a scenario, I don't believe I'd tackle "the ancient, historical type." Not popular with producers for the reason that sets, scenery, and costumes are so expensive. Glad to be of service.

ANGEL CHILD: Can't make a fuss over you, but I will send you "dope" on scenario writing and list of producing companies if you will mail me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TOMMIE: Patsy Ruth Miller will probably be glad "to spare a picture to an admirer" if the admirer incloses 25 cents with his request. She is with Goldwyn, address, Culver City, Cal.

D. A.: "Matter of life and death." We hasten to answer. 7139 Hollywood boulevard. 27. Harrison Ford is 31. Address him care of Lasky studio, Los Angeles. Not that I know of. (Don't know everything.)

FOR RODOLF FOREVER: Liking him in one picture is no sign that a critic must like him in ALL pictures, you know.

W. K.: Often pictures, like plays, are shown in smaller towns—New York, for instance—to try them out before submitting them to critical Chicago optiences. (I know no other reason.)

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Chicago Society Ready for Civic Opera Premiere

By Mme. X.

THERE is perceptible today, in certain circles, the same hush, sense of suspense, and alert poise that usually presages a battle, a storm, or any other unusual and rather tremendous effort. It is the day before the opening of Chicago's latest and, perhaps, most important experiment in the realm of the esthetic and artistic: the Chicago Civic opera.

It is not the first time that we have ventured into new and untried ways. Many of the national movements and well established enterprises for the benefit of mankind in this country have emanated from Chicago, or got here the impetus necessary to go on to success. So our new undertaking will be watched and studied all over the world of music.

I don't know the psychology of the management which inspired the selection of the favorite of generations of opera goers, "Aïda," for the opening of the first season of civic opera, but it was good judgment. Under the ægis of long accepted tradition the latest born of Chicago's institutions will not look so crude and new, and for three generations "Aïda" has been the favorite choice for first nights. Its tunefulness, brilliant settings, many singable airs, and good opportunities for showing voices make it peculiarly adapted to an occasion so mixed in values as such a grand opera opening night.

Several Newcomers Here.

That delightful star, Rosa Raisa, who has made her name and fame in Chicago the last four or five years, sings the title rôle. A Russian artist new in the Chicago opera company, Mme. Ina Bourskaya, sings Amneris, while two other singers, Miss Melvena Passmore and Cesare Formichi, also make their debuts tomorrow.

Well may the new impresario, Samuel Insull, look forward with confidence to the verdict of the public on the reorganized company for which he and he alone is responsible. Without him it is probable that Chicago would have been operaless this winter.

Technically speaking, he is not an impresario. He is merely financial director of Chicago Civic opera. But as no contract can be made or singer engaged without his consent, he becomes de facto impresario. And no salaried impresario could give more time or attention to the management of this huge and complicated organization than does Mr. Insull. He carries the Commonwealth Edison, the Peoples Gas company, and a half dozen other important corporations in his pockets; the civic opera hangs in a heavy bag on his back. The weight of it almost tripped him up last spring, but a journey with his son to the unmusical and sparsely populated Orkney isles restored his balance and fortified him for the arduous duties of financial director and impresario of our opera.

First Night Sold Out.

The advance sale of seats has broken all previous records. If the sale of boxes has not quite kept pace with that of the rest of the house, it is probably because the campaign last spring for guarantors occupied the attention of the organizers of the new opera to the temporary detriment of a drive for the disposal of the boxes. The box committee of the Friends of Opera is still working on the matter and has had much success of an eleventh hour kind. It is a fine committee of able and disinterested men and women, and we don't see how those approached can refuse them. There is a distinction in being either a guarantor or boxholder, especially in being both, that it would seem hard for the well to do, enlightened, and public spirited men and women of Chicago—and we have a fine line of such—to resist. The roster of the supporters of our opera is a lengthy and honorable one. Those registered on it are among the city's elect and in good company, the best in Chicago.

The first night of the season always brings out a full and brilliant audience. Tomorrow evening, with a sold out house, practically everybody of prominence in the social and artistic world will be in the audience to pass judgment. The passing of judgment is a favorite occupation of many of us. The list of boxholders for Monday nights is long and impressive and is given elsewhere in the paper.

Among those it is safe to prophesy will be present tomorrow night are Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Spoor, Mr. and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Linn, President and Mrs. Harry Pratt Judson, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ryerson, Mrs. Joseph Long, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus Swift, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson.

Knows Scores Well.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, although she is no longer financially responsible for the opera beyond the responsibility shared by all the 2,200 other guarantors, continues her former custom of having a box for every performance for herself and another for the University of Chicago. She has long made a special study of opera. In Zurich, where she spent several years, she attended every performance of the local company, usually following the score of the piece being performed, to which she gave close attention.

Miss Mary Meeker, Miss Marjorie King, and Miss Barbara Dunham will be among the débutantes who will be in costume and will help Mrs. Howard Linn in ushering and distributing programs at the Bal Fantastique to be given Tuesday night, Dec. 5, for the benefit of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society at the Trianon ballroom, 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue. Miss Meeker, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker of 3030 Lake Shore drive, made her debut at a tea at the residence of her parents on Nov. 4. She spent last winter at school in France and only recently returned from abroad with her mother.

Miss Dunham made her debut yesterday afternoon at a tea-dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham of 1353 North State street, at the Casino. Miss Dunham spent last winter abroad with her uncle and aunt, Count and Countess Adimari, of Florence, Italy.

Miss King, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King of 1450 Astor street, will be presented formally to society with her cousin, Miss Nancy Newell, at a tea to be given by Mr. and Mrs. King at their residence on Monday afternoon, Nov. 27. Miss Newell is the daughter of Mrs. Arnold Klebs of Nyon, Switzerland, and is now visiting her aunt, Mrs. James Garfield, in Mentor, O. She will arrive in Chicago shortly to spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. King.

On Tuesday Chicago's long time favorite, "Our Mary," Miss Garden, will sing "Carmen," assisted by Riccardo Martin as Don José, Georges Baklanoff as Escamillo, and Mary McCormic (another Chicago discovery) as Micaela. Later in the week the Russian novelty, "Snegourotchka" (Snow Maiden) will be presented for the first time here.

The prospects of a delightful season of grand opera never looked better. Chicago is one of the few prosperous, eager, hopeful, and alive great cities of the world today. Between you and me, didn't last Tuesday's election returns strengthen this state of mind?

Women Voters Meet.

The coming week there are so many things, social and serious, on the calendar of the average woman of the society world that this column will be covered with announcements of important events. One of the most imminent is the meeting of the League of Women Voters or, rather, the two meetings of this by no means unimportant body of women. Any organization that covers forty-eight states and embraces over 2,000,000 voting citizens of these United States cannot be ignored.

The national board meets here for three days, beginning today; the state convention overlaps this gathering by beginning a three day session on Tuesday. The league is a nonpolitical body of women, but when it sees needed legislation it can bring such power to bear on legislatures that it commands swift and complete attention. There was the Cable bill last summer, for instance. This was a bill to do away with citizenship disability of women who were married to foreign men. It was introduced in congress in May, passed both houses and was signed by the President in September, record breaking time for any bill.

Many notable women will gather here for these two conventions. Among them will be Miss Ruth Morgan, famed for her work on the Red Cross in France; Mrs. Willard Straight, equally well known for her interest in all forward looking movements; Mrs. Louis Slade, whom we of Chicago knew as Miss Carrie McCormick, and Mrs. Maud Wood Park, president of the national organization, and a remarkable woman.

Miss Lathrop Succeeds.

Mrs. Henry W. Cheney is the outgoing president of the Illinois branch and will be succeeded by Miss Julia Lathrop, one of the best known and popular women Illinois has ever produced. Mrs. William G. Hibbard is a member of the national board and regional director of seven states. She spends much of her time traveling about organizing and promoting the work of the branches in her bailiwick.

There will be meetings mornings, afternoons, and evenings, a large branch luncheon on Tuesday, and a banquet on Wednesday evening which will be given by the state board in honor of the national board of the league. The speakers on this occasion (speakers change a dinner into a banquet) will be Mrs. Richard Edwards of Indiana, vice chairman of the national league; and Miss Anne Morgan of New York.

The reception committee is headed by Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson and includes the Mesdames Watson Blair, John Borden, Jacob Baur, Joseph G. Coleman, R. T. Crane Jr., J. L. Cochran, Charles L. Dempster, John V. Farwell, Hamilton McCormick, Rockefeller McCormick, James W. Morrisson, and Potter Palmer.

Among other gatherings which are bringing distinguished women here this coming week is a meeting of the national Y. W. C. A. There will be two general meetings which will be addressed by eastern women, Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mrs. Lewis Lapham, and Miss Harriet Taylor. The first meeting will be tomorrow afternoon and the second one on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Martin Ryerson.

On Tuesday evening the Vassar alumnae are calling upon the world that amuses itself to come to a performance, the only one to be given in Chicago by Irene Castle and her new company of Russian dancers. This is to help raise money for the Illinois pledge to Vassar salary endowment fund. Mrs. Daniel Burnham Jr. and a committee of Vassar alumnae are in charge of the preparations. Others interested in the success of the evening are the Mesdames Eugene Talbot, William H. Bush, and Hallett Thorne.

"Tiger of France" Coming.

The members of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations have the opportunity of becoming authorities on international questions in any company where such matters are discussed if they take advantage of the meetings arranged by the program committee of the association. Next Saturday Dr. Herbert Adams Gibbons, an acknowledged authority on world politics, is going to speak to the C. C. F. R. at a noonday luncheon at the Palmer house. His topic will be "The Next Move in the International Game," a subject of limitless possibilities.

On Nov. 28 the "Tiger of France," Georges Clemenceau, is going to address a big gathering at the Auditorium at 4 o'clock under the auspices of the same organization. This will be a notable gathering and one which will be registered with such previous occasions as when we heard Viviani, "Papa" Joffre, and Gen. Foch. No matter how we may look at the way the French are at the moment handling their difficult problems—and it is a subject of which we Americans really know little and understand less—France is always of great interest to us as being the only other powerful and well established republic in the world today.

Georges Clemenceau spent several years in this county at a time in his career when he was at outs with the then French government, and his presence in his native land produced too much friction. So he will speak in English and English of an easily understandable kind. He is a wonderful orator and has a message for us Americans.

Though he is still called "the Tiger" and is much feared by those of opposite opinions in his own country, he is a pretty old man and has to conserve his strength for the work he has undertaken in this lecture tour, so he has requested that absolutely all social entertainments be cut out of the program for him. Except the official greetings which will be accorded him by a selected and representative committee on his arrival, nothing beyond the gathering at the Auditorium is being arranged for him. He will be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, and while there will be guarded from all excitement and given absolute quiet.

Victor Elting is in charge of the meeting and Russell Tyson is looking after the sale of the boxes. The seats, which will be free, are to be given out through various representative organizations. It will be a great occasion.

Beauteous Setting for a Ball.

While all these other things are going on, the women in charge of the "Bal Fantastique," the great charity ball of the season, are "on the job" night and day and are determined to break Chicago's record for this kind of entertainment—and it is a record hard to beat. In the first place, the setting for the ball is going to be the most beautiful ever chosen for such an affair here. In fact, it would be hard to imagine its like anywhere in this country.

The Trianon, which is still in process of building, is situated at Cottage Grove avenue and Sixty-third street and is designed to be a great dance palace. It is one more proof of the passion for pleasure which is developing in the community and which is cleverly ministered to by enterprising men like Andrew Karzas, the owner and builder of the Trianon.

He came over from Greece fifteen years ago and started his fortunes in a small movie theater. Later he built the Woodlawn theater, at that time the show movie theater in the southern part of the city. It set the pace for other movie houses until today Chicago movie theaters make European opera houses look small and dingy.

This new dance hall is a rival to European palaces in spacious splendor. It is oval in shape, 164 feet long, 102 feet wide, 48 feet high, and is surrounded by twenty-nine marble pillars rising to the ceiling and topped by gold capitals of Corinthian style.

Last Word in Construction.

Twenty-nine loges or boxes bulge between these columns like golden bubbles, half way between the floor and the gilded ceiling, permitting the occupants to have a comprehensive view of the floor and of each other. Plum colored curtains will drape these boxes, hanging from the roof to the dance floor. The lighting is entirely indirect, and will radiate from every direction so as to give a diffused and becoming glow.

There is room for 3,500 dancers on the floor which is to be the latest word in resilience for the devotees of Terpsichore. It is of one and one-half inch maple laid in oval strips from the center out and following the shape of the hall, which will mean that the dancers will always be with the grain of the wood. It is laid on beams resting on four layers of what builders call "cushion," over cement. Perfect elasticity is achieved by this construction.

The promenade around the hall and beyond the twenty-nine pillars is twenty-five feet wide. There are immense checkrooms, a vast refectory, big lobbies, and many exits and entrances.

It is an ideal setting for such an enterprise as the "Bal Fantastique," and merely to see it should bring out a gathering sufficient to crowd even that spacious pleasure palace. It is in truth such an achievement as Kubla Khan might have ordered for Xaniddu when he decreed his stately pleasure dome on the shores of Alph, the sacred river, before it went through caverns measureless to man on its way to the sunless sea. And, furthermore, Mr. Karzas has donated the Trianon and the two big bands of music to the women getting up the ball, so all the proceeds from the sale of the tickets will go to that excellent charity, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

Sale for Eli Bates House.

With Christmas not so very far off various enterprises run by clever and indefatigable women are under way to upse this holiday spirit to the advantage of their philanthropic institutions. For instance, the board of manager of one of the oldest and most interesting of our social service clubs, Eli Bates house, 621 West Elm street, has for some time run an attractive shop in that chic little colony of commercial enterprises nestling in "Italian court," behind the studio build- on the southeast corner of Ontario street and North Michigan avenue. son Jr., Walter Schuttler, Oliver M. Spencer, and Miss Rozet.

This coming week they are holding there a Christmas sale of novelties and specimens of the handiwork of the Italian women whom they have organized in a work shop near Eli Bates house.

Mrs. Henry Tuttle is in charge of the sale. She brought back from Europe with her a few weeks ago charming articles such as are rare or impossible to find in this country. Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, chairman of the board of managers, is bringing from New York other novelties. The sale ought to be interesting to all who are in search of unusual and desirable gifts for that great exchange of commodities which takes place annually on Dec. 25.

Eli Bates house has been in existence over forty years. It shelters many forms of social work. It has a day nursery that cares for thirty babies a day, a kindergarten of thirty-five children, boys' clubs, a model home where 120 little girls learn all kinds of household arts like cooking, cleaning, sewing, the care of children, etc. Last summer it gave 1,347 children of the neighborhood country outings. It has many other activities and is a pillar of light in that neighborhood.

Its women's board includes besides those already mentioned the Mmes. William L. Phelps, William B. Storey, Edward M. Collier, E. H. Lee, J. L. Houghteling Jr., Frank Birk, Arthur Cable, Charles A. Chapin, George J. Farnsworth, Lawrence Robbins, F. B. Moorehead, Frank S. Pagin, John G. Rodgers, Landon C. Rose, E. L. Ryerson Jr., Walter Schuttler, and Oliver M. Spencer, and Miss Rozet.

Three or four members of this committee will be at the shop daily to wait on customers. On Wednesday the board gives a tea at Eli Bates house for the new head resident, Miss Helen Day of Boston, who has recently come to take charge of the settlement.

Long Felt Want.

Among the recent projects which tend to make ours a real metropolis is the newly created Racquet club of Chicago. It is to be formed on the lines of similar organizations in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston. It is to have 400 members, with twenty-five life members. It already has a habitation under way at the southeast corner of Dearborn avenue and Schiller street.

Among those interested in making it a live and useful enterprise are Edward A. Cudahy Jr., James Forgan Jr., Lester Armour, Wolcott Blair, C. G. Cushing, C. S. Dewey, A. B. Dewey Jr., Cyrus McCormick, Leander McCormick, Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Noble Judah, Charles S. Pike, Joseph T. Ryerson, and Paul Gardner.

Speaking of clubs, Chicago has long lacked a first class residential women's club like the Colony and Cosmopolitan clubs in New York and the Chiltern in Boston. In fact, in every other city of importance in the land there is such an organization.

The Illinois Women's Athletic club hopes to fill this long felt want. They have a fine opportunity if they can swing their present proposition. They bought, some years ago, the property which lies at the southwest corner of Tower court and East Pearson street, where stands the house once known as the Prentice house, though it was for years occupied by a small family of well known bachelors, among whom were Col. Rathbone, the late Frank Hamlin, Robert Shanklin, and Frank H. Jones. The present owners bought also the land to the west of this, so that they now control the block from Tower court to Rush street, with a width of about sixty feet. Here they propose to build a fifteen story structure, the first eight stories of which shall be devoted to business, while the remaining seven will be dedicated to the uses of the club, including restaurant, lecture halls, reception rooms, bedrooms, gymnasium, and a swimming tank on the top floor. Schmidt, Garden & Martin have drawn plans for the building. The site is paid for—all but $15,500. It remains to raise $1,500,000 more with which to put up this fine structure. In earlier days this would have seemed like an impossible task for any body of women, but nowadays women tackle successfully extraordinary propositions, so at some not too far off date we may see this plan realized and the members of the Illinois Women's Athletic club will be able to look down on the little old waterworks tower from their quarters.

That precious old tower will appear dwarfed and insignificant, a mere little finger of a tower, when all the buildings planned for surrounding sites have been erected. It will, probably then crumble from very humiliation. I do hope the powers that be will let it live until that time, a monument to Chicago's delightful and picturesque past.

The president of the Illinois Women's Athletic club is Mrs. D. F. Fesler, the first vice president is Mrs. William Westerlund, the second vice president is Miss Carlotta L. Scheiber, the recording secretary is Mrs. Adaline Schall, the corresponding secretary is Mrs. M. J. Seiffert, the treasurer is Mrs. Emma M. Buckingham, and assistant treasurer is Mrs. Gertrude M. Garland

The opening concert of the Lake View Musical society will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Parkway hotel. Following the program there will be a reception, at which the president, Miss Mary Wood Chase, will be the guest.

Mrs. Robert L. McCall is chairman of the west side division in the sixth annual membership roll call of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross.

Women Voters in Second Annual Convention Here

By Kate Webber.

QUALIFYING as specialists in citizenship and legislative education since its organization two years ago, the Illinois League of Women Voters holds its second annual convention this week, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at the Congress hotel.

In addition to formulating a program of work for the starding committees, a resume will be given of the work accomplished by local leagues senatorial district committees, and affiliated organizations by schools of citizenship and through other channels. Reports from the local organizations of the league in Cook, Lake, and Dupage counties will have a prominent place on the program.

At the opening session the following presidents and officers from these organizations will outline the work completed: Mrs. Harriet Taylor Treadwell, Chicago League of Women Voters Forum; Mrs. Lynn A. Williams, president Evanston league; Mrs. Edward T. Lee, Hyde Park league; Mrs. Forest R. Moulton, Sixth Ward league, and Miss Elizabeth Gemmill of the Winnetka organization.

Mrs. John Replinger, president of the Downers Grove league; Mrs. A. M. Morse of the North Dupage County league, and Mrs. H. C. Foits, Waukegan, who heads the Lake County league, are others who will report activities.

The scope of the field covered is shown from the standing committees, whose work covers every phase of women's political activity. Following the address of the president, Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, and the informal luncheon on the opening day the following chairmen will preside at round table conferences: Mrs. W. R. Fringer, child welfare; Mrs. William S. Hefferen, Mrs. Florence Bennett Peterson, efficiency in government; Miss Florence Nesbit, living costs; Dr. Rachelle Yarros, social hygiene; Mrs. May Wood Simons, training in citizenship; Miss Esther Dunshee, uniform laws concerning women; and Miss Agnes Nestor, women in industry.

From the discussion at these conferences the working program for the next year will be evolved. Each committee will make recommendations which will be acted upon by the 500 delegates in the convention before adjournment.

With Mrs. Edwin Ryerson as social chairman the banquet at the Congress on Wednesday night will furnish an opportunity for delegates and others interested to hear talks by men and women of national note. Serving on the committee with Mrs. Clair E. More, general chairman, are Mmes. Watson F. Blair, Charles W. Dempster, Jacob Baur, J. Lewis Cochran, Edith Rockefeller McCormick, James W. Morrisson, L. Hamilton McCormick, R. T. Crane Jr., Potter Palmer, Joseph G. Coleman, and John V. Farwell.

An open forum for the discussion of the proposed state constitution will be held the afternoon of the second day, with Catharine Waugh McCulloch, Morton D. Hull, and ex-Gov. Edward F. Dunne among the speakers.

The last day will be devoted to reports of the work in the state at large, a talk on the jail survey of Cook county by Dean Kirchway, a luncheon for out of town delegates and their friends, and a final business session. A presidents' dinner will complete the three day program.

Willing Workers to Give Theater Benefit

THE annual philanthropic affair held each autumn by the Willing Workers' Woman's club is scheduled for this week's calendar of interesting club events. Instead of the customary "exchange day," which has been a successful affair of several seasons, or a repetition of the county fair of last November, the members have taken over the Woods theater for tomorrow evening, when they and their friends and supporters will see Frank Craven in "The First Year."

The proceeds of the performance are to go toward the club fund for work among the families of tubercularly afflicted persons. Each of the 800 members takes a personal interest in the cases which come to the club's attention, and in addition they have an associate members' class for men and an honor roll for children, both of which provide added sources of income.

The daily distribution of nourishing foods, eggs, and milk, of ice in summer and provisions for warmth in winter, as well as friendly visits, constitute the work of special committees. The club also has recently engaged the services of a nurse, who visits the homes and instructs in preventative measures against the white plague.

Aside from this work, which is of prime importance and of interest to the members, the programs held on the fourth Wednesday of each month are varied and instructive, and are followed by social hours, which permit the members to discuss the phases of the work. A brief respite of this sort gives them added impetus to carry on, as well as a clear idea of what their organization is accomplishing.

Officers of the Willing Workers are Mrs. A. Kohn, honorary president; Mrs. Julius C. Moses, president; Mrs. Joseph Mautner and Mrs. Rudolph Munzer, vice presidents; Mrs. L. W. Ofner, recording secretary; Mrs. Jacob Fass, financial secretary; Mrs. Henry Pitzele, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Emma Rubin, treasurer. Mrs. Hugo King is chairman of arrangements for tomorrow evening's affair.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

At the business meeting of the Chicago Woman's club next Wednesday at 2 o'clock in Recital hall, the following reports will be given: Finance, membership, legislation, building, parent-teacher association, Chicago school board, Council of Administrative Women in Education, continuation schools, and higher education of women in the orient. Tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock the housewifely thrift committee will meet with Housewives' league in the club rooms. At 12 o'clock tomorrow, an intercommittee luncheon conference on family limitation will be held. Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros will tell "What London Is Doing," and Dr. Joseph L. Baer will give some practical aspects of family limitation from the standpoint of the obstetrician and the gynecologist. The French class will hold a luncheon at 1 o'clock, and at 2 o'clock the following will speak: Mme. Descoubes, M. Max Dorigny, and Mlle. Descoubes-Dorigny. The recreation committee of the Woman's City club will meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and at 2 o'clock there will be a meeting of the food and markets committee to discuss "Proper Food for School Children." The Tuesday citizenship class will meet at 11 o'clock, and at 2 o'clock the regular monthly club meeting will be held under the auspices of the housing and zoning committee. Dr. W. A. Evans of THE TRIBUNE will discuss "Fair Play," and Charles Bostrom will speak on "The Chicago Zone Plan." At 4 o'clock on Tuesday the first of a series of the Harriet Hammond McCormick lectures will be given by Victor Yarros. His subject will be "Europe and America—the Present Phase of the Reconstruction Problem." At 5:45 on Tuesday the parliamentary law class of the young woman's auxiliary will meet. There will be a luncheon for the ward and branch chairmen at the club on Wednesday at 12 o'clock. Wednesday morning at 10:30 the parliamentary law class will meet. On Thursday at 12:30 the child welfare and public health committee will meet at luncheon. Dr. Herman Adler of the Juvenile Psychopathic institute will speak. There will be a luncheon meeting of the civil service committee at 12:15 Thursday, and at 2 o'clock the Americanization committee will meet. At 6 o'clock the young woman's auxiliary dramatic class will hold a meeting and at 8 o'clock Thursday evening the regular monthly meeting of the auxiliary will be held in the club lounge. Mrs. L. M. Featherston and Mrs. R. F. Schuchardt will speak. The public institutions committee will meet at 11 o'clock Friday morning and at 12:30 Friday the city finance committee will meet. The Thirty-ninth ward branch will meet Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The annual bazaar for the benefit of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial lodging house will be held on Wednesday at the Congress hotel. Among the clubs which have charge of booths are the Chicago Woman's club, the North End club, Klio association, the Austin Woman's club, the Arché club, and the Chrysolite club. Mrs. Herbert D. Sheldon is president of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging House association, and Mrs. Ernest J. Brasseur is general chairman of the bazaar.

A meeting of the conference of club presidents and program chairmen will be held on Thursday at 10:30 o'clock in room 500 Fine Arts building.

The regular meeting of the Council of Jewish Women will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock at Temple Sholem, with the Sisterhood as hostess. An interesting program, with talks by Dr. Julian Morgenstern of Cincinnati and Mrs. L. Lang, will be given.

The art and literature department of the Catholic Woman's league will be in charge of the program at next Saturday's meeting. Raymond P. Ensign will speak on "Art and Industry." The study class preceding the program will be conducted by the Rev. William T. Kane.

Jens Jensen will be the speaker at the meeting of the Renaissance tomorrow afternoon at the Art institute.

Mrs. John C. Fetzer of Hinsdale will read her play, "The Light of the World," on Tuesday before the I Will Woman's club.

The New Jersey colony of the Illinois Colony club will have a luncheon tomorrow at the Great Northern hotel for the Maryland colony. Pennsylvania colony will hold its business meeting on Wednesday at noon, with luncheon and cards following and members of the New Hampshire colony as guests. A meeting of the Connecticut colony, with the Georgia colony, as guests, will be held on Friday at noon.

The woman's organization of the Chicago Retail Druggists' association will hold its meeting on Tuesday at the Morrison hotel.

A meeting of the Cook county W. C. T. U. will be held on Tuesday at 2 o'clock at the Continental and Commercial bank. Local presidents will give reports.

Mary Ridpath Mann will speak on "The Psychology of Dreams" tomorrow before the Chicago Culture club.

The Lake City Woman's club will be hostess for the first district I. F. W. C. on Wednesday beginning at 10:30 o'clock at the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Edward S. Bailey will be the guest, and Mrs. Thomas P. Casey will preside. At the afternoon meeting the speakers will be Mrs. Thomas S. Harper, Mrs. Bessie B. Pierson, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Joseph R. Blair, Dr. John Dill Robertson, and Mrs. Bailey.

MRS. A. H. BRUMBACH.
[Russell Photo.]

The Protestant Women's Service club will listen to an address, "A Celtic Pilgrim's Progress," by Dr. Alexander Irvine on Wednesday in the Wedgwood room at Marshall Field's. A. T. Frost will speak on "Zoning in Chicago."

Mrs. A. H. Brumback is general chairman of the annual bazaar of the Daughters of the British Empire, to be held on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at the Hotel La Salle. The proceeds are to go toward the building fund of the British Old People's home.

A Good Corset Never Meant So Much as Now

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

Every woman over twenty realizes that corsets are a major matter of hygienic necessity, as well as of fashion. Paul Poiret was recently quoted as saying "No woman can call herself properly fitted without both the Corset and Brassiere."

The woman who has "let her waistline go" will find her new Nemo Corset so constructed that it will help her to regain the fashionable lines with comfort. It will not push the bust up, nor does it allow the flesh to accumulate around the shoulder blades.

Incorrect position is a growing evil, due to wearing no Corset or not wearing it properly. It is the basic evil with most women of sallow skin, indigestion, constipation, and many so-called female troubles. Correct exercise can remedy this evil, but many women have not the time, or inclination, and should aid in the proper support of the abdomen by means of a good Corset.

Excessive Flesh Is a Positive Detriment to Health

The Nemo self-reducing Corset, designed especially for the needs of your individual form, will give you anatomically perfect support and enable you to preserve good health and proportions by preventing an accumulation of excess flesh. More than that, it will make possible the flat, fashionable lines which are the ambition of every well-groomed woman today. We suggest that you have your Corset properly fitted. Why not have one of our expert Corsetieres, all graduates of the N. H. F. I., fit you? Let them show you that the correct Nemo Corset properly fitted will bring you the fashionable figure with a sense of comfort and support. For this fitting service no charge is made.

Nemo Corsets, $4 to $13

News Travels So Quickly: and Flat-O-Form Brassieres Are Already in Great Demand
—Third Floor—Dearborn Street—

You'll understand the demand the moment you see a Flat-O-Form—and see how in its clever new way it attains for you the coveted chic youthful flat lines, the lines that Fashion demands so persistently—straight as an arrow and the slim appearance follow if you wear a Flat-O-Form—made to be adjusted to any waist line.

Flat-O-Form Brassiere, Style 4011—

Featured in a dainty figured flesh colored material, gives the plump figure a flat appearance from bust to waist line. The back is designed to take care of any surplus flesh at the shoulder blades or under the arm. The length is sufficient to permit fastening below the top of the low-bust topless corset. The special feature of this garment is that it has a special section or band, semi-elastic, that goes over the diaphragm and fastens in back, and has three inches of adjustment that will positively reduce and control the diaphragm and will not let the top of your corset protrude. Sizes 34 to 48, at............ 1.50

Heavy brocade, sizes 40 to 54, at 2.00 | The Flat-O-Form brassiere, fashioned of handsome satin, at... 3.00

Fur Trimmed Coats, Attractive Dresses, 9.77: Basement

A truly remarkable selection of fur trimmed and plain coats, also attractive dresses that surpass in style and value any featured at this price in a long, long time.

The coats are loose wrappy styles, straight-line models and semi-fitted; tailored of Polaire, all wool velour, cheviots, tweeds and mixtures—sports coats, mannish cut coats and full length coats—with collars of beaverette and self material.

The dresses are made of Canton crepe, Poiret twill, tricotine, velveteen, crepe de Chine, etc., in the the simplest of straight line styles, very fashionable with an attractive girdle, others draped at side or both, the draperies held in place by a beautiful buckle, others with touches of embroidery or braiding. Your choice of coats or dresses in misses' and women's sizes—values to $16—Monday, at 9.77

Knife of Satire Drawn to Stab the Spirit of Blah

Dance of the Small Town Mayors" and the other the "Autumn Dance of the Hat Check Girls." "You will observe the vestals in the latter number," observes Miss Irwin with charming idiocy. "Also the coatals and hatals."

There is a bootlegger's funeral in the "Bonnie Dundee Funeral Parlors," written by Montague Glass, which is shockingly funny, and a two act musical comedy, "The Love Girl," by Franklin P. Adams and Arthur Samuels that tears through the conventions of the Viennese operetta ruthlessly, but with highly diverting results.

There are many actors, led by Sidney Toler, Denman Maley, Roland Young, and Ruth Gillmore; there are many authors, those mentioned and others to follow. The weekly expense, we hear, is near to $11,000. The Punch and Judy theater seats only 297 persons. Hence the $5.50 rate at night and $3.30 at matinées. Make your own prophecies.

Comedy of Insects.

Our newest playmates of the theater are the brothers Capek, who live in Czecho-Slovakia. Karel is a philosopher of parts and Josef an artist, and they are as imaginative a duo as has invaded the playhouse in some time.

Karel Capek you may recall as the author of "R. U. R.," the current Theater guild play, which is a study of synthetic mortals possessed of every human attribute except souls and the gift of love.

Now we have Karel and Josef as collaborators in a play which they much prefer to call "The Insect Comedy," but which Manager "Bill" Brady, fearing the title would frighten sensitive and thin skinned patrons away from the theater, has changed to "The World We Live In."

Herein the meannesses of life and character among us scrubby humans is satirically reviewed. Man, as a vagrant, sobering up in a forest, pauses to observe how closely do the bugs of the insect world resemble the humans he has left in the city in their daily intercourse with life.

Here are butterflies, for example, reenacting "life's eternal mating" of the sexes and most persistently. Vamping butterflies, they are, much more daring in their pursuit of poets and other decadent males than any human we have observed performing on other stages, not excepting the burlesque.

Next we meet "the marauders"—the beetles, the crickets, a family of ichneumon, flies, and a parasite. And here we learn that the most human of the insects is the avaricious tumble bug, inasmuch as he spends all his days rolling up a "pile," and then, not knowing what to do with it, or where to hide it while he starts another, suffers the loss of it to thieving relatives.

And Then Comes War.

Finally we come to the third and much the most impressive of the three acts, a study of an ant heap a million times magnified. Here are the toiling masses, burden bent and spiritless, ceaselessly laboring while a blind ant beats out the rhythm of their steps, counting loudly, "One, two, three, four!" And here come the efficiency overlords to advise the blind one to quicken the pace by cutting out the "three." Let the count be "One, two, four," and no one will know the difference.

Suddenly there is a word that the yellow ants have disputed the black ants' right to a certain passage between two blades of grass, where the sun shines. Immediately the call to arms is sounded and an "all highest" type of white ant rises to cheer the regiments as they march away to war. Regiment after regiment passes by. From the front messengers bring word of an awful slaughter, but the exhorter refuses to listen. Let other regiments fill up the gaps; to die is glorious, to live ignoble, if the cost of life be national defeat. Occasionally he exhorts God not to forget his friends. Once in an ecstasy of patriotism, he appoints God a colonel in recognition of his services. But the black ants are wiped out in the end.

As an epilogue there is a scene in which the vagrant, seriously impressed with what he has observed, watches a ballet of moths as they flutter a little while and die. He himself is soon fighting his own fight with death. As he loses the wife of a wood cutter in the forest is blessed with the birth of a child. To indicate, we presume, the endlessness of life.

A pessimistic philosophy and a weird entertainment, for the most part. But admirably done in the best Theater guild manner, Mr. Brady having borrowed Lee Simonson, the guild's scenic artist, for the occasion. Robert Edeson plays the vagrant, and a lengthy cast includes Kenneth McKenna, Beatrice Maude, Lola Adler, Jane Corcoran, and Edgar Norton.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? If you'll write it out and it is published $1 will be paid. Address Best Joke Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

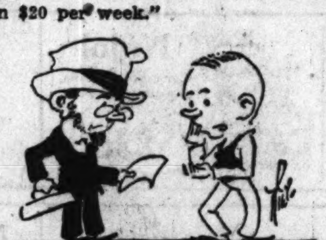
According to Instructions.

Marjorie was out riding in her pony cart when she came to a bridge on which was a sign, "Capacity of this bridge 5,000 pounds only," so she cautiously got out and led her pony over!

G. W. T.

Hitting the Nail on the Head.

"Here's my bill," said the doctor. "Wish you would pay down $100, and then $20 per week."



"Sounds like buying a car," said the patient.

"I am," said the doctor. H. F.

Pointed.

"I'M afraid that bell means another caller," she lightly remarked.

"You know," he replied insinuatingly, "that there is such a thing as your not being at home."

"Yes," she agreed demurely; "and there is such a thing as my being engaged." I. L.

Done by Deduction.

"I want some collars for my husband, but I am afraid I have forgotten the size."

"Thirteen and a half, ma'am."

"That's it. How on earth did you know?"

"Men who let their wives buy their collars for 'em are almost always that size, ma'am." C. K.

THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY
Sonora
CLEAR AS A BELL

Canterbury
$200

Plays the Best Record Better

THE Sonora not only plays with equal ease all records made. Its present-day models are the result of investigations and refinements to produce a tone voluminous, but not sharp or shrill—to reproduce faithfully the sweet quality of the actual voice as well as the exact tones of piano, violin, cornet and piccolo and other brass and wood instruments. Only on a phonograph with all wood horn construction and correct acoustic lines is it possible to reproduce instrumental music without exaggerating the metallic quality of metal wind instruments.

The Sonora, being exclusively made on these principles, therefore plays the best record better—no matter who made the record. A trial will tell.

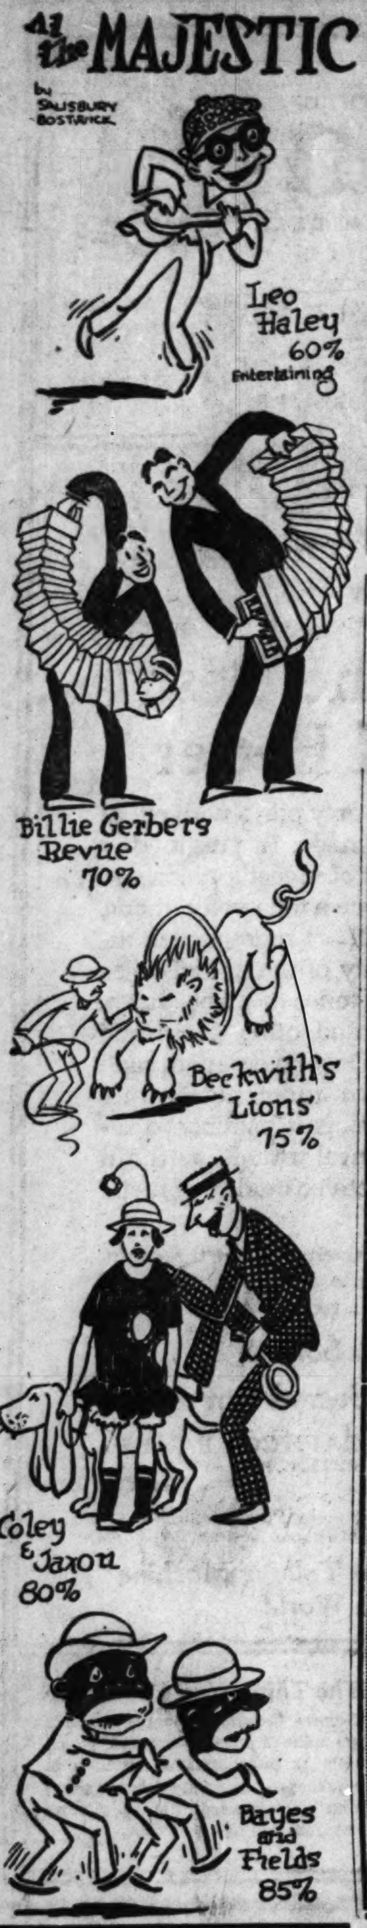
At the MAJESTIC

by Salisbury Bostwick



Through the MICROSCOPE

THE wheels of the blower sing a deep, rattling rhythm—daa—didi—daa—didi—daa—didi—daa; the flame shrills a weird high keyed note, varying, now like a voice, now like a hiss, now a throaty a-ahh, while over all there comes the droning hum of the belt around the driving wheels. Fierce white flames leap and play about the crucible inside. Out from the furnace door there pours a blast of radiance so hot that it feels cold.

Lift the crucible; a puff of blue fire emerges from the brass, with billows of white smoke which writhe upward over the gleaming coals. Zinc is burning in the molten mass in the firepot. We lift the crucible out and skim the slag from the blazing surface. tI is redhot now, but soon it will be cool. Look at it through a hand lens. In the chinks there are tangles of fairy crystals. Here is a gleaming forest made by the fire.

The crystals are zinc oxide, sublimated out of the blazing gases. It takes a hot blast to crystallize them, but when they do appear the sight is well worh looking at.

Spangles of crystals.

TELLS HOW

"Your face pores must be given a purgative, just like your bowels," says Professor Kahn, internationally noted beauty specialist, "otherwise your skin will be dark and sallow and other skin troubles follow. You can now do it at home in 10 minutes—can purge your skin of the germ-laden dead oils that make it ugly." Obtain a jar of KANTOL, apply it according to directions and then go to your mirror. Blackheads gone, freckles reduced, your skin four to seven shades lighter and as lovely as a baby's. And in 10 minutes! You will call it magic. Not a "beauty clay," but an exquisite cream poultice made of plants and flowers.

Bill Townsley and Me

By Guy Lee.

When William L. Townsley and I weren't so old
We chummed day and night in a punk Kansas town;
We dreamed, as youth does, of ambitions untold
And we drew on the future for wealth and renown.
Well, the drafts were not honored, for my part, at least;
I've got, at the best, a litigious claim;
The hope-labeled star that I trailed to the east
Has guided me neither to riches nor fame.

Bill stuck to the west—to the burg I called punk;
And I'm rather inclined to beg-pardon that term.
While Bill's a big frog in his pond, in this bunk
Metropolis I am much less than a worm.
When Bill walks abroad he is certain to meet
Gladhanders who stop for a joke and a chat;
The tip-ical friends (bought and paid for) I greet
Are the barber and porter who musses my hat.

Bill's home is a chateau—it's got even a porch!—
I park in a six-by-ten cave—third floor, rear;
I freeze in the winter; in summer I scorch.
Bill's cozy and snug every month in the year.
If his golf club Bill seeks, his twin six splits the breeze;
I sub to the park, there to wait, in no glee
For my turn. . . . You may write your own moral, but these Are the facts about William L. Townsley and me.

They Laugh at This in Vaudeville

GARRICK.

Klein Brothers:

"Somebody stole my car, but I got it back."

"Is that so? How?"

"I put an ad in the paper."

"What did it say?"

"Lizzie, come home; all is forgiven."

"Where were you yesterday?"

"I was sick."

"Why, how's that? I saw you riding your bicycle."

"Sure, I had to go and get the doctor, didn't I?"

"Say, you don't even know the difference between explosion and collision."

"I don't, don't I? Well, I do. And I'd rather be in a collision than an explosion."

"Why?"

"Collision—there you are. Explosion—where are you?"

"You have a terrific cold."

"Yes, I have Syracuse veins."

"I see you have your watch there. What time is it?"

"I don't know. I laid off the hands."

"There certainly is a crazy man around here."

"Yes, I'm looking at him."

"You are, are you? Well, that's the first time I ever knew my face was a mirror."

"How'd you like to have lady doctors?"

"I wouldn't. They're too dangerous."

"How's that?"

"Well, you go into the office with a temperature of 98. She takes hold of your wrist, the door opens—propaganda!"

"How about lady letter carriers?"

"Lady what?"

"Letter carriers. You can't say mail woman, can you?"

"That was a good one President Harding pulled off this morning, wasn't it?"

"What was that?"

"His pajamas."

"So you come from Michigan, do you? I suppose you're a Michigander then."

"Sure, and I have a sister there who's a Michigoose. She's got seven little Michigoslings. I hear you're from Maine."

"Yeah."

"O, a maniac, eh?"

"My wife chased me around with a flatiron this morning."

"What did you do?"

"I ran into the closet and locked the door. She stood outside and told me to come out."

"Well, did you?"

"No, sir. In my house I'm boss."

"Do you know what happens in Philadelphia when there's an empty house?"

"No, what?"

"They let it."

"O, yeah, and do you know what they do in Philadelphia when it rains?"

"No."

"They let it. Say, you don't even know where Boston is."

"O, yes, I do. At the bottom of both leagues."

"I speak five languages, and I'm learning Greek."

"Why's that?"

"I gotta eat, don't I?"

RIALTO.

Gibson and Price:

"If I stole a kiss, would you scream for your parents?"

"No; unless you wanted to kiss the whole family."

"I had a queer dream last night. I thought I saw another man running off with you."

"And what did you say to him?"

"I asked him what he was running for."

"Today is my birthday and father has given me a dollar for every year of my life."

"I know where we can get a lovely steak for forty dollars."

"Why didn't you help me out of the car just now? You are not so gallant as when you were a boy."

"And you're not so buoyant as when you were a gal."

Have You Pyorrhea?

If you have, what have you done to eradicate it? Pyorrhea, that drains the intellect, that poisons the system, that destroys the beauty and usefulness of the teeth and mouth. Did you ever notice the odor from a diseased mouth? The pain, inconvenience and cost of artificial plates enter also. There are but few that spend as much money with the dentist as they do on shoes alone. It is true that shoes are absolutely necessary and so are your teeth. Sore, bleeding, spongy gums infected with pus are continually draining the system. The dentist must have your co-operation and by co-operating with him and using RIGGS'-O-DEAN you will see beautiful results. Results count.

Mrs. Clair E. More is general chairman for a banquet to be given in the gold room of the Congress on Wednesday evening as a feature of the second annual convention of the Illinois League of Women Voters. Among those assisting Mrs. More are Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. J. Lewis Cochran, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. James W. Morrisson, Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson.

The Joyful Workers will give a luncheon and card party for the benefit of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson lodging house on Thursday at the Chicago Beach hotel.

Miss Jeanne de Mare will give the second of three musical causeries on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. John Borden, 1020 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Andrew E. Leicht will present her granddaughter, Miss Vera Anderson, at a tea at her residence, 2400 Lake View avenue, Thursday from 4 until 7 o'clock.

Former Gov. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden will introduce formally their daughter, Frances, on Friday at a tea at the Drake from 4 to 7 o'clock. The Lowden family will move in to the Drake for the winter from their farm near Oregon, Ill., on Wednesday.

The Barat league will give its sixth annual benefit dance at the Parkway hotel Friday. For several years the members of the league have played Santa Claus for the Angel Guardian orphanage, besides assuming financial responsibility for many other charities. Among the patronesses for the dance are Mrs. John W. Amberg, Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy, Mrs. John L. Fortune, Mrs. Charles Vopicka, Mrs. Eugene J. McVoy, and Mrs. Hamilton Lamm.

Miss Lydia Hibbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard of 1344 Astor street, will make her debut at a tea at the residence of her parents Saturday.

Miss Janet Lawrence, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum of 1508 State parkway, also will be a debutante on Saturday, making her bow at a tea to be given by her mother and stepfather at their residence from 4 to 7 o'clock.

REMOVAL FROM MADISON SQUARE

THE AMERICAN ART ASSOCIATION ANNOUNCES ITS REMOVAL on November the tenth from the familiar quarters on Madison Square South which it has occupied since its institution in 1883 to the Madison Avenue Block, 56th to 57th Street. Success has brought change. But in moving from its old home it will not only carry with it old friends, but will make new acquaintances, for as never before it will have the opportunity of extending its service to both consignors and patrons.

LOCATED IN THE ART CENTER OF AMERICA at 57th Street and occupying the entire Madison Avenue Block, the new American Art Galleries will be the largest and best adapted for their purpose in the world. They will cover a total area of 60,000 square feet, with 30,000 square feet of gallery space, divided into 22 exhibition and sales rooms, all well-lighted, twelve by specially designed skylights and electric light reflectors which give a uniform light of equal quality on all four walls and the floor at all hours of the day and night. More than 30,000 square feet of wall-hanging surface permit the largest collections of paintings, prints, tapestries, rugs and other property requiring true color values to be exhibited under top light. The artistic furnishings and the equipment of cabinets and fixtures are such as to afford the most perfect display of artistic and literary property. Only by a personal visit can the beauty, dignity and utility of the new American Art Galleries be appreciated.

SIXTY MILLION DOLLARS in Public Sales of Art and Literary Property as well as Memorable Loan and Special Exhibitions attracting hundreds of thousands of visitors represent the tremendous volume of business under the management of the American Art Association since it was organized in 1883. Executors of estates, law firms, private owners and reputable dealers find the American Art Association to be unfailing in producing results because of its reliability, courtesy and fair dealing. Likewise occasional buyers become regular patrons by reason of the fact that the American Art Association conducts its Sales as represented, "without reserve, restriction or protection," never permitting additions to sales of private or estates' collections; prominently advertising real ownership, making final accounting within thirty days from the date of sale, and performing these duties at a reasonable charge — always willing to compete on the basis of efficient, intelligent service and satisfactory results, but not willing to compete on the basis of cheapness irrespective of results.

APPRAISALS AND CATALOGUES. Together with the increase in its exhibition and sales rooms, the American Art Association will expand its service of furnishing appraisements, under expert direction, of art and literary property, jewelry and all personal effects, in the settlement of estates, for inheritance tax, insurance and other purposes. It is prepared also to supplement this work by making catalogues of the contents of homes or of entire estates, such catalogues to be modeled after the finely and intelligently produced catalogues of the Association's own Sales.

Full information as to terms and conditions for sales, appraisals or cataloguing, as well as a complimentary booklet containing the details of past sales and appraisals and an interesting history of the American Art Association by its senior partner, Mr. Thomas E. Kirby, may be had upon request to

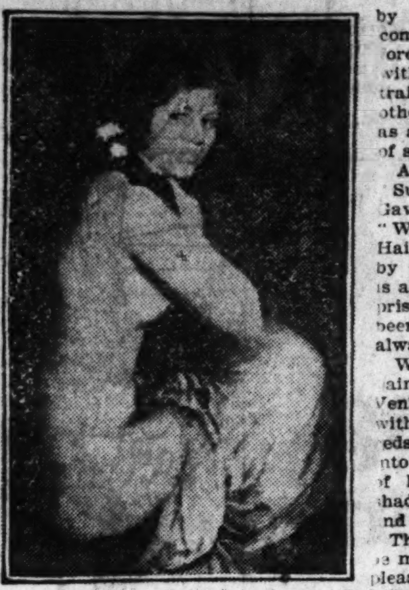
Realism Arrests the Eye Regarding Sargent's Canvas

By Eleanor Jewett.



"My Model," by Ivan G. Olinsky, on view in the thirty-fifth annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture at the Art institute.

NOW that the excitement of press day, first view, and the awarding of prizes have died down one may begin to appreciate the work set before us in the thirty-fifth annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture at the Art institute with an unprejudiced eye. The more utterly unprejudiced the eye the lovelier do the paintings hung become. While an absence of the strictly forceful canvas cannot help but make itself felt yet there is so much that is good painting, tasteful composition, charming color, and the like that its absence is not so much to be deplored as done without.

Possibly, acknowledging the lack and overlooking it, the single achievement in realism that demands unqualified approval is found in the masterly eyeglass set upon the nose of Mr. Woodbury in John Singer Sargent's likeness of him. It is the most real eyeglass that could be found outside the counter of a shop dealing in such ware. It is an impressive eyeglass, an inviting eyeglass, an imaginative eyeglass, but not for a moment an obtrusive eyeglass.

Second to the eyeglass in all manner and kind of excellency is the unusual composition by Wayman Adams depicting Joseph Pennell printing. For this, too, one has nothing but praise. Wayman Adams has forced approval from his audience so many hundreds of times with his various portraits that another feather in his cap is almost superfluous, yet by this composition does he secure to himself this selfsame adornment. When an artist's fancy plays with the setting as well as the sitter then must a portrait be unusual, and in as far as the artist's skill is great must the portrait be worth while.

Another canvas by Mr. Adams, showing an "Old New Orleans Mammy," is in a lighter vein. She is a buxom black mammy, full of the sunshine of smiles and the affection of her race. A safer harbor than her arms a little white master could scarcely find. Here again the painter has scored a success.

The "California Coast," by Edward B. Butler, is a lovely landscape, sweet with the fragrance of purple bloom and pungent with the salt tang of a not too distant blue sea.

Frank V. Dudley has a magnificent sweep of water in his "After the Storm."

One of the three or four beautiful paintings of flowers is "Bittersweet," by Anna Lee Stacey. This canvas comes as rather a surprise, as one before had connected Mrs. Stacey's talent with poetic landscape or attractive portraiture, but here she is shown in another though equally successful guise as a master of the intricate subtleties of still life.

Another beautiful flower painting is "Summer Flowers," by Frank J. Gavencky; a third is a garden scene, "White Peonies," by Johanna K. W. Hailman, and a fourth is "Flowers," by Charles W. Dahlgreen. This last is also something in the way of a surprise, as usually Mr. Dahlgreen has been represented by rather large and always beautiful landscapes.

Walter Griffin shows a decorative painting full of color in "Grand Canal, Venice." An interesting canvas, this, with its rapid interplay of mottled reds and orange, through which grow into comprehension the lofty shapes of high prowed gondolas and the shadowy eminences of ancient palaces and churches.

There are more paintings that must be mentioned, if only by title, but the pleasure of comment upon them must be postponed to a future date. Just one word as to the sculpture: The statue by Edwin Pearson representing "Odipus and Antigone" is as fine a piece of work as one had hoped it would be. Particularly in the hunted and haunted expression of the blind king does one read the pathos of the story as it made itself felt in the sculptor's understanding.

In Gunsaulus hall is the exhibit of boxes, pots, trays, cups, pitchers, and plates in various kinds of china ware and decoration shown by members of the Atlan Ceramic Art club. The collection in the glass cases is fascinating. It is difficult to pass many of the articles by without special mention, but, as so many are beautiful, probably it is wiser to lump them all as being of particular charm rather than risk comparisons, odious always, by selecting special jars or plates for elaborated praise.

Among those who have work in the exhibit are Mrs. Sheila Banner, Mrs. Philip H. Eichling, Mrs. A. A. Frazee, Mrs. C. A. Gale, Mrs. Miriam M. M. Gleason, June Hibbard Kern, Mrs. Frank C. Senge, Mrs. Arthur T. Wencer, Mrs. Ada Ward, and Mrs. F. E. Sanford.

This exhibition closes next Sunday.

A new class in "picture appreciation," was started last Friday in the department of museum instruction of the Art institute. The class meets at 11 o'clock in the morning. It is to be a weekly affair. The class is designed for the layman who wishes to develop his ability to understand pictures. What to look for in a painting and how to look for it will be discussed. The class will be held in the museum instruction classroom in the east end of Gunsaulus hall, and there will also be tours through both the permanent and temporary exhibitions in the institute. Miss Helen Parker will be the docent in charge of the class.

Katherine Dudley, a painter whose portraits have been seen at the Arts club and at the institute, has gone to China, to be away a year. One of her recent interesting canvases is the portrait of Mrs. William Mack Baxter, a Chicago woman.

Rudolph Ingerle won the silver medal in the Peoria exhibition of works by Illinois artists with his painting "Moonlight," Lucie Hartrath was awarded the bronze medal for a landscape.

Magda Heuermann, who has spent some time in Germany lately, has just returned from a year of travel abroad.

◆

A new loom for weaving has been presented to the art school of the Art institute. Seven looms are now in use there.

◆

The pylons of the new Michigan avenue bridge are soon to be decorated. The Chicago commission has selected James E. Fraser and Henry Hering to execute two groups each.

◆

The Field Museum of Natural History has an interesting exhibition of drawings and photographs of birds and flowers that is well worth a visit.

Next Friday afternoon in Gunsaulus hall Lorado Taft will speak on the sculpture of central Europe.

An exhibit of oriental rugs loaned by James Ballard is to be seen in Gunsaulus hall.

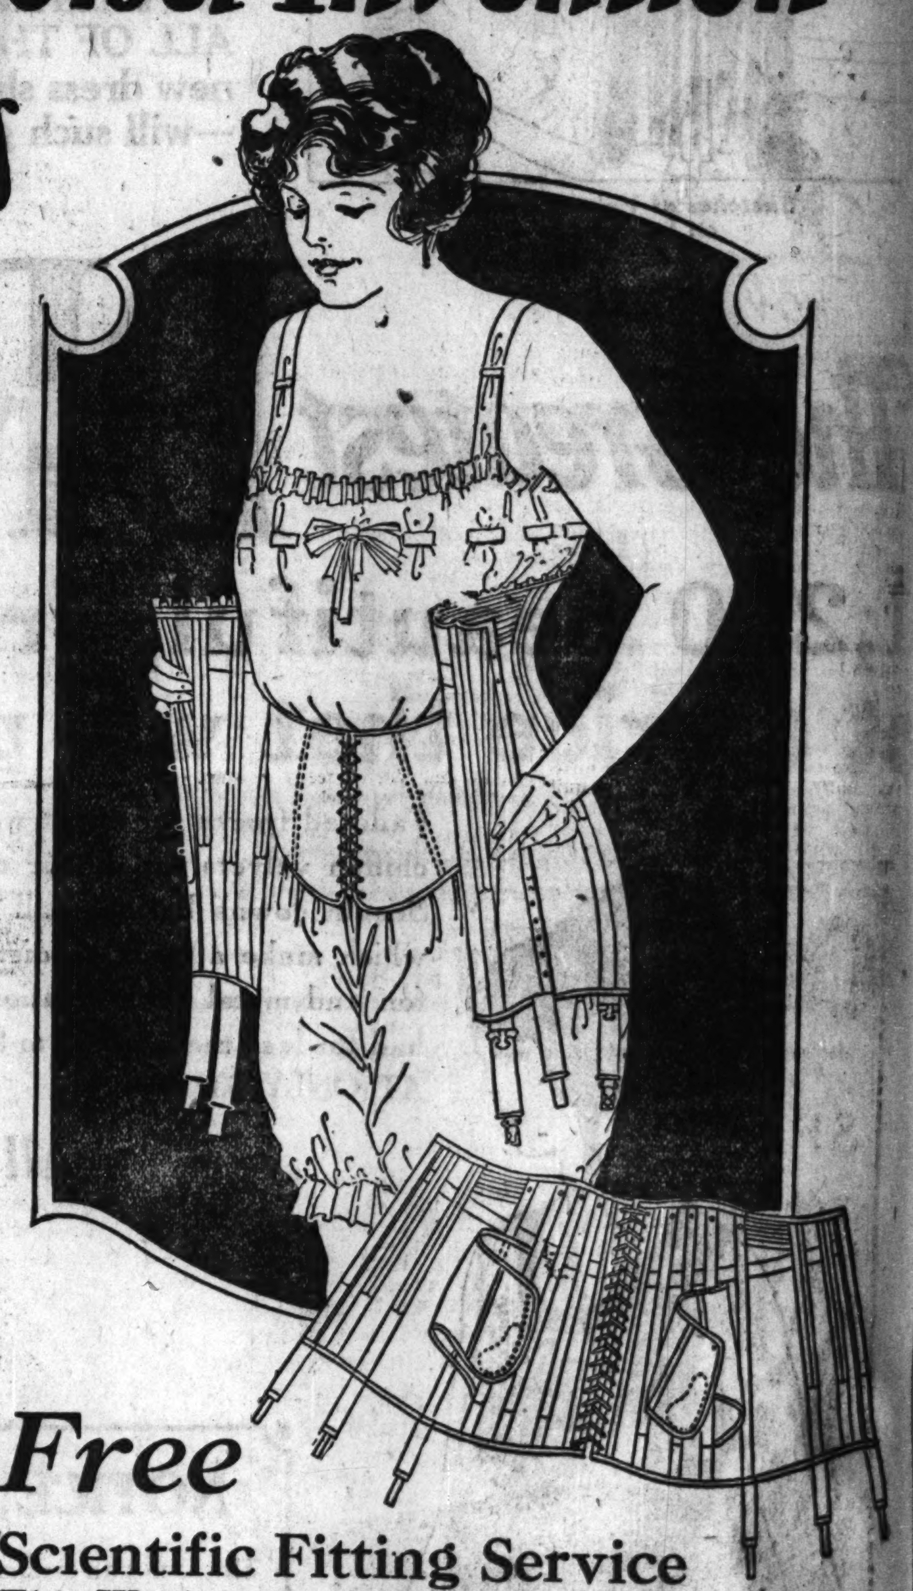
New Wonder Corset Invention Gives Amazing Results

In Comfort—In Health—In Style



It is a startling fact that a very large percent of the ailments peculiar to women are directly traceable to the weakening of the abdominal walls and the consequent settling or sagging of the vital organs. "Ptosis" it is called scientifically, and is the most injurious condition to good health, comfort and style to which women are subjected. In a large number of cases it is the result of improperly fitted corsets.

Constipation, headaches, backaches, bearing-down pains, dizziness, stomach trouble and afternoon fatigue are common complaints due to a prolapsed condition of the internal organs. The bowels and stomach drop and sag. Generative organs become disarranged. Hernias and obesity are often caused, and so the entire health is impaired—the form loses its natural lovely lines. Style, poise and erect, comfortable carriage of the body is impossible.

Ptosis or this relaxation or falling down of the internal organs located in the pelvic cavity is brought about in many women by child-birth, which stretches the muscular tissues of the abdominal walls, leaving them relaxed and unsupported.

Lack of proper exercise also causes poor muscular development of the abdominal walls, and more than any one other cause is improper corseting, which pushes the organs downward and by compression interferes with their action and prevents normal use of the abdominal muscles.

Physicians and Surgeons are baffled with this condition in seven out of every ten women. Medicines have no effect and a surgical operation is the only relief outside of a proper abdominal support. They recognize that only by proper, scientifically applied support in a correctly fitted uplifting corset can relief be experienced and the patient's ill health corrected.

Surgical Appliances Not Necessary

Many women are in the habit of lacing the body without regard for the anatomy or consideration of the necessity of abdominal support. Many believe a cumbersome surgical appliance is needed.

But now a corset has been invented, the KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET which abolishes tight-lacing and affords unrestricted comfort every day of wear. It is not a cumbersome, clumsy appliance, but a light-weight, stylish, comfortable corset, which scientifically supports the inner organs in a natural position, yet retains all the style advantage of the preferred type of corset of today.

Physicians and Surgeons the world over have long recognized the need for such a garment, and the KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET is the nearest approach to the medical conception of the ideal corset that has ever been invented. Nearly every Physician and Surgeon in Chicago and vicinity has had an opportunity to know this garment and recognize its health corrective features.

The Result of Science

The KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET is the result of years of experimenting, study of anatomical conditions and research on the part of physicians and surgeons and prominent corset designers. To overcome the shortcomings of the ordinary corset which crowds straight back, forces the organs downward—compresses the waist and restricts breathing—a patented, non-elastic, uplift belt is attached to the garment.

With this belt a gentle upward inner lifting of the abdomen is exerted at the groin seam. It gently but firmly raises the abdomen and lifts the organs directly up. The organs are replaced as nearly as possible to their natural position with a consequent restoration to the health of the wearer.

When laced, the inner belt is hidden from view. It cannot slip out of place or cause discomfort. It does not interfere with the movements of the body, does not gouge when sitting, nor permit slipping beneath. Instead it affords a delightful feeling of comfortable security, gives an upright, graceful, stylish carriage to the body, permits unrestrained, healthful breathing, and marked comfort and relief from the first minute of wear.

Positive Reduction—Dressmakers Endorse It

As a reducing corset, the KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET is the one corset for women who have large, fatty abdomens. Its accomplishments are little short of phenominal. Reduction as much as 8 inches in waist lines have been made. And yet it is all done with the utmost comfort and relief. That dragging feeling, so common with women with pendulous abdomen is eliminated by wearing the KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET.

So positive is its results that dressmakers universally endorse this garment as it enables the creation of gowns that impart a style of figure most satisfactory to their customers.

The KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET is the only corset of its kind in the world—no corset invented will do what it will do, yet, when it is on it looks no different, sets no different and is no heavier than the ordinary corset.

Free Scientific Fitting Service

This Week by Specially Trained Corsetieres

To prove, without obligation that the KELLOGG UPLIFT CORSET will give you the results in comfort, relief, style that you seek in a corset, you are invited to take advantage of this Free Fitting Service at one of these specially selected shops.

For the Betterment of Womanhood for more healthful corseting, specially trained corsetieres, who know the human anatomy and the needs of present day women, will be at your service. It will prove to you what can be accomplished when you are correctly fitted in a scientifically designed garment.

Special attention will be given to women with dropped stomach and bowels, disarrangement of the generative organs, prolapsed uterus, hernia, obesity and other ailments caused by weakened abdominal walls.

Mothers particularly, should have this fitting. Every woman who has had a major operation of the abdominal cavity should prove the value of this corset.

MOVIE FANS' LETTER BOX

Dear Madam: Herewith a few suggestions for improving the movies: Provide oral subtitle readers with megaphones. Put bells on candy socks. Furnish extra hard candy for a refreshment during performance. Provide free tickets for spoiled children. Give patrons with colds a bottle of coryza germs to present to customer in front. New false teeth for clucking ladies to use in ultra-climaxes. Chloroform Lowell Sherman.

Yours truly, SAM.

Dear Miss Tinée: When I saw your picture in the W. G. N. some months ago, I never could have believed that so cruel a nature could hide behind such a kindly face. But if, as you seem to think, you are the poet of this here corner, why don't you strut yaur stuff? For ordering me to quit writing poetry I thank you, not for the order, but for the admission. Day by day in every way, etc.—I never got anyone before even to admit that I write poetry.

What I was trying to work up to was the enviable position of optimist of the kick korner. But since it is not to be, I will proceed to demonstrate my versatility by projecting a great idea. Envious friends have told me I look like old Hugh Fullerton. If so, I must disguise myself. After disguising I must have something to do, therefore, I offer my services in apprehending "Persistent," whom I suspect writes something even worse than my poetry.

Now that is all settled, you may go ahead with the next installment of A Star At Large, but I give you my word I shall not read it.

I nearly forgot to say that I have not done any detecting, but I know where I can get a good correspondence course, and will be ready to start on your case in two weeks.

LOONEY LOUIE.

Stop fussing! You were appointed optimist of the corner long ago!

KICK KORNER

Its object: Objection

Dear Mae Tinée: I'm here with a good big kick. I'm sure when I go to the movies I go to enjoy myself and not to criticize—I haven't the time. I'm sure Viola Dana would recompense you with her funny laughable stunts for the few mistakes in the picture. Don't you think so? She is adorable, as a child. I believe in enjoying myself and not watching for mistakes.

M. B.

[Editor's Note: Yes, but if NOBODY minded the mistakes can't you imagine the trash we'd have served up to us?]

Dear Miss Tinée: May I not crave the privilege of registering a vociferous "beef" in your kick korner as to why the moving picture public has so long permitted a certain feminine movie star to hide her light under a bushel, as the saying goes?

After calm deliberation ever since the inception of moving pictures as to who, in my humble view, is the screen's real queen from all histrionic angles, I make bold to take up the cudgel in extolling the virtues of a woman who fills the bill to a nicety. The young woman in question has gone on all these years in a most unostentatious way giving unerring portrayals of the long list of characters in which she has been singularly devoid of sob stuff, beauty contests, mushy adulation, scandals in studio life, and what not, which have enveloped many stars of the screen. I singled her out long ago as embodying all the graces and arts that go to make up the real woman, and I have remained faithful to her, although I must confess that at times I wavered somewhat in my constancy when some one of her contemporaries displaced her momentarily by some startling piece of screen technique.

I refer to Ethel Clayton. A close study of the careers of those on the speaking stage covering a period of two score years has, I believe, made me a fairly competent critic, and I fell that what I have laid down here regarding my choice of popular screen stars will find a ready response in the hearts of thousands who have watched Miss Clayton's career. I rather take it that the reason this captivating and talented young woman has not created more of a splurge is to be attributed to a retiring disposition and an innate modesty which craves no sensationalism.

Miss Clayton has done much for the uplift of the silent drama, and in the opinion of your humble servant will continue to so conduct herself that one day she will be acclaimed as the real "America's Sweetheart," a little altogether too long deferred. E. L. B.

[Editor's note: Miss Clayton should be grateful for your beautiful tribute.]

Dear Mae Tinée: Pipe down on that chatter about a swab of a pilot in rigging up that picture of Dorothy Dalton's, "On the High Seas." He's all right. He may have made a few slips on the technicalities of filming the picture, but when he comes to sea stuff or navy stuff he knows his stuff and does it.

That's the first picture of sea and navy life I have ever seen that wasn't chockful of mistakes and stupid blunders that would make a real sailor tear his hair.

That director is good, Mae Tinée, and you take the word of an old ex-salt that he is. Dalton's part is sure that of a mucker, but those sea scenes and shipwreck and navy scenes are the berries. Enjoyed them.

Now that we have said all the nice things, we will call your attention to one error. In the landing of our hero stoker the director has a Negro acting as stern man in the landing boat. That never occurs. The only Negroes in the navy are in the engineer's force and the officers' servants squad.

This merely for your information. But no foolin', Mae Tinée, I'm for that director. He done noble. H. B. M.

(Editor's Note: It seemeth that thou wouldst scuttle this critic!)

You Can Have Both by Wearing the Only Original and Genuine "Naro-Heel" Triple Combination Last Shoes

The great majority of shoes sacrifice either comfort for appearance or vice versa.

If you wear Original "Naro-Heel" shoes you can have both, and at a cost that is not excessive.

The foot is prevented from slipping up and down by the narrow heel; the high arch prevents it from going forward; the broad ball of the shoe gives perfect freedom to the toes.

Chicago Opera Starts New Era with High Hopes

na Vincitor," more grandiose display than the triumph scene, a more stirring bit of drama than the judgment scene as Amneris listens to it. As for the third act by the Nile, it fairly shimmers with beauty, moonlight in the orient set to music as never done before or since.

Novelty from Russia.

The novelty of the week, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Sniegurotchka" is about as different from "Aida" as Russia is from Egypt, with the single connecting link of being another piece of fine art. Instead of impassioned love, jealousy, treason, and murder, it is a fairy tale in the mood of childhood, of a snow sprite who is given human life and dies after failing to find human love, of children who play and villagers who frolic, of a czar who is not the mighty ruler of a vast kingdom, but the Little Father of his people. Scientists, who take a disconcerting delight in reducing pleasant experiences to formulas, will probably classify "Sniegurotchka" as a myth typifying the retreat of winter before spring, but it will never become popular for that reason.

It was given, apparently for the first time in Chicago, when the wandering Russian opera company played a few weeks at the Olympic theater last spring. Inadequate as the performance was then for many reasons applying to insufficient scenic equipment and orchestral and choral ability, it was utterly charming. What it will be on Thursday night at the Auditorium, with the far more resourceful Chicago organization taking it in hand, is another matter of the future. But a certain amount of gossip has come from the theater to the effect that a lovely score, a ballet of Adolph Bolm's devising, and some unusual scenery is going to make it worthy of your interested attention.

Country-wide Contest.

Thirty states are up to the present date represented in the list of American composers who are competing in the Balaban & Katz $1,000 contest for a symphonic composition.

Entries were expected as a matter of course from the traditional centers of music, New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, and Los Angeles, and they have lived up to expectations. What hardly was anticipated are the replies from Montana, New Mexico, Nebraska, Kansas, Washington, Kentucky, and Louisiana.

Porto Rico is represented; the University of Wisconsin has written for particulars; Kalamazoo and Albuquerque are in; Republic, Kas., has a contestant; army officers from Camp Lewis, Wash., have asked for enrollment. In fact, the most surprising fact about the whole contest is the number of small towns and rural communities that are represented. This might have been looked for in a popular song contest, but the present one is for a symphonic composition for full orchestra. That necessitates not only the composer's urge, but the composer's knowledge and technique.

The contest is for a cash prize of $1,000, plus a public performance of the work adjudged to be the most meritorious. Five supplemental awards will be issued, involving no cash prize, but other public performances of the next five works in order of merit. It would seem to be beyond argument that a hearing of their works is an important consideration with American composers, and that Balaban & Katz, in recognizing this fact, have extended the influence of moving picture theaters to a marked degree.

It is emphasized once again that contestants are desired to submit their manuscripts to the Chicago theater anonymously, marking them with a key number or pen name, and inclosing a sealed envelope with the key number on the outside and the real name and address of the composer inside, the envelope not to be opened until after the judges have passed on the music. The contest will close Dec. 31.

Here and There in Music.

Beginning Wednesday night, the City club of Chicago will present a series of seven chamber music recitals to be given monthly. The Beethoven trio, the Shostac quartet, and the Philharmonic quartet will alternate in playing the programs. Word from the club gives an excellent reason for promoting the series. It is to the effect that the club, being a civic organization, believes that music for the community should be among its activities, and that chamber music is by no means as intensively cultivated as it should be.

Mischa Levitzki, a good pianist who has not appeared here in some time, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week, playing the Schumann Concerto in A minor. Mr. Stock announces two novelties: Respighi's arrangement of selections from Rossini's "La Boutique Fantasque," and Goossens' "The Eternal Rhythm." The sympony will be Schubert's "Unfinished."

There is to be an Irene Castle performance on Tuesday evening at Orchestra hall, despite rumors of broken contracts and changes of plans. Mrs. Castle will make no western tour, as previously announced, but in answer to the plea of Chicago members of the Vassar alumnæ, who had her Chicago appearance under supervision, she has announced that she will be here on Tuesday for the one performance. Some changes in the program may be necessary, but one of equal attraction is assured. Tickets have been on sale all the last week. Luella Melluis, soprano, will be an added attraction.

The Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra will introduce this noon a new American composition. It is called "Elation," is composed for strings alone, and is the work of Henry Joslyn. Eugene DuBois, the concert master of the orchestra, will be the soloist, playing Wieniawski's Concerto in D minor.

James R. Godfrey, 101 West Monroe street, Springfield, Ill., desires information about an old song on the death of Napoleon at St. Helena, and if possible a copy thereof. What follows is what he remembers of it. (The work is unknown to this department.)

A spirit immortal, the tomb cannot bind thee,
But, like thine own eagle that soars to the sun,
Thou breakest thy fetters and leave behind thee
A name which no mortal before thee has won.

The last half of the Thursday morning musicales sponsored by Jessie B. Hall will not be given, or at least given at other than the formerly announced dates. Miss Hall's analysis of the situation is somewhat bitter and would seem to be commended to those who say they prefer American art to the imported kind. She says:

"The three remaining morning musicales have been canceled because of lack of support, due principally to the hour and possibly because the artists are all Americans. Miss Ludmila will be presented later in the season possibly, and Mr. Drake will be heard in recital after the holidays. The Chicago Oratorio quartet, an all Chicago organization, will be heard Thursday, Jan. 10, in Recital hall, Fine Arts building. Robert Ringling, baritone has been transferred to the Studebaker theater December 3."

EDITH MASON.

Edith Mason, a well liked soprano of the Chicago opera, will be heard in both opera and concert this week. In company with Benno Moiseiwitsch, pianist, she will inaugurate the series of Kinsolving morning musicals at the Blackstone hotel on Tuesday morning. She will make an appearance the next night at the Auditorium as Mimi in Puccini's opera, "La Boheme."

Program for First Week of the Opera

Unique Travel Book Just Issued

Raymond-Whitcomb "Guide" Now Published Semi-Annually

Gives Costs and Describes All Principal Resorts and Routes for Winter Travel in the United States, Hawaii, West Indies, Bermuda

As a response to numerous requests, the Raymond-Whitcomb "Guide to Travel" which was issued for the first time last winter, has been made a permanent semi-annual publication. This is the only book which contains lists and brief descriptions of all principal resorts and routes for pleasure travel in America, together with estimated time and cost. The 1922-23 Winter Edition is just off the press and copies may be had by applying to Raymond & Whitcomb Co.

A Travel Expert Always at Your Command

This unique book is truly a travel expert, always at your command. It is essential to effective preliminary travel planning and is as authoritative as the Official Railway Guide or Baedeker. Like the latter publications it is a standard publication with a permanent place in travel literature.

Answers Vital Travel Questions

"Where can I go?"
"How long will it take?"
"How much will it cost?"

The information from thousands upon thousands of books, pamphlets and circulars edited and re-edited into easily accessible form has been collected to make the Raymond-Whitcomb "Guide to Winter Travel" the concise handbook of valuable travel information that it is.

Limited Edition

The edition is of necessity limited and early applications will take precedence. However, it is the desire of Raymond-Whitcomb that every person, who can use this information to advantage, have a copy of the Raymond-Whitcomb "Guide to Winter Travel" simply by asking for it. Application may be made in person, by mail, telephone or telegraph to the local office of the Raymond & Whitcomb Co., 112 So. Dearborn Street, Chicago. Telephone State 6396.

MAN

RISE OF THE NORDICS.

THE story of the last 3,000 years, which includes most of what we call ancient history and all of modern and medieval, is about the rise of Nordic men. True, the text-books do not say this; in many of them even the word "Nordic" does not occur, and so you will have to read between the lines. This will be a good habit to get yourself into, because all books tell better stories on the white paper about the mind of the author, his habits, and the customs of his time, than do his words in the black type.

Three thousand years ago there were not many Nordics in the world, and what there were did not figure prominently. Civilization was then in the hands of the Semites. 1000 B. C. was the time of Homer. Egypt was waning, while Mesopotamia was about to see the rise of the Persian power, where a tall, yellow haired man named Cyrus was to lead a handful of blond shepherds to form the greatest empire of his age. Crete lay prostrate beneath the bronze axes of the oncoming Celts, who were later to be the Greeks. Celts were also filtering over the Alps and down into Italy, to make Rome. Celts were invading what is now France, to make Gaul, and were entering what had just become the British Isles to make the Britons.

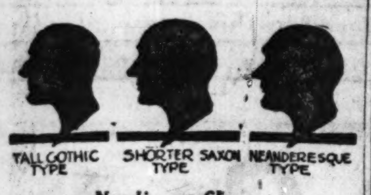
Away to the north, along the bleak coasts of the North sea, by the Baltic, and in the gloomy fens of Poland and northern Russia, lay another race of men, who were to appear presently as Vikings, Saxons, Angles, Danes, Germans, Teutons, Goths, Franks, Lombards, and by many kinds of names. Nordics were not entirely unknown before 1000 B. C., for their race formed the stock of the earlier Egyptian Pharaohs, the Philistines of Biblical fame, the Assyrians, also the terror of the Hebrews, and the wild and savage nations who dwelt in the basin of Transcaspia. But as yet they had exerted little force.



Nordic profiles.

The causes leading to the sudden rise of Nordics are of the highest dramatic interest. These men, ectrospective, of primitive emotions and faulty comprehension of things human, were much despised by the Celts, their neighbors on the south. The Celts were more civilized. While the two peoples were both armed with stone weapons, their nations kept a balance. Then the Celts learned how to make bronze. We can imagine the consternation of the primitive Germans, as some huge Celt, encased in mail, with helmet, greaves, and shield that no arrow could pierce, came striding into battle armed with a keen red flashing ax of bronze. The fair faced Nordics stand aghast at him. They assail him wtih their hammers of stone, only to see their weapons splinter on his hard shards. He is a man invulnerable and invincible.

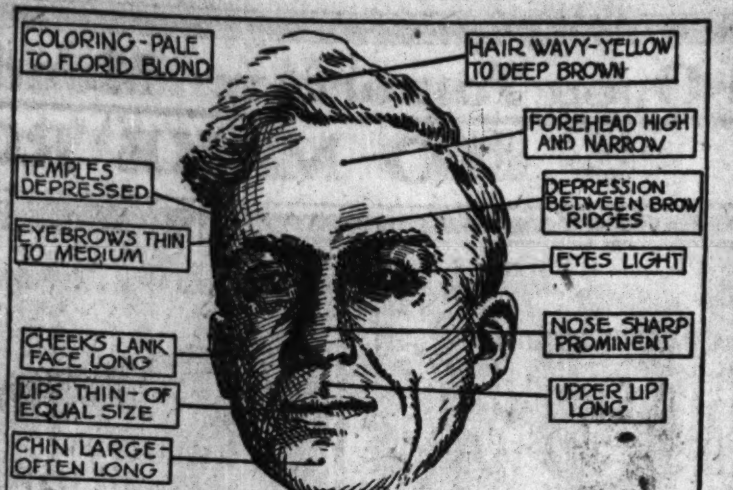
For a time the Celts beat the Nordics back. Then the latter learned the secret of the terrible metal. They went one step farther, and learned how to be blacksmiths and beat iron. Their ectrospective minds, attuned only to things, turned from being their worst enemies into their best friends. The Nordics could understand the flame, the ore, the casting, and the pounding better than their Celtic adversaries could. They turned savagely upon their tormentors. So thoroughly did they conquer that even the names of their victims and their mother tongues came to be forgotten. The Greeks, Gaels, Romans, Gauls, and other Celts who came pouring southward into history, were ready refugee nations fleeing before the all conquering Nordics.



Think of the energy and advance of this single race of blond men. There are today two foremost countries in the world that are overwhelmingly Nordic—America and the British empire. Scandinavia, Germany, and Russia are largely Nordic. Today there is no considerable area of land in the world where Nordics have not gone, nor many peoples who do not feel their rule or influence.

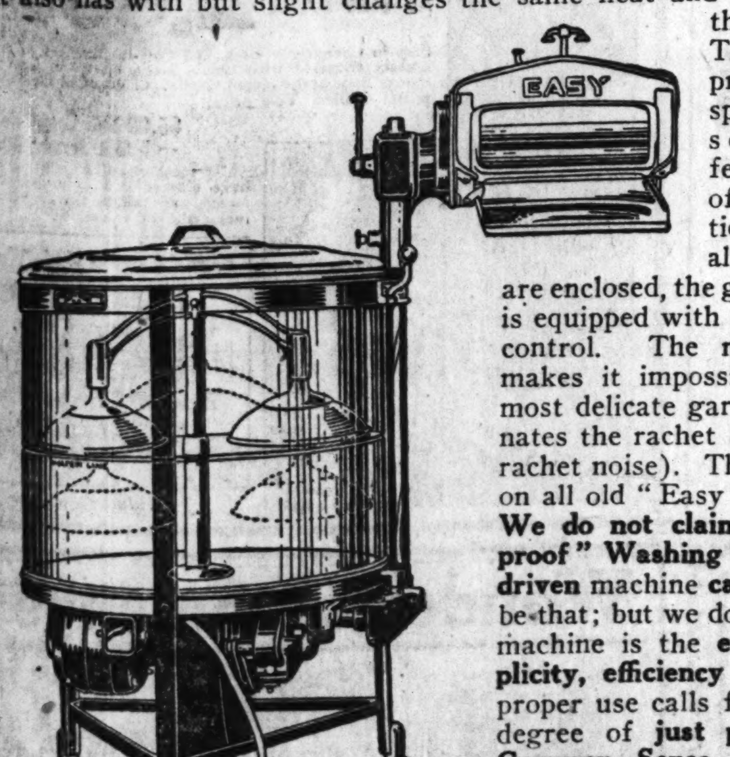
BUSINESS is GOOD; it CAN be BETTER with more Good DEALERS and more Direct SALES

The "Easy" Vacuum Electric Washer is the "Old Faithful" of Washing Machines. Its history is a story of Evolution. Starting in 1877 with the still popular "Stomper," it has had a career of uninterrupted progress to the perfected article of today.

The Last Model "Easy" retains the basic principle of "Air-pressure and Suction" which has so worthily won for it a more than national reputation; it also has with but slight changes the same neat and graceful outlines of the earlier models. The model we are now presenting for your inspection has, however, several interesting features most worthy of careful consideration. There is no belt, all mechanical parts are enclosed, the gears run in oil, and it is equipped with an automatic switch control. The new turning device makes it impossible to damage the most delicate garments, it also eliminates the rachet (and the consequent rachet noise). This device can be put on all old "Easy" machines.



We do not claim to have a "fool-proof" Washing Machine; no power driven machine can by any possibility be that; but we do know that our new machine is the embodiment of simplicity, efficiency and durability; its proper use calls for only a moderate degree of just plain, old-fashioned Common Sense, and most women have that!

If you are in need of a washing machine, for re-sale or for your own use, we invite you to visit one of our stores before purchasing; then if we are able to satisfy you—"BUY AN EASY."

BOOKS

BEST SELLERS OF THE AGES

By James O'Donnell Bennett

Forty-seventh Paper—Anthony Trollope's Masterpiece, "The Warden": One of the Sincerities of Mid-Victorianism.

THE PLEASANT SPIRIT OF ANTHONY TROLLOPE.

> . . . and as he walked across the hallowed close, and looked up at the ravens who cawed with a peculiar reverence as he wended his way, he (Archdeacon Grantly) thought with increased acerbity of those whose impiety would venture to disturb the goodly grace of cathedral institutions.
>
> And who has not felt the same? . . . Who could be hard upon a dean while wandering round the sweet close of Hereford, and owning that in that precinct, tone and colour, design and form, solemn tower and storied window, are all in unison, and all perfect! Who could lie basking in the cloisters of Salisbury, and gaze on Jewel's library, and that unequalled spire, without feeling that bishops should sometimes be rich?
> The tone of our archdeacon's mind must not astonish us; it has been the growth of centuries of church ascendancy; and though some fungi now disfigure the tree, though there be much dead wood, for how much good fruit have not we to be thankful? Who, without remorse, can batter down the dead branches of an old oak, now useless, but ah! still so beautiful, or drag out the fragments of the ancient forest, without feeling that they sheltered the younger plants, to which they are now summoned to give way in a tone so peremptory and so harsh?—(Chapter V.) "THE WARDEN."

SOME fifty years ago a burly, bearded, abrupt, and bustling man would enter an English railway carriage for a tour of postal inspection. If he encountered friend or acquaintance in the compartment he would visit briefly with him. Then, if the weather was chill, he would take from his bag or from the pocket of his greatcoat a huge fur cap, part of which came down over his shoulders. While adjusting it to his head he would ask briskly, and as briskly answer himself, "Do you ever sleep when you are traveling? No? Well, I always do."

Within three minutes he was sleeping profoundly, the proof being a triumphant snore.

Waking in an hour he would extricate himself from the sleeping helmet and ask friend or acquaintance, "Do you ever write when you are traveling? No? Well, I always do."

Then out came pad (tablet, they called it in his day and country) and pencil, and forthwith intent composition began. It continued until the end of the journey.

The story is authentic, and none more tellingly epitomizes Anthony Trollope, the man and the artist.

For they were not postal accounts or reports which swiftly made a score or more of closely written pages on these journeys: they were chapters of a new novel which in a few months would be sold by the author for from $12,000 to $15,000, and be read by everybody in England—that is, everybody who followed the new fiction—from Disraeli, the prime minister, and George Eliot, who said she read Trollope because he was "admirable in the presentation of average life and character, and so thoroughly wholesome minded"—to the spinsters in London lodgings, and the girls in sequestered rectories, and the English tourists on continental trains. Those last read Trollope's stories in Baron Tauchnitz's English editions, which were, and still are, printed in Leipsic, and which to this day constitute the most nearly complete uniform collection of Trollope's works. We in this country then read them in pirated editions sometimes, and sometimes in more creditable issues on which firms like the Harpers had the grace voluntarily to pay the author a small royalty.

Between the year 1847, when he published his first book, which was a failure, as were his second and third, and the year 1882, when he died, Anthony Trollope wrote forty-seven novels, four books of travel, five biographies (including his own), eight collections of short stories, and three unpublished works, besides uncounted book reviews and articles on politics and hunting which appeared in newspapers and magazines.

His total published output makes about 115 300-page volumes.

Throughout the period of his greatest literary activity he was a faithful, energetic servant of the English government; traveled extensively throughout Great Britain and Ireland on tours of inspection; effected goodly innovations and reforms in the postal service; negotiated important postal treaties with foreign countries, including ours; visited the West Indies and the Spanish Main, North America, Australia and New Zealand, Iceland, and South Africa, and wrote books about them. He could, and did, write novels at sea while he was seasick. He could, and did, begin his day's writing at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, and used to pay one of his grooms £25 a year extra to rout him out of bed at that hour.

He kept books on himself, entering every shilling he earned by literature. A page and a half of his curious and very interesting "Autobiography" is given to a detailed accounting of his earnings from 1847 to 1879. The total for the thirty-two years was nearly $350,000. He then had three working years left to him, and he used them. He has been dead forty years, and he is still a steady seller.

He was, in short, a prodigy of industry and prosperity in literature, for a large amount of what he wrote was literature of a most honest kind, and his whole life was a contradiction of the fond illusion of lazy writers that literature has to wait on inspiration. He said it waited on system, application, and the seeing eye. Unhappily for the survival of a vast deal of what he wrote, he overworked system. He left more than a hundred volumes. If he had left ten he would not have died worth nearly half a million, but what is preëminently good in his enormous production would not be blurred by what is only faithful and creditable. He was not blind to the penalty which posterity might exact for his pitiless fecundity, and in the "Autobiography" he said, "I do not think it probable that my name will remain among those who in the next century will be known as the writers of English prose fiction."

He was wrong. The "next century" is nearly a quarter gone and with the passing of every year of it the fame of Trollope, far from waning, steadily has waxed. There is a solid reason for this. One cannot intimately know the domestic and social side of the wonderful, wondering, questioning, self-searching, initiating mid-Victorian period, which it is the fashion now to patronize, without knowing half a dozen of the representative novels of Anthony Trollope. Among those representative novels are "The Warden" (1855), "Barchester Towers" (1857), "Dr. Thorne" (1858), "Framley Parsonage" (1861), "The Last Chronicle of Barset" (1867), "Orley Farm" (1862), "The Small House at Allington" (1864), "The Way We Live Now" (1875), and "Is He Popenjoy?" (1878). The first four stories here mentioned make up the so-called Barset series of Trollope. They are more or less closely related in plot, scene, and characters, but are not strictly serial. That is, any one of them makes an independent tale.

It is a curious fact that, of the four Barset tales, the briefest, and the least pretentious of them, and the one which upon its publication was accounted a failure—or at most only the promising work of a novice—is today rated by the true Trollopians as the gem of them all.

That tale is "The Warden."

The book possesses a peculiar charm. It constantly is being reprinted—(I think the best and cheapest of the more recent reprints are that of G. Bell & Sons, 1913, with a valuable introduction by Frederic Harrison, and the one in the World's Classics series, which costs 80 cents in cloth)—and it constantly is being read by a class of readers perhaps the most sedate and the most acute among the estimators of literature. But they, I believe, would find it as difficult precisely to define the charm of "The Warden" as we less analytical readers might. Possibly that charm lies in the unforced but heart searching tenderness of the story. In my reading of English novels I have encountered no other character at once so saintly, so brave, so quaint, and so veritable as is the Rev. Septimus Harding, the venerable percentor of Barchester cathedral and warden of the ancient charitable foundation—more than 400 years old at the period of our story, which is the mid-nineteenth century—known as Hiram's hospital. There is not a character in English fiction, so far as I know it, precisely like him, nor one more endearing. He is as endearing as the Vicar of Wakefield and he has more sense. Like him, he is saintly but never a predestined gull. He is an old, old man with a young conscience; an old, old man with the gentlest and most winning ways, but demonstrating the possession of a will of iron when an issue involving his moral dignity is at stake. He accounts his honor of more moment than his livelihood and I think—nay, am sure—he would rather have joined the broken, irrascible bedesmen (Trollope employs that less usual spelling of the word) as a pauper in Hiram's hospital than have remained there nominally its master but in reality a parasite upon that ancient foundation. And by remaining he felt he would become such. The book thus possesses no insignificant value as a Victorian social document. About the middle of the last century, or a decade or so earlier, the quickened Victorian conscience began to be hurt by the misapplication of ancient charitable bequests—all more or less linked up with the national church—which in the course of ages had become church perquisites, their original purpose having been quite turned awry. Some of the more outspoken newspapers described these institutions as "hotbeds of peculation," and Lord John Russell, also outspoken, did much during his tenure of office to end the scandal. Septimus Harding discovers that he, far more than the ancient bedesmen, is the beneficiary of the pious bequest of the long gone fifteenth century wuolstapler, John Hiram, and his fine, true, sweet nature cannot bear the thought.

Septimus Harding had two supreme loves; they were his unmarried daughter and his violoncello, that instrument beloved of great souls all the way from Schubert and Beethoven to Goldmark and Tschaikowsky and Dvorak and Bizet—rememberest thou how the fond violoncellos make the background for the meeting of the old lovers in the adagietto of the "Arlesienne" suite! And Septimus Harding also had a curious trick of manner. Whenever he was in deep abstraction or greatly moved he would, whether his violoncello were by him or not, seek self-expression, or consolation, or confidence, by playing—quite unobtrusively—an imaginary violoncello in pantomime. It is so when he is badgered and berated and cross-examined by his more practical brethren, notably the archdeacon, concerning his determination to surrender that handsome sinecure, the wardenship of Hiram's hospital. Thus:

> The warden still looked mutely in his face, making the slightest possible passes with an imaginary fiddle bow, and stopping, as he did so, sundry imaginary strings with the fingers of his other hand. 'Twas his constant consolation in conversational troubles. While these vexed him sorely the passes would be short and slow, and the upper hand would not be seen to work; nay, the strings on which it operated would sometimes lie concealed in the musician's pocket, and the instrument on which he played would be beneath his chair; but as his spirit warmed to the subject,—as his trusting heart, looking to the bottom of that which vexed him, would see its clear way out,—he would rise to a higher melody, sweep the unseen strings with a bolder hand, and, swiftly fingering the chords from his neck, down along his waistcoat, and up again to his very ear, create an ecstatic strain of perfect music, audible to himself and to St. Cecelia, and not without effect.

Septimus Harding fights a great fight in this great little story, and I think the most tender and exquisite scene in it comes toward the close of it when, having overcome a "practical" world, which tries to make itself believe that he is quite mad but which knows full well that he is not, he again has recourse to the consolations of his phantom cello:

> . . . And, as he finished what he had to say, he played up such a tune as never before had graced the chambers of any attorney general. He was standing up, gallantly fronting Sir Abraham, and his right arm passed with bold and rapid sweeps before him, as though he were embracing some huge instrument, which allowed him to stand thus erect; and with the fingers of his left hand he stopped, with preternatural velocity, a multitude of strings, which ranged from the top of his collar to the bottom lappet of his coat. Sir Abraham listened and looked in wonder. As he had never before seen Mr. Harding, the meaning of these wild gesticulations was lost upon him; but he perceived that the gentleman, who had a few minutes since been so subdued as to be unable to speak without hesitation, was now impassioned—nay, almost violent.
> "You'll sleep on this, Mr. Harding, and tomorrow——"
>
> "I have done more than sleep upon it," said the warden; "I have laid awake upon it, and that night after night. I found I could not sleep upon it; now I hope to do so."

BOOK NEWS from LONDON

By Sidney Dark

[Editor of John O'London's Weekly.]

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Among the new volumes to be issued in London before the end of the year is the autobiography of W. B. Yeats, to which the poet has given the attractive title of "The Trembling of the Veil." It will be published by Werner Laurie to "subscribers only." This is a method of publication to which Werner Laurie is particularly addicted. "Mr. Lloyd George," by E. T. Raymond, the author of "Uncensored Celebrities," will have a topical interest in view of the political turmoil in this country. A book that promises unusual interest is, "I Can Remember Robert Louis Stevenson." to which Thomas Hardy and J. M. Barrie have both contributed. Augustine Birrell, a talented man of letters, who has spent the greater part of his life as an ineffective politician, has collected his essays in three volumes.

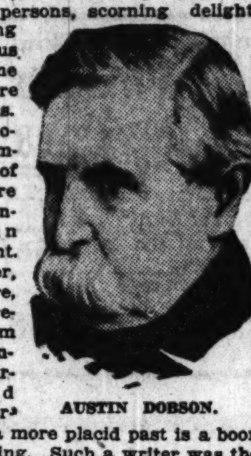
WILLIAM BUTLER YEATS.

In his new book of critical studies, Sir Henry Newbolt says the emotional cause of poetry is man's longing for "a land of heart's desire." Another writer has recently said that "the characteristic emotion of poetry is a longing for the things that are not, for permanence amid change, security in unrest, eternity in mortality." After this striking and suggestive statement the writer becomes confusingly highbrow. He tells us: "Absolute poetry is the direct embodiment, through symbols that are necesarily dark, of a pure, comprehensive, and self satisfying experience, which we may call, if we please, an immediate intuition of the hidden nature of things." As the author of a well known comic song says: "This is funny, but I don't know what it means." Apropos of poetry, Edwin Arlington Robinson's "Collected Poems" have been warmly praised by English reviewers. Mr. Robinson is said to be "the most representative of the living American poets," carrying on the American tradition "of a serious preoccupation with ethical values."

The literary man rarely succeeds as a politician in this country. Disraeli was of course, the exception. I have already referred to Augustine Birrell. A. E. W. Mason, the novelist, and Hilaire Belloc were both in Parliament for a few years and were both bored to death. Sir Gilbert Parker was a sufficiently successful politician to be sworn a member of the Privy Council and now to have the right to write the mystic words "Right Hon." before his name. But I do not think that Sir Gilbert regrets that he can no longer write M. P. after it. Both Conan Doyle and J. M. Barrie have been unsuccessful parliamentary candidates. It has often been suggested that one of the reasons for the tragic ineffectiveness of Lord Rosebery's career is that the author of "Chatham" and "Napoleon, the Last Phase" is essentially a man of letters and that the man of letters always finds the intrigues of party politics intolerable.

RT. HON. AUGUSTINE BIRRELL.
[International Publishing Bureau.]

Nowadays, most literary men are strenuous persons, scorning delights and living laborious days. Some of them are politicians. Some are social reformers. Most of them are intensely interested in the present. The writer, therefore, who lives remote from contemporary turmoil and whose interests lie in a more placid past is a boon and a blessing. Such a writer was the late Austin Dobson, who lived a gentle life to a gentle old age, writing charming poetry and delicate essays on men and matters of the eighteenth century. His son has recently compiled an anthology of his father's prose and verse to which Edmund Gosse has written a foreword.



AUSTIN DOBSON.

For some months English craftsmen, artists, and authors have been busy making and adorning a super doll's house which is to be presented to Queen Mary and afterwards sold for charity. Artists like William Orpen and Augustus John have painted tiny pictures for the adornment of the miniature rooms, and the authors have written tiny books for the miniature library. Queen Mary desired that neither H. G. Wells nor Lytton Strachey should be asked to contribute to the library. I suppose that H. G. Wells was barred on account of his socialistic opinions and the English court resents the candor of Lytton Starchey's "Queen Victoria." I am told that the only writers who were asked for contributions and declined were Bernard Shaw, Joseph Conrad, and John Masefield.

A Great One-Day Sale!
"La France"
The Stylish Special Fitting Oxfords

Foot comfort without sacrificing appearance and style is what every business and professional woman wants. No longer is it necessary to wear large, ill-shaped shoes to have comfort, for the La France oxfords, because of their scientific design and careful construction, achieve the last word in comfort PLUS style.

The La France oxfords are the original scientifically constructed low shoe, relieving the strain at the arch; and with a firm flat tread-base which prevents crowding and cramping at the fore part of the foot.

Designed primarily for the woman who spends the greater portion of the day on her feet in the office, school room, or walking, many other women have accepted them as a standard walking oxford. Don't fail to take advantage of this one-day sale.

We TEACH COMMERCIAL ART

Meyer Both Company, the Largest Commercial Art Organization in the World, offers you an unusual opportunity for practical training. This method of instruction is created and conducted by the nationally known Meyer Both organization, who have been successful for twenty-two years—and who are this year selling to advertisers over eighteen thousand commercial drawings. Inside knowledge resulting from actual dominance of the field forms the foundation of the Meyer Both course.

Our teachers give you the double advantage of being themselves noted artists in the most modern art-producing company—and are instructors of proven ability as well. Meyer Both instruction is the difference between successful fact—and experimental theory.

Commercial Art is a highly paid, intensely interesting vocation—equally open to men and women. Home study instruction.

Get Facts Before You Enroll in Any School

Make sure that your course is founded on recognized success—not merely individual opinions. Inquire regarding us among the art buyers—on State Street—in the wholesale districts—among advertising managers generally. Visit the College if you can—it will be time well spent. Write for our special book, "YOUR OPPORTUNITY"— sending four cents in stamps to cover one-half the cost of postage.

COMMERCIAL ART

Taught by Improved Methods

We have analyzed high grade commercial art and searched out the principles that produced it. We are presenting these principles in easy-to-understand instruction form. Our instruction has been tried, and proven successful. Our instructors are "top-notchers" and are actively engaged in producing commercial art now. Most of them are earning over $10,000 per year each. Few top-notch artists are good instructors. No one art organization is big enough to furnish competent instructors for all branches of commercial art. By searching through many studios we have found them.

A Master Course Is Offered
Either Class Room or Home Study Instruction

Endorsed as the official training school for leading commercial art houses, employing hundreds of artists. A corps of nationally known commercial artists offers students the benefit of 20 to 30 years of high grade experience.

Only the best instruction is good enough for you. Students finishing half of this unusual course can secure and hold desirable positions. Course can be made to pay for itself many times while studying. Ask the big employers of commercial artists about us.

If you like to draw, let's talk it over. Call at the Academy or write for our big book, telling all about Commercial Art and the opportunities it presents AS WE TEACH IT. Send 6 cents in stamps.

"Upstream," by Ludwig Lewisohn.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

By Fanny Butcher

THIS is the first day of children's book week.

In a sense this week is the most important of the fifty-two in American literature. It is dedicated to the bringing together of children and books. Its aim is not only to make books more available to children, but to give parents and every one who has anything to do with children a sense of the importance of overseeing children's reading and of fostering their desire to read. A nation whose children don't read will never be a nation of high literary taste.

Four years ago the American Library association and the Boy Scouts of America combined with the publishers and book sellers of the country to promote a children's book week. So successful has the crusade been in these four years that today every library, every book shop, and every boy and girl scout group is featuring children's books this week and in many cities churches and women's clubs are giving special consideration to children's reading.

The Chicago public library has a special exhibit this week of good books for children. It will give away lists of suggestions for books for children classified as to age and has for consultation bibliographies of all types of children's books and the ages at which they may be read with enjoyment and understanding.

This year there will not be lectures for parents and teachers at the main library, but each one of the branch libraries will have lectures on children's reading during the week and special story hours for children themselves. The main branch, however, is sending out lecturers to clubs, parent-teacher associations, church societies, and all organizations interested in children's work.

If I had five times as much space as I have, I couldn't tell you about all of the children's books that have come out this year. I feel helpless before them as it is. I can hope to do little more than mention some of them—the ones which I think you will all want to know about whether you have children or not. Some of them are important literary events.

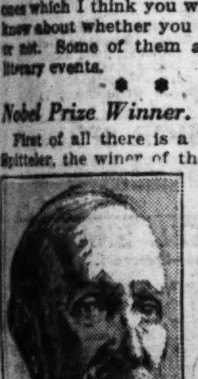
Nobel Prize Winner.



CARL SPITTELER.

First of all there is a book by Carl Spitteler, the winner of the Nobel prize during the war. It is called "The Two Little Misogynists." It has been translated by Mme. la Vicomtesse de Roquette-Buisson and it has charming illustrations by A. Helene Carter. It is beautifully printed and is altogether a most attractive book. But it is not a book for a child so much as a book for adults about children. It concerns an uneventful little journey of two young Swiss gentlemen and soldiers, aged nine and ten, in the company of a young lady of fashion of about their own age. Their hatred at the beginning of the journey changes to a devotion at the end. It is an amusing little story, prettily written, and children might like it—I don't pretend to say they wouldn't, but it seems to me it hasn't enough action for most children. It is literature, though, and that is rare in books which are destined for children. It is rather a shame, however, that this should be the first of Mr. Spitteler's books to be translated into English, because it is so slight a tale, although a lovely one.

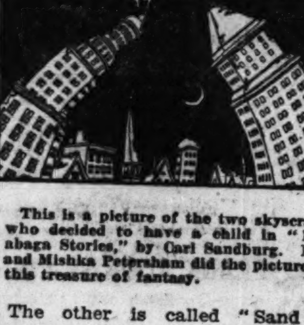
Carl Sandburg's Stories.

"Rootabaga Stories" is a series of fantastic tales by Carl Sandburg that are a delight. You'll read them and love them for their wildness of fancy, and for their undercurrent of sheer poetry. They sound exactly like Carl Sandburg's poems. Many of them might be printed in short lines and pass for poetry. They are tales which any child would adore. I suspect, however, that some too painstaking parents are going to frown upon them because they have what Carl Sandburg calls American folk talk in them. For instance, when the Potato Face Blind Man is pleased with his rabbit he says, "Attaboy, li'l bunny, attaboy, li'l bunny." A somewhat meticulous mamma might not approve of that. They are such lovely tales I'd like to talk about each one of them. They have such poetic ideas as this in them: Three boys each had a secret ambition and "an ambition," says Mr. Sandburg, "is a little creeper that creeps and creeps in your heart night and day, singing a little song, 'Come and find me, come and find me.'"

There are two stories which must be mentioned specially, though. One of them is about two skyscrapers who lived on opposite street corners in a great city. They decided to have a child, but they were determined that it was to be a free child, not one rooted to a street corner. When the child came it was a railroad train, the Golden Spike Limited.



This is a picture of the two skyscrapers who decided to have a child in "Rootabaga Stories," by Carl Sandburg. Maud and Mishka Petersham did the pictures for this treasure of fantasy.

The other is called "Sand Flat Shadows," and it is about the clouds that always look like something and yet never somehow are exactly right. We've all lain and watched clouds, change from lions to rabbits, from five footed cows to headless elephants. Fire the Goat explains that the shadows are the animals that the makers of the world had made for practice. They weren't sure at first just what shapes they wanted, so they made the animals out of shadows.

A combination of practical and poetic and fanciful is every tale, rich in beauty and honestly amusing. I don't wonder Carl Sandburg's two little girls loved the stories when he told them to them.

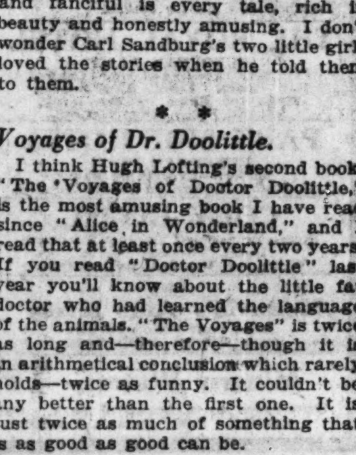
Voyages of Dr. Doolittle.

I think Hugh Lofting's second book, "The Voyages of Doctor Doolittle," is the most amusing book I have read since "Alice in Wonderland," and I read that at least once every two years. If you read "Doctor Doolittle" last year you'll know about the little fat doctor who had learned the language of the animals. "The Voyages" is twice as long and—therefore—though it is an arithmetical conclusion which rarely holds—twice as funny. It couldn't be any better than the first one. It is just twice as much of something that is as good as good can be.

The new human character in this book is a little boy whose name is Tommy Stubbins, 10 years old, whom Dr. Doolittle always does the honor of calling "Stubbins." The boy wants to be a great naturalist when he grows up, and the doctor promises to keep him for two years and take him on a voyage with him and teach him the language of the animals and the birds and the fish. The doctor is proficient in most languages, but he can't seem to learn the shell fish language. He has caught some terrible colds holding his head under water so much. The book is one screaming situation after another, all told with the utmost seriousness. After they are determined to start on a voyage, and have decided where they are going by opening an atlas and shutting their eyes and sticking a pin on a page, they start on one of the most fascinating journeys that any one ever read about.



This, my friends, is Dr. John Doolittle expressing his happiness over the discovery that the fish he has captured—a Fidgit, by the way—talks English. It is only one of the surprises in "The Voyages of Doctor Doolittle."

I read part of it aloud to a little boy and a little girl of over 30 years of age, and they thought it was one of the funniest things they had ever heard. I even caught my dog listening with his head on the side, and I'm sure I saw him wink at me. I wouldn't have missed it for anything!

New Editions of Classics.

The new editions each year are liable to be the most interesting from the point of view of the grown up. They usually have the loveliest illustrations and they are often books which we know about. This year there is to be a perfectly lovely edition of Hawthorne's "Wonder Book," with illustrations by Arthur Rackham. Few of the pictures have the knotty elfin creatures in them that some parents object to because they frighten the children. Most of them are in a softer mood. Two or three of them are exquisite.

One of the most interesting books from an adult standpoint is the new edition of "Moby Dick," by Herman Melville. That great book has been obtainable only in small formats and its appearance in a large book, clearly printed, is an event. The illustrations by Mead Schaeffer will serve to make it seem more like a gift book.

"Stories by Mrs. Molesworth" contains nine of the tales which have lived so many years, and has attractive pictures by Edna Cooke.

◆

"A History of Every Day Things in England (1066-1799), by Marjorie and C. H. B. Quennell, is one of the best reference books that was ever written for children. It has previously been imported in two volumes. This is the first American edition, bound in one volume.

◆

There are new, illustrated editions of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Tales from Shakespeare," by Charles and Mary Lamb. I still would rather have the Tenniel Alice than any one I have ever seen, but some like to see Alice more up to date. The Lamb's tales have a fancy frontispiece—besides many illustrations by Elizabeth Shippen Greene Elliott—which shows Shakespeare presenting his book of Queen Elizabeth. Below are the smaller figures of the Lambs presenting their book to children.

◆

There are new editions of four of the Joel Chandler Harris favorites, all with illustrations by Oliver Herford. A new edition of "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" has fourteen full page colored illustrations by Jessie Wilcox Smith. And a new edition of "The Song of Hiawatha" has a cover design by Maxfield Parrish, a frontispiece by N. C. Wyeth, and twenty-two full page illustrations. To add to the collection of artists working on it there are many decorations by Frederic Remington.

◆

"East of the Sun and West of the Moon," illustrated by the lovely pictures of Kay Neilson, has been brought into print again.

"Master Skylark," by John Bennett, which has been a classic for twenty years and which has never had a fancy dress, has just been issued with illustrations in a special holiday editon.

Fairy and Folk Tales.

"The Velveteen Rabbit" is that rarest of all books, a really good Christmas story. It is written by Margery Williams, the mother of Pamelo Bianco, that remarkable child artist. This is the story of a velveteen rabbit from the time when he appears in a Christmas stocking until the Nursery Magic Fairy turns him into a real bunny. It has the most amusing and charming illustrations imaginable. They are by William Nicholson, who has never done anything for children before—unless I mistake. He has used an unusual medium for illustrating, too, colored lithography. You'll love "The Velveteen Rabbit," and so will children who aren't too old to be scoffy about stuffed bunnies and fairies and such.

Padraic Colum, who has never yet written a book for children which they haven't liked, has told the story of "The Children Who Followed the Piper." It seems what really happened was that they came into a land where nobody ever grew old—after the rock shut behind them. There they met Philemon and Baucis and some other characters out of Greek mythology. They finally, however, after many adventures, came back to the real earth. Incidentally you find, to your surprise, that the pied piper was none other than Hermes, the messenger of the gods.

◆

"Tales Told by the Gander" is another of the "And what happened then?" stories. It tells what happened after the Mother Goose stories. It is by Maud Radford Warren and Eve Davenport, and has pictures by Charles Federer.

"David the Dreamer," by Ralph Bergengren, is the record of a child's fantastic dreams. Its special charm is in the modern and delightful illustrations by Tom Freud, an artist well known on the continent, I hear, but as yet unappreciated here. Tom is a Roumanian lady who had her training in Paris and London.

◆

"The Well in the Wood" is a delightful story for children by our own, never to be forgotten, B. L. T. It is uniform with a "A Penny Whistle" and "The So-Called Human Race."

◆

"Battles and Enchantments" is a series of tales retold by Norreys Jepson O'Conor from Ancient Irish literature.

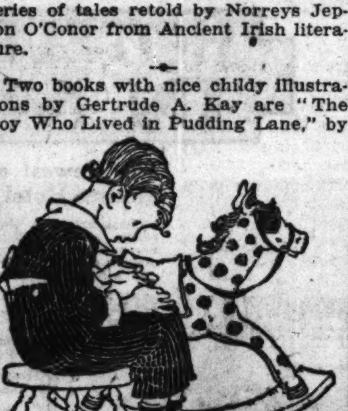
Two books with nice childy illustrations by Gertrude A. Kay are "The Boy Who Lived in Pudding Lane," by Sarah Addington, which is the story about the boyhood of one Santa, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Claus, and "Through the Cloud Mountain," by Florence Scott Bernard, which is the story of Jan, the little lame boy who was left behind when the rest of the children followed the pied piper of Hamelin away.



This is from "The Boy Who Lived in Pudding Lane," a story of the boyhood of one Santa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claus.

"Kabumpo in Oz" is the fifteenth of the famous Oz stories.

◆

"Canadian Fairy Tales" is a companion volume to "Canadian Wonder Tales," by Cyrus Macmillan, a book which is already a classic.

"At the Bird Nest Boarding House," by Verbena Reed (and that's not a pseudonym, either), is an amusing book with amusing pictures by Oliver Herford.

"The New World Fairy Book," by Howard Angus Kennedy is a volume of Indian folklore (North American, not east), "The Japanese Fairy Book," by Yei Theodora Ozaki, has real Japanese illustrations made by an artist of Tokio. "Verotchka's Tales" are Russian fairy tales by Mamim Siberiak. "Wonder Tales from Tibet" is by Eleanore Myers Jewett. (Books like this which speak for themselves I'm merely listing for you.) "Fairy Tales from Near and Far" are tales which Katherine Pyle has collected and retold. There are two Irish ones. The other ten are all of different origin.

"Tay-Tay's Tales" is an interesting book. It is a collection of folk tales which were taken down by Elizabeth Willis DeHuff from the lips of Indian children. They have been illustrated by two 17 year old boys of the Hopi tribe.

◆

"The Island of Magic" is the title of Mrs. Bells' new collection of folk tales, this time from the Azores. Her "Tales of Enchantment from Spain" was, you remember, an exceedingly good book.

"Solario the Tailor" is a fantastic tale by William Bowen who has received nothing but unqualified praise for his "Old Tobacco Shop" and "The Enchanted Forest."

Handsome Picture Books.

Do you remember "The Book of Pirates," which came out last year, written and illustrated by Howard Pyle? It was a fine book and pleased boys of 50 as well as 15. This year there are two books something like it, "The Book of the Indian," which is almost its duplicate, with pictures by Frederick Remington and text by Hamlin Garland, and "Pirates," which is a book that will warm that remote region known as the cockles of the heart. It is a slightly modernized form of "The History and Lives of All the Most Notorious Pirates and Their Crews," which was first published in 1735. It is illustrated by the inimitable C. Lovat Fraser. "Weird Islands" is another child's book which will be most interesting to grownups for its illustrations. It is written and illustrated by Jean De Bosschere, a man of genius not enough appreciated. His pictures are, I have been told, too fantastic for most children. They aren't for older people, though.

Animal Stories.

There is always a large proportion of animal stories in every year's Christmas list for children and the sub-grown up. The trouble with most animal stories is that they make the animals out of such silly fools, aping human ways, suffering human pains of spirit. Animals have a peace and an honest acceptance of their fate which makes man's adjustment to his environment seem futile in comparison. Stories which treat animals as animals and not as creatures with the minds and hearts of humans are good stories. Any child can see through the other sort.

"The Adventure of Maya the Bee" by Waldemar Bonsels is the kind of book I am talking about. It seems to me to have the wholly objectionable qualities of imputing human emotions to animals. Fabre wrote about bees in a way which fascinates anyone. He did not, however, call their legs hands, have affairs of the heart with other insects, and understand the significance of a man and a girl sitting arm in arm in the moonlight. His true story was so much more romantic than this which pretends to be a romance of a bee. There is scarcely a page where I wouldn't have said, "But how could a bee know that?" if I had been a child and had been reading it or had had it read to me. It seems to me a wholly false and wrong attitude toward bees to implant in any child's mind. It isn't clever enough to be a satire on mankind from the angle of the insect world, and yet that is what it sounds like rather than a story of a bee. It has, however, had a large vogue in Europe and has been translated into seventeen languages. It is written with a mental attitude which I happen to resent. There may be those, and there undoubtedly are, who like that sort of thing.

"Bannertail," by Ernest Thompson Seton, is the biography of a gray squirrel. Mr. Thompson Seton says the lower animals, although they have no language in the full sense, have a system of sounds, signs, touches, tastes, and smells that answers the purpose of language, and he merely translate that, when necessary, into English. "Bannertail contains four full page illustrations and one hundred lesser masterpieces by the author.

"Beyond Rope and Fence," by David Grew, is the story of a wild horse in northern Canada. It is a really stirring story of a horse struggling with man, passionate for freedom (which is an instinct which the most material would grant to animals whose blood once was spilt in wild combat with nature).

"One of the best built and most dramatically efficient stories among the season's output." — New York Evening Post.

Fanny Butcher in The Chicago Tribune says:

"I've finished a Chicago novel by a Chicagoan, which is frankly a thriller, which doesn't pretend to be great literature but which does have a background of the loop and Evanston and Wilson avenue and the lake and Streeterville, and which, if it had been written by a St. Louisan, for instance, would have been bought by half the reading populace of St. Louis just because it was about home and by home talent, but which will probably be eyed askance by Chicago readers just because it is about home and by home talent."

Have You Read It?

The Things That Are Caesar's
By GUY MORRISON WALKER
A Defense of Wealth

"It is the great book of the times. It is the greatest book on wealth ever written. I think this work alone can accomplish the restoration of sanity with the public as respects property and capital. Beside it Adam Smith's 'Wealth of Nations' is [illegible]."
—C. W. Barron

"The ablest, clearest and most entertaining presentation I have read of the nature and function of wealth. It is as sound and convincing as it is brilliant and engaging."
—Albert J. Beveridge

THIS book stimulates mental sanitation and social uplift; it destroys Socialism and Bolshevism and promotes Americanism.

Every employer has a duty and a defense in its distribution. He should see to it that every man associated with him in any way has an opportunity to read it.

THE SUBJECT: In a world that is complex and modern our habits of thought have remained mediaeval. Unknown to ourselves, tradition, superstition, fear of the unknown, still govern our thinking. Yet the possibilities of the human mind are unlimited. Here is the message of this famous book that is changing the thinking of the world. Have you given your mind a chance to free itself, to grow up? Have you read The Mind in the Making?

H. G. WELLS: "I find after reading The Mind in the Making the same sort of imaginative release into collateral fields that I got from Huxley and from James. . . . After reading it I find much that was monstrous and obdurate in old riddles dissolving at last into a quite acceptable and comprehensible explanation. The book hashad the effect of illuminating me not only at its point of application, but all along the line of my curiosities."

DR. FRANK CRANE: "One of the best books I have read in a long while. Robinson undertakes to show us some of the things that make our thinking confused and bad. He points out how we have all taken advantage of the marvelous advance in inventions, but we go on thinking the same old errors that people thought centuries ago. One of the most significant books I have seen recently, and one with which every thinker should be acquainted."

Chicago Pulpits Indorse Red Cross Roll Call Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THE Red Cross, which began yesterday its annual membership roll call for 300,000 members at $1 each, will receive commendation today in Chicago pulpits of all denominations.

While the period between Armistice and Thanksgiving days was designated as the time allowed for completing the membership roll call, the opinion was expressed by Mrs. L. L. Funk, director of the roll call organization, that with the coöperation of the churches the work could be completed by today's efforts with a follow-up tomorrow.

The Red Cross has the indorsement of congress. It carries the supreme appeal with reference to those who suffered in the war. Whatever difference might be entertained concerning the giving of the bonus to able-bodied soldiers, there is no possible difference as to the need of caring for the wounded, the sick, or the handicapped.

The committee promoting the church and synagogue campaign is composed of the Rev. Howard Johnston, president of the Chicago Church federation; Rabbi Abram Hirschberg, representing the Jewish temples and synagogues, and W. J. Donahue, representing the catholics.

* * *

Frank Bacon, the actor who stars in "Lightnin'," and Dr. Mark H. Ward, who was expelled by the Kemal government, will be the speakers tomorrow at 11 at the Episcopal Round Table, 180 North Wabash avenue. A lunch will follow at the Brownleigh club at 1 o'clock.

* * *

Charles Rann Kennedy, author of "The Servant in the House," will read today at 4 o'clock at the Sunday Afternoon club at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston.

The Bahai assembly will meet today at 1:30 at the Temple in Wilmette, now under construction, in recognition of the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the birth of the founder, Baha 'Ullah. Dr. Zia M. Bagdadi, who passed his childhood in the family of the founder in Palestine, will discuss his life and influence.

The Rev. Melvin V. Oggel, pastor of the South Shore Presbyterian church, South Shore drive and 76th street, is leading in a drive for $100,000 with which to erect a new building. The present church edifice, which is on the rear of the site on which the new building will be erected, will be converted into a gymnasium.

The auditorium which will be built of Bedford stone will face South Shore drive. It will also provide for Sunday school facilities, a library and reading room. The total value of the new plant, including converting the present church into a gymnasium, will exceed $150,000.

The Rev. Mr. Oggel became pastor three years ago. At that time the annual budget was $3,500, last year it was $15,000. A pipe organ will be installed, known as the May Thorp Marley memorial organ, before Christmas. It will be removed to the new church when erected.

* * *

A double jubilee celebration has been arranged for Sacred Heart parish of the Catholic church at Hubbard Woods, starting today and continuing all week. The church will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its founding, and the pastor, the Rev. F. J. Haarth, will celebrate the silver jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood. Father Haarth has been pastor of the church since its organization. He was the first spiritual director of the Holy Name Archdiocese union. There will be entertainments, speeches and dinners during the week and on Sunday, Nov. 19, a solemn high mass of thanksgiving will be celebrated in the presence of Archbishop G. W. Mundelein. A selected orchestra from the Grand Opera company, Chicago, will assist the choir at the mass.

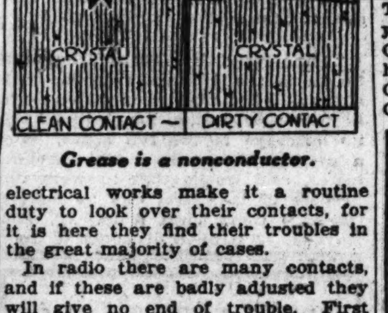
ELECTRICITY

DIRTY CONTACTS BAD.

IF in doubt about anything electrical, look at the contacts. Wires are solid metal; nothing is apt to happen to them. But contacts are junctions' weak points, the first spots to give way when stresses or accidents fall on the circuit. Trouble men in electrical works make it a routine duty to look over their contacts, for it is here they find their troubles in the great majority of cases.



Grease is a nonconductor.

In radio there are many contacts, and if these are badly adjusted they will give no end of trouble. First of all, a crystal detector is a loose contact. Currents are concentrated on the needle's point, and leap from the metal into the substance of the crystal. The crystal is a rectifier. One phase of the alternating aerial current passes through, but the following phase is stopped. Now, if there is a film of grease on the crystal, or a film of oxide on the point, current will not pass as satisfactorily as though clean metal were in contact with clean mineral.

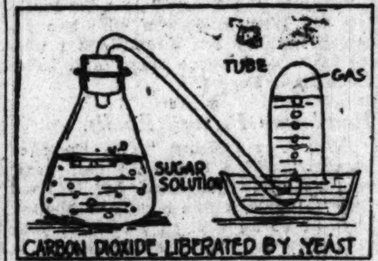
Tap contacts always get dirty. Oxides and sulphides are the principal salts that form on them. A salt, you remember, always has a higher resistance than pure metal, and consequently less current can pass through a dirty contact than through a clean one.

Fine emery paper is best for removing electrical dirt. If the surface is such that you cannot grind it, put on a drop of caustic soda, then a drop of water, and finally a drop of potassium bichromate and sulphuric acid, followed by plenty of water.

CHEMISTRY

CANE SUGAR DEFIES YEAST.

All sugar will not readily ferment. Table sugar resists the action of yeast. The formula of fruit sugar is C-6 H-12 O-6. Yeast splits it into alcohol, C-2 H-5 OH and of carbon dioxide CO-2. Cane sugar has for its formula C-10 H-22 O-11. Its molecule lacks water, and refuses to take it up under ordinary conditions. Hence yeast cannot attack cane sugar. It is this resistance to fermentation that makes saccharose an article of commerce while dextrose is seldom seen outside of technical works.



Outfit for fermentation.

STOP RHEUMATISM WITH RED PEPPER

When you are suffering with rheumatism so you can hardly get around just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Instant relief. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Frees the blood circulation, breaks up the congestion—and the old rheumatism torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Use it for lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, colds in chest. Almost instant relief awaits you. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

"The best dinner in town" is our modest aim. Whether it's Monday, or Thursday or Sunday, or Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. I predict you won't find a better menu, nor a fairer price.

I speak from observation, for I have dined around, to make absolutely sure that our guests get better meals and service than they can get anywhere else.

Better try. There's plenty of parking room, and we're handy to bus and "L." Come today; then I know you'll come tomorrow.

To Sunshine, Health & Pleasure "The Best in Travel" Way

Raymond-Whitcomb Cruises

Round-the-World

ADVANTAGES OF A WESTBOUND COURSE

The experts who planned the remarkable itineraries to be followed by the "Resolute" and the "Volendam"—sailing January 9 and 16—chose a Westbound Course to insure your reaching the various countries when they may be agreeably visited. You will thus avoid the height of the travel season and the annoyance of over-crowded hotels

THE CLIMAX OF TRAVEL INTEREST

Including every attractive and feasible feature of other Cruises Raymond-Whitcomb have included many exclusive features, thus making certain that your Cruise will have the maximum of Travel Interest

ECONOMICAL PLEASURE

A comparison of spending the Winter at home or of running a first-class automobile, will emphasize that the Raymond-Whitcomb Round-the-World Cruises are positively Economical for such luxurious enjoyment

Mediterranean

AN AMBITION FULFILLED

Sooner or later every discriminating American traveler wants to see the wonders of the Mediterranean—the centre of ancient and medieval history. This Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise is the "Best in Travel" way of fulfilling such an ambition

REMARKABLE ITINERARY

The Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise includes all the points that you naturally desire to visit plus the Azores, Lisbon, Malaga, Corsica, not visited on other Cruises but of intense interest

THE IDEAL CRUISE-SHIP

One of the most popular of trans-Atlantic liners the S. S. "Rotterdam"—sailing February 10—is the ideal Cruise-ship for a voyage in the Mediterranean. Her debarking arrangements are unequalled and her cuisine is proverbially excellent. We suggest that you apply for your reservations as soon as you can conveniently do so

South America

INCLUDING THE WEST INDIES

THE IDEAL SHORT WINTER VACATION

This Cruise is unique in that it includes both South America and the West Indies, only taking 45 days for the entire voyage. This is the only specially-chartered steamship Cruise offered to the public visiting the West Indies and the Exposition at Rio de Janeiro. S.S. "Reliance" sailing Feb. 3

A Trip Abroad—The Gift Supreme

If you are thinking of giving some loved one the opportunities of a trip abroad send the information blank below. A new Christmas gift has been created. It is probably the greatest Christmas gift ever offered, because it brings the happiness of anticipation, the happiness of realization and the happiness that comes only with golden memories.

This Christmas you may give some loved one a trip to some far corner of the world. You may give the delights of an ocean voyage; new sights, strange lands; an education and a diversion that makes life richer and fuller forever after. The pulse will quicken at the thought of the voyage (it may be taken at the convenience of the traveler). The mind will conjure up lightening views of the myriad delights to come.

U. S. Government Travel Certificate

Then the trip itself—crowded days of seeing, hearing, living! Then the years after, when cherished memories grow more and more lustrous! You give all when you give a United States Government Travel Certificate.

Send the information blank below today. Find out about the greatest of all Christmas gifts. Find out about the swift, new United States Government Ships, that will carry your loved ones to the land of their dreams. You will be under no obligation.

Your Government has not only created this Gift Supreme, it has devised the supremely convenient gift. For you need pay nothing at the time of your purchase, unless you wish it.

Write Today

Send the information blank now! Thousands of Americans are investigating this newest and greatest Christmas gift. The United States Government's literature will be sent you without any obligation. You will receive a free description of the travel certificate and a beautiful new booklet showing actual photographs of both the exteriors and interiors of the ships. Write for it today! Now. Christmas is not far away.

The ships are owned by the United States Government.

The United States Lines operate the ships to England and the Continent.

The Admiral-Oriental Line operates from Seattle to the Orient.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company operates from San Francisco to the Orient via Honolulu.

The Munson Steamship Lines run from New York to the East Coast of South America.

The Los Angeles Steamship Company operates from Los Angeles to the Hawaiian Islands.

INVITING NEW APTS.

2, 3, AND 4 ROOMS.

FULL SIZE BEDROOMS.

HERE are a few exceedingly desirable apartments—small and economical but with big bedrooms and a world of closet space—in a building like a fine hotel.

From a pretty court you enter a carpeted lobby with choice furniture. Carpeted terrazo corridors, well lighted and ventilated, and elevator service appeal to you. Then you find large living rooms, regular sleeping chambers, and complete but simplified housekeeping facilities. Extra wall beds give the three room suites the sleeping accommodations of four. Large dressing rooms.

Decorations and Fixtures
Up to the Minute.

This building is decorated throughout in canvas in oil. The lighting, heating, and buffet kitchen fixtures leave nothing to be desired in beauty or convenience. Why live in an ordinary flat when you can enjoy these suites at a moderate price?

THE BUILDING OF SUPERIOR DESIGN
EDGEWATER COURTS IS NOW READY.
5019-35 Winthrop-av. [Near Argyle.]
3 and 4 room apartments.
RENTS, $90 TO $125.

For a number of years, on account of the popularity of small units, the builders have turned their attention to two, three, and four room apartments, with the result in many cases, on account of lack of experience in planning and lack of knowledge of the provisions essential to the comfortable occupation of apartments of this type, numbers of buildings have fallen short of public requirements.

The Edgewater Courts is the result of years of careful study and experience on the part of the builders, coupled with the services of one of the most able firms of architects in Chicago, who in planning and building were given free rein to produce apartments that would satisfy the most exacting tenants.

NEED MONEY—WILL SACRIFICE
PARK RIDGE CORNER.

I paid $2,200 two years ago for the northwest corner of Elmore and Center-sts. This lot has 160 ft. on Center-st., which is paved, and 88 ft. on Elmore-st., has sewer, water, and sidewalks in. I have paid out over $300 on assessments and interest. If you know Park Ridge you are aware that this property has increased 25% in the last year and this lot is easily worth $3,000. I must have money this week and will sacrifice for $2,200. Must have half cash. Addres A Y 112, Tribune.

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A REAL BARGAIN,

then write for an appointment to see my $8,250 home, which I will sacrifice for $6,750; well built, including hardwood floors throughout; tile bath, real fireplace and bookcases, hot water heat, large cement basement, laundry trays, fruit cellar, etc. You can buy this with small payment down and monthly payments to suit. If you are looking for a home in Park Ridge, the most popular and fastest growing, strictly American suburb in Chicago. Investigate my home. Can give possession in 45 to 60 days. Address B W 480, Tribune.

GREAT SACRIFICE.

Gentleman's home, 35 acres of excellent soil, 11 room house with a 42 ft. sun parlor, large barn, brick 2 car garage, 116 ft. chicken house, etc. House heated by American radiator hot water system, electric lighted, electric stove, Frigidaire refrigerator, deep well, manned by motor driven pump. All the conveniences of a city home, and only 20 miles northwest from the loop.

This home has been established at a cost of about $65,000; encumbrance $15,000, due Aug., 1927; will sacrifice for two-thirds my equity. No agents; no exchange. Address J 437, Tribune.

WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

LAND AND LAND

Michigan has good and poor lands, the same as other states. Occasionally you see Michigan lands advertised at $1 to $5 per acre as being good for agricultural purposes. Such is not the case. Good lands in Michigan which have a mixture of clay and contain soil elements necessary to produce satisfactory crops are not to be had for almost nothing and are valued in general at from $15 to $35 per acre, depending upon location and other advantages.

THE SWIGART LAND CO. offers fertile clay loam lands in tracts of 20, 40 or 80 acres which are proven by test as being adapted for profitably growing oats, wheat, barley, rye, corn, clover, timothy, alfalfa, potatoes, vegetables, and fruits. They are lands which produce some of the best clover crops in the Great Lake States.

THE SWIGART LAND CO. is responsible. It has been in the land and real estate business for over twenty years. Its contract is one of the most liberal offered by any substantial concern, giving free insurance, protecting the purchaser and his family in case of death or disability; providing for suspension of payments in case of sickness or lack of work or other misfortune, and giving the privilege to borrow money if needed. Only $10 to $50 down is required to get started. Long time, according to one's circumstances, is given on the balance.

Write today for this company's 48 page booklet, which gives full information. It states the plain facts. No glowing promises and no misrepresentations. This booklet is free for the asking. Send for your copy today.

COLE OWNERS Go to CALIFORNIA and FLORIDA for the Winter

TURN IN REAL VALUES THAT YOU CAN NOW BUY AT BIG BARGAINS

A great many of our customers go away for the winter months and turn in their cars to us to be sold at this time of the year, taking new cars upon their return in the spring.

We probably handle more of this business than the average dealer, because each year we solicit our regular customers on these trades, as it saves them storage and depreciation. All kinds of models come to us at this time, such as

Coupes Sedans
Limousines
Sports Roadsters
Tourings

and in most cases in very good condition and can be sold at either in their present condition or at slight added cost of repairs and paint.

BARGAIN PRICES

TIME PAYMENTS

Many wonder how we can afford to grant the exceptionally fair plan of financing that we offer and we are going to let you in on the secret.

We haven't a dollar invested in any of the cars turned in to us on the above plan, as we simply issue a credit memo to the owner against the purchase price of a new car in the spring.

In the meantime, when the car is delivered to you, payments start, and by spring the car in most cases is more than half paid. So in reality before delivery of the new car is made in the spring we have collected on the used car from you up to the point where our equity in the deal represents at most only our profit on the transaction, with an agreement with you of final payment of same monthly.

GUARANTEE

We guarantee these automobiles after having passed through the hands of our inspectors and their recommendations acted upon to be entirely satisfactory to you with the agreement to

if not satisfactory. We have operated on this latter plan all of this year and the names of over one hundred satisfied owners are available to you for investigation.

RESPONSIBILITY

We operate our own 4 story service and rebuilding plant, in which we have installed the latest time-saving machinery, a complete paint and upholstery shop, electrical room, machine, welding, and blacksmith shops, manned by competent men.

Inspect these today.

5 Bargains AT THE Peerless FACTORY BRANCH.

SPECIALLY PRICED FOR IMMEDIATE SALE.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE TOURING, 1921. This car is practically new and has seen but a very few miles of careful driving. The original finish, which is dark Maroon, is exceptionally fine. Mechanically it will bear a most rigid examination and demonstration. The cord tires are good for many thousands of miles of driving. Has much extra equipment, including bumpers, spotlight, seat covers, and other extras. This is a late model snappy little touring car that you can buy at a tremendous saving as compared with the price of a new one today. It is specially priced for immediate disposal. Price, $1,375.

PEERLESS 8 SEDAN, 1922 SERIES 7. This car originally belonged to an officer of this company at the factory in Cleveland. It has been handled entirely by him and has been in his care. The lucky purchaser of this car will obtain something in a sedan that probably never will be duplicated. He has used it a small amount to run from the factory to his home and back. Has just recently obtained one of our new series and is offering this car at an almost unheard of price. You could not duplicate it new for $4,000. The paint, the velour upholstery, and the tires can hardly be told from new. The motor runs as smoothly and quietly as a new car. THIS CAR WE WILL GUARANTEE MECHANICALLY. It is a roomy 5 or 7 passenger sedan, with 2 auxiliary seats, and has other equipment. Looks good enough to put on the new car sales floor. By all means, if you want a high grade sedan at a ridiculously low price, come in quickly. Special for this sale, $2,750.

PEERLESS 8 COUPE, 1922 SERIES 7. This is a duplicate in the model of the car described above as well as a car that was owned by a factory official at Cleveland. We doubt if you could tell this car from a new one. It originally sold for over $3,750. It has hardly been used enough to limber up the motor. The paint, tires, and velour upholstery show practically no wear. Mechanically this car will carry our standard warranty. This is the roomy 4 passenger Coupe that has been so popular with us during the spring and summer. Do not let the price we have put on this car influence your judgment. We must reduce our stock of used cars regardless of price. $2,650.

ROAMER SPORT SEDAN. For the last word in appearance and condition, this car cannot be duplicated. When looking at it, it has the appearance of a custom built job. It is upholstered in a rich silk velour which has a dark maroon tint that matches the outer appearance of the car. It has much extra equipment, such as motometer, clock, bumper front and rear, spotlight, visor, and other extras. It is equipped with 5 wire wheels and cord tires that are in excellent condition. This is a bargain that you cannot afford to pass up if you are looking for a snappy, high grade 5 passenger sedan. We feel fortunate in having obtained this car at a price that we know there are many, many people who would like to avail themselves of this bargain, and for that reason come in and see it and ride in it and see how smoothly and quietly it runs, and you will be more than convinced that it is an exceptional bargain. It is priced way below its market value at $1,100.

CADILLAC 8 TYPE 59 TOURING CAR. The accessories on this car alone are worth almost as much as we are asking for it. It is a standard 7 passenger Cadillac touring, in wonderful condition throughout. It is painted a dark shade of Green, with nickeled radiator shell and headlamps. It is equipped wth a $700 California top and glass curtains to match, with an excellent set of Corduroy seat covers that have never been off. It has seen but a very few miles of driving and mechanically it is as near perfect as an automobile can be. It is an ideal car for either summer or winter touring, and taking into consideration its general condition we know that it is a bargain the equal of which has never been offered. If you want a Cadillac in a late model that is way above the average we would suggest that you see and ride in this car immediately. There are circumstances connected with the selling of this car which permit us to sell it at the ridiculously low price of $1,750.

CADILLAC'S SPECIALS

1920 6 PASSENGER COLE TOURING. The appearance and mechanical condition of this car are such as to make it attractive to any one wishing a car of 6 or 7 passenger capacity at a low price. It is painted in dark blue and mechanically will bear the closest inspection. Upholstering and top show practically no signs of use. Equipment includes 5 Disteel wheels, front and rear bumpers, motometer, clock, and other accessories. It is a rare bargain at $750.

1922 WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE 2 PASSENGER SPORT ROADSTER. For long, low, racy lines that indicate speed and sportiveness this car is hard to surpass. It has had comparatively low mileage and is equipped with 6 disc wheels and trunk of large carrying capacity. A spare seat beneath the rear deck will hold 2 extra passengers comfortably. Shock absorbers and a well balanced body insure unusual road ability. Equipment includes nickel radiator, motometer, step plates, and Biflex bumper. This is an unusual car and a very attractive bargain at $2,200.

1923 STANDARD EIGHT 5 PASSENGER SEDAN. This is a new car, having been run less than 400 miles. The paint, upholstering, and equipment, therefore, show no signs of use. It is the current model of this make and carries natural wood wheels. Blue upholstering of a new, attractive shade harmonizes with the blue exterior of the car. Equipment is very complete and includes spare tire, tire cover, shock absorbers, bumper, special wheel lock, kick plates, clock, and rear vision mirror. A heater is installed to insure winter comfort. At our price this car represent a clear saving of $750. Price $2,500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, 7 PASSENGER TOURING. Equipped with special Cadillac built winter sides and Francisco heater, this car will supply winter driving comfort almost equivalent to that of an inclosed model. It has been completely overhauled mechanically in our shops and repainted Cadillac dustproof gray, with white striping. Top and upholstering show no signs of wear. Equipment includes rear vision mirror, spring bumper, pedal pads, automatic windshield wiper, spotlight, and 5 excellent cord tires. A real bargain at $2,000.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59 VICTORIA COUPE. This car, one of the most popular models Cadillac has ever built, has been thoroughly oxerhauled in our shops and will be sold under new car warranty. It has been repainted Cadillac maroon, with chassis and upper panels in black, and has been renickeled throughout. The upholstering is a silk mohair in taupe shade with fine black stripe. The equipment is very complete and includes 5 cord tires and nickeled Biflex spring bumper. An unusual offering at $2,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 61, 5 PASSENGER COUPE. This current model coupe is the latest addition to the Cadillac inclosed car line. It has been used only a little more than 3,000 miles by the original owner, who turned it in for car of larger capacity; it is finished in Cadillac blue and upholstered in blue silk velour, which is just like new. We have given this car a new coat of finishing varnish, which makes it hard to distinguish from a new car. The 5 cord tires show no wear. Equipped with spare tire, tire cover, spring bumper, stoplight, spring covers, Houdaille shock absorbers. This car will be sold on a new car warranty. At our price it represents a decided saving. Price $3,800.

Locomobile

LOCOMOBILE 1922 Type Sportif. This particular car is in perfect mechanical and coach condition and guaranteed to be so by the Locomobile Company. It has been repainted a sedan lake, striped correctly in red and black, with red hubs. Six new tires have been installed. The equipment is complete to the slightest detail, including seat covers, bumper, spotlight, stop light, cigar lighter, complete set of tools, etc. This car is comparable with nothing less than a new Locomobile Sportif selling for $8,000, but it is offered at $4,750.

PACKARD 1920 7 passenger Touring Car, in very excellent condition throughout. Color is Packard blue, with cream wheels. The equipment is complete and includes 6 good tires and Westinghouse air springs. $2,150.

PAIGE 1921 6-66 Sport. This car has had practically no use whatever, and we are offering it for the cost of the extra equipment, which includes 6 Disteel wheels and tires, lined top with excellent winter enclosure, trunk and rack, shock absorbers, bumper, nickel lamps and radiator, De Luxe radiator, sun visor, wind shield wiper, etc. Priced to go at once—$1,350.

DANIELS 1920 7 passenger Touring Car. Paint, tires, and mechanical condition of this smart, powerful car are all in exceptional condition, the car having had the most excellent care. Priced far below its actual worth at $1,250.

MARMON 1917 7 passenger Town Car. This car has been in dead storage for about 2 years, and, while the paint is fair, the mechanical condition is very good and the tires are new. $850.

WILLYS-KNIGHT 1919 4 passenger Coupe. This car has been driven only about 6,000 miles and looks as well as it did when new. The tires are practically new, the paint is new—a rich wine color, striped in gold. A bargain in a seasonable car. $750.

CHANDLER

CHANDLER COUPE.
Never before have we had an opportunity to present a car in such elegant condition. This is a large, roomy, four passenger car, upholstered in rich dark tan striped velour; finish is a combination of gloss black and deep blue. Fisher body. Here is a high grade standard car so little used that you will be attracted to it on sight. Not an item or any part of the makeup of this automobile presents even the slightest sign of wear. COME IN AND CHECK THIS STATEMENT. Besides regular factory equipment there is a windshield, spotlight and spare tire. Undoubtedly this car will be purchased by the first interested party who sees it.

CHANDLER SEDAN, 1921.
This car has been thoroughly inspected and every adjustment made to place it in the best possible condition. It couldn't have given better satisfaction when it was new. A complete set of new tires have replaced the slightly used tires which were transferred to another car. The finish inside and out is unquestionably good. Taken in all this is the best value in our used car stock. We invite your inspection. Terms or trade.

CHANDLER TOURING, 1921.
All new tires. Refinished in standard Chandler colors. Top and upholstery in A1 condition. Mechanically everything is in such good condition as will make this car give you 100% pleasure and satisfaction. Besides regular factory equipment this car has bumper, windshield wings, parking lights, motometer and bar, full nickeled radiator. This car will give you far more than any new car at several hundred dollars more money.

PACKARD

OLDSMOBILE TOURING, 1920 MODEL. This is the popular light six 5 passenger touring model. It is in exceptionally fine mechanical condition, very well painted in Dark Green, with natural wood wheels, and most completely equipped throughout. We can highly recommend it to any one desiring economical and dependable transportation this winter. Special at $350.

HUDSON TOURING CAR, 1920 MODEL. This is a roomy 7 passenger touring car, equipped with an excellent set of winter sides which make it very comfortable for cold weather use. It is newly painted in dark blue and in very exceptional mechanical condition. Equipment includes 5 cord tires, bumper, stop light, etc. This car represents a very good value at $900.

MERCER 4 PASS. SPORT, 1920 MODEL. This is an exceptionally well preserved car and has been in the hands of one owner continuously. It is well painted in dark gray, most completely equipped, and will render thousands of miles of satisfactory service. Equipment includes cord tires, 6 wire wheels, bumper, motometer, etc. This is a purchase that we can highly recommend at $1,500.

PAIGE TOURING CAR, 1919. This car was received from our paint shop today, where it was refinished in a very durable shade of dark blue. All necessary mechanical work has been completed and the car is ready to put into immediate service. Any one desiring dependable and economical transportation will be very favorably impressed with this automobile. We can assure the purchaser that this is an exceptional value at our price of $500.

PACKARD TWIN SIX BERLINE LIMOUSINE. This is an ideal car for livery service. The motor and chassis have been thoroughly overhauled. Car is painted in dark blue and the upholstery is gray velour. Body is of modern lines and presents an excellent appearance. We believe it will be sold very quickly, as the price is only $1,250.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX SEDAN. This car was delivered new in 1921 and has had comparatively small mileage. We have made all necessary mechanical adjustments and the performance of the car is equal to new. The coach condition is like new throughout and the upholstery shows no signs of use. Equipment is most complete and includes spare cord tire, bumper, spotlight, standard set of tools, etc. This is an excellent investment at $2,250.

PACKARD TWIN SIX CABRIOLET. This is a current model Packard chassis and has mounted on it a custom built 3 passenger cabriolet body by C. P. Kimball & Co. of Chicago. This is a very high class and exclusive car and will appeal particularly to the man desiring something out of the ordinary. It has every appearance of new throughout and will be sold with the standard Packard warranty and service. It is painted in dark Brewster green and equipped with a new set of Royal cord tires. We are offering this car at the remarkably low price of $4,000.

FRANKLIN

COLE TOURING, VERY LATE 1919. Has had what we would consider small mileage and is in exceptionally fine mechanical condition. Top, upholstery, and 5 cord tires all excellent. Has 2 spring bumpers, motometer, sun shade, rear view mirror, etc. The paint condition is excellent. You should see and ride in this car to appreciate its performance. It is a bargain at $750.

CADILLAC TOURING TYPE 57, 7 PASS. One of the best models produced by the Cadillac Company. This one is in exceptionally fine condition throughout. Repainted by us in Midnight Blue with black running gear, renickeled, and has every appearance of new. Equipped with 5 good cord tires, three of which are practically new, spotlight, etc. Price $850.

MARMON LATE 1919 MODEL 34 TOURING. This 7 passenger car is in excellent mechanical shape, has 5 wire wheels, 5 very good cord tires, motometer, Hartford shock absorbers, spring covers, heater, etc. Repainted by us in beautiful Deep Maroon with red wheels. This is an exceptionally fine Marmon car and presents the appearance of new in every way. Don't expect to find this car here 2 days from now. Price $1,075.

CASE 1920 TOURING, 7 PASS. Just received from our Paint Shop. Refinished beautiful Maroon with red wheels. Mechanically excellent. Top and upholstery very good. This is the popular "sturdy Case," with Continental engine and equipped with a good set of cord tires. Bargain at $575.

FRANKLIN, 1920 5 PASS. TOURING. This light, economical, high grade touring car is in first class mechanical condition, has been refinished by us in Brewster Green, renickeled, and has every appearance of new. Equipped with 2 bumpers, windshield cleaner, stoplight and excellent cord tires. The Franklin is the most practical car for year 'round use as it has no water to freeze or boil, is easy to operate, easy riding and will give you 20 miles per gallon on gas and fifteen to twenty thousand miles on cord tires. $950.

FRANKLIN SEDAN, 1920, SERIES 9B. This is our 5 passenger Sedan which is so much sought for particularly at this season of the year, because of its many mechanical and other advantages. It is roomy, doors are wide, and the car is exceptionally economical to operate. Refinished Franklin Green and bright parts renickeled. It is in first class mechanical condition and upholstery, tires, and coach condition are excellent. Has demountable rims, 2 spring bumpers, windshield wiper, stoplight, clock, snubbers, etc. The price we have placed on this car is about a 50% saving as compared with the new car price and it will render you the same economical and satisfactory service. $1,650.

This latest model 1922 Cadillac phaeton 61 cannot be told from new, mechanically or in appearance. We leave to your decision. It has been rebuilt, beautifully repainted, the body is not marred by a single scratch, and the upholstery is equal to that of a new car. The cord tires are in excellent condition, and it is equipped with spare tire and cover, bumper, trunk rack, and Tel-Right stoplight, vision mirror and windshield wiper. We give a standard new car guarantee because of its rare condition.

FORDS

Why Try to Save $20?

Yes, our prices are just $20 higher on our Fords than the average USED FORD dealer sells them for. We charge $20 to repairs on every car that comes into our establishment, and then charge you the $20 extra when you buy a car.

THIS IS WHAT YOU GET FOR $20.

1—About $50 or $60 worth of labor and material, because your car is all set to use, without going out and having to get a lot of work done soon after buying, like you would when purchasing cars from unreliable dealers.

2—$20 worth of work in our shop would cost you about $40 in any other shop, because that $20 we charge you cost us $30.

3—A car that has been thoroughly inspected, repaired where needed, all unserviceable parts replaced with genuine Ford parts in the most up to date and complete used car service station in Chicago.

4—A car with a genuine written guarantee for 60 days [2 full months]. A real honest to goodness guarantee for 60 days.

STUTZ
1922 De Luxe Sport
$2,250
A THANKSGIVING OFFERING!

This model Stutz Sport June last year cost $4,250 and is the last word in a smart appearing, fast, high powered road car. There is a strange fascination about driving a Stutz car that one does not experience with any other automobile. Our owners say it is much like the thrill one gets when driving a "thoroughbred"—always eager to go and "pulling at the lines."

The appearance of this beautiful car we are offering is identical with the current model Stutz. Mechanically it is 100% perfect, for we have just put it through our shops, where we put the finishing touches to make it not only operate as smoothly and quietly as the day it left the factory but present the appearance of new. The finish of the body is in Rolls-Royce blue; the 6 wire wheels are white enamel. The contrast is heightened by the black fenders and the special massive drum type Stutz silver lamps, radiator, wind shield, and spotlight. On the rack at the rear of the body is a sporty trunk. Additional equipment consists of guard rails, 2 extra tires, special blue drum type tire covers, motometer, etc.

This superb car will give the same service and satisfaction as a new car, and can be bought at a considerable reduction. We furnish Stutz new car service and guarantee with this wonderful automobile. Come down today and see it!

BUSINESS CHANCES.

OWN YOUR BUSINESS
BECOME PART OF A LARGE INSTITUTION.

We are establishing a chain of C-W TIRE STORES in towns and cities whose automobile registration justifies successful operation. We require ambitious men to own and operate these stores. Experience is helpful but not necessary.

Our plan is based upon proven policies which assure success to our operators. Merchandise for initial requirements will be furnished with payment date deferred until July 1st if desired.

Capital of $1,000 or more, governed by size of town, required, and you own your store and retain all your profits.

You benefit by the reputation of a large institution, of which you become a part, and by the co-operation of the entire organization, besides sharing in a co-ordinated advertising plan which backs up the activities of each store in the chain.

Act immediately, as our proposition is exclusive for one man in a town. Write for information.

CARLSTEN-WILLIAMS COMPANY,
2246 S. Michigan-av.,

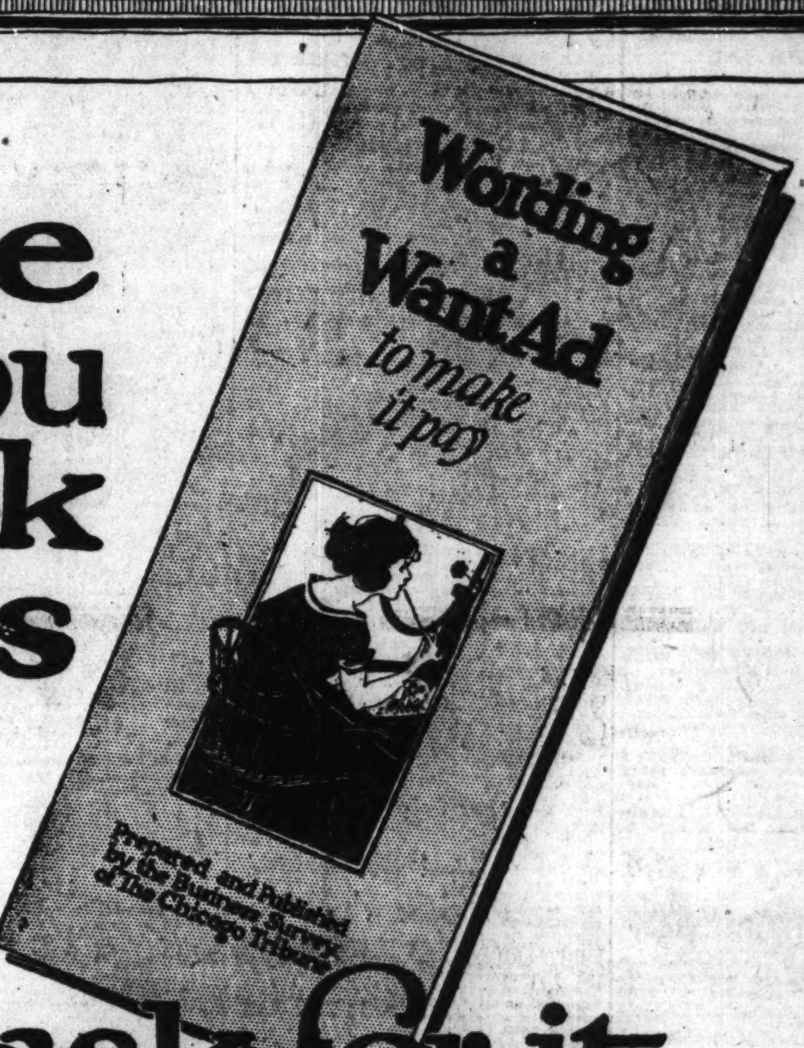
The Tribune will mail you this new book on Want Ads FREE



Wording a Want Ad to make it pay
Prepared and Published by the Business Survey of The Chicago Tribune

if you will ask for it

A WANT ADVERTISER asked, when given three wishes by a good fairy, that his every Want Ad would be effective. So the good fairy willed that his wish be granted, but she left the actual accomplishing of the wish up to him. She offered to mail him, absolutely and unqualifiedly free, a copy of "Wording a Want Ad to Make It Pay." The Tribune is playing fairy godmother to its Want Advertisers. It has written a book, "Wording a Want Ad to Make It Pay," which is an open sesame of Want Ad information. All The Tribune asks you to do is to mail in the coupon, signifying that you desire a copy, and one will be mailed to you FREE.
